Mr. STANDFIELD. I say, it is 14 years since I was here, and I had a membership here of about 3,500 members, and several other persons in other unions, and the name just does not linger with me now. If I would see him, I might—or I could. Fairly, I don't think I do.

Chairman EASTLAND. I think he is telling the truth.

Mr. MORRIS. Did you contribute an article to the National Guardian, July 29, 1957, page 2—that is just very recently, July of this year—did you contribute an article to the National Guardian, which is a pro-Communist magazine?

Mr. STANDFIELD. I would have to say I wrote an article for them and released it to the newspapers. I don't know how many printed them.

Mr. MORRIS. Did you send it to the National Guardian?

Mr. STANDFIELD. I sent it out to all the newspapers I had.

Mr. MORRIS. I see.

Mr. STANDFIELD. Well, that I know of, local and national.

Mr. MORRIS. What was the letter about?

Mr. STANDFIELD. Going to heaven.

Mr. MORRIS. Were you urging everyone to go to heaven?

Mr. STANDFIELD. I think they ought to.

Mr. MORRIS. We don't have the article. Do you, Mr. Mandel? I suggest we get the article and put it in the record. Unless Mr. Sourwine wants to ask you——

Mr. SOURWINE. Just want to ask you, are you the same Ruell Standfield who was employed by E. L. Bruce Lumber Co. in Memphis at one time?

Mr. STANDFIELD. That is correct.

Mr. SOURWINE. I have no further questions.

Mr. MORRIS. Stand aside.

Mr. STANDFIELD. May I ask a question? I have come down here and I have lost time and expense coming down here. While you did—you paid my plane fare down here and as far as my stay, and I think there was some left over, however, they did not give it to me to pay the bus fare, the airport bus from the hangar.

Mr. MORRIS. Well, Mr. Barber here—Mr. Barber will take good care of you.

Mr. STANDFIELD. Thank you.

(Witness excused.)

Mr. MORRIS. Mr. Ludwig.

Senator JENNER. Do you swear the testimony you give in this hearing will be the truth, the whole truth, and nothing but the truth, so help you God?

Mr. LUDWIG. I do.

Senator JENNER. You may be seated.

TESTIMONY OF THOMAS D. LUDWIG

Senator JENNER. Give the committee your full name.

Mr. LUDWIG. My full name, Mr. Chairman, is Thomas D. Ludwig.

Senator JENNER. Where do you live, Mr. Ludwig?

Mr. LUDWIG. 2227 Whittle Springs Road, Knoxville, Tenn.

Senator JENNER. What is your business or profession?

Mr. LUDWIG. I am administrative assistant, United Mine Workers.

Senator JENNER. United Mine——

Mr. LUDWIG. Welfare and pension fund.

Senator JENNER. Proceed, Mr. Morris.

Mr. MORRIS. Where were you born, Mr. Ludwig?

Mr. LUDWIG. I was born at Clarksville, or outside of Clarksville, Ark., Johnson County, on April 8, 1919.

Mr. MORRIS. Mr. Ludwig, what other employment have you had? You are now a field worker of the United Mine Workers welfare and retirement fund, are you not?

Mr. LUDWIG. I think the title is more like I said it before, but at the same time, I think what you said would be correct.

Mr. MORRIS. It is United Mine Workers Welfare and Retirement Fund?

Mr. LUDWIG. That is right.

Mr. MORRIS. How long have you been there?

Mr. LUDWIG. I have been there a little over 2 years.

Mr. MORRIS. What did you do prior to the time you went with the United Mine Workers Welfare and Retirement Fund?

Mr. LUDWIG. Is that identification, Mr. Morris?

Mr. MORRIS. No; we asked you that in the executive session. The reason is, we have information that you have been a member of the Communist Party, and I would like to find out and trace what Communist Party members here in the South have been doing, and we are interested to find out what fields in the South have been penetrated. In fact, according to the evidence, and you may deny it if you want to—well, you may have held various positions. Now, I am asking you what positions you have had before you went with the United Mine Workers welfare and retirement.

Mr. LUDWIG. I would necessarily—I would decline on grounds that my answer might tend to incriminate me, a privilege which I might claim, and which I do claim, of the fifth amendment of the Constitution.

Chairman EASTLAND. You frankly believe if you answer the question, that would incriminate you, is that right—that you would be testifying against yourself?

Mr. LUDWIG. Well——

Mr. MORRIS. Where were you born?

Chairman EASTLAND. Let him answer.

Mr. LUDWIG. It is more like——

Mr. MORRIS. I am sorry; excuse me.

Mr. LUDWIG. It would tend to, I would say it would tend to incriminate me.

Mr. MORRIS. Yes, sir.

Mr. LUDWIG. Might tend to incriminate me, I think is the way I expressed it.

Mr. MORRIS. You want to claim a general privilege under the fifth amendment?

Mr. LUDWIG. Yes, sir.

Mr. MORRIS. You were born April 8, 1919, at Clarksville, Ark., were you not?

Mr. LUDWIG. Outside Clarksville.

Mr. MORRIS. And you attended the University of California at Berkeley?

Mr. LUDWIG. I did.

Mr. MORRIS. Did you obtain a degree there?

Mr. LUDWIG. Yes, sir, I did.

Mr. MORRIS. Did you do any postgraduate work?

Mr. LUDWIG. No. I started to do postgraduate work, and I dropped out just in time for you to drop out. But up to—I was in the Army.

Mr. MORRIS. I see.

Mr. LUDWIG. And so that is the reason why I did not. I started to and did not.

Mr. MORRIS. And you got out of the Army in 1946?

Mr. LUDWIG. Yes, sir.

Mr. MORRIS. And entered the Army in 1942?

Mr. LUDWIG. That is correct.

Mr. MORRIS. So you had almost 4 years service with the United States Army?

Mr. LUDWIG. No. Well, it would—no, it was early—it was late 1942 and early 1946.

Mr. MORRIS. Be between 3 and 4 years?

Mr. LUDWIG. Yes, sir.

Mr. MORRIS. All right. Were you employed by the Farmers Union at Greenville, Tenn., in 1946?

Mr. LUDWIG. Well, again, now, that is like the question I asked you a while ago, if it pertained to the inquiry.

Mr. MORRIS. It is pertinent to the inquiry, because we want to find out whether, among other things, a Communist Party member was able to hold employment in the Farmers Union.

Mr. LUDWIG. I would decline, Mr. Counsel, to answer the question on the ground——

Mr. MORRIS. You would not even tell us whether you were employed by the Farmers Union at Greenville, Tenn., in early 1946?

Mr. LUDWIG. Well, for purposes of identification—explanation, so you will know, so that I will say again the reason——

Mr. MORRIS. You say you were the person?

Mr. LUDWIG. But for identification, that is the purposes I answered certain questions relative to my employment. But so far as pertinency, I would have to say I decline on grounds my answer may incriminate me, and I claim privilege on that.

Mr. MORRIS. Were you a Communist at the time when you were working for Farmers Union in Greenville, Tenn., in the year 1946?

Mr. LUDWIG. I refuse to answer the question, on the same grounds.

Mr. MORRIS. All right.

Chairman EASTLAND. What grounds?

Mr. MORRIS. All right, for what purpose do you refuse to answer?

Mr. LUDWIG. I did not—for what purpose do I refuse to answer?

Mr. MORRIS. Under what claim of privilege? Is it the privilege of the fifth amendment?

Mr. LUDWIG. I claim privilege under the fifth amendment.

Mr. MORRIS. So it may be understood between us, if you claim a privilege, unless you say so, you will be claiming it under the fifth amendment; is that clear?

Mr. LUDWIG. Yes, sir.

Mr. MORRIS. And if any other claim of privilege other than the fifth amendment, will you indicate then upon what you rely?

Mr. LUDWIG. Yes.

Mr. MORRIS. Were you in June 1950, district supervisor of the Farmers Mutual Insurance Co. at Greensville, Tenn.?

Mr. LUDWIG. I decline to answer on the grounds previously stated.

Mr. MORRIS. All right. In 1942, were you a member of the Communist Party in Alameda County, Calif.

Mr. LUDWIG. I decline to answer on grounds previously stated.

Mr. MORRIS. In March of 1946, was your Communist Party membership transferred from California to Tennessee.

Mr. LUDWIG. I decline to answer on grounds that the question might tend to incriminate me—claim privilege.

Mr. MORRIS. In 1946, did you have Communist Party registration card No. 93997?

Mr. LUDWIG. I decline to answer on grounds previously stated.

Mr. MORRIS. Did you have a transfer card dated March 28, 1946—specifically, No. 15241—from Alameda County, Oakland, Calif., to Highland Park School in Tennessee?

Mr. LUDWIG. I plead the same answer; I decline to answer on grounds of privilege.

Mr. MORRIS. Did I have the name right? Is it Highland Park School, or is that Highlander Folk School? Can you tell us about that from your own personal knowledge which is accurate?

Mr. LUDWIG. I decline to answer.

Mr. MORRIS. Now, on May 11, 1946, did you attend a Communist Party meeting at Chattanooga?

Mr. LUDWIG. I decline to answer the question.

Mr. MORRIS. Did you open that meeting with the statement, "Now is the time to start a membership drive in the South?"

Mr. LUDWIG. I decline to answer.

Mr. MORRIS. Did you attend later in 1946 the Southern Conference on Human Welfare at Monteagle, Tenn.?

Mr. LUDWIG. I decline to answer on grounds previously stated.

Mr. MORRIS. Well, you protested, did you not, to Judge Medina the fact that he was presiding at the trial of Communist defendants in August 1949?

Mr. LUDWIG. I decline to answer on grounds previously stated.

Mr. MORRIS. Do you remember contributing $60 to the defense of some local Communist Party schoolteachers?

Mr. LUDWIG. I decline to answer on the grounds previously stated.

Mr. MORRIS. Did you once give Lawrence McGurty a part-time selling job for Farmers Mutual Life Insurance Co. at a time when Mr. McGurty was unemployed?

Mr. LUDWIG. I decline to answer the question on the grounds previously stated, that my answer might incriminate me.

Mr. MORRIS. Do you know a woman named Helen Parsons?

Mr. LUDWIG. I decline to answer on the same grounds.

Mr. MORRIS. Sir, to your knowledge is Helen Parsons a Communist?

Mr. LUDWIG. I decline to answer on the grounds that my answer might incriminate me, or tend to.

Mr. MORRIS. If I would state that Helen Parsons has stated that you were a dedicated Communist, would that be an accurate statement?

Mr. LUDWIG. I decline to answer.

Mr. MORRIS. Are you, in fact, a dedicated Communist?

Mr. LUDWIG. I decline to answer, on grounds as previously stated.

Mr. MORRIS. Senator Jenner would like to know if you are a Communist.

Mr. LUDWIG. I decline to answer on grounds that the question might—, my answer might incriminate me.

Mr. MORRIS. The Daily Worker as of March 15, 1951, lists you as a sponsor of the American Peace Crusade. You were, in fact, a sponsor of the American Peace Crusade?

Mr. LUDWIG. I decline to answer on grounds previously stated.

Mr. MORRIS. Mr. Mandel, I think we have an exhibit, a Daily Worker statement to that effect. I don't know whether it is accurate or not, but certainly you can deny it if you like.

Mr. Mandel, have you got it at this time?

Mr. MANDEL. In the Daily Worker, March 15, 1951, page 5, under item 160 among notable sponsors of the peace group in Tennessee, the name of Tom Ludwig is listed.

Mr. MORRIS. All right, I have no more questions.

Chairman EASTLAND. I have no more questions.

Mr. SOURWINE. I just want to ask one question.

Are you the same Thomas Ludwig who was one of the members of the National Committee To Defend the Rights of the Twelve Communist Leaders in 1949?

Mr. LUDWIG. The same Thomas Ludwig——

Mr. SOURWINE. Yes. According to the Daily Worker, September 8, 1950, page 8, under column 3, a Thomas Ludwig was one of the members of the National Committee to Defend the Rights of the Twelve Communist Leaders. I am asking you if you are that Thomas Ludwig.

Mr. LUDWIG. I respectfully decline to answer that question, because my answer might tend to incriminate me, and I claim the privilege under the fifth amendment.

Mr. SOURWINE. No other questions.

Senator JENNER. Stand aside.

Mr. MORRIS. Olga Zenchuk.

Senator, we have considered very carefully the calling of this next witness, who has asked that she not testify. I had a session with her this morning, and she gave me the name of a lawyer, and I called him about her and asked him then if he could be of any assistance to Mrs. Zenchuk. I made the telephone facilities of the committee available so he could talk to Mrs. Zenchuk. And you know, in view of the evidence that she has been active in Communist work, we pleaded with her to testify, and she gave no answer but said she would plead the fifth amendment. And, considering it well and long, we did feel the committee had no alternative but to call her, in view of our evidence that she has been in——.

Chairman EASTLAND. Will you hold up your right hand?

Do you solemnly swear that the testimony you are about to give will be the truth, the whole truth, and nothing but the truth, so help you God?

Mrs. ZENCHUK. I do.

Mr. Chairman, with your permission I formulated a statement this morning. May I file it with the committee and read it to them?

Senator EASTLAND. No, ma'am, we just can't do that.

TESTIMONY OF OLGA ZENCHUK

Mr. MORRIS. Mrs. Zenchuk, where were you born?

Mrs. ZENCHUK. I was born in Montreal, Quebec, Canada.

Mr. MORRIS. When did you enter the United States?

Mrs. ZENCHUK. In 1938; no, 1929.

Mr. MORRIS. Well, you were naturalized in 1939, then?

Mrs. ZENCHUK. Yes, sir.

Mr. MORRIS. Did you not marry a man named Michael Dalawrak in 1929?

Mrs. ZENCHUK. Yes, sir.

Mr. MORRIS. And divorced him in 1941?

Mrs. ZENCHUK. Yes, sir.

Mr. MORRIS. Were you a member of the Communist Party in Detroit in the period 1941 to 1949?

Mrs. ZENCHUK. Mr. Chairman, I plead the fifth amendment.

Mr. MORRIS. Now, have you been employed in the United Packinghouse Workers of America?

Mrs. ZENCHUK. Mr. Chairman, I plead the fifth amendment.

Mr. MORRIS. In 1948, did you attend the Michigan State Communist Party convention?

Mrs. ZENCHUK. Mr. Chairman, I plead the fifth amendment.

Mr. MORRIS. Mrs. Zenchuk, have you organized strikes at various packinghouse plants?

Mrs. ZENCHUK. Mr. Chairman, I plead the fifth amendment.

Mr. MORRIS. Have you been financial secretary of local 59 at Detroit of the United Auto Workers?

Mrs. ZENCHUK. Mr. Chairman, I plead the fifth amendment.

Mr. MORRIS. Have you been a member of the Ford and Dearborn sections of the Communist Party?

Mrs. ZENCHUK. Mr. Chairman, I plead the fifth amendment.

Mr. MORRIS. Have you ever taught a Communist Party leadership school?

Mrs. ZENCHUK. Mr. Chairman, I plead the fifth amendment.

Mr. MORRIS. What do you do now, Mrs. Zenchuk?

Mrs. ZENCHUK. I am a secretary of William I. Rosamond in Columbus, Miss.

Mr. MORRIS. And do you reside in Mississippi?

Mrs. ZENCHUK. Yes, sir.

Mr. MORRIS. Do you keep up your association with United Packinghouse Workers Union?

Mrs. ZENCHUK. Mr. Chairman, I decline to answer the question. I plead the fifth amendment.

Mr. MORRIS. Did you have any association with Carl Winter on May 24, 1952?

Mrs. ZENCHUK. I plead the fifth amendment, Mr. Chairman.

Mr. MORRIS. Pardon?

Mrs. ZENCHUK. I plead the fifth amendment.

Mr. MORRIS. Mr. Mandel, I wonder if you will identify Carl Winter for the record.

Mr. MANDEL. Carl Winter is a long-time Communist Party organizer, convicted under the Smith Act.

Mr. MORRIS. Senator, I have no further questions. Mr. Sourwine——

Mr. SOURWINE. Where did you say you live now?

Mrs. ZENCHUK. I am a secretary in Columbus, Miss.

Mr. SOURWINE. Where do you live?

Mrs. ZENCHUK. 923 North 10th Street.

Mr. SOURWINE. Are you living there under your own name, under the name Olga Zenchuk?

Mrs. ZENCHUK. No; I go by my husband's name.

Mr. SOURWINE. Dalawrak?

Mrs. ZENCHUK. That is right.

Mr. SOURWINE. Did you formerly live in room 3, Sidell's Motel, Highway 45 West, Columbus, Miss.?

Mrs. ZENCHUK. I plead the fifth amendment.

Mr. SOURWINE. Did you live there under the name Olga Dalawrak?

Mrs. ZENCHUK. I plead the fifth amendment.

Mr. SOURWINE. Were you living alone there?

Mrs. ZENCHUK. Sir?

Mr. SOURWINE. Are you living alone now?

Mrs. ZENCHUK. I plead the fifth amendment.

Mr. SOURWINE. Before moving to Columbus, Miss., did you live in Knoxville?

Mrs. ZENCHUK. Yes, I did, sir.

Mr. SOURWINE. In apartment 7, 923 North 10th Street?

Mrs. ZENCHUK. I believe you have that all wrong.

Mr. SOURWINE. Did you ever live at 923 North 10th Street in Knoxville, Tenn.?

Mrs. ZENCHUK. No, sir.

Mr. SOURWINE. At what address did you live in Knoxville, Tenn.?

Mrs. ZENCHUK. At 2000 Natchez Street.

Mr. SOURWINE. Did you live there alone?

Mrs. ZENCHUK. I decline to answer that, sir, on grounds it may incriminate me.

Mr. SOURWINE. Do you know who lived in apartment 7, 923 North 10th Street, Knoxville, while you were in Knoxville?

Mrs. ZENCHUK. No, sir.

Mr. SOURWINE. You do not?

Mrs. ZENCHUK. Do not.

Mr. SOURWINE. Did you ever visit that address while you were in Knoxville?

Mrs. ZENCHUK. Repeat the address, sir.

Mr. SOURWINE. 923 North 10th Street, Knoxville.

Mrs. ZENCHUK. Sir, that 923 North 10th Street is Columbus, Miss., and not Knoxville.

Mr. SOURWINE. All right, you lived at 923 North 10th Street in Columbus, Miss.?

Mrs. ZENCHUK. Yes, sir.

Mr. SOURWINE. When?

Mrs. ZENCHUK. I still live there.

Mr. SOURWINE. You still live there. You did not live there at one time, and then move away from there, and then move back?

Mrs. ZENCHUK. I visited my mother for a month, and then went back there again.

Mr. SOURWINE. Did you ever live at apartment 7, 923 North 10th Street, Columbus, Miss., with a man not your husband?

Mrs. ZENCHUK. I decline to answer that on grounds it may incriminate me.

Senator JENNER. Are you now a member of the Communist Party?

Mrs. ZENCHUK. No, I am not, sir.

Senator JENNER. When did you break your affiliation with the Communist Party?

Mrs. ZENCHUK. It was in about August of 1949, August or September, I am not quite sure.

Mr. MORRIS. 1949?

Mrs. ZENCHUK. That is right.

Mr. MORRIS. Were you visited by Carl Winter in 1952?

Mrs. ZENCHUK. Sir, I decline to answer that question on grounds that it may incriminate me.

Senator JENNER. Now, if you are not a member of the Communist Party, couldn't you tell this committee, give us some information about this Communist activity?

Mrs. ZENCHUK. Sir, I plead the fifth amendment.

Senator JENNER. I wish you would think that over. You can help us on this. People like you can help this country if you will do it; if you will do it.

Mrs. ZENCHUK. Mr. Chairman——

Senator JENNER. I have no further questions, Mrs. Zenchuk.

Mrs. ZENCHUK. Mr. Chairman, may I again ask permission to read this statement at this time?

Chairman EASTLAND. You can file it with the committee, but we have a rule on that, ma'am.

Let her file it with the committee if she wants to.

Who is the next witness.

Mrs. ZENCHUK. Thank you.

Mr. MORRIS. Senator, Mr. Simon Kasset was supposed to be here to testify, 540 North Prest Road in Chattanooga, Tenn. The marshal, however, tells us he called Mr. Kasset and read the subpena to him and made an appointment to meet him in order to give him a formal copy of the subpena, after which he failed to show, and is now said to be out of town, and the marshal reports he still can't locate him.

Senator, I would like to submit the possibility that in view of the fact that Mr. Kasset has had his subpena read to him on the phone, according to the marshal, and then Mr. Kasset agreed to meet with the marshal, whether there be an actual service of the subpena, inasmuch as all the notice apparently has already been given to the witness, it might be taken under consideration by the committee whether or not Simon Kasset of Chattanooga, Tenn., is in fact in contempt of this committee.

The next witness is Grace Lorch. Grace Lorch, please. Will Grace Lorch please come forward?

Senator JENNER. Will you be sworn to testify, Mrs. Lorch?

Do you swear the testimony you give in this hearing will be the truth, the whole truth, and nothing but the truth, so help you God?

Mrs. LORCH. I do.

Senator JENNER. You may be seated, Mrs. Lorch.

TESTIMONY OF GRACE LORCH

Senator JENNER. Will you give the committee your full name?

Mrs. LORCH. My name is Mrs. Grace Lorch.

Mr. MORRIS. Where do you reside, Mrs. Lorch?

Mrs. LORCH. And my home is at Little Rock. I was served a subpena on Saturday, October 26——

Senator JENNER. Just a minute, Mrs. Lorch.

Mrs. LORCH. At 2 o'clock.

Senator JENNER. We have to keep order; we have to keep order, Mrs. Lorch.

Chairman EASTLAND. Let me tell the photographer, you can't stand between the committee and the witness.

Are the photographers bothering you, Mrs. Lorch?

Mrs. LORCH. No.

Chairman EASTLAND. We will have them removed if they are. We have to proceed in an orderly fashion.

Mr. MORRIS. Will you tell us, please, where you live?

Mrs. LORCH. I am here under protest, and have been deprived against my will of my constitutional right to counsel. That is my answer.

Senator JENNER. We are going to have order, please.

Mrs. LORCH. I am here under protest, and have been deprived against my will of my constitutional right to counsel.

Senator JENNER. Mrs. Lorch, you are an educated woman. Your husband is supposed to be a college professor. Now, we are coming down here and trying to do a job for our country. Maybe we are doing it backwards. But, please, won't you cooperate and be enough of a lady just to answer the questions?

Where do you live, Mrs. Lorch? What is your address?

Mrs. LORCH. I am here under protest and have been deprived against my will of my constitutional rights.

Senator JENNER. I will ask it again.

Mrs. LORCH. I am here under protest and have been deprived against my will of my constitutional rights.

Senator JENNER. Mrs. Lorch, I will show you why you are here. You are a troublemaker, aren't you? You came in here yesterday just as a Communist functionary to attract attention and attract the press of this Nation, saying this committee was down here to investigate you because you had protected some colored girl over at Little Rock, Ark., in the recent integration affair over there. Now, I am going to tell you, Mrs. Lorch, you may have a speech, and I don't know who wrote it, but we are not down here to question you in any way about Little Rock, Ark. This committee at this time is not interested in integration in any sense of the word. But we are interested in protecting this country against the Communist conspiracy that is out to overthrow and destroy this country. Now, we are not concerned with what you have done at Little Rock, Ark. But we are trying to make you a witness at this time. You would not even avail yourself of an executive session to protect yourself. You wanted to create a scene, and you have accomplished your purpose. And the press has been very helpful with you. But here is what we want to talk to you about. We want to ask you about if you were married to Lee Lorch in 1943. Were you?

Mrs. LORCH. I am here under protest——

Senator JENNER. Well, wait just a minute.

Mrs. LORCH (continuing). And have been deprived against my will of my constitutional——

Senator JENNER. Wait just a moment, Mrs. Lorch. We want to know if you were a member of the Communist Party in Boston.

Mrs. LORCH. I am here under protest, and have been deprived against my will of my constitutional right to counsel. I am here——

Chairman EASTLAND. Your statement you are reading there, would you like to file it for the record?

Senator JENNER. You are trying to hide the fact you are a Communist.

Chairman EASTLAND. And then, so there won't be any question about it; are you a Communist?

Mrs. LORCH. We all know well what Mr. Eastland means by communism. He means—we can all describe it as you would.

Chairman EASTLAND. I have read of red herrings—your kind—all my life. And that is all the questions. We thank you.

Senator JENNER. I am going to read into this record at this time, the purpose or reason why this committee wanted to question Mrs. Lorch. We have information showing she was identified at Boston as a member of the Communist Party several years ago, that she attended the Massachusetts State convention of the party February 1943. She was invited to attend the national convention of the CPUSA in 1945. That in 1945 she was a member of the New England district of the Communist Party. In 1953 she wrote a letter to a Nashville newspaper attacking the persecution of the Rosenbergs, the atomic spies. We have information that she had connection with Junius Scales, the southern regional director of the Communist Party.

Mrs. LORCH. Would you repeat the name?

Senator JENNER. Junius, J-u-n-i-u-s Scales, while her husband was attending Fisk University. We have other things here, Mr. Chairman. I wanted to show that this woman came here to try to disrupt this hearing. She came to try to drag a red herring about this hearing, invoking Little Rock——

Mrs. LORCH. I came here because I was subpenaed.

Senator JENNER (continuing). While we are investigating communism.

Mrs. LORCH. I came here because I was subpenaed.

Senator JENNER. I suggest this woman should be excused, if she is not going to cooperate, if she is going to act against her country, I think she should be excused and cited for contempt for not answering questions.

Mr. MORRIS. Chairman Eastland and Senator Jenner, our recommendation——

Senator JENNER. Let's have order.

Mr. MORRIS. Our recommendation will be deferred as to what disposition the committee will make of the witnesses who were subpenaed here and did not appear for various reasons, and also to reach conclusions on it between the two Senators who have heard testimony, and who will now repair to executive session.

(Whereupon, at 2:50 p. m., the hearing was adjourned.)

RALPH McGILL

A Nation of Touch-Me-Nots

In reading the news of my trade, which presently is being justifiably criticized because of the buildup on the Vanguard test, I see where there is open protest against portrayal of reporters and their activities in some of the television dramas of our time.

Without having seen them, I am sure they are, as charged, exaggerated and a stereotype. But also I earnestly trust the dramamakers will not pay too much attention to the complaints. This seems to be a time when usually sincere and dedicated handfuls of people are wanting to take Huckleberry Finn, Tom Sawyer, Merchant of Venice and other classics off the library shelves, and some of the old spirituals off the air because allegedly they are not true to life.

This is a time, too, when admen visibly are wincing about being called hucksters or made the subjects of novels like "Zoomar," which has to do with television. "Madison Avenue" is so much a part of modern vernacular it soon will find its way into dictionaries of modern language.

Censors

Television and the movies are belabored by bankers for any characterization of a financial tycoon which does not depict him as a benevolent fellow who scorns money save for the good it will do. Various religious groups and individuals seek to impose their own concept of morality on screen, stage and books. Cartoonists are accused of being left wing if they dare lampoon pulpit, stockbrokers, or in any manner satirize civic clubs, political "leaders" and pompousness in general.

The Ku Klux Klan, when chided for blowing up an innocent man's house, insists it is ordained by God. The race-baiters argue not they, but God, wrote it all in Holy Writ, and therefore it is Christian duty to peddle their inflammatory stupidities.

Various religious groups and individuals seek to impose their own concept of morality on screen, stage and books. Cartoonists are accused of being left wing if they dare lampoon pulpit, stockbrokers, or in any manner satirize civic clubs, political "leaders" and pompousness in general.

The Ku Klux Klan, when chided for blowing up an innocent man's house, insists it is ordained by God. The race-baiters argue not they, but God, wrote it all in Holy Writ, and therefore it is Christian duty to peddle their inflammatory stupidities.

The post office deficit is likely to be wiped out by the tons of anonymous letters of complaint and abuse. Postmen are growing humpbacked toting all the hate mail which insists that Christianity doesn't mean what it says; that "Love Thy Neighbor" is strictly Marxist stuff being pushed by Khrushchev; that the Jews are as bad for the country as are the Christians who believe that brotherhood stuff; that the Negro, who is 10 per cent of the population, is about to take over America; that the Supreme Court is made up of Reds . . . and so on.

Anyhow, it is one of those times . . . such as we have known so often in our past. And it, too, will pass. But, meanwhile, everyone is sensitive. And I'd just as soon the newspapers were not upset if a TV drama pictures a reporter or an editor as something a little short of Sir Galahad.

Stereotype

Anyhow, it is a little late. The stereotype of the newspaper reporter was established generations ago. It is not true to life and is often ridiculous.

But, as a matter of fact, it is improving. Not so many years ago the stereotype of the reporter was that of a drunk whose heart of gold and greatness of soul were known only to the beautiful girl reporter. When the Scrooge-like managing editor fired the reporter for being drunk the reporter never failed to celebrate his dismissal at the worst dive in town. There he overheard the information which cracked the great bank robbery case and gave his paper such a scoop that the managing editor had to take him back. In the last reel he sobered up and married the girl reporter.

There was the formula, too, of the drunk reporter who wrote better plastered than sober. While drunk he would stumble on the story of the year and sit down and do eight columns of deathless prose. I've seen a lot of those reporters who "wrote better" drunk than sober. They did, too, but there was a reason. Someone else always wrote the story and charitably signed the drunk's name. But that stereotype is dead. The drunk reporter doesn't fit in anymore. He was a charming fellow, and vastly entertaining. It was odd how no one ever thought about what a wretched life his wife and kids must have had.

Well, anyhow, I hope newspapers don't get sensitive. There already is enough stuffiness.

A PETITION TO BAN OUR NUCLEAR BOMB TESTS

On January 13, 1958, DR. LINUS CARL PAULING, Chairman of the Chemistry and Chemical Engineering Division of the California Institute of Technology, presented a petition signed by 9,235 scientists of 44 countries to United Nations Secretary-General DAG HAMMARSKJOLD, urging an international agreement for the immediate end of all testing of nuclear weapons.

Listed among the 2,705 American scientists whose names appeared in the petition were: C. VERNON CANNON, Yellow Springs, Ohio; EDWARD U. CONDON, St. Louis, Missouri; LESLIE C. DUNN, New York City; MICHAEL HEIDELBERGER, New York City; MARTIN KAMEN, St. Louis, Missouri; EDWIN C. KEMBLE, Cambridge, Massachusetts; ISAAC M. KOLTHOFF, Minneapolis, Minnesota; KARL PAUL LINK, Madison, Wisconsin; KIRTLEY F. MATHER, Cambridge, Massachusetts; PHILIP MORRISON; LINUS PAULING, Los Angeles, California; WARD PIGMAN, Birmingham, Alabama;

DR. WILLIAM WARD PIGMAN was born in Chicago, Illinois, on March 5, 1910. He has received A. B. and M. A. degrees from George Washington University and a Ph.D. degree from the University of Maryland. PIGMAN was employed as a chemist in the National Bureau of Standards during two periods, from 1930 to 1938 and from 1941 to 1944. Upon resigning from Government service, PIGMAN was employed by the Corn Products Company of Argo, Illinois, for two years and in 1946, joined the staff of the Institute of Paper Chemistry in Appleton, Wisconsin. He left this organization in 1949 to become a Professor of Biochemistry at the University of Alabama Medical Center, a position which he presently holds. (See "American Men of Science", Volume I, 1955, page 1519 and "The Evening Sun", Baltimore, Maryland, 12-10-48.)

WHITTAKER CHAMBERS, a former courier for a Soviet espionage apparatus, testified before the House Committee on Un-American Activities in 1948 PIGMAN provided him with secret information for a Soviet spy ring while PIGMAN was employed by the Bureau of Standards. This Federal agency has been previously engaged in testing "some of the Government's most secret weapons and military devices." On December 11, 1948, WILLIAM PIGMAN and his brother GEORGE, appeared before a New York City Federal Grand Jury investigating Soviet espionage activities. After testifying, WILLIAM PIGMAN released the following statement: "I categorically deny that I have ever had any dealings with WHITTAKER CHAMBERS or that I ever knew the man...I further unqualifiedly deny that I have ever given to CHAMBERS or to any other person any unauthorized Governmental information..." (See "The Sun", Baltimore, Maryland, 12-12-48, page 1; and 6-10-49, page 1.)

During ALGER HISS' first perjury trial in June 1949, CHAMBERS reiterated his charge that PIGMAN gave him classified government information for subsequent transmission to the Soviet Union. Last December, PIGMAN addressed the annual meeting of the American Association for the Advancement of Science in Indianapolis, Indiana, on the subject, "The Ills of American Science and the Lessons of Sputnik." According to PIGMAN, "the triumph of Russian science and technology represented by the launching of the Sputniks focuses attention on poor relations between leaders in science and politics...Our injured national pride is a minor wound if we accept the situation at its true meaning and recognize the illnesses of American science and democracy." (See "Birmingham (Alabama) News", 12-30-57.)

FRED ROUTH, a headquarters official of Southern Regional Council, 63 Auburn Ave., N. E., Atlanta, Georgia, is pictured above leading a workshop. In at least one of these sessions, the tactics of including women and children in racial demonstrations and incidents was propounded on the basis that police are reluctant to shoot women and children.

Southern Regional Council is the recipient of Ford, Fund for the Republic grants of $497,000.00 Fund for the Republic grants originated with the Ford Motor Company. Southern Regional Council is the parent organization of 12 statewide Councils on Human Relations operated only in the Southern States.

Southern Regional Council has been able to exploit the facilities of religion and education because of a quasi-religious status afforded by occupancy of space in a building owned by a huge church. The leadership of few units of the Communist apparatus have records of Communist affiliations which exceed those of present and past directors of Southern Regional Council.

The Daily Worker, official organ of the Communist Party, credits the foundation of Southern Regional Council to Jim Jackson, Negro Communist presently head of Southern Affairs Commission of the Communist Party. Jackson is also credited with the establishment of Southern Conference Education Fund.; and Southern Conference for Human Welfare, both organizations are recognized parts of the Communist apparatus and have interlocking directorates with Southern Regional Council.

The American Legion Firing Line, May 15, 1957, referring to the incorporating papers says "This document, filed in the Superior Court of Fulton County, State of Georgia, listed the names of five incorporators of the Council as follows: Dr Rufus E. Clement, Ralph McGill, and Bishop Arthur J Moore, of Atlanta, Georgia; Dr Charles S. Johnson, of Nashville, Tennessee (now deceased); and Dr. Howard W Odum, Chapel Hill, North Carolina. (See Petition of the Incorporation Book 062, pages 64-67 1-6-44; and "The New York Times", 10-17-55.)

FLUORIDATION DATA TERMED TOO SCANTY

The absence of scientific evidence showing the long-range effects of fluoridated water was decried yesterday by Carlton Fredericks, nutritionist, author and radio commentator on health.

Conclusions from tests on a person with a lifetime intake of fluorine might cause as much concern as those on the results of many X-rays, Mr. Fredericks said. He spoke with other guest speakers on the topic of fluoridation on the WCBS television program "Right Now."

Fluoridation of the city's water supply will be discussed at public hearings before the Board of Estimate beginning March 6.

Mrs. Emily Mehr, president of the Committee Opposed to Fluoridation, argued against fluoridation for the entire population on the ground that the chemical was not beneficial to children more than 10 years old.

Safety of Fluoridation Questioned

NEW YORK, Feb. 20 (AP)—A statement by 300 medical men today asserted fluoridation of drinking water "imposes an extraordinary risk on certain individuals."

The statement, also hitting at what it called use of public water supplies as "a vehicle for drugs," was directed to Mayor Robert F. Wagner's attention by a 13-member delegation of the Medical-Dental Committee on the Evaluation of Fluoridation.

The delegatioin was headed by Dr. Jonathan Forman of Columbus, Ohio.

Public hearings are to be conducted March 6 on fluoridating New York drinking water.

The statement said the signers "are as concerned as anyone over the prevalence of tooth decay, and as anxious that it be prevented; but each of us . . . believes that fluoridation of public water supplies not a proper means of attempting such prevention.

The report said positive proof of the safety of fluoridation was lacking. It criticized proposed introduction of one part per million of fluoride in drinking water as "in the toxic range."

It held that the individual had the right, rather than public officials, to govern his teeth.

It declared a long-time study is needed to determine if fluoridation could be an "insidious factor in chronic disease." It hit also at the "mass medication" aspect of fluoridation, and said "less hazardous and more efficient ways" were available to obtain the benefits ascribed to fluoridation.

Dr. Forman and Dr. A. Allen London, of Boonton, N. J., described the statement as a "strictly professional undertaking" and said it represented the joint efforts of many doctors and scientists in various parts of the country.

At the City Hall discussion Dr. Charles Gordon Heyd, a former president of the American Medical Association, attacked the proposal as injecting "an infinitesimal amount of poison into our water," after Government agencies had spent millions to protect reservoirs.

A GLIMPSE AT COMMUNISTS, INTEGRATIONISTS, ONE-WORLDERS AND THE PLOT AGAINST BIRMINGHAM

"Persons making up the Communist network in the South are in most cases highly educated individuals who hold positions of influence in their communities. The Communist network in the South includes housewives, as well as people in the professions and in industry. They appear to have moved with extreme facility around the Southern area and even from California and Texas and to New York while still continuing to maintain their Communist connections. (Senate Internal Security Subcommittee, Press Release, 11-27-57.)

Typical of this Communist network is the Southern Regional Council Inc. No. 63 Auburn Avenue, N. E., Atlanta, Ga., and its affiliated "Councils on Human Relations." To properly understand the character of the Southern Regional Council, Inc., it is necessary that we examine the history of the now defunct Southern Conference for Human Welfare. On June 12, 1947 the latter outfit was cited by the House Un-American Activities Committee of the Congress as a Communist front organization, and subsequently it withered and died. (See House Un-American Activities Report, Southern Conference for Human Welfare, 1947, pages 1 and 15.) (Or perhaps it went underground only to bob up under another name?)

The Southern Regional Council which was organized in 1944 as the successor to the Commission on Interracial Cooperation, Inc., then came to the fore to take the place of the subversive, red-front Southern Conference and has since carried on its work.

The Southern Regional Council is the recipient of the largest single grant ever awarded by the FORD FOUNDATION'S infamous "FUND FOR THE REPUBLIC" having received as of 1956, a total of $445,000 "in support of studies and activities to promote interracial improvements in the South". (SEE Fund for the Republic's, Three Year Report, May 1956, Page 22). An additional $300,000 has been awarded to the South Regional Council by the Fund to the Republic it is disclosed by the American Legion's "Firing Line." (See February 1, 1958 issue of the "Firing Line"). These grants "In support of studies and activities "boiled down to plain honest language, of course, means mixing of whites and negroes from the first grade in our schools on through every level of our society.

After demise of the Southern Conference for Human Welfare many persons who had supported it shifted their energies and loyalty to the Southern Regional Council, Ine: Records of the American Legion's Americanism Commission discloses that sixteen (16) former directors of the Southern Regional Council have, in the past, supported the subversive Civil Rights Conference for Human Welfare. The [illegible] of the American Legion also reflect the following nine (9) CURRENT Southern Regional Council Directors have been affiliated with the Southern Conference for Human Welfare. (SEE American Legion "First Line" March 15, 1957 issue page 2). These Directors are: Rufus B. Atwood, Paul R. Christopher, Rufus E. Clements, J. W. Dent, Benjamin E. Mays, E. C. Peters, Josephine Williams, Marion A. Wright and Council Trenholm. Trenholm, is president of Alabama State College, Montgomery, Alabama.

Since 1947 until last year Director of the Southern Regional Council was Dr. George S. Mitchell former Southeastern Regional Director of the C.I.O. Political Action Committee.

Among the organizations which have supplied the Council with sponsorship, speakers, literature, or writers for its publications or have otherwise cooperated are: American Jewish Congress, N.A.A.C.P., National Religion and Labor Foundation, American Veterans Committee, C.I.O. National Urban League, National Board of the Y.W.C.A. National Conference of Christians and Jews, and the anti- Defamation League ofBnai B'rith.

The Council has distributed and promoted the pamphlets of the "Public Affairs Committee", which was founded by Evans Clark, one of the first employees of the Soviet Information Bureau in the United States and Frederick Vanderbilt Field "angel" for Red causes and former Communist Daily Worker columnist.

The Council issues a monthly magazine, New South, which has featured articles by Stetson Kennedy, writer for the Communist Daily Worker, and Federated Press Communist news service.

One of the first projects of the Southern Regional Council was a traveling display based upon the booklet "Races of Mankind." The Council recommended the booklet as appropriate reading to 13,000 police chiefs, sheriffs, and church and community leaders. A special subcommittee of the House Armed Service Committee, appointed to investigate Communist Infiltration of the U. S. Army and its training programs, charged that "Races of Mankind" was filled with "all the techniques—more or less subtly presented—of Communist propaganda."

Today the Southern Regional Council has expanded its activities into twelve (12) States. Virtually supported by the grants from the "Fund for the Republic" it has strengthened its head office in Atlanta and organized Councils on "HUMAN RELATIONS" with interracial boards and staffs in the following States: Alabama, Arkansas, Florida, Georgia, Kentucky, Louisiana, Mississippi, North Carolina, South Carolina, Tennessee, Texas and Virginia."

The Alabama organ of the Southern Regional Council is the "Alabama Council on Human Relations", offices in the Comer Building, Birmingham, Alabama, on February 14, 1957 the Alabama Council on Human Relations at a meeting held at Stillman College, a negro Presgyterian Institution in Tuscaloosa, Alabama was addressed by Dan C. Whitsett, pastor of the First Methodist Church, Sylacauga, Ala., and by Raymond F. Harvey, pastor of the Greenwood Baptist Church for negroes in Tuskegee, at that meeting the following officers were elected: Chairman, Dr. Duncan Hunter, pastor of the First Methodist Church, Alexander City, Alabama.

Vice-Chairman C. G. Gomillion leader of the current Tuskegee boycott, dean of students at Tuskegee Institute. Gomillion is active in red-front activities and organizations. He is a current director of the SOUTHERN REGIONAL COUNCIL and has been affiliated with the red-tinged Southern Conference Educational Fund, Inc. (of which Aubrey Williams has been President of Since 1948). Gomillion has recently been exposed by the Georgia Commission on Education as being active in the Highlander Folk School of Monteagle, Tennessee which the commission has charged as being "A Communist Training School."

Executive Director of the Alabama Council is Robert E. Hughes who resides in the exclusive Honeysuckle Lane section of Cahaba Heights. Since September of 1957 a great deal of Hughes organizing has been concentrated in the Tri cities of Florence and Sheffield and the Tennessee Valley.

The Alabama Council publishes a monthly newsletter it lists its address as Room 1218. Comer Building, Birmingham, Alabama and is signed by Robert E. Hughes. The January 28, 1958 issue of the newsletter, undertakes to outline the development of the situation in Macon County, the County in which 84% of the population is negro.

Hughes ridicules the efforts of the white people of Macon County to ward off domination of their county by negroes. Hughes asserts in his newsletter that the negroes will not settle for anything short of restoration of the original city limits (which would eventually mean that Tuskegee would be completely controlled by negroes from every standpoint) and that the dead-lock now existing will have to be broken by the Federal Courts.

The newsletter very pointedly calls attention to the raids personally led by Attorney-General John Patterson on the office of the Tuskegee Civic Association in July, 1957. The Tuskegee Civic Association headed by Gomillion has boycotted white merchants in direct violation of the law forbidding such illegal conspiracies. Attention is also called to Attorney General Patterson's securing of an injunction restraining TCA from their boycott. Despite the fact that the Attorney General was only upholding the law in the foregoing matters, Hughes acting quite unlike a Man of God, fails to call this to the attention of his readers. Instead, he imputes to the lawbreaking negroes a martyr like quality and to Attorney General Patterson he gives the role of oppressor and villian. By so doing, he is guilty of the sin of misleading by omission. How tragic that a clergyman should sink to this low level?

We suspect that Rev. Hughes, by his emphasis on the part played by John Patterson hopes to defeat him in his bid for the governorship of Alabama in the May Democratic primary by welding the negroes into a one-hundred per cent block against him. Without in anywise favoring one candidate or the other, we believe that Hughes can rest easy on this question, for NAACP undoubtedly has, or will pass out its bloc voting orders to the negro voters, and one finds it hard to imagine Patterson being their chosen candidate. No, the NAACP and Alabama Council choice will be the candidate they consider most pliable to their will; one who will double talk, double cross and do just about anything to gain the negro vote.

The following is a quote from the foregoing January 28 issue of the newsletter "Concern for tenuous economic and political security has been a strong motivation factor as the white minority has witnessed the growing unrest of the 84% segment of the population, the highest of any county in the nation. The average white suffers from a vague obsession that someday the Negroes might be in a position to "take over" with colored sheriffs, tax assessors, etc., creating unbearable chaos."

You will note that Hughes characterizes the apprehension of the white people of Macon County as "vague" if the situation was not so serious, such an assertion would be laughable. Their fear is far from "vague" for their county has more negroes percentage wise, than any county in the U. S. Theirs is a real fear already spelled out in the Communist International Vol. 12 No. 9 "The Negro Question in the United States" entitled "Self Determination for the Black Belt".

Theirs is a real fear, which could come true almost overnight, of a complete domination of their political and economic system by negroes. Is anyone so simple-minded as to suoppse that there would not be a negro sheriff, tax assessor; and other negro county officials? No intelligent person would hardly be so optimistic as to think that the negroes would vote for and elect white officials.

Hughes is the enemy of every white and colored southerner. The Alabama Council on Human Relations which he heads is affiliated with a radical, Communist dominated organization dedicated to the destruction of the South, the "equal" which he promises the negro will eventually be an "equal" amount of chain to shackle him to the plow of the atheistic dictator.

The Birmingham chapter of the Alabama Council formed in 1956, has since its inception held meetings in various places including the Chamber of Commerce Building, Negro Miles College, and prior to November 4, 1957 was meeting at the negro YMCA, 326 South 18th Street, Birmingham, Alabama.

During 1956 the President of the local cell was Dr. John Hall Jones, former professor at Howard College and now residing at No. 10 South 80th Street, Birmingham, Alabama. Jones is listed as being a member of the Advisory Board of the Alabama Association for Mental Health.

On Sunday, June 17, 1956 a special meeting at negro Miles College the speaker was Dr. John Hall Jones. Jones stated "This integration democracy is for the children, the adults don't matter."

July 10, 1956 at a meeting at the Chamber of Commerce Building, a white minister ldeivering a talk grew quite excited shouting he was "sick of segregation—and that he would eat only two meals a day in order to have money to contribute to the integration cause—This person was identified as Rev. Gerald Harris. Harris has recently assumed pastorate of the First Christian Church in Tuscaloosa, Alabama, and will be a speaker at the State Convention of the Alabama Christian Churches, May 4 - May 6, at Lanett, Alabama.

June 12, 1956 at a meeting held in the Chamber of Commerce building, projects were planned to encourage intermingling among the races in parks, playgrounds, etc., members were encouraged to assume leadership in Sunday School classes teaching young people that integration is the Christian duty.

The Birmingham News of Thursday, January 17, 1957, Page 2: (Quote) "The Greater Birmingham Council is a part of a statewide organization. Its board of directors is composed of Perry Daugherty, Dr. Roger Hanson, Robert Johnson, Dr Beryl McClasky, William Mitch, Rev. J. L. Ware, Rev. J. C. Wilson, Mrs. H. C. Bryant, Dr. Henry M. Edmonds, Peter Cowin, Justine Barker, Dr. Freederick Kraus, Dr. Locke White, Mrs. James Battle, Dr. John Hall Jones, John Martin, Mrs. R. M. Howard, Emory Jackson and Arthur Shores.

On October 8, 1957 at a meeting held at the Negro Y.M.C.A., 326 South 18th Street, Birmingham, Alabama at which there was in attendance some twelve of fifteen white persons and an equal number of negroes. This meeting was completely mixed and every Custom, Tradition, and our State and CITY law was contemptuously flouted and violated.

The speaker at this meeting was Conrad Browne, head of the infamous and illegally operated interracial Koinonia Farm located in Americus, Georgia. During the speech he made in part the following statement; "Some people accuse us of being Communist. Well, I guess we are—"he then went on to revile and attempt to ridicule our American system of free enterprise. On April 5, 1957, a Grand Jury in Sumter County, Georgia, charged in a 20 page presentment that Koinonia Farm "May be a front for the Communist Party." Summarizing its 7 day inquiry, the Grand Jury uncovered evidence the 1,100 acre interracial establishment had "close friends among known Communists and has entertained known Communists". The statement also reflected that the 15 year old "religious colony" may have perpetrated "recent bombings, shootings, and burnings, at the farm. . . . . from the inside to create sympathy and attract financial aid." According to page 5 of the February 25, 1957 edition of the subversive, National Guardian, Koinonia Farm was conceived "as an expirement in Christian Communism". (See May 1, 1957 issue of "Firing Line" Page No. 4).

In addition to Conrad Browne the following WHITE residents of Birmingham or Horn can best be remembered as the student who circulated the petition at the University of Alabama asking reinstatement of Autherine Lucy after her (expulsion) by school officials.

Roland K. Turrentine, 855 Hillcrest Road, Birmingham, Alabama. Thoroughly brainwashed Turrentine is active in solicitation of membership to the Council.

Claude Williams, RFD, Helena, Alabama. The American Mercury magazine issue of February, 1954 in an article by Dr. J. B. Matthews, "Rev. Claude Williams a Communist party member under the name "John Galey."

Williams record on file before the U. S. House of Representatives Committee on Un-American Activities is composed of seven single space type written pages. His record places him as one of the most radical and revolutionaly figures in the history of the Communist party, U.S.A.

Claude Williams record—From the House Un-American Activities Committee' Claude Williams left wing radical record dates back to the early 1930's. In the early 30's he was minister of the First Presbyterian Church of Paris, Arkansas. During his ministry at this church, he carried a continuous campaign of agitation among farmers and workmen urging them to militant action by revolutionary means against our system of free enterprise. Finally, his congregation could no longer stomach his radicalism, particularly his advocacy of violent overthrow of our social, economic, and political systems, and expelled him from the church.

In 1947 the Rev. Williams in company with six other American clergymen, visited Communist, Russia dominated Yugoslavia. Members of this group included Dr. Guy Emery Shiplerand, Dr. William Howard Melish, individuals who like Rev. Williams, have long records of support of Communist front organizations. After returning from this trip, these despicable supposedly "Men of God" issued a report containing high praise of conditions in that Russian satellite, stating among other things, "that religious freedom exists in Yugoslavia." This in spite of the fact that irrefutable evidence from highly authoritative sources gives the lie to this report in toto.

Rev. Williams has been prominently connected with the Peoples Institute of Applied Religion, Inc., an organization cited by the U. S. Attorney General as subversive and communist, and identified in testimony before the U. S. House of Representatives Committee on Un-American Activities as one of the most vicious communist groups in the U. S. In this testimony, Williams was named as Director of the Institute and its location was given as 4105½ 3rd Avenue, South, Birmingham, Alabama.

The Peoples Institute of Applied Religion has for its avowed objective the destruction of Catholic and Protestant religions. In a speech in New York on December 29, 1945 at the National Convention of the Institute, Rev. Williams said:

"Catholic church religion came into being to buttress the decaying Roman Empire. It proclaimed the divine rights of kings. It prospered and protected lords and ladies. It oppressed and persecuted serfs and chattels. Today this church religion is controlled by a closely-knit politico-economic leadership. This hierarchy has economic investments in virtually every country."

"Protestant church religion came into being to enhance the rise of capitalism. It proclaimed the divine right of property. It defied (Sic.) the kings of finance, the lords of commerce and the captains of industry. Today this church religion is directed by remote control from the Chamber of Commerce, the National Association of Manufacturers and the offices of cartel imperialists. With these it has economic investments in the capitalist exploits of the whole world."

"The People's Institute of Applied Religion, therefore, goes beyond church religion of all kinds. It goes back to the class struggle basis of true religion. It defines, reclaims, and acts upon the democratic dynamic of our Judaeo-Christian Heritage."

Rev. Claude Williams was praised in a Daily Worker article entitled "As We See It—Some Solidarity Proposals for Your Christmas List," by Abner W. Berry in the December 16, 1948 (page 9) issue, excerpts from which are quoted:

"The Rev. Claude Williams, head of the People's Institute of Applied Religion is an ardent believer in the dynamic quality of Judo-Christian culture. His organization, composed of practicing religionists, is working toward what they believe is a renewal and verification of religious doctrine through application to the problems of the world."

In addition to the foregoing, the following are more of Williams "left-wing Red activities:

1. According to the Daily Worker of March 5, 1941, he was one of the signers of a statement sent to the President in defense of the Communist Party.

2. Former Director of Commonwealth College, Mena, Arkansas, an institute cited by the Attorney General as Communist. (Editors note:) Commonwealth College was founded by the infamous Aubrey Williams of Montgomery, Alabama who was former head of the National Youth Administration).

3. Editorial adviser of "The Protestant's publication cited by the Special Committee on Un-American Activities as "a magazine which has faithfully propagated the Communist Party line under the guise of a religious journal."

4. In 1950 Williams was one of the sponsors of Mid-Century Conference for Peace, a conference cited by the House Un-American Activities Committee as a sounding board for Communist propaganda.

5. Signed letter to U. S. Attorney General Biddle defending Harry Bridges, notorious West Coast Communist.

6. Member of Civil Rights Congress and National Federation for Constitutional Liberties, both of which are on the subversive list of the U. S. Attorney General.

7. Has praticipated in meetings of the National Negro Congress, an organization cited as subversive by the U. S. Attorney General.

Numerous other examples of the Communist tinge of Claude Williams could be cited but space does not permit. Need we say that this man, presently living in our midst, and active in the Birmingham chapter of the Alabama Council on Human Relations, is a dangerous, dedicated agent of Moscow, Russia. Does anyone doubt he and his fellow Reds are working for the destruction of our Republic?

In a series of articles in the Birmingham News bylined Edwin Strickland, Sunday, October 6, 1957 through Friday, October 11, showing the relationship between racial strife and the Communist Party we are warned of the subtile way communists carry on their diabolical conspiracies in the following words. "Communists are not found on soap boxes or handing out leaflets. They operate from offices and respectable addresses. They are like termites, which enter a timber, gut it to a shell and destroy its streng h before being discovered. In many organizations today, they entered just as unnoticed, work just as stealthily, and in the end bring about the same ruin."

Are there any of these "TERMITES" working in your Church, your Union, your Children's School, Your Civic Organization. These organizations are today the target of an insidious campaign to increase Communist strength. The pressure is tremendous. The Communists are determined to advance their cause by cunning, stealth and downright dishonesty.

These tactics depict, most vividly, the current status of the Communist Party U.S.A. The Party has dropped deeper and deeper underground; More and more of its operations are being carried on in clandestine channels—the training of leaders, execution of policy, holding of meetings.

Membership cards are no longer issued, records have been destroyed, open meetings virtually disbanded.

The party virtually is submerged—only here and there elements protrude above ground.

The rising wrath of the American people has caused the party to seek underground shelter. Prosecutions, investigations by congressional committees, all these factors have caused the Communists to reverse their tactics.

They know the true feeling of the nation, but they will not give up. Indeed Not. They are insidious workers. "Let's infiltrate non-Communist groups. Let them do our work." This is the Communist strategy today.

They want you, the loyal citizens of the nation, to promote their unholy cause. Sounds fantastic doesn't it? That is what they are doing today!

Communist are joining legitimate organizations—a women's community club, a youth organization, a parents study group. They are working hard, taking an active part, Why? To gain control of the organization? No.

The Communist are few in numbers, probably one, two, or even three. They desire to influence policy, NEUTRALIZE actions of groups opposing communism. Perhaps elect a "favorable" candidate, determine a policy decision, postpone action on an anti-Communist decision. In this way, by being inside a legitimate organization, they are misguiding many unsuspecting loyal citizens into support of policies fostered by the Communist.

Take, for example the issue of "racial violence" or "peace" these topics occupies an important role today in Communist strategy. They proclaim their support for "non violence" or "peace" urging that petitions be signed.

But the Communist role is a phony role. They care no more about non-violence than about peace. They utilize this word to mean a peace in which would Communism reigns supreme, a peace in which free nations submits to the everlordship of the atheistic dictator.

Communist membership has declined. NOT THAT FEWER COMMUNIST ARE IN OPERATION! They simply, for security reasons are not enrolling. THEY STILL ARE HERE, as dangerous as ever before. Their strength lies not in numbers, but in cunning and fanaticism. They have a hard core of disciplined membership, with this nucleus they are enticing non-Communist to support their endeavors.

Communism or the Communist Party is not a political party, has never been a political party, and will never be a political party. It is a way of life-an evil atheistic, malignant way of life, is the Communist party succeeding in its purpose? It is, if you believe the communist menace is lessening!

Remember that eternal vigilance is the price of freedom. Too long we have been asleep. Such groups as the Alabama Councils on Human Relations whose objectives were conceived in the same brains that ordered the blowing out of the brains of the Hungarian patriots and whose crafty and cold-blooded massacres have enslaved more than half the peoples of this earth—and that you and your precious children are high on the Communist list of "expendables" whom they will not hesitate to liquidate unless they can brainwash you into servitude by their dupes and willing tools in pulpits, schools, organizations, and mass communication media. To quote Herb. Philbrick, "They hate your guts! and all that you hold dear!"

The plot against the South and the Nation is clearly shown by the foregoing facts. Note carefully that these organizations and many of the individuals named are operating right here in Birmingham. The danger to our liberties, customs, traditions, and laws is not distant. IT IS HERE RIGHT NOW. Gradually without fanfare, without publicity, they are working against us. Can anyone doubt after reading the facts revealed herein, the dangers they present? Can anyone doubt they will succeed in their work unless patriotic Americans resist and counter-attack. The Southern Regional Council and its Alabama agency, The Alabama Council on Human Relations, have an abundance of money supplied by the "Fund for the Republic". They are guided and controlled by educated, intelligent people, and will inevitably gain their objectives unless the American people awake and demand that they be stopped.

Now is the Time! Ask Attorney General John Patterson to request a Congressional investigation of Communist activities in Birmingham and Alabama? And to begin court actions to outlaw the Alabama Council from operating in your state. He has the power to investigate and make public these facts. Is he sincere in his platform or only rendering lip-service in his bid for the governorship of Alabama?

NAACP AND FREEDOM OF ASSOCIATION

A resolution Adopted by the Biennial Convention of the American Jewish Congress
May 14-18, 1958
Miami Beach, Florida

The epoch-making decision of the United States Supreme Court declaring racial segregation in the public schools unconstitutional has given rise to a multiplicity of devices in efforts to frustrate that decision and to defeat or delay its effectuation. These efforts, in addition to perpetuating the denial of equality to millions of Americans, have themselves brought with them a host of other denials of fundamental constitutional liberties. One of the most serious of these has been and continues to be the denial of freedom of association.

Recognizing that the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People has been in the forefront of the struggle for equality and integration and that as a practical matter the successful implementation of the Supreme Court's anti-segregation decision rests in large measure upon its activities, many of the Southern states have launched a concerted attack upon the NAACP in a determined effort to destroy that organization or frustrate its actions. Practically every instrumentality of law and government in the South has been used to persecute the NAACP. It has been harassed at every turn by new laws enacted for that purpose and archaic laws revived for the same end. Legal processes and procedures have been used and abused to interfere with its legitimate activities. Unfounded charges have been leveled against it. It has been compelled to expose its membership lists and thus subjects its members to the threat of physical injury and economic duress. Registration and tax laws have been invoked against it. Its officers and members have been subjected to hostile legislative investigations reminiscent of the worst days of the McCarthy era. In general, all of the forces of law and government have been marshalled in a determined campaign to destroy it completely.

This assault upon the NAACP gravely threatens a basic freedom of our American democracy. Whether or not one agrees with the Supreme Court's school segregation decision; whether or not one favors speedy integration, gradual integration or even no integration at all; whatever may be one's views on the entire question of segregation, the danger to our democratic way of life posed by the assault upon the NAACP must be recognized by all.

A totalitarian state is by its nature suspicious of, if not actively hostile to, all associations not dominated by the state and looks to every such association as a potential rival if not enemy. Suppression of independent associations is a normal and necessary feature of totalitarian regimes, both fascist and communist.

Our American heritage proceeds on a different premise. It welcomes voluntary associations as an indispensable aspect of a democratic pluralistic society. It recognizes that freedom of association, like the other great freedoms of the First Amendment -- freedom of conscience and of speech -- are for those who exercise the freedom, but even more for the benefit of the community at large. It protects the people's right to hear, to know, to be informed, so that they may properly exercise their rights and fulfill their obligations as citizens.

As a voluntary organization of citizens formed to protect the rights of Jews, the American Jewish Congress has a special concern with the assault upon a voluntary organization of citizens formed to protect the rights of Negroes. Today it is the NAACP that is subjected to attack. Tomorrow it may well be any other organization.

For these reasons the American Jewish Congress

1. Calls upon all individuals and organizations dedicated to the maintenance of constitutional liberty to come to the defense of the NAACP against the unprincipled attack to which it is being subjected;

2. Calls upon the United States Civil Rights Commission to conduct a public investigation of the extent to which constitutional freedom has been invaded by these attacks, publish its findings, turn over to the Department of Justice any evidence of violation of Federal law that it uncovers, make necessary recommendations to Congress for additional legislation and take all further appropriate action;

3. Calls upon the United States Department of Justice to intervene in the various proceedings in the Southern states that are designed to outlaw the NAACP, paralyze its lawful activity or curb advocacy of its program of desegregating the public schools.

4. Calls upon the President of the United States to realize the vast potentiality for moral leadership inherent in his office by condemning publicly this campaign of suppression and exercising his influence to bring it to an end.

Fellowship With All Races Urged By Southern Baptist Convention

HOUSTON (AP) — The Southern Baptist Convention Thursday overwhelmingly accepted a report calling for strengthened "fellowship with people of every race." The report, by the Christian Life Commission, was assailed by a Georgia minister.

The report denounced "social usages" that "deny basic American freedoms" to any citizen, and said "racial antipathy" at home had impeded missionary work abroad.

It urged staunch support for the public schools, and urged Baptists to "help and not hinder the progress of justice for all peoples."

The Rev. Montague Cook, of Moultrie, Ga., assailed the document, saying its plea for racial fellowship was synonymous with integration. He provided the dictionary definitions.

He also maintained that the action would be construed by the public as representing the opinion of all Southern Baptists, although the convention has no power to impose policy on local churches.

Replied the Rev. Adiel J. Moncrief, of St. Joseph, Mo., chairman of the commission: "We are endeavoring to follow the Bible, rather than the dictionary or press reports."

The convention must witness to Christian principles fearlessly, he said, adding:

"We are not living in a cloistered, sweet, contemplative life amid happy surroundings. On the contrary, we have espoused a militant, disturbing way of life—a dangerous way of life."

Rep. Brooks Hays (D-Ark.), convention president, said principle should not be bogged down in "verbiage and semantics," adding: "We must adhere to the ministry of reconciliation."

"It seems strange," said the Rev. Avery Lee, of Ruston, La., "that Baptists, of all people, should try to delete anything that is termed reconciliation."

The report also condemned the liquor trade, and "traffic throughout the nation in pornography and obscene literature" and called for steps to curb it.

Charges that the Christian Life Commission was using "tainted money" to promote racial concord were thunderously repudiated Thursday by the convention.

By a booming voice vote, approximately 12,000 messengers slapped down a motion that they return a big cash gift made to the commission by the Fund for the Republic.

fund, saying it had been accused of giving aid to communism, and that "we ought not to accept any money that is tainted."

The move touched off a wave of rebuttals. The Rev. Reuben E. Alley of Richmond, Va., editor of a state Baptist paper, said he had investigated the charges thoroughly, and added:

"The fund . . . is absolutely and completely untainted by any relationship to Communist causes. There are no grounds whatever for these charges."

A fund gift of $15,000 to the commission, which works for racial harmony and other social improvements, has been widely criticized in southern White Citizen Council organs.

In the squabble over the Fund for the Republic, a half dozen churchmen rose to defend it, saying it had been the target of scurrilous rumors, misinformation and unfounded charges.

"There's nothing subversive about the organization," said the Rev. Fred L. Bell of Nashville, Tenn. Like Alley, Bell said he had made a special study of the matter.

Other convention business included:

1. The Rev. Paul M. Stevens of Fort Worth, director of the convention's Radio and Television Commission, reported an expanding program of spreading the gospel message on the air.

2. The Rev. Dr. R. Orin Cornett of Nashville, executive secretary of the Education Commission, reported enrollments in 70 southern Baptist colleges have reached a record 59,371.

3. The Rev. Alfred Carpenter of Atlanta, director of the Chaplains Commission, reported that Southern Baptists have their full military chaplains quota filled—with 425 chaplains on active duty.

4. The Rev. Dr. Court Redford of Atlanta, head of the Home Missions Board, described a new program the board has started in New York City to combat juvenile delinquency—one of 43 city mission programs. He also reported steps to help Canada Baptists, and assignment of a specialist to step up work with Negroes.

Let Christians Accept Challenge of Rep. Hays

Christians everywhere, noting the decline of most downtown churches and seeing, too, the shocking percentage of American citizens who attend no church at all, are worried whether the traditional methods of bringing the gospel to nonchurchgoing persons are in need of change.

Southern Baptists, meeting at Houston, Tex., heard their convention president, Congressman Brooks Hays, of Arkansas, say imagination must go along with compassion. He called for head-on action to meet the problems of our time, including that of race.

He told the policy-guiding meeting of what is the South's largest Christian body that there should be no reluctance to confront controversy or the examination of differences.

Congressman Hays said, too, that "traditional methods of extending help to Negro neighbors won't suffice.

"Imagination must accompany our compassion," he said.

Mr. Hays, who was reelected president of the convention Wednesday, also came to the defense of the denomination's Christian Life Commission, which has been under attack from some congregations for its activity in race relations and other social issues.

"I realize we cannot have complete unanimity in these matters," he said, but "it would be tragic for us to assume that we can function as a Christian body without assigning to trusted representatives of the convention the task of pointing out our Christian duty with respect to social evils and current conflicts."

Certainly no one can quarrel with Congressman Hays' premise. The Christian church cannot and must not avoid the great controversial issues of our time. The church itself was founded in the midst of controversy and has lived with it ever since. The major social issues are not dancing, card playing, smoking or, serious as it is, drinking. The great war is on for men's minds and Christians must participate.

Text of Supreme Court Decision Upholding N.A.A.C.P. in Alabama Case

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, June 30—Following is the text of the Supreme Court opinion by Justice John Marshall Harlan today in the Alabama case involving the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People:

We review from the standpoint of its validity under the Federal Constitution a judgment of civil contempt entered against petitioner, the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, in the courts of Alabama.

The question presented is whether Alabama, consistently with the due process clause of the Fourteenth Amendment, can compel petitioner to reveal to the state's Attorney General the names and addresses of all its Alabama members and agents, without regard to their positions or functions in the association.

The judgment of contempt was based upon petitioner's refusal to comply fully with a court order requiring in part the production of membership lists. Petitioner's claim is that the order, in the circumstances shown by this record, violated rights assured to petitioner and its members under the Constitution.

Alabama has a statute similar to those of many other states which requires foreign corporations, except as exempted, to qualify before doing business by filing the corporate charter with the Secretary of State and designating a place of business and an agent to receive service of process. The statute imposes a fine on a corporation transacting intrastate business before qualifying and provides for criminal prosecution of officers of such a corporation. Ala. code, 1940, Tit. 10, Sections 192-198.

The National Association for the Advancement of Colored People is a nonprofit membership corporation organized under the laws of New York. Its purposes, fostered on a nationwide basis, are those indicated by its name, and it operates through chartered affiliates which are independent unincorporated associations, with membership therein equivalent to membership in petitioner.

The first Alabama affiliates were chartered in 1918. Since that time the aims of the association have been advanced through activities of its affiliates, and in 1951 the association itself opened a regional office in Alabama, at which it employed two supervisory persons and one clerical worker. The association has never complied with the qualification statute, from which it considered itself exempt.

A Bill in Equity

In 1956 the Attorney General of Alabama brought an equity suit in the State Circuit Court, Montgomery County, to enjoin petitioner from doing business in the state, alleging that it had violated the qualification statute in many instances and had made and continued to make the state courts a forum in which to litigate its claims against persons who had allegedly injured its members. The complaint prayed for a temporary restraining order, a temporary injunction, and a permanent injunction, and for a forfeiture of petitioner's right to do business in the state.

The Circuit Court granted the temporary restraining order, and on the return of the order petitioner's officers were examined by the state. Thereafter the court, on motion of petitioner, dissolved the temporary restraining order insofar as it prevented the production of membership lists, but continued it in effect in other respects. The court then ordered petitioner to produce a large number of its records, including membership lists, and to permit the state to make extensive inquiry into the business of petitioner in Alabama. The court also ordered petitioner to show cause why it should not be ousted from the state for its failure to comply with the qualification statute, and why it should not be fined for its contempt in failing to produce the membership lists. The court ordered that the show cause order be merged with the ouster suit, and that the contempt fine be held in abeyance pending the final disposition of the ouster suit. The court also ordered that if petitioner should produce the membership lists, the temporary restraining order would be dissolved in its entirety, but that if petitioner should not produce the lists, the temporary restraining order would be reinstated in its entirety. Petitioner did not produce the lists, and the temporary restraining order was reinstated in its entirety.

Petitioner's motion for a remission of the fine was granted in part and denied in part. The court ordered that petitioner should be fined $100,000 unless it produced the membership lists, but that the fine would be remitted in part if petitioner should produce the lists at any time before the end of the five-day period following the date of the order, in the amount of $1,000 for the first day, $2,000 for the second day, $4,000 for the third day, $8,000 for the fourth day, and $16,000 for the fifth day, but that the remission would be forfeited in its entirety if petitioner should be in contempt at the end of the five-day period, and that the remission would be forfeited in part if petitioner should be in contempt in any lesser part of the five-day period in the amount of $1,000 for the first day, $2,000 for the second day, $4,000 for the third day, $8,000 for the fourth day, and $16,000 for the fifth day, but that the remission would be increased to $100,000.

At the end of the five-day period petitioner produced substantially all the data called for by the prosecution order except its membership lists, as to which it contended that Alabama could not constitutionally compel disclosure, and moved to modify or vacate the contempt judgment, or stay its execution pending appellate review. This motion was denied.

While a similar stay application, which was later denied, was pending before the Supreme Court of Alabama, the Circuit Court made a further order adjudging petitioner in continuing contempt and increasing the fine already imposed to $100,000. Under Alabama law, see Jacoby v. Goetter, Weil & Co., 74 Ala. 427, the effect of the contempt adjudication was to foreclose petitioner from obtaining a hearing on the merits of the underlying ouster action, or from taking any steps to dissolve the temporary restraining order which had been issued ex parte, until it purged itself of contempt. But cf. Harrison v. St. Louis & S. F. R. Co., 232 U. S. 318; Hovey v. Elliott, 167 U. S. 409.

The State Supreme Court thereafter twice dismissed petitions for certiorari to review this final contempt judgment, the first time, 91 So. 2d 221, for insufficiency of the petition's allegations and the second time on procedural grounds. 265 Ala. 349, 91 So. 2d 214. We granted certiorari because of the importance of the constitutional questions presented. 353 U. S. 972.

Contention Taken Up

We address ourselves first to respondent's contention that we lack jurisdiction because the denial of certiorari by the Supreme Court of Alabama rests on an independent non-Federal ground, namely, that petitioner in applying for certiorari had pursued the wrong appellate remedy under state law.

Respondent recognizes that our jurisdiction is not defeated if the non-Federal ground relied on by the state court is "without any fair or substantial support," Ward v. Board of County Commissioners, 253 U. S. 17, 22. It thus becomes our duty to ascertain, "* * * in order that constitutional guarantees may appropriately be enforced, whether the asserted non-Federal ground independently and adequately supports the judgment." Abie State Bank v. Bryan, 282 U. S. 765, 773.

The Alabama Supreme Court held that it could not consider the constitutional issues underlying the contempt judgment which related to the power of the state to order production of membership lists because review by certiorari was limited to instances "* * * where the the writ of certiorari, the Supreme Court concluded that petitioner had been accorded due process, and in explaining its denial the court considered and rejected various Constitutional claims relating to the validity of the order. There was no intimation that the petitioner had selected an inappropriate form of appellate review to obtain consideration of all questions of law raised by a contempt judgment.

State Argument Cited

The Alabama cases do indicate, as was said in the opinion below, that an order requiring production of evidence "* * * may be reviewed on petition for mandamus." 265 Ala., at 353, 91 So. 2d, at 217. See ex parte Hart, 240 Ala. 642, 200 so. 783; cf. ex parte Driver, 255 Ala. 118, 50 so. 2d 413. But we can discover nothing in the prior state cases which suggests that mandamus is the exclusive remedy for reviewing court orders after disobedience of them has led to contempt judgments. Nor, so far as we can find, do any of these prior decisions indicate that the validity of such orders can be drawn in question by way of certiorari only in instances where a defendant had no opportunity to apply for mandamus.

Although the opinion below suggests no such distinction, the state now argues that this was in fact the situation in all of the earlier certiorari cases, because there the contempt adjudication should where possible be avoided. See Ashwander v. Tennessee Valley Authority, 297 U. S. 288, 346-348 (concurring opinion). The principle is not disrespected where Constitutional rights of persons who are not immediately before the court could not be effectively vindicated except through an appropriate representative before the court. See Barrows v. Jackson, 346 U. S. 249, 255-259; Joint Anti-Fascist Refugee Committee v. McGrath, 341 U. S. 123, 183-187 (Concurring opinion).

Right Called Assertable

If petitioner's rank-and-file members are constitutionally entitled to withhold their connection with the association despite the production order, it is manifest that this right is properly assertable by the association. To require that it be claimed by the members themselves would result in nullification of the right at the very moment of its assertion.

Petitioner is the appropriate party to assert these rights, because it and its members are in every practical sense identical. The association, which provides in its constitution that "Any person who is in accordance with [its] principles and policies * * * "may become a member, is but the medium through which its individual members seek to make more effective the expression of their own views. The reasonable likelihood that the association itself through diminished financial support and membership may be aversely affected if production is compelled is a further factor pointing towards our holding that petitioner has standing to complain of the production order on behalf of its members. cf. Pierce v. Society of Sisters, 268 U. S. 510, 534-536.

III

We thus reach petition's claim that the production order in the state litigation trespasses upon fundamental freedoms protected by the due process clause of the Fourteenth Amendment. Petitioner argues that in view of the facts and circumstances shown in the record, the effect of compelled disclosure of the membership lists will be to abridge the rights of its rank-and-file members to engage in lawful association in support of their common beliefs. It contends that governmental action which, although not directly suppressing association, nevertheless carries this consequence, can be justified only upon some overriding valid interest of the state.

Effective advocacy of both public and private points of view, particularly controversial ones, is undeniably enhanced by group association, as this court has more than once recognized by remarking upon the close [illegible] the freedoms of tute as effective a restraint on freedom of association as the forms of governmental action in the cases above were thought likely to produce upon the particular constitutional rights there involved.

This court has recognized the vital relationship between freedom to associate and privacy in one's associations. When referring to the varied forms of governmental action which might interfere with freedom of assembly, it said in American Communications Association v. Douds, supra, at 402: "A requirement that adherents of particular religious faiths or political parties wear identifying arm-bands, for example is obviously of this nature." Compelled disclosure of membership in an organization engaged in advocacy of particular beliefs is of the same order. Inviolability of privacy in group association may in many circumstances be indispensable to preservation of freedom of association, particularly where a group espouses dissident beliefs. cf. United States v. Rumely, supra, at 56-58 (concurring opinion).

We think that the production order, in the respects here drawn in question, must be regarded as entailing the likelihood of a substantial restraint upon the exercise by petitioner's members of their right to freedom of association. Petitioner has made an uncontroverted showing that on past occasions revelation of the identity of its rank-and-file members has exposed these members to economic reprisal, loss of employment, threat of physical coercion and other manifestations of public hostility.

Under these circumstances, we think it apparent that compelled disclosure of petitioner's Alabama membership is likely to affect adversely the ability of petitioner and its members to pursue their collective effort to foster beliefs which they admittedly have the right to advocate, in that it may induce members to withdraw from the association and dissuade others from joining it because of fear of exposure of their beliefs shown through their associations and of the consequences of this exposure.

The Crucial Factor

It is not sufficient to answer, as the state does here, that whatever repressive effect compulsory disclosure of names of petitioner's members may have upon participation by Alabama citizens in petitioner's activities follows not from state action but from private community pressures. The crucial factor is the interplay of governmental and private action, for it is only after the initial exertion of state power represented by the production order that private action takes hold.

We turn to the final question

1918; (2) has offered to comply in all respects with the state qualification statute, although preserving its contention that the statute does not apply to it; and (3) has apparently complied satisfactorily with the production order, except for the membership lists, by furnishing the Attorney General with varied business records, its charter and statement of purposes, the names of all of its directors and officers, and with the total number of its Alabama members and the amount of their dues.

These last items would not on this record appear subject to constitutional challenge and have been furnished, but whatever interest the state may have in obtaining names of ordinary members has not been shown to be sufficient to overcome petitioner's constitutional objections to the production order.

Cites Ruling on Klan

From what has already been said, we think it apparent that Bryant v. Zimmerman, 278 U. S. 63, cannot be relied on in support of the state's position, for that case involved markedly different considerations in terms of the interest of the state in obtaining disclosure.

There, this court upheld, as applied to a member of a local chapter of the Ku Klux Klan, a New York statute requiring any unincorporated association which demanded an oath as a condition to membership to file with state officials copies of its "* * * constitution, by-laws, rules, regulations and oath of membership, together with a roster of its membership and a list of its officers for the current year." N. Y. laws 1923, C. 664, sections 53, 56.

In its opinion, the court took care to emphasize the nature of the organization which New York sought to regulate. The decision was based on the particular character of the Klan's activities, involving acts of unlawful intimidation and violence, which the court assumed was before the state legislature when it enacted the statute, and of which the court itself took judicial notice. Furthermore, the situation before us is significantly different from that in Bryant, because the organization there had made no effort to comply with any of the requirements of New York's statute but rather had refused to furnish the state with any information as to its local activities.

We hold that the immunity from state scrutiny of membership lists which the association claims on behalf of its members is here so related to the right of members to pursue their lawful private interest privately and to associate freely with others in so doing as to come within the protection of the Fourteenth Amendment. And we conclude that Alabama has fallen short of showing a controlling justification for the deterrent effect on the free enjoyment of the right to associate which disclosure of membership lists is likely to have. Accordingly, the judgment of civil contempt and the $100,000 fine which resulted from petitioner's refusal to comply with the production order in this respect must fall.

IV

Petitioner joins with its attack upon the production order a challenge to the constitutionality of the state's ex parte temporary restraining order preventing it from soliciting support in Alabama, and it asserts that the Fourteenth Amendment precludes such state action. But as noted above, petitioner has never received a hearing on the merits of the ouster suit, and we do not consider these questions properly here.

The Supreme Court of Alabama noted in its denial of the petition for certiorari that such petition raised solely questions pertinent to the contempt adjudication. "The ultimate aim and purpose of the litigation is to determine the right of the state to enjoin petitioners from doing business in Alabama. That question, however, is not before us in this proceeding." 265 Ala., at 352, 91 So. 2d, at 216. The proper method for raising questions in the state appellate courts pertinent to the underlying suit for an injunction appears to be by appeal, after a hearing on the merits and final judgment by the lower state court. Only from the disposition of such an appeal can review be sought here.

For the reasons stated, the judgment of the Supreme Court of Alabama must be reversed and the case remanded for proceedings not inconsistent with this opinion.

interest of its own. An example was the approval of the Taft-Hartley Act's requirement that union leaders swear they are not Communists.

But in this case, the justice wrote, Alabama has demonstrated no interest "sufficient to justify the deterrent effect" on freedom of association.

The original purpose of the Alabama litigation was to find out whether the N. A. A. C. P. was doing enough business in the state to require its registra-

The first Alabama affiliates were chartered in 1918. The association has never complied with the qualification statute, from which it considered itself exempt.

A Bill in Equity

In 1956 the Attorney General of Alabama brought an equity suit in the State Circuit Court, Montgomery County, to enjoin the association from conducting further activities within, and to oust it from, the state. Among other things the bill in equity alleged that the association had opened a regional office and had organized various affiliates in Alabama; had recruited members and solicited contributions within the state; had given financial support and furnished legal assistance to Negro students seeking admission to the State University; and had supported a Negro boycott of the bus lines in Montgomery to compel the seating of passengers without regard to race.

The bill recited that the association, by continuing to do business in Alabama without complying with the qualification statute, was "* * * causing irreparable injury to the property and civil rights of the residents and citizens of the State of Alabama for which criminal prosecution and civil actions at law afford no adequate relief * * *." On the day the complaint was filed, the Circuit Court issued ex parte an order restraining the association, pendente lite, from engaging in further activities within the state and forbidding it to take any steps to qualify itself to do business therein.

Petitioner demurred to the allegations of the bill and moved to dissolve the restraining order. It contended that its activities did not subject it to the qualification requirements of the statute and that in any event what the state sought to accomplish by its suit would violate rights to freedom of speech and assembly guaranteed under the Fourteenth Amendment to the Constitution of the United States.

Before the date set for a hearing on this motion, the state moved for the production of a large number of the association's records and papers, including bank statements, leases, deeds and records containing the names and addresses of all Alabama "members" and "agents" of the association. It alleged that all such documents were necessary for adequate preparation for the hearing, in view of petitioner's denial of the conduct of intrastate business within the meaning of the qualification statute. Over petitioner's objections, the court ordered the production of a substantial part of the requested records, including the membership lists, and postponed the hearing on the restraining order to a date later than the time ordered for production.

An Answer to the Bill

Thereafter petitioner filed its answer to the bill in equity. It admitted its Alabama activities substantially as alleged in the complaint and that it had not qualified to do business in the state.

Although still disclaiming the statute's application to it, petitioner offered to qualify if the bar from qualification made part of the restraining order were lifted, and it submitted with the answer an executed set of the forms required by the statute.

However, petitioner did not comply with the production order, and for this failure was adjudged in civil contempt and fined $10,000. The contempt judgment provided that the fine would be subject to reduction or on procedural grounds. 265 Ala. 349, 91 So. 2d 214. We granted certiorari because of the importance of the constitutional questions presented. 353 U. S. 972.

Contention Taken Up

We address ourselves first to respondent's contention that we lack jurisdiction because the denial of certiorari by the Supreme Court of Alabama rests on an independent non-Federal ground, namely, that petitioner in applying for certiorari had pursued the wrong appellate remedy under state law.

Respondent recognizes that our jurisdiction is not defeated if the non-Federal ground relied on by the state court is "without any fair or substantial support," Ward v. Board of County Commissioners, 253 U. S. 17, 22. It thus becomes our duty to ascertain, "* * * in order that constitutional guarantees may appropriately be enforced, whether the asserted non-Federal ground independently and adequately supports the judgment." Abie State Bank v. Bryan, 282 U. S. 765, 773.

The Alabama Supreme Court held that it could not consider the constitutional issues underlying the contempt judgment which related to the power of the state to order production of membership lists because review by certiorari was limited to instances "* * * where the court lacked jurisdiction of the proceeding, or where on the face of it the order disobeyed was void, or where procedural requirements with respect to citation for contempt and the like were not observed, or where the fact of contempt is not sustained * * *." 265 Ala., at 353, 91 So. 2d, at 217.

The proper means for petitioner to obtain review of the judgment in light of its Constitutional claims, said the court, was by way of mandamus to quash the discovery order prior to the contempt adjudication. Because of petitioner's failure to pursue this remedy, its challenge to the contempt order was restricted to the above grounds. Apparently not deeming the Constitutional objections to draw into question whether "on the face of it the order disobeyed was void," the court found no infirmity in the contempt judgment under this limited scope of review. At the same time it did go on to consider petitioner's Constitutional challenge to the order to produce membership lists but found it untenable since membership lists were not privileged against disclosure pursuant to reasonable state demands and since the privilege against self-incrimination was not available to corporations.

Earlier Ruling Cited

We are unable to reconcile the procedural holding of the Alabama Supreme Court in the present case with its past unambiguous holdings as to the scope of review available upon a writ of certiorari addressed to a contempt judgment. As early as 1909 that court said in such a case, ex parte Dickens, 162 Ala. 272, at 276, 279-280, 50 So. 218, at 220, 221:

"Originally, on certiorari, only the question of jurisdiction was inquired into; but this limit has been removed, and now the court 'examines the law questions involved in the case which may affect its merits.' * * * The judgment of this court is that the proper way to review the action of the court in cases of this kind is by certiorari, and not by appeal.

"We think that certiorari is a better remedy than mandamus, because the office of a 'mandamus' is to require the lower court or judge to act, and not 'to correct error or to reverse judicial action'; * * * whereas, in a proceeding by certiorari, errors of law in the judicial action of the lower court may be inquired into and corrected."

This statement was in full accord with the earlier case of ex parte Boscowitz, 84 Ala. 463, 4 So. 279, and the practice in the later Alabama cases, until we reach the present one, appears to have been entirely consistent with this rule. See ex parte Wheeler, 231 Ala. 356, 358, 165 So. 74, 75-76; ex parte Blakey, 240 Ala. 517, 199 So. 857; ex parte Sellers, 250 Ala. 87, 88, 33 So. 2d 349, 350.

For example, in ex parte Morris, 252 Ala. 551, 42 So. 2d 17, decided as late as 1949, the petitioner had been held in contempt for his refusal to obey a court order to produce names of members of the Ku Klux Klan. On writ of certiorari, Constitutional grounds were urged in part for reversal of the contempt conviction. In denying rejected various Constitutional claims relating to the validity of the order. There was no intimation that the petitioner had selected an inappropriate form of appellate review to obtain consideration of all questions of law raised by a contempt judgment.

State Argument Cited

The Alabama cases do indicate, as was said in the opinion below, that an order requiring production of evidence "* * * may be reviewed on petition for mandamus." 265 Ala., at 353, 91 So. 2d, at 217. See ex parte Hart, 240 Ala. 642, 200 so. 783; cf. ex parte Driver, 255 Ala. 118, 50 so. 2d 413. But we can discover nothing in the prior state cases which suggests that mandamus is the exclusive remedy for reviewing court orders after disobedience of them has led to contempt judgments. Nor, so far as we can find, do any of these prior decisions indicate that the validity of such orders can be drawn in question by way of certiorari only in instances where a defendant had no opportunity to apply for mandamus.

Although the opinion below suggests no such distinction, the state now argues that this was in fact the situation in all of the earlier certiorari cases, because there the contempt adjudications, unlike here, had followed almost immediately the disobedience to the court orders. Even if that is indeed the rationale of the Alabama Supreme Court's present decision, such a local procedural rule, although it may now appear in retrospect to form part of a constituent pattern of procedures to obtain appellate review, cannot avail the state here, because petitioner could not fairly be deemed to have been apprised of its existence. Novelty in procedural requirements cannot be permitted to thwart review in this court applied for by those who, in justified reliance upon prior decision, seek vindication in state courts of their Federal constitutional rights, cf. Brinkerhoff-Faris Co. v. Hill, 281 U. S. 673.

That there was justified reliance here is further indicated by what the Alabama Supreme Court said in disposing of petitioner's motion for a stay of the first contempt judgment in this case. This motion, which was filed prior to the final contempt judgment and which stressed constitutional issues, recited that "the only way in which the [association] can seek a review of the validity of the order upon which the adjudication of contempt is based [is] by filing a petition for writ of certiorari in this court." In denying the motion, 265 Ala. 356, 357, 91 So. 2d 220, 221, the Supreme Court stated:

"It is the established rule of this court that the proper method of reviewing a judgment for civil contempt of the kind here involved is by a petition for common law writ of certiorari. * * *

"But the petitioner here has not applied for writ of certiorari, and we do not feel that the petition [for a stay] presently before us warrants our interference with the judgment of the Circuit Court of Montgomery County here sought to be stayed."

We hold that this court has jurisdiction to entertain petitioner's Federal claims.

II

The association both urges that it is constitutionally entitled to resist official inquiry into its membership lists, and that it may assert, on behalf of its members, a right personal to them to be protected from compelled disclosure by the state of their affiliation with the association as revealed by the membership lists.

We think that petitioner argues more appropriately the rights of its members, and that its nexus with them is sufficient to permit that it act as their representative before this court. In so concluding, we reject respondent's argument that the association lacks standing to assert here Constitutional rights pertaining to the members, who are not, of course, parties to the litigation.

To limit the breadth of issues which must be dealt with in particular litigation, this court has generally insisted that parties rely only on Constitutional rights which are personal to themselves. Tieston v. Ullman, 318 U. S. 44; Robertson and Kirkham, jurisdiction of the Supreme Court (1951 ed.) Section 298. This rule is related to the broader doctrine that constitu- cial support and membership may be aversely affected if production is compelled is a further factor pointing towards our holding that petitioner has standing to complain of the production order on behalf of its members, cf. Pierce v. Society of Sisters, 268 U. S. 510, 534-536.

We thus reach petition's claim that the production order in the state litigation trespasses upon fundamental freedoms protected by the due process clause of the Fourteenth Amendment. Petitioner argues that in view of the facts and circumstances shown in the record, the effect of compelled disclosure of the membership lists will be to abridge the rights of its rank-and-file members to engage in lawful association in support of their common beliefs. It contends that governmental action which, although not directly suppressing association, nevertheless carries this consequence, can be justified only upon some overriding valid interest of the state.

Effective advocacy of both public and private points of view, particularly controversial ones, is undeniably enhanced by group association, as this court has more than once recognized by remarking upon the close nexus between the freedoms of speech and assembly. De Jonge v. Oregon, 299 U. S. 353, 365; Thomas v. Vollins, 323 U. S. 516, 530.

It is beyond debate that freedom to engage in association for the advancement of beliefs and ideas is an inseparable aspect of the "liberty" assured by the due process clause of the Fourteenth Amendment, which embraces freedom of speech. See Gitlow v. New York, 268 U. S. 652, 666; Palko v. Connecticut, 302 U. S. 319, 324; Cantwell v. Connecticut, 310 U. S. 296, 303; Staub v. City of Baxley, 355 U. S. 313, 321. Of course, it is immaterial whether the beliefs sought to be advanced by association pertain to political, economic, religious or cultural matters, and state action which may have the effect of curtailing the freedom to associate is subject to the closest scrutiny.

The fact that Alabama, so far as is relevant to the validity of the contempt judgment presently under review, has taken no direct action, cf. de Jonge v. Oregon, supra; Near v. Minnesota, 283 U. S. 697, to restrict the right of petitioner's members to associate freely, does not end inquiry into the effect of the production order. See American Communications Association v. Douds, 339 U. S. 382, 402.

Abridgement of Rights

In the domain of these indispensable liberties, whether of speech, press or association, the decisions of this court recognize that abridgement of such rights, even though unintended, may inevitably follow from varied forms of governmental action. Thus in Douds, the court stressed that the legislation there challenged, which on its face sought to regulate labor unions and to secure stability in interstate commerce, would have the practical effect "of discouraging" the exercise of constitutionally protected political rights, 339 U. S., at 393, and it upheld the statute only after concluding that the reasons advanced for its enactment were constitutionally sufficient to justify its possible deterrent effect upon such freedoms.

Similar recognition of possible unconstitutional intimidation of the free exercise of the right to advocate underlay this court's narrow construction of the authority of a Congressional committee investigating lobbying and of an act regulating lobbying, although in neither case was there an effort to suppress speech, United States v. Rumely, 345 U. S. 41, 46-47; United States v. Harris, 347 U.S. 612, 625-626. The governmental action challenged may appear to be totally unrelated to protected liberties. Statutes imposing taxes upon rather than prohibiting particular activity have been struck down when perceived to have the consequence of unduly curtailing the liberty of freedom of press assured under the Fourteenth Amendment. Grosjean v. American Press Company, 297 U.S. 233; Murdock v. Pennsylvania, 319 U.S. 105.

An Effective Restraint

It is hardly a novel perception that compelled disclosure of affiliation with groups engaged in advocacy may consti- exposed these members to economic reprisal, loss of employment, threat of physical coercion and other manifestations of public hostility.

Under these circumstances, we think it apparent that compelled disclosure of petitioner's Alabama membership is likely to affect adversely the ability of petitioner and its members to pursue their collective effort to foster beliefs which they admittedly have the right to advocate, in that it may induce members to withdraw from the association and dissuade others from joining it because of fear of exposure of their beliefs shown through their associations and of the consequences of this exposure.

It is not sufficient to answer, as the state does here, that whatever repressive effect compulsory disclosure of names of petitioner's members may have upon participation by Alabama citizens in petitioner's activities follows not from state action but from private community pressures. The crucial factor is the interplay of governmental and private action, for it is only after the initial exertion of state power represented by the production order that private action takes hold.

We turn to the final question whether Alabama has demonstrated an interest in obtaining the disclosures it seeks from petitioner which is sufficient to justify the deterrent effect which we have concluded these disclosures may well have on the free exercise by petitioner's members of their constitutionally protected right of association. See American Communications Assn. v. Douds, supra, at 400; Schneider v. State, 308 U. S. 147, 161. Such a "* * * subordinating interest of the state must be compelling," Sweezy v. New Hampshire, 354 U. S. 234, 265 (concurring opinion).

It is not of moment that the state has here acted solely through its judicial branch, for whether legislative or judicial, it is still the application of state power which we are asked to scrutinize.

It is important to bear in mind that petitioner asserts no right to absolute immunity from state investigation, and no right to disregard Alabama's laws. As shown by its substantial compliance with the production order, petitioner does not deny Alabama's right to obtain from it such information as the state desires concerning the purposes of the association and its activities within the state. Petitioner has not objected to divulging the identity of its members who are employed by or hold official positions with it. It has urged the rights solely of its ordinary rank-and-file members.

This is therefore not analogous to a case involving the interest of a state in protecting its citizens in their dealings with paid solicitors or agents of foreign corporations by requiring identification. See Cantwell v. Connecticut, supra, at 306; Thomas v. Collins, supra, at 538.

The Exclusive Purpose

Whether there was "justification" in this instance turns solely on the substantiality of Alabama's interest in obtaining the membership lists. During the course of a hearing before the Alabama Circuit Court on a motion of petitioner to set aside the production order, the state Attorney General presented at length, under examination by petitioner, the state's reason for requesting the membership lists.

The exclusive purpose was to determine whether petitioner was conducting intrastate business in violation of the Alabama Foreign Corporation Registration Statute, and the membership lists were expected to help resolve this question.

The issues in the litigation commenced by Alabama by its bill in equity were whether the character of petitioner and its activities in Alabama had been such as to make petitioner subject to the registration statute, and whether the extent of petitioner's activities without qualifying suggested its permanent ouster from the state.

Without intimating the slightest view upon the merit of these issues, we are unable to perceive that the disclosure of the names of petitioner's rank-and-file members has a substantial bearing on either of them.

As matters stand in the state court, petitioner (1) has admitted its presence and conduct of activities in Alabama since roster of its membership and a list of its officers for the current year." N. Y. laws 1923, C. 664, sections 53, 56.

In its opinion, the court took care to emphasize the nature of the organization which New York sought to regulate. The decision was based on the particular character of the Klan's activities, involving acts of unlawful intimidation and violence, which the court assumed was before the state legislature when it enacted the statute, and of which the court itself took judicial notice. Furthermore, the situation before us is significantly different from that in Bryant, because the organization there had made no effort to comply with any of the requirements of New York's statute but rather had refused to furnish the state with any in- judication. The ultimate aim and purpose of the litigation is to determine the right of the state to enjoin petitioners from doing business in Alabama. That question, however, is not before us in this proceeding." 265 Ala., at 352, 91 So. 2d, at 216. The proper method for raising questions in the state appellate courts pertinent to the underlying suit for an injunction appears to be by appeal, after a hearing on the merits and final judgment by the lower state court. Only from the disposition of such an appeal can review be sought here.

For the reasons stated, the judgment of the Supreme Court of Alabama must be reversed and the case remanded for proceedings not inconsistent with this opinion.

ALABAMA DENIED ACCESS TO ROLLS

state corporations doing business in the state to register and designate an agent to receive legal process. This is a standard corporation law that does not require the disclosure of members' names.

Because of this failure to register, the state sought a temporary injunction forbidding the association to operate in Alabama. An Alabama judge granted the injunction the same day, before the association had a chance to answer.

As proof that the organization was doing business in Alabama, Alabama's Attorney General, John Patterson, charged that it had supported the Negro bus boycott in Montgomery and had paid Miss Autherine Lucy when she shought admission to the University of Alabama.

The N. A. A. C. P. asserted that the corporation law did not apply to it because it was a nonprofit organization. But it offered to comply anyway. The Alabama court rejected this offer and enjoined the association from complying with the corporation statute.

Alabama then asked the court, as part of the pre-trial procedure, to require production of various organization records—including the membership lists. The court so ordered. The association produced everything else but refused to disclose its members' names.

Argument Held Up

At that point the N. A. A. C. P. was fined $100,000 for contempt. Under Alabama law the contempt citation prevented it from arguing the merits of the case. For that reason the injunction stopping its operations in Alabama had to continue unless it could get free of the contempt order.

The association took the case to the Alabama Supreme Court on a petition for certiorari—one method of obtaining appellate review. But that court ruled that certiorari was the wrong method of review and thus refused to consider the Constitutional issues.

Under long-standing Supreme Court doctrine, the court will not review a state decision holding that a party had followed incorrect state procedure. But that rule is not followed if the state decision was a surprise or was "without any fair or substantial support" in state law.

Justice Harlan found, first, that all the Alabama cases before this one had described certiorari as the proper method for reviewing a contempt citation. The N. A. A. C. P. had no way to anticipate a new procedural ruling, he said, and hence the ruling was unfair.

"Novelty in procedural requirements cannot be permitted to thwart review in this court," he wrote, "for those who, in justified reliance upon prior decisions, seek vindication in state courts of their Federal constitutional rights."

No 'Novel Perception'

On the constitutional issue, Justice Harlan said it was "hardly a novel perception that compelled disclosure of affiliation with groups engaged in advocacy" might discourage membership and thus inhibit the right to advocate the beliefs through an organization.

Justice Harlan noted that the Supreme Court had upheld some compulsory disclosure, despite the loss of freedom, because the state had a vital countervailing interest of its own. An example was the approval of the Taft-Hartley Act's requirement that union leaders swear they are not Communists.

But in this case, the justice wrote, Alabama has demonstrated no interest "sufficient to justify the deterrent effect" on freedom of association.

The original purpose of the Alabama litigation was to find out whether the N. A. A. C. P. was doing enough business in [illegible] tion under the corporation statute and, if so, to oust it for not complying. Justice Harlan said that members' names did not seem relevant to either of these ends, considering that the organization had produced many records and had agreed to register.

Alabama had relied on a 1928 Supreme Court decision upholding, as applied to the Ku Klux Klan, a New York law requiring oath-bound groups to disclose their members. But Justice Harlan said the state had demonstrated a clear interest in disclosure in that case because of the Klan's "acts of unlawful intimidation and violence."

Robert L. Carter of New York, arguing for the National Association, had also asked the Supreme Court to set aside the original order enjoining the association from operating in Alabama.

But Justice Harlan found that, with the contempt citation out of the way, the Alabama courts must now try the issue of whether the N. A. A. C. P. will be allowed to register under the corporation statute or should be ousted for not complying earlier.

The case was argued for Alabama by Assistant Attorney General Edmon L. Rinehart.

Alabama to Press Fight

MONTGOMERY, Ala., June 30 (AP)—The office of Attorney General John Patterson said today that it would continue its fight to keep the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People from operating in Alabama.

Mr. Patterson was unavailable for comment, but a spokesman said the Supreme Court's ruling did not stop the state from proceeding with a new contempt case against the organization.

The Attorney General seeks to have the association and two Negro leaders, W. C. Patton of Birmingham and William P. Mitchell, held in contempt on charges of violating the two-year-old injunction.

Mr. Patterson contends that the N. A. A. C. P. is still doing business under the name of a newly formed organization, the Alabama State Coordinating Association for registration and voting. Mr. Patton, the state president of the N. A. A. C. P. when the injunction was issued, and Mr. Mitchell are among the organizers of the new group.

The Attorney General says the coordinating association had been set up to carry on the N. A. A. C. P.'s functions while the other organization was barred from operating in the state.

WASHINGTON — Another solemn constitutional crisis developed Wednesday over the integration of the races in the public schools of Little Rock.

In an effort to avoid a recurrence of last year's clash of authority between the federal government and the state of Arkansas, President Eisenhower appealed Wednesday morning for order and compliance with the Supreme Court's school integration decision of 1954.

He said it was the "solemnity" of all Americans to comply with the final orders of the Supreme Court of the United States and implied that if state authorities did not suppress unlawful opposition to the integration order, the federal government would do so, with troops if necessary.

Governor Scoffs

This immediately produced a defiant statement from Gov. Faubus of Arkansas, questioning the legality of the Supreme Court order, refusing to use state troops to permit compliance, and scoffing at what Gov. Faubus characterized as the President's efforts to invoke "the sacred name of the Constitution and the once-magic name of Eisenhower."

Thus, 13 days before the opening of Central High School in Little Rock, where federal troops were used last year to enable nine Negroes to attend classes, a major test of strength was in prospect between the conflicting authority of the federal and state governments.

Justice Department Hopeful

The Department of Justice was still hoping Wednesday to avoid the use of federal troops, this time by getting federal court injunctions against anybody who, by threats or violence, attempts to prevent the Negro students from attending the Little Rock school.

It is known that officials of the Justice Department are watching developments in Little Rock with great care and that Atty. Gen. William P. Rogers is ready with a series of alternate recommendations for the President to deal with any move by Gov. Faubus or anybody else to frustrate the integration of the school.

Faubus, who called out National Guard troops that blocked nine Negro students from the Little Rock school last September, said he does "recognize my duty to preserve the peace of my state." Preservation of order was cited by him as his reason for calling out the troops.

"What Mr. Eisenhower and many others who express similar viewpoints fail to realize is that they are supporting a court decision which is not constitutional, and there are millions of people in every section of the country who know it," he added.

Southern Council Calls on Moderates to Agree on Need for Compliance

ATLANTA — The Southern Regional Council called on "moderates of both races" Wednesday to express their agreement with President Eisenhower's "insistence on legality" in public school desegregation situations.

Moreover, the council stressed, the President's statement "will bring sobering truth to the defiant elements in some states" by impressing upon them that "there will be no ambiguity in executive leadership and that the laws of the land will be enforced."

The council, foremost interracial organization in the South, is composed of representatives from 13 states in the fields of education, religion, business, labor and journalism.

Hidden Views Emphazised

Harold C. Fleming, executive director of the council, with headquarters in Atlanta, emphasized that the statement supporting the President underscored the "existence of rational attitudes in the South that so often have been hidden from the nation by the rantings of the extremists."

"The South," Fleming said, "with its deep moral heritage and its basic commitment to the system of law established by the region's very forefathers has at all times had a vital segment of responsible people who would choose the path of temperate, planned developments in this difficult hour.

"But too often the irrational voices, the mythmakers, have crowded the stage and driven

President's Remarks on Schools

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Eisenhower's statement today on the subject of school integration follows:

Because there are still some phases of this case pending in the courts, it would not be appropriate for me to express my view on the case itself.

This case, however, or any person's agreement or disagreement with its outcome, must not be confused with the solemn duty that all Americans have to comply with the final orders of the court.

Nor should we lose sight of the fact that the maintenance of order to permit complaince with the final orders of the court is the responsibility of each state.

Each state owes to its inhabitants, to its sister states and to the Union the obligation to suppress unlawful forces. It cannot by action or deliberate failure to act permit violence to frustrate the preservation of individual rights as determined by a court decree.

It is my hope that each state will fulfill its obligation with a full realization of the gravity of any other course.

Defiance of this duty would present the most serious problem, but there can be no equivocation as to the responsibility of the federal government in such an event. My feelings are exactly as they were a year ago. As I said then:

"The very basis of our individual rights and freedoms rests upon the certainty that the President and the executive branch of government will support and insure the carrying out of the decisions of the federal courts."

Every American must understand that if an individual, community or state is going successfully and continuously to defy the courts, then there is anarchy.

I continue to insist that the common sense of the individual and his feeling of civic responsibility must eventually come into play if we are to solve this problem.

State Board Allows Group to Postpone Decision on Desegregation

By FRED TRAVIS
Chattanooga Times Bureau

NASHVILLE — The state board of education Wednesday authorized a special committee to continue its study of a proposal to delay desegregation at Memphis State University.

The special committee, established by the board earlier this month when MSU President J. M. Smith asked for the delay, submitted a two-sentence report. It said:

"In accordance with your directions, your committee has spent considerable time investigating the problem assigned to it.

"We are unable to make a report and recommendation at this meeting and request further time."

The board promptly adopted a resolution authorizing additional time and adjourned subject to call of the chairman, State Education Commissioner Quill Cope.

Little Rock Effect

The special committee, headed by W. R. Landrum of Trenton, declined to explain its need for additional time. However, the general relief was that the delay is intended to permit a final determination of whether federal courts will permit a postponement of desegregation at Little Rock (Ark) Central High School.

A federal district court authorized the Little Rock desegregation program to be halted for two years but was overruled by a U.S. circuit court of appeals. An appeal to the U.S. Supreme Court is planned. Smith was not present for the board meeting which lasted only about 15 minutes. However, he was in town and met earlier with the special committee composed of board members.

Violence Feared

At the previous meeting Aug. 8, Smith told the board he feared "considerable trouble and even violence" would result from efforts to desegregate MSU this fall.

He called attention to the heightened racial tensions resulting from the Little Rock troubles and from the raising of the segregation issue in the recent campaigns for governor and U.S. senator.

The board previously had ordered desegregation next fall for all state institutions of higher learning under the board's control. This includes all state-financed colleges and universities except the University of Tennessee.

The board's action came after the U.S. Sixth Circuit Court of Appeals rejected a plan for gradual desegregation of the colleges, one year at a time.

After complete desegregation was authorized, the board said he had a "very friendly and amicable meeting" with the Little Rock school board which he had challenged to take quick action on preventing integration here.

Faubus refused to say whether he plans to call a special session of the Arkansas Legislature to deal with school integration or whether he has any other plans afoot.

The governor said after the meeting, which lasted nearly two hours, that "the board answered many questions posed by me in a previous statement."

These questions were demands to know whether the board planned any concrete maneuvers aimed at preventing a resumption of school integration at Little Rock next month.

Faubus said the board couldn't answer some of the questions because the answers were not yet known to the board members.

This was no casual statement by President Eisenhower Wednesday. It was carefully worked out in the Department of Justice with the specific purpose of making clear in advance the determination of the federal government to take whatever action is necessary to maintain order and permit compliance with the integration order.

Prepared in Advance

Eisenhower came into his news conference looking serious and carrying the policy statement in his right hand. He refused to say whether he thought the Supreme Court integration decision was right or wrong, but left it to the statement to define the administration's policy. It made these points:

1. Regardless of whether he agreed or disagreed with specific court orders in the Little Rock case, it was the duty of all Americans to comply with the final orders of the Supreme Court.

2. The maintenance or order, to permit compliance with the final orders of the Supreme Court, is the responsibility of the state, and the state could not "by action or deliberate failure to act, permit violence to frustrate the preservation of individual rights as determined by a court decree."

3. "Defiance of this duty," the President's statement said, "would present the most serious problem, but there can be no equivocation as to the responsibility of the federal government in such an event. My feelings are exactly as they were a year ago."

4. Finally, he added: "Every American must understand that if an individual community, or state is going successfully and continuously to defy the courts,

Clothes Lines Break Boy's 5-Story Fall

NEW YORK (AP) — A 13-year-old boy fell five stories from the roof of an upper East Side tenement Tuesday and may have escaped serious injury because he struck several clothes lines in his plunge, police said.

The boy, Gilbert Ruiz, was taken to Metropolitan Hospital, where a preliminary examination showed no serious injury.

Police said the boy and his brother, Santos, 14, were playing on the roof of a building when Gilbert tripped and fell five stories to a rear yard.

able discussion and debate here for the following reasons:

Ever since the Supreme Court unanimously ordered an end of segregation of the races in the public schools in May 1954, it has been obvious that the problem was to persuade the Deep South to consent to the gradual integration of the schools.

From the beginning the President has been under considerable pressure to take the lead in this task of persuasion, not only by insisting, as he did Wednesday, that it was the duty of all Americans to comply with a final Supreme Court order, but by supporting the principle of gradual integration itself.

This latter the President has hesitated to do, and he has now explained why, in a statement that throws considerable light on his concept of presidential responsibility. He has now said, in effect, that he will use executive power to the utmost to enforce the final orders of the Supreme Court, but he will not use presidential influence to persuade the nation that the court's decision was right or wrong.

Inside Debate

Even within the administration, this philosophy is now the subject of lively debate. Some officials agree with the President. Others feel that to withhold presidential guidance on decisions of the Supreme Court is to leave the country without the full force of presidential leadership on some of the most controversial subjects in the world.

Even those who take this latter view, however, were saying Wednesday night that the President's intervention in the case went further than he has ever gone before in urging compliance with the court's integration order.

He did not restrict himself to calling for the maintenance of law and order so that the court's order could be carried out. He called specifically for "compliance" with that order as a "solemn duty" of all Americans, regardless of whether they agreed or disagreed with the court's reasoning or conclusion.

In his only other reference to the integration problem, the President told a questioner that he had had some preliminary conversations with Virginians about the school integration problem in that state, but that he had not arranged any meeting with the governor of the state, J. Lindsay Almond.

By all available evidence, the indications were that it was the former. The Justice Department left no doubt Wednesday morning that it was ready for any eventuality, and this attitude was even stiffer Wednesday afternoon when the reports of Gov. Faubus' reaction reached the capital.

Chapters All Over South

The council, established about 14 years ago, maintains chapters in each Southern state to implement local programs of adjustment in race relations through education and persuasion.

The council has issued some 500,000 pamphlets on methods for improving race relations and distributed them through church groups and human relations organizations. It has had a leading role in promoting the hiring of Negro policemen and has worked for advances in Negro vote gains and desegregation in public transportation facilities.

The council's statement commending President Eisenhower's stand on the Little Rock school issue follows:

"The prepared statement made by President Eisenhower at his news conference will be welcome by all Southerners concerned with the maintenance of public order and respect for law. The Southern Regional Council commends him and the language of his announcement.

But let us make sure that the events which led to the sending of those troops will not again occur. That is the responsibility of state and local officials and of public opinion in the South.

Violence Feared

At the previous meeting Aug. 8, Smith told the board he feared "considerable trouble and even violence" would result from efforts to desegregate MSU this fall.

He called attention to the heightened racial tensions resulting from the Little Rock troubles and from the raising of the segregation issue in the recent campaigns for governor and U.S. senator.

The board previously had ordered desegregation next fall for all state institutions of higher learning under the board's control. This includes all state-financed colleges and universities except the University of Tennessee.

The board's action came after the U.S. Sixth Circuit Court of Appeals rejected a plan for gradual desegregation of the colleges, one year at a time.

After complete desegregation was authorized, the board approved a plan for entrance tests for Memphis State.

Eight of 10 Negroes who took the MSU test for admission with the fall term made passing grades and became eligible for enrollment. None of the 10 who applied were among the five Negroes who filed the original suit to force desegregation of the Memphis university.

The special committee gave no indication how much additional time it might require to complete its study.

4. Finally, he added: "Every American must understand that if an individual community, or state is going successfully and continuously to defy the courts, then there is anarchy."

No Personal References

The President, unlike Gov. Faubus avoided any personal references to those who differed with him in the case. He did not mention Little Rock or Arkansas. He said that "it would not be appropriate" for him to discuss this week's action of the 8th Circuit Court of Appeals, insisting on the integration process in Little Rock, since some phases of this action were still pending in the courts. And he added that he would have nothing further to say about the integration problem or the cases now before the courts.

Nevertheless, he did undertake to define his philosophy about expressions of presidential opinion on the wisdom of the Supreme Court's integration decision.

His point on this was that what he thought about the decision was not the central question. The main thing was that the agency of government established to interpret the Constitution had issued a final order opposing the segregation of the races in the public schools and that it was a binding duty on all to comply with that order.

No Enthusiasm Evident

Indeed, he phrased his attitude in such a way as to give some support to the widely-held belief in Washington that he is not the most enthusiastic person in the capital about the integration order.

When a reporter noted that the President had always emphasized the importance of supporting final federal court orders, and asked whether he would go further and state whether he personally favored the beginning or an end to segregated schools, he replied:

"I have always declined to do that for the simple reason that here was something that the Supreme Court says: This is the direction of the Constitution, this is the instruction of the Constitution. That is, they say: This is the meaning of the Constitution.

"Now, I am sworn to one thing: To defend the Constitution of the United States, and execute its laws. Therefore, for me to weaken public opinion by discussion of complete, separate cases, where I might agree or disagree, seems to me to be completely unwise and not a thing to do.

"I have an oath; I expect to carry it out. And the mere fact that I could disagree very violently with a decision, and would so express myself, then my own duty would be much more difficult to carry out, I think."

This passage led to consider-

Even within the administration, this philosophy is now the subject of lively debate. Some officials agree with the President. Others feel that to withhold presidential [illegible] decisions of the Supreme Court is to leave the country without the full force of presidential leadership on some of the most controversial subjects in the world.

In his only other reference to the integration problem, the President told a questioner that he had had some preliminary conversations with Virginians about the school integration problem in that state, but that he had not arranged any meeting with the governor of the state, J. Lindsay Almond.

There was very little public comment here after the President's statement. Both Sens. John L. McClellan, Arkansas Democrat, and James O. Eastland, Mississippi Democrat, refused to discuss it.

Another Senate Judiciary Committee member, John A. Carroll, Colorado Democrat, inquired whether the President's speech was the forerunner of a "plan of action" or "just a pretty speech."

By all available evidence, the indications were that it was the former. The Justice Department left no doubt Wednesday morning that it was ready for any eventuality, and this attitude was even stiffer Wednesday afternoon when the reports of Gov. Faubus' reaction reached the capital.

A Race Agency and the Facts

Inaccurate statements as to its origins of the Southern Regional Council of Atlanta appeared recently in THE TIMES-DISPATCH, and should be corrected. They appeared — inadvertently, we are sure—in one of the series of articles by EDWARD B. SIMMONS of the New Bedford, Mass., Standard-Times concerning Communist efforts to incite racial strife in the United States.

MR. SIMMONS stated in the article appearing in our paper on August 5 that the Southern Regional Council, established in Atlanta in 1944, was an "offshoot of the old Southern Conference for Human Welfare, which was dissolved in 1948 after twice being described by the Federal Government as 'Communist front.'" He also said: "'The Communist Daily Worker openly boasted that JAMES E. JACKSON, chief of the Southern branch of the U. S. Communist party, was a co-founder of the Regional Council."

Taking these two charges in order, the Southern Regional Council was not an offshoot of the Southern Conference for Human Welfare. It was established in response to an appeal from respected Southern Negro leaders, who met at Durham, N. C., in October, 1942, on the call of DR. GORDON B. HANCOCK, of the Virginia Union faculty here, and DR. P. B. YOUNG, of Norfolk, publisher of the Norfolk Journal and Guide. These Negro leaders did not ask for the elimination of segregation in the schools or anywhere else; they asked that "separate but equal" be made a reality.

Responding to their appeal, a group of white leaders met in Atlanta in the spring of 1943, and expressed a desire to cooperate. Out of this grew the Southern Regional Council. The Council was the successor to the Commission on Interracial Cooperation, founded in 1919 by leading churchmen. To repeat, it not only was no "offshoot" of the Southern Conference for Human Welfare; it was criticized in some quarters because it was more conservative than that organization and suspected of being in competition with it.

We must remember, too, that when the Southern Conference for Human Welfare was established in 1938, it was not suspected of having any Communist connections, and many well-intentioned and patriotic Southerners participated in its early meetings. A number of these later joined the Southern Regional Council when they discovered the true purposes of the Conference for Human Welfare.

As to the allegation of the Communist Daily Worker that JAMES E. JACKSON, chief of the Southern branch of the U. S. Communist party, was a "co-founder of the Southern Regional Council," there is nothing to support this.

A JAMES E. JACKSON is listed as having attended the Durham meeting of Negro leaders in October, 1942, but is not mentioned by the Norfolk Journal and Guide as having been on the committee which drew up the statement then issued. JACKSON did not participate in the meetings of white and Negro leaders in 1943 and 1944 which led to the establishment of the Southern Regional Council, and he was not at any time an officer, director, or member of that agency. The Daily Worker's statement that he was a "founder" is as unreliable and inaccurate as nearly everything else in that Communist sheet.

The late DR. HOWARD W. ODUM, noted and respected member of the University of North Carolina faculty, was the first president of the Council. He was succeeded in 1945 by PAUL D. WILLIAMS, prominent Catholic layman of Richmond and co-founder of the Catholic Committee of the South, who served until 1951. MR. WILLIAMS was succeeded in that year by MARION A. WRIGHT, South Carolina attorney, former chairman of the South Carolina Library Board and past president of the University of South Carolina Alumni Association.

It should be emphasized that SRC worked within the framework of "separate but equal" for seven years, and did not announce for integration until 1951.

While we disagree strongly and completely with its present position on this issue, we feel obligated to point out, in fairness, that it was in no sense Communist in its origins. The Southern Regional Council was established because of a sincere desire on the part of white and Negro leaders in the South to eliminate many of the disabilities and discriminations from which Negroes were suffering.

It was hoped that if these could be substantially lessened, the colored South would not look to the colored North for leadership. Insufficient progress was made, unfortunately, and the NAACP moved in and launched its drive for the complete elimination of segregation — sooner than it probably would have done if SRC's accomplishments had been larger.

That is where we stand today.

Reply To Editorial

To The News and Courier:

I was shocked that South Carolina's most Outspoken Newspaper would resort to such unspeakable tactics in criticizing my article on newspapers and race relations, which appeared in The Quill and New South.

Your editorial of Sept. 29 resorted to a trick unbecoming a Southern gentleman — quoting out-of-context to prove what you wanted your readers to believe.

My article most certainly did not advocate suppressing the news, but presenting "the news in full and fair fashion," your description of a newspaper's "one principal duty." I quote from my article:

"Don't hust up serious racial incidents, but report them with the greatest accuracy and factualness to avoid stirring up mob violence. . ."

The Charleston Gazette and other West Virginia newspapers covered all demonstrations against school integration and, to my knowledge, did not "play down" the views of pro-segregation citizens. Criticism of segregationists was limited strictly to editorial comment, as you advocated. No attempt was made to humiliate them in the news columns. These points were clearly made in my article.

The remarks of The Gazette city editor, which you again quoted out-of-context, were made in reference to telephone calls from unidentified students seeking publicity. If a student strike did occur, The Gazette covered it.

With any freedom goes a responsibility. Freedom of the press gives newspapers a somber responsibility to attack those evils which destroy a democratic society. Prejudice, as practically all of the world's outstanding psychiatrists and social scientists will testify, is one of those evils.

If The News and Courier is Really interested in covering the news "in full and fair fashion," I suggest that you do a series of articles on how well integration is working in border states like West Virginia and Kentucky.

Charleston, South Carolina, could benefit from the experience of "the other Charleston" in West Virginia. After more than a half-century of segregation, its public schools were integrated. Integration is working smoothly, several hundred thousand dollars have been saved from the abolition of expensive segregated schools and there are no "muted voices" that live in daily fear of mob violence

And for South Carolinians who prefer the refreshing breeze of reason to outspoken hysteria, I suggest that they subscribe to New South — and excellent magazine dedicated to saving the South from destroying itself by clinging to the shabby myths of the 19th Century.

West Virginia Reveals How Press 'Humiliated' Objectors To Mixing

How to suppress the news, in one easy lesson, might be an accurate title for an article by Harry W. Ernst, a writer for The Charleston (W. Va.) Gazette which appeared recently in The Quill, a magazine of journalism.

The article is reprinted in the current issue of New South, publication of The Southern Regional Council, under the title, "West Virginia Press Sets Good Example."

New South is an integration propaganda sheet put out with Fund for the Republic money. We aren't surprised that it has picked up this do-it-yourself article on suppression of truth. What does surprise us is the frankness of an American newsman who boasts that the press of his state sneers at the public and who admits it is in the business of pushing people around.

It is, of course, the right of any newspaper to expound its beliefs. If the newspapers of West Virginia believe that racial integration is good for their communities, we would expect them to state their views in their editorial columns.

We are dismayed to learn, if Mr. Ernst is to be believed, that the West Virginia press uses its news columns to favor one side in a local dispute.

Mr. Ernst's point is that newspapers have responsibility "in helping cleanse the American psyche of a disruptive demon—prejudice."

We don't believe that newspaper editors are a priesthood that knows what is best for the souls of readers. We subscribe to the belief that newspapers have one principal duty — to present the news in full and fair fashion.

For that reason we can't believe in what Mr. Ernst terms "enlightened news coverage." The news, we believe, should speak for itself in the news columns. Editorial opinion should be so designated.

Mr. Ernst praises the West Virginia press for having "helped create a climate in which classroom integration could move forward with a minimum of public protest."

How were the views of pro-segregation citizens played down?

"The few segregationists who spoke up publicly," Mr. Ernst quoted one editor as saying, "were humiliated in our editorial columns."

The papers also employed what one West Virginian called "restrained news coverage," which is another way to describe failure to cover a story completely.

How did Mr. Ernst's paper, The Gazette, handle a threatened student strike? He quotes The Gazette's city editor as saying: "We just sneered at them, pointing out that whatever they did was too trivial for us to fool with."

There is a word for such journalism. The word is "suppression." We are surprised and grieved to find that "the other Charleston" has such muted voices.

Louisiana ACLU Refuses to File Affidavit Under New State Law

Herblock, Washington Post & Times Herald

"ALL WE WANT IS THE TRUTH AS WE SEE IT"

The Louisiana Civil Liberties Union announced on October 17 its decision to challenge as unconstitutional a new Louisiana law requiring it (and similar non-commercial associations) to file an affidavit attesting that no officer of any out-of-state organization with which the LCLU may be affiliated belongs to a group cited by the House Un-American Activities Committee or the U.S. Attorney General as "Communist, Communist-front or subversive."

Act 260 of the 1958 Legislative Session also provides that information from the files of the Un-American Activities Committee "shall constitute prima facie evidence of such membership in said organizations."

George A. Dreyfous, President of the Union's Louisiana affiliate, publicly informed Governor Earl K. Long that the law "is manifestly unconstitutional, being in conflict with Article I, Section 2 of the Constitution of the State of Louisiana and with the provisions of the Fourteenth Amendment to the Constitution of the United States."

Dreyfous and the Board of the LCLU added that the act is also "diametrically opposed to the purposes, as declared in the preamble, for which the Constitution of Louisiana was ordained, namely: to secure the civil, political and religious liberties we enjoy.

"Wherefore, the Louisiana Civil Liberties Union has decided to disregard the said act as being null and void and will refuse to file any such affidavit."

"In the event that you disagree with these conclusions," Dreyfous told Governor Long, "I suggest that you institute an action for a declaratory judgment against the Louisiana Civil Liberties Union, or against me as its president, in order that the constitutionality of said act may be determined."

ACLU Files Brief Challenging Existence of House Un-American Activities Committee

The continued existence of the House Committee on Un-American Activities faced a new challenge in the U.S. Supreme Court late last month. The ACLU filed a brief on behalf of Lloyd Barenblatt who was convicted of contempt for refusing to answer the Committee's questions. The Union asserts that the Committee's mandate from Congress is unconstitutional and that thus it has no right to conduct investigations or to compel testimony. Moreover, declares the ACLU brief, the Committee violates due process and unconstitutionally tries to restrict freedom of belief, expression and association.

Barenblatt, an instructor in psychology at Vassar for four years prior to his appearance before the Committee in June 1954, refused to tell the Committee whether he had belonged to the Communist Party, had known one of his colleagues as a Communist, or had participated in Communist-led discussion groups while a graduate student at the University of Michigan from 1947 to 1950. In federal District Court, he was convicted of contempt, fined $250, and sentenced to six months in prison. His conviction was upheld by the U.S. Court of Appeals in the District of Columbia, and later, when the Supreme Court remanded his case for reconsideration in the light of its 1957 decision in the Watkins case, the appeals tribunal re-affirmed Barenblatt's conviction, 5-4.

In their brief, ACLU General Counsel Edward J. Ennis, cooperating attorney Nanette Dembitz, and Staff Counsel Rowland Watts —and Barenblatt's own lawyer, David Scribner—strike hard at the Committee's persistent practice of damaging witnesses' reputations merely because of their beliefs, and of forcing them to "purge" themselves by naming others who may hold unorthodox opinions.

Small Parties' Right To Ballot Supported

After the new Independent-Socialist Party won its ACLU-supported fight for a place on New York State's ballot this Election Day, the Union and its New York affiliate called for a thorough review of the state's election laws to simplify the requirements placed on minority parties.

NYCLU Executive Director George E. Rundquist and ACLU Staff Counsel Rowland Watts hailed the county court's decision, but went on to say, "We stated earlier that we felt the banning of the Independent-Socialist Party was 'pettifogging and picayune.' This also is true in the case of the Socialist Labor Party, which this year has been ruled off the ballot. The time has come for a thorough evaluation of New York election laws to simplify the requirements for minority representation and to eliminate the gloss of minutia challenge which has accumulated by court decisions through the years."

Florida High Court Upholds Position of Miami Affiliate

The Florida Supreme Court has upheld the position of the Union's Greater Miami affiliate that the Florida Constitution cannot be revised by the Legislature acting alone, without the calling of a constitutional convention.

The decision came in a suit (supported by an ACLU friend-of-the-court brief) to restrain the state from printing ballots for a referendum asking approval or rejection of the Legislature's revisions of the Constitution in the area of education, which it adopted in an attempt to circumvent the U.S. Supreme Court's desegregation rulings.

THE LAW OF WIRETAPPING — 1958

BY MELVIN L. WULF
Assistant Staff Counsel, ACLU

The recent Supreme Court decision in Benanti v. U.S., holding that evidence procured by state law enforcement officers as the result of wiretapping was inadmissible in the federal courts, was an important civil liberties victory. It gives reason to believe that the privacy of telephone conversations will be accorded increasing recognition in the future. This seems to be an appropriate time, therefore, to review the present state of the law of wiretapping.

The statute around which adjudication revolves is Section 605 of the Federal Communications Act. Its pertinent provisions provide:

> ". . . no person not being authorized by the sender shall intercept any communication and divulge or publish the existence, meaning (etc.), of such intercepted communication to any person. . . ."

The statute was adopted in 1934, six years after the Supreme Court, in Olmstead v. U.S., held that wiretapping was not a search within the meaning of the Fourth Amendment. The consequence of Olmstead was to permit information acquired directly or indirectly by wiretapping to be introduced as competent evidence in the Federal court. In effect, it sanctioned official intrusion into an area of privacy that many thought, and continue to think, is worthy of constitutional protection.

Within a few years after the passage of Section 605, the Supreme Court in Nardone v. U.S. determined that at a minimum the statute prohibited the use in federal courts of evidence acquired through wiretapping. It was also settled that this prohibition applied to intra-state as well as to inter-state communications.

It was now clear that by outlawing wiretapping, Congress intended to restore the right to private telephone conversations to its deserved place in the law. It is no secret, however, that the intent of the statute has not been entirely realized. Both Federal and local law enforcement officials regularly intercept telephone messages, and one can only speculate on the extent of wiretapping by private investigators bent on divers assignments.

The cases arising after Nardone dealt largely with the semantics of Section 605. Two principal questions were in issue: (a) the nature of the authorization that would remove an intercepted communication from the ambit of the statute, and (b) the definition of "intercept." Typically, the questions were presented concurrently when a government informer engaged a suspect in a phone conversation in order to permit it to be recorded from an extension phone.

In 1940, Judge Learned Hand, in Polakoff v. U.S., said that the anti-phonal nature of a telephone conversation rendered the word "sender" inapt, and he held that Section 605 was not satisfied unless both parties authorized the interception and disclosure. He also rejected the contention that a recording made from an extension phone was not an interception, saying, ". . . anyone intercepts a message to whose intervention as a listener the communicants do not consent; the means he employs can have no importance; it is the breach of privacy that counts." Other courts took a more spatial view of the problem and held otherwise.

In 1957 the question was resolved against Judge Hand by the Supreme Court in Rathbun v. U.S. The decision not only held that a recording from an extension was not an interception, it also held that the "sender" need not even have been the initiator of the call.

Whereas Nardone early laid to rest the evidence question in the Federal courts, it was not until 1952 that the Court agreed to review the application of the same question to the state courts. In Schwartz v. Texas the Court decided that insofar as Section 605 established a rule of evidence, it did not apply to the state courts. They were free to admit such evidence or not as they chose. It was to the allied problem of the use of state procured wiretap evidence in the Federal courts that Benanti, mentioned earlier, was directed. But whereas Benanti strengthened the right to privacy, Schwartz substantially impaired that right, for it assured local officials that no federal disability would attach to their use of wiretap evidence. Since deciding Schwartz, the Supreme Court, on at least three occasions, has declined to reconsider the question there presented. In view of its decision in Benanti, however, it is possible that the Court will give the problem fresh attention. An opportunity for it to do so is now pending before it on petition for review in Voci v. Pennsylvania. In the event the Court grants the petition, ACLU participation is anticipated.

It is interesting to note that Section 605 is more than a rule of evidence. It is also a prohibitory statute to which penal sanctions apply. It becomes increasingly interesting when one also notes that the Department of Justice has prosecuted at least six persons—none of them law enforcement officials—for violations of the statute. Thus, at the same time that FBI agents were monitoring the 90 taps that J. Edgar Hoover announced were in effect one day last summer, some of their confreres were presumably seeking out violators around the country. Charity, it seems, does begin at home.

Eighty Agencies Marking Tenth Human Rights Day

The ACLU is one of some eighty national organizations which have joined together to form the U.S. Committee for the Observance of the Tenth Anniversary of the Universal Declaration of Human Rights. In New York the event will be marked by an all-day conference at the Waldorf-Astoria on December 9, the day before the celebration at the U.N.

A Letter to the ACLU

Menlo Park, California
October 21, 1958

Gentlemen:

Prompted by the item in the October CIVIL LIBERTIES about the Cincinnati Public Library's banning of "Lolita," I checked with our county library here to find out if they intended buying the book. According to the librarian, they were at that moment trying to decide about the book. "It is one of the most difficult decisions I've ever been called on to make," she said.

Phone calls to several other libraries in the area disclosed that most, but not all of them, had the book already or were in the process of placing it on their shelves. Armed with these figures, I called both the San Francisco Chronicle's Herb Caen (our favorite West Coast journalistic son) and the San Mateo Times on Wednesday. Caen mentioned the incident the next day in the lead-off spot in his column, commenting that the "guardians of the public weal" were trying to decide whether or not adults should be allowed to read the book in San Mateo County libraries.

On Saturday, the San Mateo City Library announced that they had been flooded by requests, presumably as a result of the publicity, and had decided to buy the book. On Tuesday (today) the County Library also decided to buy the book. Thus, only six days elapsed between rejection and reconsideration.

Two thoughts occur to me regarding this incident: for one thing, favorable publicity such as this has not always been as easy to obtain for civil liberties causes. The easy success of the two calls was based on all the unrewarded efforts of countless ACLU members in less sympathetic years. As a member of only five years standing, I realize the debt that is owed to old-timers in this field.

The second thought is this: how many other public libraries are doing the same thing in cities where other ACLU members live? How many members have made that ten cent phone call to their library, followed by a second dime call to their local newspaper should that prove necessary?

Yours very truly,
Richard G. Gould

Budget Bureau Considering Bill of Rights Proclamation

In response to its letter asking that President Eisenhower proclaim December 15th as Bill of Rights Day—in addition to his usual Proclamation regarding December 10th, the anniversary of the UN's Declaration of Human Rights—the San Diego Chapter of the Southern California ACLU received word that "Your letter is being forwarded to the Bureau of the Budget, which assists the President in the consideration and clearance of proclamations. . . ."

The San Diego Chapter is distributing a hundred of the Union's Statue of Liberty-Bill of Rights posters to downtown stores as part of its program to commemorate the 167th anniversary of the First Ten Amendments.

MALIN ON RADIO

Worthy Loses First Round; ACLU Plans Prompt Appeal

Baltimore Afro-American correspondent William Worthy has lost the first round of his court battle to require Secretary of State Dulles to issue him a passport without geographic travel restrictions. The Union, which has backed Worthy's fight for a passport since early 1957, announced in October that a prompt appeal would be pressed in the U.S. Court of Appeals.

Union Puts a Stop to Deportation of Poles

Mrs. Krystyna Jurkiewicz and her 13-year-old son, Krzystof, gained a victory last month in their fight against deportation to Communist Poland when the Justice Department granted them a stay pending a further hearing.

The ACLU, in its continuing battle to get the Immigration Service to grant aliens fair hearings when they ask for political asylum, entered the Jurkiewicz case when approached by the Polish-American Immigration and Relief Committee with evidence that Mrs. Jurkiewicz's husband had been jailed for one year when he was caught escaping from Poland in 1954 and now cannot get a job there because of his opposition to the Communist regime, and that her son has been threatened with loss of schooling because of the family's politics.

Quintana Case Ruling Not So Broad

The story in last month's CIVIL LIBERTIES headed "Steelworker's Deportation Halted by Appeals Tribunal" stated, "The case will have a far-reaching effect on the status of other resident aliens, since it puts a firm time limit on the right of the government to deport a legally admitted alien." This statement was incorrect.

Steelworker Benito S. Quintana, who entered the country illegally in 1934, was granted suspension of deportation by Act of Congress in 1949. In 1955, the Attorney General asked Congress to rescind its 1949 action for the reason that Quintana had been a member of the Communist Party, and Congress did so in April 1956.

The District Court sustained the Attorney General on the ground that, while the McCarran-Walter Act limits the time in which the Attorney General can act to five years, there is no such time limit on Congress. The Court of Appeals reversed the District Court's ruling on the ground that the five-year limitation is binding on the Attorney General.

Some Thoughts for Members to Ponder

The dues of almost one half of the Union's members are—or will be—up for renewal between now and January 31st, the end of our 1958-59 fiscal year. When these 19,000 members receive their renewal notices we hope they will keep these ideas in mind:

I would remind you that the total annual budget of the American Civil Liberties Union [this year about $380,000] is only a little bit more than the amount that would be regarded as a modest annual stipend for a moderately successful executive in the major industries of the United States.—Robert M. Hutchins in a speech made in Washington last March.

If at renewal time every member would remember that inflation has hit the ACLU just as it has the nation and increase his investment in the Bill of Rights accordingly, the Union's budget would not remain so modest.

He who gives promptly gives twice as much.—attributed to Benjamin Franklin.

If every member would renew in response to our first reminder, hundreds of man-hours of clerical work would become available for substantive civil liberties work in both national and affiliate offices.

And finally, the promotional material offered in last month's CIVIL LIBERTIES is still available to any member on request.

CIVIL LIBERTIES around the nation

Arkansas: In urging support for Gov. Faubus' bills to prevent school desegregation, State Rep. W. L. Ward told the Legislature at its recent special session: "We've got to have an end to this socialism and communism and running around at night."

New Jersey: Six former Fort Monmouth employees, dismissed as "security risks" in 1954 after charges by the late Senator McCarthy, got their jobs back last month by court order; with this ruling, every one of the 33 Monmouth employees suspended in 1954 has now been cleared, restored to his job if he so chose, and given the back pay he was entitled to.

Virginia: In opposition to Gov. Almond's "massive resistance" to school integration, the Virginia Congress of Parents and Teachers voted in October, 515 to 513, to support local option, which would permit each community to work the problem out for itself.

New York: All four candidates for Governor—Averell Harriman, Democrat; Eric Hass, Socialist Labor (write-in); John T. McManus, Independent-Socialist; and Nelson Rockefeller, Republican—appeared together on an hour-long WCBS-TV discussion program October 25.

District of Columbia: By 583 votes out of a total of 807, the District of Columbia Bar Association has approved admission of Negro lawyers to membership for the first time.

Indiana: The Rev. Martin Luther King told a United Church of Christ conference in Lafayette, Ind., recently that, with regard to interracial marriage, "The Negro is far more interested in becoming the white man's brother than in being his brother-in-law."

Detroit ACLU Begins Six-Session Seminar

The Union's Metropolitan Detroit Branch this month inaugurates a Seminar on Civil Liberties to be held the first three Wednesdays in November and the first three Wednesdays in December at 7:45 P.M. in MacGregor Memorial Conference Center, Wayne University. Attorney Harold Norris, recently elected Chairman of the Detroit Branch, will lead the discussion in each session, assisted by panelists. Subjects to be covered during the six evenings include freedom of assembly and speech, freedom of press and religion, the Bill of Rights and loyalty programs, fair police practices and due process, Congressional investigations and personal liberty, academic freedom, and the Fourteenth Amendment and civil rights.

Last month the Detroit ACLU helped win a victory for freedom of the arts when Wayne County Circuit Court Judge Thomas J. Murphy issued a writ compelling the Detroit Arts Commission to rent its auditorium for a concert by Pete Seeger, a folk singer considered by the Commission to be a "controversial" figure presumably because of old charges of Communist associations.

SUGGESTIONS

With the ACLU's 1958 elections almost completed—members' National Committee ballots must be in by November 17—the Union's Nominating Committee is now seeking suggestions as to 1959-62 candidates for the Board of Directors and the National Committee. ACLU members are asked to send names (with biographical data, where necessary) of men and women who have publicly demonstrated their support of the Union's principles. Candidates for the Board must be able to attend bi-weekly meetings in New York; National Committee candidates may live anywhere in the U.S. and possessions. Send suggestions to ACLU Nominating Committee, 170 Fifth Avenue, New York 10, N.Y.

Indiana CLU Holds Conference in Gary

"If the President had the moral courage to affirm what he sometimes believes, he would have gone to Little Rock and walked into school with the kids," Professor Kermit Eby of the University of Chicago told some 300 members and friends of the Indiana Civil Liberties Union in the final session of its day-long conference in Gary, September 27.

"The reason to treat our minorities as they should be treated," Eby added, "is not so they will be our allies against communism, but because it is right to do so."

Other speakers at the Gary civil liberties workshop included Madison S. Jones, Race Relations Consultant with the New York City Housing Authority, on "Integration in Housing;" attorney Leonard B. Boudin on the "Right to Travel;" ICLU Board member Ray Addington on "Censorship;" and ICLU Executive Director John Preston Ward on "Congressional Investigating Committees."

A fair sample of the sort of revelations by which Attorney General Bennett and the Legislative Council are attempting to "educate" the people of Arkansas to the perils of Communism was contained in a reference by the professional witness, J. B. Matthews, to the executive editor of this newspaper.

Stringing together a list of unrelated organizations in an attempt to prove Communist guilt by association, Mr. Matthews followed his devious trail through the reputable Southern Regional Council to the Fund For the Republic, which several years ago made a grant to that organization. He then "revealed" a fact which has long been a matter of record and due publicity—that Harry S. Ashmore is a member of the Board of Directors of the Fund, and has been since 1955.

What this "friendly" hired witness (the only kind Mr. Bennett permits on the stand) did not read from the record was the list of persons Mr. Ashmore actually does associate with on the Board of the Fund, which is made up of the following eminent citizens:

Bruce Catton, historian and editor of American Heritage; Charles W. Cole, president of Amherst College; Russell L. Dearmont, president of the Missouri Pacific Railroad; Arthur J. Goldberg, counsel for the AFLCIO; Erwin N. Griswold, dean of the Harvard Law School; Oscar Hammerstein 2nd, playwright; Paul G. Hoffman, former board chairman of the Studebaker Corporation; Robert M. Hutchins, president of the Fund; William H. Joyce Jr., retired president of Joyce Shoe Corporation; Meyer Kestnbaum, president of Hart, Schaffner & Marx; Monsignor Francis J. Lally, editor of The Pilot; Herbert H. Lehman, former governor of New York; M. Albert Linton, retired president of the Provident Mutual Life Insurance Company; J. Howard Marshall, vice president of Signal Oil Company; Jubal R. Parten, president of Woodley Petroleum Company; Alicia Patterson, publisher of Newsday; Elmo Roper, public opinion analyst; George N. Some Background On A Professional Witness

By Elizabeth Carpenter
Gazette Washington Bureau
1202 National Press Building

As a timely public service, we are reprinting this April 28, 1958, column on J. B. Matthews, who testified yesterday before the special legislative committee investigating charges of Communist influence in Arkansas.

In his recent surprise charge that "outside forces" — possibly Communist - inspired — helped create the Little Rock integration crisis, Governor Faubus relied heavily on a source whose veracity has been challenged officially by:

1. Senator John L. McClellan of Arkansas.
2. Senator Harry F. Byrd of Virginia.
3. President Eisenhower.
4. Protestant, Catholic and Jewish clergymen.

It was an article by the man in question, J. B. Matthews, that Mr. Faubus cited in support of his accusation, made in a speech to the Southwest Little Rock Kiwanis Club April 10.

The governor quoted an article by Matthews in the Easter 1958 issue of "Christian Crusade" to the effect that Lee Lorch, white professor of mathematics at Philander Smith College, and his wife, Mrs. Grace Lorch, "have been identified as members of the Communist Party." Mr. Faubus said the Lorches "were active behind the scenes and then openly in the Little Rock affair."

The governor's introduction of the "Communist issue" in the Little Rock controversy surprised some political observers, since the same issue was raised against Mr. Faubus in the 1954 gubernatorial campaign. The perplexity may have been greater among those who knew that it was Matthews who directed an investigation of Communist activities at Commonwealth College at Mena.

Mr. Faubus has admitted reluctantly that he attended the Communist - tainted college, at least for a few days as a freshman in the '30s.

practically every government intelligence agency."

But the matter came to a crux on the afternoon of July 9 when the White House received a telegram signed by a priest, a rabbi, and a Presbyterian minister, speaking for the National Conference of Christians and Jews. The telegram called Matthews' attack on the Protestant ministry "unjustified and deplorable."

President Eisenhower, who had been reluctant to be drawn into the battle of the McCarthy era, entered this one unhesitatingly, allying himself with those taking strong issue against the Matthews' article.

The president made public his reply which stated he "fully agreed" with the three clergymen that the attack on the Protestant clergy "is unjustified and deplorable."

The president went on to say, "If there be any American among us, whatever his calling, guilty of treasonous action against the state, let him legally and properly be convicted and punished. This applies to every person, lay or clergy."

As the telegrams were being made public at the White House, McCarthy "very reluctantly" accepted the resignation of Matthews.

The following morning, the Wisconsin senator tried to save face by getting the Republican majority of the committee to vote to give him complete power to hire and fire all staff employes.

It was a straight party - line vote, 4-3, and shortly afterwards, the three Democratic members of the committee, after obtaining the full backing of the Senate Democratic leadership, resigned in bloc.

Senator McClellan told the press at the time, "This committee's work is so sensitive and so delicate that it should try to work in complete harmony. Any member of the staff who might be objectionable to any member on any reasonable grounds should be subject to a discharge by a majority of the committee."

Not until the following January when Congress reconvened and Senator McCarthy surrendered

Who, then, is J. B. Matthews? This is a question which Washington asked back in the summer of 1953 when Senator Joseph R. McCarthy (Rep., Wis.) then chairman of the Senate Permanent Investigations Subcommittee, hired Matthews as staff director and found himself in the middle of one of the hottest controversies that ever broiled during the controversial heyday of the Wisconsin senator.

Actually, Matthews was not new on the scene in 1953. Between 1938 and 1945, he was director of research for the House Committee on Un-American Activities. And it was under his direction during those years that the Committee investigated Commonwealth.

But it wasn't his Commonwealth College probe that put Matthews' name in headlines.

It was, an article which he wrote for the American Mercury Magazine's July 1953 issue entitled, "Reds and Our Churches," the article opened with this sentence: "The largest single group supporting the Communist apparatus in the United States today is composed of Protestant clergymen."

The article went on to charge that the Communist Party had "enlisted the support" of "at least 7,000 Protestant clergymen" as "party members, fellow travelers, espionage agents, party-line adherents and unwitting dupes" during the last seventeen years.

McCarthy offered him the $11,000-a-year job on his committee almost simultaneously with the publication of the attack on the Protestant clergy.

The attack by Matthews brought a swift rebuttal from the three Democratic members of the committee — McClellan, Stuart Symington of Missouri, and Henry M. Jackson of Washington and what amounted to a demand for Matthews' ouster.

Jointly, McClellan, Symington, and Jackson called the Matthews article a "shocking and unwarrantable attack against the American clergy" which, they said, "cannot be supported by the facts." They requested a committee meeting to call for "appropriate action."

Their attack on Matthews was joined by the leaders of Southern conservatives. Democratic Senator Byrd of Virginia, who issued a statement declaring that Matthews "should give names and facts to sustain his charge or stand convicted as a cheap demagogue willing to blacken the character of his fellow Americans for his own notoriety and personal gain."

McCarthy defended his aide, calling him "an outstanding authority" on subversion who had been a "constant consultant to his "one-man" rule, with the repeal of the Committee regulation allowing him to hire and fire employes, did the three Democrats return.

Such was the Matthews epoch in Washington. Since then, he has taken his desk set inscribed with the words, "To J. B. Matthews, a Star-Spangled American from one of his pupils and admirers, Joe McCarthy" to New York where he is associated with the Hearst publications and still writes occasional articles, such as the one recently quoted by Governor Faubus.

About three months after his forced resignation from the McCarthy Committee, Matthews made a conspicuous appearance in Arkansas. Addressing a Freedom Forum session at Harding College of Searcy October 23, 1953, Matthews discussed in more qualified terms his charges against the Protestant clergy and contended that his article and earlier remarks on the subject had been exaggerated by the press.

Expanding into other fields, Matthews said he had information that American aircraft parts were being smuggled to Russia. He quoted a "high undisclosed source" as saying a Russian MIG airplane surrendered by a North Korean pilot to United Nations Forces was made "largely of American parts." Military leaders "didn't dare bring the plane to this country" because they were afraid to let the American people know" this secret, he added.

The Air Force immediately denied Matthews' charge. Within weeks the plane had been brought to the United States and put on public display at Air Force bases throughout the country.

MATTHEWS AND THE SRC

The Arkansas Legislative Council, concluding that a Communist plot is substantially responsible for the Little Rock desegregation crisis, has aired some charges so grossly unjust as to recall the McCarthyist nightmare.

There was J. B. Matthews, himself a former Communist-front leader, declaring that the Southern Regional Council had Red sympathizers in its ranks.

Just 20 years ago, Mr. Matthews was accusing Shirley Temple of aiding the Bolsheviks. The former chief counsel of the Dies Committee is primarily remembered, however, for his July 1953 article in The American Mercury labeling "at least 7,000 Protestant clergrymen" as "party members, fellow travelers, espionage agents, party line adherents and unwilling dupes." The protest, from President Eisenhower and others, was so strong that Sen. Joe McCarthy, who by then had carried his campaign of vilification directly to the White House, was forced to fire Matthews, whom he had just hired as executive director of his subcommittee.

In the Little Rock hearings, other familiar names in the business of smear were trotted out. The Southern Regional Council was a frequent target, though no one dared go so far as to impugn its motives as a whole.

The SRC, as is well known, is made up of foremost Southern educators, clergymen, business, labor and professional leaders. A discussion and research group, it was organized in 1943, as a result of Negro leaders' efforts to see that the "separate but equal" doctrine in Southern education be made a reality. It grew also out of the Commission on Interracial Cooperation, founded in 1919 by leading churchmen.

Since then it has favored gradual compliance with the Supreme Court's decision, but even so staunchly segregationist a newspaper as the Richmond Times-Dispatch recently said: "The Southern Regional Council was established because of a sincere desire on the part of white and Negro leaders in the South to eliminate many of the disabilities and discriminations from which Negroes were suffering."

Now the Arkansas Legislative Council, with never a peep about the role of its own Gov. Faubus, concludes on the word of former Communists, who are professional name callers, and others, most of them from out of the region, that little more than a Red plot is the cause of their difficulties.

Car Runs Into Yard, Kills Young Mother

SEARCH ENDS—Mrs. Sharon Lee Riggle, 20, of Nappanse, Ind., clasps 3-year-old daughter Susan Lee after 4-month search. Susan was taken by father, Richard, 23, after couple separated in Salt Lake City last Sept. 22. Others Barely Escape

A pretty young mother of three children was killed almost instantly late yesterday when she was hit by a wildly careening car which smashed into her as she stepped from her Buffat Mill Road home to go to the mail box in her yard.

Mrs. Richard A. (Betty) Ingram was rushed to St. Mary's Hospital where her husband is employed as a printer. She was pronounced dead on arrival.

Witnesses to the tragedy said a 15-year-old driver apparently lost control of his car and narrowly averted striking several pedestrians and an oncoming car before leaving the road and crashing through a fence.

Mrs. Ingram had gone to the mail box to pick up a newspaper at the time of the accident.

She was the mother of daughters aged 6, 4 and 2½.

The accident occurred just outside the city limits. Driver of the car was not immediately identified but he was taken to St. Mary's Hospital for treatment of undetermined injuries.

Governor Promises To Name Group To Study Teacher Pay

NASHVILLE, Feb. 2 (AP)—Gov. Buford Ellington said today he will appoint a special committee to seek out a long range solution to the recurring demands by school teachers for higher pay.

He rejected appeals, chiefly from East Tennessee teachers, that the salary provisions of the General Education Bill be revised upward.

"The problem obviously cannot be solved by a biennial battle in the General Assembly," the governor said as teachers from two East state counties converged on the capitol to lobby for more money.

Parent-teacher representatives from six upper East Tennessee counties, meanwhile, adopted a resolution urging the General Assembly to approve the full $850 biennial raise sought by the

Seven Of State's Schools Open Doors To Negro Students

By DOUGLAS B. CORNELL

RICHMOND, Va., Feb. 2 (AP)—Racial integration imposed by federal courts came today to unwilling Virginia and seven of her public schools.

A few Negroes walked in unhindered. A few white pupils walked out rather than accept them.

Police stood guard, alert but unneeded. This historic shift took place without incident or disorder.

Yet it was with grimness and discontent that the Old Dominion watched the ancient ramparts of segregation start tumbling down in a state which once paced the Southland in massive resistance to the mixing of races in the schools.

Through the gaps 17 Negro youngsters filed into six junior and senior high schools in Norfolk, the state's largest city. Another four entered Stratford Junior High in Arlington County, a prosperous suburb of Washington.

So for the first time in Virginia's history, Negroes and whites began attending public schools together, limited through the scale of integration might be at the outset.

Here in this capital of the Confederacy during a war fought over another racial issue, the legislature rang out with continued cries of segregationists.

"This," said Del Sam E. Pope, "is one of the blackest days Virginia has faced since reconstruction."

"The rape of our constitutional rights is an accomplished fact," said Sen. Mills E. Godwin," also from the Southside, the area most heavily populated with Negroes.

FBI Probes Defeat Of Rep. Hays

WASHINGTON, Feb. 2 (AP)—FBI agents are investigating the defeat of veteran Rep. Brooks Hays by write-in candidate Dale Alford in Arkansas last November, the Justice Department said today.

The inquiry was ordered the department said, "as a result of complaints received by its Civil Rights Division."

The injury, officials said, is aimed at determining if the outcome of the election involved any violations of the federal Corrupt Practices Act.

They declined to supply details. But when asked if the investigation turned on the alleged use of an anonymous poster, the officials said this was not the matter being looked into.

Alford, an avowed segregationist running as an independent, defeated Hays, a Democrat, by 1200 votes principally cast for Alford by printed gummed stickers which were attached to the ballot. Hays' defeat was associated with his reputation as "a moderate" in relation to public school integration.

Space Chief Asks Time, Work, Money

WASHINGTON, Feb. 2 (AP)—Civilian space chief T. Keith Glennan said today it may be three years or more before the United States can match Russia in rocket engine power.

But Glennan and Secretary of Defense Neil McElroy defended President Eisenhower's budget against Democratic charges of penny-pinching.

Glennan and McElroy testified just about simultaneously at separate house inquiries into how the United States is faring in space and defense.

A (Senate) hearing last week brought Democratic challenge to Eisenhower's contention that his $41,000,000,000 defense program provides for balanced strikeback power and speedy development of advanced missiles.

McElroy told the House Armed Services Committee "there is nothing under the rug" in Eisenhower's budget, that US defense is "prepared to meet the threat it faces today," and no further large manpower cuts are slated for the armed services.

He also assured Committee Chairman Carl Vinson (D-Ga.) that Eisenhower's new budget request, which seeks money for items cutting across service lines, will not change the actual method of appropriating funds to the separate services.

And the Pentagon boss said the first few Atlas intercontinental ballistic missiles will be

Dulles Sees Fulbright, Plans Trip

WASHINGTON, Feb. 2 (AP) — Secretary of State Dulles sought today to strengthen his congressional flank on the German issue before flying off to critical talks in Europe.

On the eve of his departure, Dulles arranged a 6 p.m. EST meeting at his home with Sen. J. William Fulbright (D-Ark), soon to become chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee.

The obvious intent was to give Fulbright the State Department picture of the situation, with a view to getting his approval.

Tomorrow at 3 p.m. Dulles plans to be airborne for London. Stops at Paris and Bonn are scheduled in the week or so thereafter.

While he is gone, high ranking US, British, French and West German representatives will be meeting at the State Department. Their major task is to draft a reply to the Soviet note of Jan. 10 which proposed a 28-nation conference on a German peace treaty.

The substance of that reply is a foregone conclusion. Basically, the answer is no. The Western Allies prefer, as Dulles repeated at his news conference last Tuesday, to hold a big four foreign minister meeting on the whole German issue sometime this spring.

But the "working group" at the State Department, meeting for the first time Wednesday must do the actual drafting of the west's formal reply.

While this middle level discussion is going on, Dulles will be conferring at the top. His plans are to talk with Prime Minister Harold MacMillan and Foreign Minister Selwyn Lloyd at London, President Charles De Gaulle and Foreign Minister Sheriff John Cloyd identified the prisoner as Matthew Hale, a Negro, who was being held on an armed robbery charge.

Sheriff Cloyd said Miller entered Hale's cell this morning and was grabbed by the prisoner, who held a knife at the assistant jailer's back while he took Miller's keys, then fled from the jail.

Hale had three visitors at the jail yesterday, two of them women, according to Sheriff Cloyd, who said he believes one of the visitors brought the knife to the prisoner.

Hale recently complete a penitentiary sentence after being convicted of murder, and had been free only a month when he was arrested and charged with armed robbery, the sheriff reported. The robbery occurred at a Johnson City grocery store, where an employe was threatened with a knife, Sheriff Cloyd said.

Ground Hog Sees Shadow--'Bad' Weather Coming

Parents Urged To Fight For Better Education

By FRANK CAREY
Associated Press Science Writer

WASHINGTON, Feb. 2 (AP) — American parents can help strengthen their country for the space ages if they'll "get up on their hind legs and shout" for better education.

That's a conclusion reached by one of the nation's finest minds, Dr. Alan T. Waterman, director of the National Science Foundation.

It is his job to promote much of the basic scientific research needed if the United States is to maintain world leadership in science generally.

One of the needs he sees is a lot of money. Another is greater acceptance of the fact that basic research is the starting point of all our technology, be it automobiles or guided missiles, warships or washing machines.

"We need better education all along the line, especially in science," says Waterman. "We need to identify talents. We need better teachers. We need opportunities for young people after they are educated."

He added, in an interview:

"Our first line of defense has to be that route. Then, we have the training ground for the scientists and engineers the government needs.

"If we could persuade the parents of the country that these things should be done, then they'd be more receptive if federal and state governments come up with educational programs.

'If the parents would get up on year and an additional $100 the second year.

The Tennessee Education Assn., which represents the teachers in legislative matters, announced last week it would not attempt to amend the bill. The TEA originally had proposed the $850 figure.

Teachers from Carter and Johnson Counties, dissatisfied with the decision of the TEA's administrative council, organized automobile caravans to Nashville. They intend to buttonhole legislators and voice their demands for higher pay at a joint meeting of the House and Senate Committees tomorrow afternoon.

Ellington said the citizens committee, which he expects to name soon, will be made up 'of outstanding citizens in various fields—both laymen and educators."

"This committee will be specifically instructed to determine whether there ought to be a constitutional amendment to give our schools greater financial support," the governor said. The group's recommendations, Ellington added, will be made in time

Police Officer's Widow Sued Over Crash Death

Jean Crane, daughter of Mrs. Eva Crane, police department clerk killed in an automobile accident last March 29, yesterday brought suit for $50,000 in Circuit Court against Mrs. Robert H. Jenkins Sr., widow of the police sergeant who died in the same wreck.

Jenkins, 48, and Mrs. Crane, 49, were killed when a car driven by Jenkins plunged from the highway while rounding a curve in the 3100 block of Kingston Pike and crashed into a utility polie.

The fatal accident occurred at 1:30 a.m. How Sergeant Jenkins and Mrs. Crane, widow of F. H. Crane, a city fireman, happened to be in the car together was never determined.

Jenkins told superiors he was ill between 7 and 8 p.m., went to his home, 2425 McCalla Avenue, for supper and did not return to the station. Mrs. Crane was off duty about 11 p.m.

There was some speculation that Jenkins might have suffered a heart attack, but the family declined an autopsy.

Miss Crane sued as administratrix for her mother's estate and named Mrs. Jenkins defendant as administratrix for her husband's estate. The suit charged negligent and reckless driving by Jenkins was responsible for Mrs. Crane's death.

Vodka, Whisky Difference Nill, Judge Decides

After 10 days of study, acting City Judge H. O. Pollard apparently concluded there is no legal difference between vodka and whisky, and fined an East Oklahoma woman $25 for possessing one-half pint of vodka.

Judge Pollard fined Naomi Allen, 204 East Oklahoma, Avenue, yesterday in city court, 10 days after he passed judgment on the case Jan. 23 when Mrs. Allen's attorney claimed "Whisky and vodka are as different as the state of Kentucky and Russia."

The defense attorney, T. Edward Cole, moved for dismissal of the possessing whisky charge, because the warrant charged Mrs. Allen with possessing "intoxicating whisky," not vodka. The charges grew out of a raid on Mrs. Allen's house Nov. 19.

Another possessing whisky case against Mrs. Allen was dismissed in court when officers failed to produce the search warrant. Similarly, Amos Carl Haney, 204 Oklahoma Avenue, went free on possessing whisky charges arising out of the same Nov. 19 raid, when officers failed to find his warrant.

Freezing Rain, Snow Move East

DALLAS, Tex., Feb. 2 (AP) — Snow and freezing rain moved from Colorado and New Mexico toward Alabama today, leaving at least 14 dead in Texas from weather-caused accidents.

The Weather Bureau issued a special warning of freezing rain or snow in parts of Arkansas, Louisiana, Mississippi and on into extreme Northern Alabama. Parts of Texas, Oklahoma, Colorado and New Mexico felt the hazardous weather earlier.

The ice conditions extended South into Central Texas, almost to Austin.

Scores of Texas schools closed because slick highways and streets created hazards for children seeking to attend classes.

Almost all Southwestern highways were open but many were termed hazardous by official sources.

Except for mountain areas, heaviest overnight snow reported was more than 8 inches at Gage, Okla., near the Texas border. Follett, in the Texas Panhandle, reported 6 inches.

Thirty inches of new snow fell atop Wolf Creek Pass in Southwest Colorado during the weekend, bringing the total on the ground three to 4 feet. The mountain town of Fraser, 60 miles

Telephone Caller Threatens Bomb; YHS Emptied

The student body of Young High School was evacuated yesterday afternoon after an anonymous telephone caller told an office assistant, "there is a bomb in one of your lockers."

Hicks said the school was evacuated within 25 seconds, using the regular fire alarm alert.

Senate Asked To Abolish South's Hold

WASHINGTON, Feb. 2 (AP)—Sen. William Proxmire (D-Wis) called on the Senate today to abolish the seniority tradition he said gives the South domination of committee chairmanships.

Although Proxmire conceded his proposal is likely to be shunted aside, he urged in a prepared speech that the Senate adopt a rule under which no more than half of the chairmen of 15 major committees could come from the same section of the country.

Proxmire said he would object when an order is brought up in the senate to name Sen. J. William Fulbright (D-Ark) as chairman of the Foreign Relations Committee and Sen. A. Willis Robertson (D-Va) as head of the Banking Committee.

Fulbright will vacate the banking post to take over the foreign relations job from which Sen. Theodore Francis Green (D-RI) resigned last week. Democratic leader Lyndon B. Johnson of Texas said the Senate will be asked next week to make this transfer official.

In length of Senate service, Fulbright ranks next to Green among Democrats on the Foreign Relations Committee. He has been a senator since 1945. Robertson has been in the Senate since 1946.

US Communists Jailed, American Tells Reds

MOSCOW, Feb. 2 (AP)—James E. Jackson Jr., the US Communist party's secretary for Negro and southern affairs, said today many Communists are in jails of the United States.

But for that, he told the Soviet Communist Party's 21st Congress, there would be a bigger American representation in Moscow for sessions of the Congress.

Jackson praised Premier Khrushchev's seven-year plan in an address to the Congress. He drew applause by saying in Russian:

"Long live peace, long live Communism."

These were the concluding words of a message to the Congress from the US party's national committee.

Jackson told the gathering:

"If President Eisenhower could say, as Khrushchev did in his report (on Russia), that in the United States there is not a single political prisoner, then many leaders of the Communist and workers movement in the United States would be able to be present here and to greet the delegates of the Congress."

Jackson, 43, of Brooklyn, was among six Communist leaders who won reversal last Aug. 4 of convictions under the Smith Act of conspiring to teach and advocate the forcible overthrow of the US government. A New York federal appeals court held there was no proof that they taught revolutionary deeds—beyond mere theory. The reversal nullified prison sentences of from one to five years.)

The Communist party in the United States, Jackson said, will find in Khrushchev's appeal for world peace a great source of inspiration and moral support.

He said US Communists will not allow "imperialist merchants of death" to plunge the United States into a war whose only outcome would be national disaster."

Defeat Of Rep. Hays

WASHINGTON, Feb. 2 (AP)—FBI agents are investigating the defeat of veteran Rep. Brooks Hays by write-in candidate Dale Alford in Arkansas last November, the Justice Department said today.

The inquiry was ordered the department said, "as a result of complaints received by its Civil Rights Division."

The injury, officials said, is aimed at determining if the outcome of the election involved any violations of the federal Corrupt Practices Act.

They declined to supply details. But when asked if the investigation turned on the alleged use of an anonymous poster, the officials said this was not the matter being looked into.

Alford, an avowed segregationist running as an independent, defeated Hays, a Democrat, by 1200 votes principally cast for Alford by printed gummed stickers which were attached to the ballot. Hays' defeat was associated with his reputation as "a moderate" in relation to public school integration.

The house by a voice vote seated Alford on Jan. 7 after a special election's committee recommended 3-2 that he be denied the oath pending further inquiry. He was accepted by the Democrats as one of their number after a question had been raised on this point.

The committee heard complaints in December by John F. Wells, Little Rock weekly newspaper publisher, and others that Arkansas Gov. Orval Faubus and his supporters had engaged in a conspiracy to unseat Hays.

Wells contended that "many irregularities," figured in the Fifth District election and that the write-in stickers in some cases were given to voters along with their ballots.

The committee also heard allegations that too many votes had been counted at some polling places.

As is customary, the Justice Department declined to identify the source of the complaints which put the FBI into the case.

Integration Figure Draws Prison Term

ATLANTA, Feb. 2 (AP) — Carl Braden, Louisville, Ky., integration advocate, was sentenced today to 12 months for contempt of Congress.

The contempt charge was made after Braden refused to answer questions of a House Un-American Activities subcommittee here last July. Braden was convicted in US District Court here Jan. 21.

Federal Judge Boyd Sloan set Braden's bond at $1000 pending a motion by his attorney for a new trial.

Frank Wilkinson of Los Angeles, was given a similar sentence for contempt of the committee. He is secretary of the Citizens Committee to Preserve American Freedom.

Braden is field secretary for the Southern Conference Educational Fund. He accused the committee of using its position to harass people working for integration.

PROCEEDINGS AND DEBATES OF THE 86th CONGRESS, FIRST SESSION

EXTENSION OF REMARKS

OF

HON. RICHARD BOLLING

OF MISSOURI

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Monday, March 2, 1959

Mr. BOLLING. Mr. Speaker, a sense of fairness impels me to insert the following editorials from two respected southern papers. These editorials from the Richmond Times-Dispatch and the Chattanooga Times discuss certain attacks on the good name of the Southern Regional Council and deserve the careful attention of every fairminded citizen regardless of his views:

[From the Richmond Times-Dispatch, Aug. 21, 1958]

A RACE AGENCY AND THE FACTS

Inaccurate statements as to its origins of the Southern Regional Council of Atlanta appeared recently in the Times-Dispatch, and should be corrected. They appeared—inadvertently, we are sure—in one of the series of articles by Edward B. Simmons, of the New Bedford (Mass.) Standard-Times, concerning Communist efforts to incite racial strife in the United States.

Mr. Simmons stated in the article appearing in our paper on August 5 that the Southern Regional Council, established in Atlanta in 1944, was an "offshoot of the old Southern Conference for Human Welfare, which was dissolved in 1948 after twice being described by the Federal Government as Communist front." He also said: "The Communist Daily Worker openly boasted that James E. Jackson, chief of the southern branch of the U S. Communist Party, was a cofounder of the regional council."

Taking these two charges in order, the Southern Regional Council was not an offshoot of the Southern Conference for Human Welfare. It was established in response to an appeal from respected southern Negro leaders, who met at Durham, N.C., in October 1942, on the call of Dr. Gordon B. Hancock, of the Virginia Union faculty here, and Dr. P. B. Young, of Norfolk, publisher of the Norfolk Journal and Guide. These Negro leaders did not ask for the elimination of segregation in the schools or anywhere else; they asked that "separate but equal" be made a reality.

Responding to their appeal, a group of white leaders met in Atlanta in the spring of 1943, and expressed a desire to cooperate. Out of this grew the Southern Regional Council. The council was the successor to the Commission on Interracial Cooperation, founded in 1919 by leading churchmen. To repeat, it not only was no offshoot of the Southern Conference for Human Welfare; it was criticized in some quarters because it was more conservative than that organization and suspected of being in competition with it.

We must remember, too, that when the Southern Conference for Human Welfare was established in 1938, it was not suspected of having any Communist connections, and many well intentioned and patriotic southerners participated in its early meetings. A number of these later joined the Southern Regional Council when they discovered the true purposes of the Conference for Human Welfare.

As to the allegation of the Communist Daily Worker that James E. Jackson, chief of the southern branch of the U.S. Communist Party, was a cofounder of the Southern Regional Council, there is nothing to support this.

A James E. Jackson is listed as having attended the Durham meeting of Negro leaders in October 1942, but is not mentioned by the Norfolk Journal and Guide as having been on the committee which drew up the statement then issued. Jackson did not participate in the meetings of white and Negro leaders in 1943 and 1944 which led to the establishment of the Southern Regional Council, and he was not at any time an officer, director, or member of that agency. The Daily Worker's statement that he was a founder is as unreliable and inaccurate as nearly everything else in that Communist sheet.

The late Dr. Howard W. Odum, noted and respected member of the University of North Carolina faculty, was the first president of the council. He was succeeded in 1945 by Paul D. Williams, prominent Catholic layman of Richmond and cofounder of the Catholic Committee of the South, who served until 1951. Mr. Williams was succeeded in that year by Marion A. Wright, South Carolina attorney, former chairman of the South Carolina Library Board and past president of the University of South Carolina Alumni Association.

It should be emphasized that SRC worked within the framework of "separate but equal" for 7 years, and did not announce for integration until 1951.

While we disagree strongly and completely with its present position on this issue, we feel obligated to point out, in fairness, that it was in no sense Communist in its origins. The Southern Regional Council was established because of a sincere desire on the part of white and Negro leaders in the South to eliminate many of the disabilities and discriminations from which Negroes were suffering.

It was hoped that if these could be substantially lessened, the colored South would not look to the colored North for leadership. Insufficient progress was made, unfortunately, and the NAACP moved in and launched its drive for the complete elimination of segregation—sooner than it probably would have done if SRC's accomplishments had been larger.

That is where we stand today.

[From the Chattanoga (Tenn.) Times, Dec. 20, 1958]

MATTHEWS AND THE SRC

The Arkansas Legislative Council, concluding that a Communist plot is substantially responsible for the Little Rock desegregation crisis, has aired some charges so grossly unjust as to recall the McCarthyist nightmare.

There was J. B. Matthews, himself a former Communist-front leader, declaring that the Southern Regional Council had Red sympathizers in its ranks.

Just 20 years ago, Mr. Matthews was accusing Shirley Temple of aiding the Bolsheviks. The former chief counsel of the Dies committee is primarily remembered, however, for his July 1953 article in the American Mercury labeling "at least 7,000 Protestant clergymen" as "party members, fellow travelers, espionage agents, partyline adherents, and unwilling dupes." The protest, from President Eisenhower and others, was so strong that Senator Joe McCarthy, who by then had carried his campaign of vilification directly to the White House, was forced to fire Mathews, whom he had just hired as executive director of his subcommittee.

In the Little Rock hearings, other familiar names in the business of smear were trotted out. The Southern Regional Council was a frequent target, though no one dared go so far as to impugn its motives as a whole.

The SRC, as is well known, is made up of foremost southern educators, clergymen, business, labor, and professional leaders. A discussion and research group, it was organized in 1943, as a result of Negro leaders' efforts to see that the "separate but equal" doctrine in southern education be made a reality. It grew also out of the Commission on Interracial Cooperation, founded in 1919 by leading churchmen.

Since then it has favored gradual compliance with the Supreme Court's decision, but even so staunchly segregationist a newspaper as the Richmond Times-Dispatch recently said: "The Southern Regional Council was established because of a sincere desire on the part of white and Negro leaders in the South to eliminate many of the disabilities and discriminations from which Negroes were suffering."

Now the Arkansas Legislative Council, with never a peep about the role of its own Governor Faubus, concludes on the word of former Communists, who are professional name-callers, and others, most of them from out of the region, that little more than a Red plot is the cause of their difficulties.

Gentlemen:

It is understood indirectly that the Southern Regional Council is a member of a group established some two and one half years ago under the name of Consultative Committee on Desegregation, or CCD.

In what purports to be the minutes of the Mass Media Committee of CCD held in New York Wednesday February 4, 1959, it is reported that the Southern Regional Council is reprinting the Arkansas Gazette report on the effect of the desegregation controversy on economic conditions in Arkansas and that copies will be sent to all CCD agencies.

I would very much like to see a copy of this report. If it is to be for sale will you please advise prices both of individual and in bulk.

It is understood that CCD is now composed of some 40 organizations. It will be appreciated if you can furnish me with the names and addresses of the organizations that are members.

Yours very truly,

S. L. Gentry

—Letter To The Editor—

Mr. Virginius Dabney, Editor
The Richmond Times Dispatch
Richmond, Virginia

Dear Mr. Dabney:

For convenience, there is attached an editorial from a recent issue of the Times Dispatch, said to be by you, which was reprinted in the Sumter Daily Item September 24th.

The stated purpose of this editorial is to correct two alledged errors with respect to the origin and founders of the Southern Regional Council, which appeared in a recent series of articles reprinted in the Times Dispatch, namely (1) the Southern Regional Council is an off-shoot of the now defunct Southern Conference for Human Welfare and, (2) one of the founders was a James E. Jackson cited as a communist.

I fear that by the omission of some pertinent facts in your commendable effort to be fair to the Southern Regional Council that you have inadvertently attributed to that organization respectability to a degree to which it is not entitled.

The facts, as I understand them to be, are as follows:

The effectiveness of the Southern Conference for Human Welfare was practicaly at an end — due to exposures being made by the House Un-American Activities Committee — when the meeting to which you refer was held in Durham, N. C. during October 1942. The Southern Regional Council was born at that meeting because of what its founders conceived to be the necessity for an organization to continue striving to attain the purposes and goals of the then discredited Southern Conference for Human Welfare but which would avoid its publicly exposed excesses. This problem was solved by the new organization by consolidating with the Commission on Interracial Relations, not then exposed or cited as a Communist front, and ostensibly adopting its purposes and goals.

Anyone who studies the pattern of subversive organizations in this nation over the past three decades will find that our nation is afflicted with more than its fair share of easily duped "do-gooders" whose favorite habitat is radical organizations with noble sounding names and purposes until exposure begins when they begin to flee to the protection of some newly formed organization usually in the same field. This is exactly the pattern followed by the workers in the Southern Conference for Human Welfare when they fled to the newly formed Southern Regional Council. Some are generous enough to credit these easily duped "do-gooders" with a degree of patriotism and good intentions. Frankly, I possess no such generosity.

Today, about the only difference between the now defunct Southern Conference for Human Welfare and the present Southern Regional Conference is that the former was financed by the Robert Marshall Foundation, a principal source of Communist front funds in the nation, while the present Southern Regional Council is financed by the almost equally pinkish Fund for the Republic.

This brief summary, I believe, represents the understanding generally of the people in the South with respect to the origin and connections of the Southern Regional Council. If incorrect, it should be corrected from some authentic and reliable source. We, of course, do not wish to be unfair to the Southern Regional Council or to any other organization. However, we should be very careful, in the present state of our affairs, not to add in any degree respectability to any organization that is a canker in the bowels not only of the South but of the nation as well.

Sincerely yours,
S. L. GENTRY

Mr. H. D. Osteen, Editor
The Sumter Daily Item
Dear Sir:

In THE SUMTER DAILY ITEM of October 3, you ran a copy of a letter written by S. L. Gentry and addressed to Virginius Dabney, Editor, THE RICHMOND TIMES-DISPATCH, Richmond, Virginia, in which Mr. Gentry questions Mr. Dabney's opinion of the nature of the Southern Regional Council and suggests as his own opinion that the Council is communist tainted.

Since Mr. Gentry expressed the desire to be fair to the Southern Regional Council, I am somewhat surprised that he hasn't given the same publicity to Mr. Dabney's reply as he did to his own letter to Mr. Dabney. For in that reply — which I am attaching to this letter — Mr. Dabney stood by his earlier stand that the Council was a solid American organization, with whose stand on the segregation issue he however disagreed.

As president of the Southern Regional Council I may be permitted to point out that Mr. Dabney is in slight error in stating that the Council is financed by the Fund for the Republic; this might imply that the Council is entirely supported by the Fund. The Council has indeed been heavily supported by the Fund, especially in the past; but anyone who concludes that the Council is entirely supported by the Fund sadly underestimates the importance of the Council.

But this is a detail. I think the main issue is whether your readers wish to accept, in the matter of the Council's relation to communism, the opinion of Virginius Dabney, pro-segregationist editor of the RICHMOND TIMES - DISPATCH and one of the founders of the Council, or of Mr. S. L. Gentry.

Respectfully,
J. M. DABBS.

Dear Mr. Gentry:

I have your letter concerning the editorial republished in the Sumter, S. C., Item from the Richmond Times-Dispatch.

No one has convinced me that any of the statements in that editorial are inaccurate, and few have tried to do so. I stand by the statements contained therein.

I am in complete disagreement with the present pro-integrationist stand of the Southern Regional Council, and am entirely familiar with that stand, as well as with the fact that the organization is financed by the Fund for the Republic. None of which alters the facts as to the organization's establishment and the things for which it stood from 1944 to 1951.

Sincerely yours,
VIRGINIUS DABNEY.

McCarthyism under the Magnolias

by WILMA DYKEMAN & JAMES STOKELY

"AT A TIME when the South might well use a renewed vision of Robert E. Lee's virtue or Andy Jackson's vigor," a young Southern liberal said recently, "it seems a shame that we should choose to start reviving the spirit of Joe McCarthy."

An embattled social scientist in Atlanta summed up the situation during a conversation: "One trouble outsiders have in understanding our present difficulties is the culture-lag in the South. McCarthy never caught on down here back in his heyday, but as the last-ditch fight for segregation grows more desperate, all his ugly techniques are revived. At the end of the decade we're in the throes of an experience the rest of the country put behind it in the early Fifties."

One recent example came, perhaps with some appropriateness, in the legislative halls of the nation's capital. When Representative Dale Alford, newly elected Congressman from Arkansas, presented his maiden speech in the House in February, the proposed subject of his discourse was only slightly less sensational than the whirlwind eight-day paste-in campaign which had won him victory over veteran Representative Brooks Hays in last November's election.

Voicing alarm "at the complacency of some officials toward the menace of the Communist conspiracy . . . to make this great nation of ours part of a one-world government, operated from Moscow," Representative Alford then announced he would reveal the close alliance between Communism and "racial agitation" in the South.

The speech was founded largely on intricate webs of association and denunciations of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, the bi-racial Southern Regional Council, "renegade journalist" Harry Ashmore, "the Warren-Myrdal Supreme Court," and several less prominent individuals and groups. Its "revelations" were often without relevance.

Perhaps the whole performance of equating a controversial issue with Communism and then identifying as fellow travelers those people interested in confronting the issue seems anachronistic to Americans outside the South, where McCarthyism is only a bitter memory. But to many people in the South it is a significant thermometer reflecting the epidemic already in their midst, and a barometer suggesting the proportions of attacks yet to come.

As McCarthyism moves South under the magnolias, most of those against whom the search for subversives appears to be directed are not political Communists as much as racial non-conformists, people who seek a reasonable way of abiding by the Supreme Court ruling on desegregation of the public schools, while those who would subvert the law by defiance and maneuver designate themeselves the super-patriots and inquisitors. By their words the investigators are seeking out Southerners "soft on Communism;" by their acts they are singling out Southerners "soft on segregation."

Of course, the very fact that they feel this necessary indicates the absence of a monolithic South, and reveals that there are many Southerners who abhor the present dilemma and are willing to work for a solution. But the nature of this crisis, with its pull from the past and its emotional undertow, makes it especially susceptible to McCarthyism. In a time of tremendous change at the regional level (involving integration), and deep apprehension at the national level (involving Communism), where these regional racial tensions coincide with our national survival fears, there is created a no-man's land of uncertainty and suspicion. In such an atmosphere, threats and innuendo serve well to intimidate and immobilize creative thought and action on controversial problems.

In October, 1954, Circuit Court Judge Tom P. Brady of Mississippi made an address to the Indianola Citizens' Council. The judge gave a lengthy historical picture of the rise of the vertebrates, the various migrations, nations, and wars of mankind, and such "facts" of eugenics and biology as that "the Negro's brain pan seals and hardens quicker than the white man's." Seeking to explain how the Supreme Court had overlooked all this history and biology in its recent decisions, he cited the influence of the NAACP and the 87 "Communist-front organizations" behind it.

A year later the attempt to identify black leadership and the red cause received added impetus from Attorney General Eugene Cook of Georgia. In a talk entitled "The Ugly Truth about the NAACP," which was given saturation distribution as a printed pamphlet throughout the South, Cook sought to prove that through affiliations of some of its officers with other organizations, some of which were listed in the files of the House Committee on Un-American Activities, and because the Communist Party had an identical stated aim of "full racial equality," the NAACP had "allowed itself to become part and parcel of the Communist conspiracy to overthrow the democratic governments of this nation and its sovereign states."

He closed with a warning which was both the most explicit and implicit of any as to what "do-gooder" community leaders might expect if they continued to participate in interracial groups. "Investigations currently are being made . . . the results of which will greatly embarrass those good citizens who unwittingly have become involved in their activities. I urge all such persons to take immediate steps to disassociate themselves from these groups . . . before they, their friends, and their congregations are exposed to the anguish and embarrassment which exposure of these groups will necessarily mean."

Such speeches, widely disseminated throughout the South by the segregationist Citizens' Councils, were only the prelude. In March, 1957, a special Louisiana state legislative committee (sometimes called the "watchdog" committee on segregation) held a three-day hearing in Baton Rouge to find "the causes of racial unrest in the South." As the testimony unfolded, however, it seemed that these causes had already been determined. The committee, headed by state Senator William Rainach, did not appear to seek from its six "cooperative" witnesses information as much as confirmation.

The Rainach Committee hearing marked the first appearance on the Southern scene of some of the old pros of the investigative road shows, refurbished now to play the Southern circuit. Manning Johnson, a Negro from New York and self-confessed former Communist, was the star. In 1954 Johnson was the principal denouncer in the loyalty investigation of United Nations Undersecretary Ralph J. Bunche. His accusations were discredited. He himself testified before the Subversive Activities Control Board that he believed "some things are more important than the truth," and in 1956 the Board expunged from the record of certain of its hearings what it called "tainted" testimony given by Harvey Matusow, the late Paul Crouch, and Manning Johnson.

Yet Johnson, who was reported to have earned up to $9,096 over a two-year period as a professional former Communist witness, appeared in Louisiana to castigate Judge William Hastie, Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt ("somebody should muzzle her and put her in a cage"), Martin Luther King, Jr. ("I think Reverend King could stand a thorough investigation"), the respected Southern Regional Council, and the Mississippi Council on Human Relations.

It was in testimony concerning these two organizations that Johnson's and the committee's irresponsibility became most evident. Having falsely asserted that the Southern Regional Council was founded by a Communist, Johnson compounded falsehood with guilt-by-association and reached from Louisiana over into Mississippi to discuss the Mississippi Council on Human Relations. He had no startling "revelations" about this state group but did take time to read into the record the names and addresses of the officers of the biracial organization.

The reason for publicizing these names and addresses was not made clear, but results came promptly. One board member named, along with the Catholic Bishop of Mississippi and other eminent clergymen, was the wife of a well-known Greenwood, Mississippi, cotton dealer. Six days after Johnson's testimony the dining room of their home was ripped by a bullet blast. A reporter later concluded, "It was not intended to kill but just to frighten."

These public proceedings did not nail down any specific Communist individual or group against which Louisiana and the federal government could move to lessen racial difficulties in the South. Assessments of guilt were conveniently general, emphasizing "racial nationalism," NAACP "dictation" to the Supreme Court and the President, and destruction of individual liberty by the "Communist timetable of world conquest."

Several subsequent investigations have arrived at similar conclusions. Hard on the heels of the disastrous developments in Little Rock, in October, 1957, the Senate Internal Security Subcommittee, headed by Senator James O. Eastland of Mississippi, moved into Memphis to study "Communism in the Mid-South." At the end of the two-day hearing, with 14 witnesses, seven had invoked the Fifth Amendment and one, a Little Rock housewife who had made news earlier that autumn by comforting one of the Negro girls in the school crisis, had been accused of affiliation with the Communist Party in 1945. The statement of conclusions, however, was still general: "Communist activity in the Mid-South is highly conspiratorial, deeply cloaked in secrecy." Without specific elaboration these deductions left room for intimidation, without risk of libel, when they asserted that the targets of the Red network were churches, parent-teacher associations, colleges, high schools, and labor organizations.

Three months later, in February, 1958, an investigation of racial agitation in Florida was undertaken by a joint legislative committee in Tallahassee. Senator C. E. Johnson, sponsor of segregation bills at two previous legislative sessions, was chairman. The star witness on this occasion was J. B. Matthews.

Billed as a one-time investigator for the late Senator McCarthy's Committee, it was not pointed out that Matthews had lasted as staff director for McCarthy less than a month. Although he asserted flatly that "Communists or Communist influence were directly involved in every major race incident of the past four years since the Supreme Court 'legislated' on the subject of integration," reports were forced to state that Matthews' further testimony was "general in nature."

The Tampa Tribune suggested that the committee's sessions had been "largely devoted to old charges and an intense study of the obvious." It stated that the committee's treatment of the treasurer of the Tallahassee Council on Human Relations "was repugnant to the American concept of fair play," and voiced the hope that in the future the committee might "have evidence which is current, and which is related to Communism."

The Human Relations Council treasurer to whom the paper referred was a respected furniture dealer, James Shaw. The episode involving him highlighted the most unsavory feature of such investigations and one frequently forgotten by many citizens. Equated in the public mind with a trial, these hearings are not bound by the rules of actual courts of law, and their arbitrary development of one point of view may make a mockery of justice.

Shaw was subpoenaed to present the financial records of the Tallahassee Human Relations Council to the committee. When he did so, he was refused the right to make a statement, although one member of the committee wished to hear him. Shaw later told the press: "I wanted to say that I presented the records under protest because I feel that being subpoenaed to bring them here created implications and insinuations about me and my organization. They could have called any officer of the organization and we would have been glad to turn over the records to them. Anyone could have attended any one of our meetings and realized there was nothing to investigate."

His summary of the council's aims and methods must seem modest enough to anyone removed from the total resistance atmosphere of much of the South today: "This organization is not secret. Most of our meetings have been held at the courthouse. One of the purposes of it is to create a line of communication between Negroes and whites. We have not done very much but we have tried to ease the tensions that have been created by statewide political campaigns."

The increasing all-out effort to discredit just these individuals and groups working to "create a line of communication" and "ease the tensions" became even more evident during a recent investigation conducted in Arkansas. Attorney General Bruce Bennett, who examined witnesses for the state committee, said the hearing would serve "as an educational program more than anything else," and added, "most of our case will be tried at the bar of public opinion." He indicated that those called to testify would be friendly to the committee's purpose, which indeed proved to be true.

Manning Johnson and J. B. Matthews were the principals among these witnesses. Johnson repeated his summary of Communist history and strategy and restated his antagonism to the NAACP which he had voiced at the Rainach Committee hearing in Louisiana. Matthews went even farther than he had during his appearance before the Florida committee. He named as Communists four former residents of Arkansas, two of whom had left the state years before, two of whom had been in Little Rock until recently. The rest of his testimony was largely an effort to link together those groups interested in integration and smear them and their members with one sweeping assertion of witting or unwitting aid to Communism.

This was the same Matthews who wrote back in 1953: "The largest single group supporting the Communist apparatus in the United States today is composed of Protestant clergymen." Virginia's Senator Harry F. Byrd promptly declared that Matthews "should give names and facts to sustain his charge or stand convicted as a cheap demagogue willing to blacken the character of his fellow Americans for his own notoriety and personal gain." Following a statement by President Eisenhower, Matthews resigned as staff director of the McCarthy Committee. It is not a history designed to inspire confidence in later accusations of Communist infiltration. Nevertheless, the committee proceeded with its televised probe featuring the testimony of these two men.

Since the hearings in Arkansas in December and Representative Alford's February speech to the House, Attorney General Bennett has branched out in his activities. In March he helped instigate and guide a legislative probe in the adjoining state of Tennesseee.

This exploration concerned the Highlander Folk School, founded and directed by Myles Horton, a native Tennessean. This school has been controversial since its establishment in 1934 by the very nature of its interests: labor organization and, more recently, racial integration. Endorsed by such national figures as Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt, Reinhold Niebuhr, Monsignor John O'Grady, Harry Golden, and former TVA Chairman Gordon Clapp, the school had come under close federal scrutiny when its tax-exempt status was restored over a year ago. But federal clearance did not satisfy Arkansas' Bennett, who flew to Nashville to testify that in his opinion the school is subversive. "Run 'em out! Run 'em out!" he advised the committee members, referring to leaders of the school.

Many Tennesseans resented his advice, recalling a thought-control bill he had introduced in his own state's legislature, making it unlawful "to encourage nonconformance with the established traditions, customs, and usage of the state."

The Chattanooga Times commented: "We are neither patrons nor partisans of Highlander Folk School . . . . But unpopularity is not a sufficient reason for official harassment or intimidation. When one man's right to argue an unpopular course is assailed, another's right to advocate the opposite is threatened." Fourteen University of the South professors, who live only five miles from Highlander, in nearby Sewanee, came out in a public statement supporting the school and its "democratic ideals." The Nashville Tennessean battled against what it called a "witch hunt," warning that Tennessee did not need or deserve "the distinction of reviving McCarthyism."

Interspersed with the activities of these various official committees have been numerous other investigations, legislative proposals, printed and verbal attacks designed to obscure the black and white problem with the red menace. The NAACP has been under constant fire but other groups gaining increased attention include labor organizations, teachers, the clergy, and interracial councils. (It may be significant for the future that Manning Johnson, one of the favorite "friendly witnesses" of these hearings, wrote an article denouncing the NAACP in a recent issue of the violently anti-Semitic Common Sense.)

"The NAACP? Oh, you mean the National Association for the Advancement of the Communist Party." At filling stations and small-town stores in many parts of the South there is ready evidence of the easy acceptance of a scapegoat.

Yet J. Edgar Hoover, in his recent Masters of Deceit, a source widely quoted throughout the South on other aspects of Communism, and even praised by Representative Alford in that very speech he made to show red influences in the NAACP, came to the conclusion that NAACP leaders have consistently thwarted the Communist Party's "vigorous efforts" at infiltration. In 1953 Hoover stated: "The American Negro is not hoodwinked by these false messiahs."

Early in 1957 a bill was introduced in the Tennessee legislature providing that a teacher may be fired "if while within the buildings, he shall make pronouncements or engage in or promote discussions for the purpose of influencing students or other persons with reference to the problem of the integration of the races." This particular measure to gag the teachers died, but the spirit behind it did not.

Last year, when 63 Louisiana State University professors signed a Louisiana Civil Liberties Union petition opposing segregation bills which would permit closing of public schools, a legislative inquiry of the professors was launched. Members of the House were reported to feel that "Communism and integration walk hand in hand," and anyone, particularly university faculty members, who opposes legislation aimed at keeping Louisiana schools racially pure "must have subversive tendencies."

In December, 1958, University of Arkansas President J. T. Caldwell felt it necessary to "repudiate unequivocally the imputation that the University of Arkansas has been penetrated by Communists and express the fullest confidence in the members of our faculty." And when the Arkansas Education Association, a statewide organization of white teachers and school administrators, stated as policy a few months ago, "We can never compromise our conviction that the public school system is not expendable," the 21-member Legislative Council was so outraged that it suggested the Education Association members were innocent victims of subversive influence—and ordered an investigation by the Committee on Subversion in Education.

The National Council of Churches has borne much of the brunt of the smear attack on churchmen. One South Carolina editor has said the NCC "will shower respect on anarchists, Communists, and atheists but deny respect to Southerners whose only crime is that they believe in traditional American states rights."

One of the most consistently attacked organizations in the South recently has been the dignified and reasonable Southern Regional Council. This is understandable because it works by, with, and for Southerners of both races in a discussion and research effort to undergird integration with solid fact and lasting effectiveness. Its voice is calm, its work is constructive, and its effect is cumulative. Unfortunately, much of its energy lately has been diverted in stamping out the leaf fires sparked by irresponsible incendiarists.

The SRC, under its knowledgeable young director, Harold Fleming, is filling a unique need in the region. Pitted against it is the testimony of —again—the ex-Communist, Manning Johnson, whose appearances before the Louisiana Rainach Committee provided the source for the subsequent attacks against SRC. A month after this hearing, in April, 1957, The Firing Line, published by the American Legion's National Americanism Commission, reported that Johnson's testimony "reflected the Council was formed by James E. Jackson, a Southern organizer of the Communist Party." The source of Johnson's information, in turn, was a boast in The Daily Worker on the many accomplishments of the said Jackson. But even the Worker's fantasy had not reached as far as Johnson's, for it claimed only that Jackson had "participated in the formation and building of the Southern Regional Council."

It is, of course, a matter of public record that the Southern Regional Council was founded in 1944; its distinguished incorporators were Bishop Arthur J. Moore of the Methodist Church, Ralph McGill, editor of the Atlanta Constitution, Dr. Rufus E. Clement, president of Atlanta University, the late Dr. Charles S. Johnson, president of Fisk University, and the late Dr. Howard W. Odum, professor of sociology at the University of North Carolina.

The SRC was the successor to the Commission on Interracial Cooperation which had been founded in 1919 by leading churchmen. Even so conservative and segregationist a newspaper as the Richmond Times-Dispatch felt moved in August of last year to clarify the issues in relation to the SRC: "As to the allegation of the Communist Daily Worker that James E. Jackson, chief of the Southern branch of the U.S. Communist Party, was a 'co-founder of the Southern Regional Council,' there is nothing to support this . . . he was not at any time an officer, director, or member of that agency. The Daily Worker's statement that he was a 'founder' is as unreliable and inaccurate as nearly everything else in that Communist sheet."

In May, 1957, The Firing Line made another allegation which was to be widely circulated in segregation circles and at last repeated by Representative Alford in his recent speech. "Records of the American Legion reveal a definite trend of interrelationship between the SRC and the Southern Conference for Human Welfare, a defunct Communist front organization."

The Southern Conference for Human Welfare is no longer in existence, but it once included in its "interrelationships" many prominent Southerners besides some who were later to be in the SRC. In 1938, at the Southern Conference meeting in Birmingham, Alabama, among those who were part of the proceedings were Governor-elect Burnett Maybank of South Carolina, Alabama's Senator John H. Bankhead, Bishop Robert Lucey of Texas, Governor Bibb Graves of Alabama, and others of equal prominence and reputation. In 1945 the Conference staged a dinner in Washington, D. C., honoring Justice Hugo Black. The toastmaster on this occasion was then Senator, later Vice-President Alben W. Barkley. At the speaker's table was the Honorable James F. Byrnes. Among the sponsors of the dinner were Secretary of State Edward Stettinius, Secretary of Defense James Forrestal, and President Harry S. Truman. Surely guilt by association cannot include all these men.

SRC Director Fleming said not long ago: "The tragedy is that these self-appointed experts on 'subversion' show no understanding whatever of the real Communist movements. It thrives on white supremacy and noisy defiance of desegregation rulings. The Communists wouldn't trade one Governor Faubus for 10,000 new recruits to the Party. By contrast, there are no more effective anti-Communists than those Southerners who are working for orderly compliance with the law of the land. Ironically, these are the very people whom the segregationist vigilantes falsely label 'reds' and 'subversives.' "

Eleven prominent Southern church officials said in a statement in early April: "The time has come for the public to be made aware of the resurgence of McCarthyism in the South. If there is in fact a Communist threat, then Dr. Alford and others like him have a responsibility to report their knowledge to the FBI; if not, they have a duty to check their facts. Otherwise, they themselves are doing the real service to Communism, which battens on confusion, false charges, and the blind defense of racial injustices in our country."

Where inequities exist in our country, it is, indeed, not the Communist Manifesto but the American Constitution that fosters unrest and makes citizens work for change. The McCarthy cry of "Communist" in a time of transition is appealing for two reasons: it is simple and it is emotional. It reduces a complex situation, with many ramifications and subtleties and need for sober logic, to one single outside cause, and stirs a rope-and-fagot reflex.

Most citizens, along with the U.S. Senate, finally came to their senses about the sickness of McCarthyism. Slowly, as Southerners themselves work to replace emotional resistance and bigotry with reason and respect for the law of the land, McCarthyism can be uprooted under the magnolias.

We have had a credit file on Mr. J. Atticus Webb for 21 years. He formerly worked for the Seaboard Silk Mill in Elberton, Ga., later was Substitute Mail Carrier in Elberton, Ga. However, he has been in the granite and monument business for about 1[illegible] years, first in Elberton, Ga. then moved to Athens, Ga. about 15 years ago. He has usually been in business for himself, that is, as a broker and salesman of monuments. He takes no interest in social or civic activities, children are grown and on their own. Home they live in is in wife's name. He is contentious in his attitude toward his obligations. There is no criticism of his habits.

SRC Speaks For Sanity, Tolerance

In your issue of Sunday, August 30, you print a letter from Eva L. Sanders which contains some fairly damaging reflections upon Dr. J. M. Dabbs and the Southern Regional Council.

Neither needs any defense at my hands.

The reflections, by implications, involve Dr. Howard Odum, generally regarded as the founder of the Council and its first president, and upon Dr. Guy B. Johnson, for many years its executive director, as well as upon Dr. Paul Green of Chapel Hill, former State Senator Irving Carlyle of Winston-Salem and Mr. John Wheeler, who are at present directors.

Your own attitude toward the Council has been so uniformly fair and generous as to merit and receive a reprint of your editorial commendation upon the cover of NEW SOUTH, the Council's official publication. So we are quite sure that the views expressed by your correspondent are not your own.

The publication of such a letter, which is, of course, your prerogative is detrimental to the Council and its wise program. The Council, with no reward to any of its members, speaks for sanity and tolerance at a time when such spokesmen are sorely needed.

Dear Ruby:

Are you familiar with the name of "Archbishop" C. C. Addison and his African Universal Church and Commercial League Corp.? He has just come to my attention through a friend in La Grange, Ga., who received a pamphlet authored by Addison espousing continued segregation, together with a tearsheet from "Common Sense", the vicious segregationist and anti-semitic "newspaper" of Conde McGinley. I was unable to learn the source of this mailing to La Grange.

According to our records, Addison resided in Colquitt, Ga., in 1957. At that time he first came to our attention when he launced a vicious attack against the NAACP, stating that it was headed by white folks and was being utilized to exploit the Negro. He is reported as having said that he was out to destroy the NAACP. In March 1957, the letterhead of West Hooker's Nationalist Party (another hate group) had a "Black Nationalist Headquarters" located at 3802 Third Avenue, New York City, which is the present address of Addison's African Universal Church and Commercial League Corp. Addison himself was listed as a member of the National Committee of Hooker's Nationalist Party.

On August 1st, 1957, "Common Sense" reported on the Convention held by Christian Negroes opposed to the NAACP and integration, in Dutch Town, La., August 6-11, 1957. According to "Common Sense", the African Universal Church and Commercial League Corp. were the sponsors of this particular group. Addison's material has on accasion appeared in "Common Sense".

If you have any information concerning Addison's operation in the South, I would appreciate your letting me have the details.

Kindest regards.

Cordially,

CC: Harold Fleming

P.S. Do you know anything about Samuel H. Moore of Birmingham, president of the Southern Negro Improvement Association of Alabama? You may recall that this is the group that wired President Eisenhower back in September that most southern Negroes don't want "enforced integration, and they requested a government-sponsored poll of southern Negros to prove the point. The group was reported to have more than 5,000 members in Alabama. I would appreciate any information you have about them.

Mr. SPARKMAN. The 14th and 15th amendments contain certain provisions. I admit that there were some modifications in these particular amendments.

There is one other thing the Senator said to which I wish to advert at this time. It is not completely relevant to the remarks I was making, but I believe it is relevant to the remarks the Senator made about Jefferson and Franklin and the other Founding Fathers wishing to expand the freedoms and liberties, and so forth.

Yes; that is true. The Senator referred to persons who were of voting age, and to a certain other requirement which I do not recall at the moment. But there are certain qualifications which States are recognized as having the right to impose.

Vol. 106, No. 31 Feb. 23, 1960

I call the Senator's attention to a report made not so long ago by the Southern Regional Council. The Southern Regional Council is a biracial organization. It has been working for a good many years toward bettering race relations in the South, and bettering conditions generally. It has been quite liberal in its views. It made the statement not very long ago—I think in reply to a suggestion which some organization made—to the effect that there should be millions of persons added to the 1960 voting list. The Southern Regional Council said, in effect, that to think anything like that was simply not realistic; that there was involved the matter of people having to be brought up educationally and economically to the level of being able to discharge their responsibilities as voters. That organization is not some southern conservative clique which is advocating that view. That is the Southern Regional Council, which is quite liberal in its views.

I think that is one thing which some of us sometimes forget. That was a thing which Senator Palmer, I believe it was, from whose remarks I was reading a few minutes ago, said that people forget. They become impatient. I think that is one trouble with a great many advocates of so-called civil rights legislation. The people become impatient. They do not realize the progress which has been made.

The Governor of Alabama, Hon. John Patterson, testified not long ago on the so-called registrar bill, the one which was being pushed at that time before the Senate Committee on Rules and Administration. The attorney general of Alabama, Mr. MacDonald Gallion, also testified. Both of them pointed out that over the past several years remarkable progress had been made in Alabama in the number of Negroes who were brought in as eligible voters. Most of those who speak about this subject would not lead one to believe that that was true at all. Yet it is true. They overlooked this fact.

I am sorry the Senator from Pennsylvania [Mr. SCOTT] has left the Chamber. I should like to read something which would be of interest to him. He made a statement as to some of the things which Mr. Jefferson might advocate. I do not happen to have a direct quotation from Mr. Jefferson on this subject, but Mr. Jefferson's thinking was usually in line with that of his neighbor and friend, Mr. James Madison. Mr. Madison is usually referred to as the Father of the Constitution. Here is a quotation from James Madison in the Virginia Convention. We all know that later Madison became one of the very able Presidents of the United States. In the Virginia Convention, when he was asked his opinion about the section relating to elections, Mr. Madison said:

> It was found necessary to leave the regulation of these—
> That is, times, places, and manner—in the first place to the State governments as being best acquainted with the situation of the people, subject to the control of the General Government, in order to enable it to produce uniformity and to prevent its own dissolution. * * * Were they exclusively under the control of the State governments, the General Government might easily be dissolved. But if they be regulated properly by the State legislatures, congressional control will very probably never be exercised.

In other words, Mr. Madison, while recognizing the right of Congress to step in if the dissolution of the General Government was threatened, if a breakdown of the republican form of government was threatened, said, at the same time, that in the absence of that, Congress would never act, and that it was a matter which ought to be left up to the State and the people living in the localities where these things were taking place. I do not see how anyone can differ with that line of reasoning so well stated by Mr. Madison, later President Madison, and generally known as the Father of the Constitution of the United States.

Mr. President, I was quoting from Senator Allen, of Nebraska, who spoke on the repeal of the obnoxious Reconstruction Act of 1871, which is being reconstructed or resurrected and brought before us in the form of a proposal which we are told ought to be enacted.

I may say to the able majority leader [Mr. JOHNSON of Texas], who is with us in the Chamber, that I am speaking now on one phase, the one relating to the so-called referees. I have dealt with a little history. The Senator from Texas, of course, knows quite well that this proposal is pulled out, almost bodily, from the law books of 1871, when it was enacted as one of the vicious Reconstruction acts. It became so bad, so impractical, so unworkable, so fraudulent in its application, that the people of the United States simply would not have anything more to do with it and insisted upon its repeal.

So in 1894, with almost solid Democratic support from the North and the South, and certainly with no grief on the part of the Republicans themselves, that law was wiped off the statute books, and the New York Times said, in effect: Let us hope that it may be a long, long time before any effort is made again by the Federal Government to encroach on the rights of the States in the field of elections.

I have been quoting from some of the Senators who took part in the debate of 1894. The Senator from Texas, I am certain, knows that the act of 1871 was aimed at the South. It was a Reconstruction Act. It was aimed at the control of elections in the South, but it was turned against the North. The Republican Party used it as a means of perpetuating itself in power. They raided New York City and other areas of the North. I do not know whether some of them believe that this may be their only means of retaining power during another quadrennium or not. Be that as it may, that is the history of the act.

I have been quoting from Senator Allen, of Nebraska. I quote further:

> The General Government should never reach its hand into any State or Territory to control its elections, unless there be a controlling necessity for it, unless the people of that State or Territory have shown themselves manifestly incapable of having a fair election. In my judgment, the experience of this Nation under the law now under consideration has been that the elections are infinitely worse, as a rule, in the hands of Federal supervisors than those in the hands of the local authorities.

What a truth he spoke, Mr. President.

Mr. George G. Vest, Senator from Missouri, gave an example of the effect of the Reconstruction Act of 1871 in the State of Missouri. Senator Vest, I suppose, is best known because of the speech he made in paying tribute to the dog. I think perhaps he is known better for that than for any other one thing. But he participated in the debate on the Reconstruction Act of 1871 and had some words of good advice to say. This is what he said:

> I understand matters better in regard to the State of Missouri than any Senator here possibly can except my colleague. I know with absolute certainty what has occurred in Missouri.
> In 1876 the necessities of the Republican Party (and I will prove this from the sworn testimony of their own witnesses) demanded that three congressional districts in Missouri should be carried for the Republican ticket. A determined effort was agreed upon here in Washington to carry the U.S. House of Representatives for the Republicans. Mr. W. D. W. Bernard was the confidential friend of General Grant and the chosen instrument of the administration to do that thing. He was the national bank examiner of the State of Missouri, appointed by Grant. The U.S. marshal in the St. Louis district was H. W. Leffingwell, whom I know very well, a real estate man of high character and a very old citizen. Leffingwell was an honest man, conservative and patriotic.
> Bernard carried the instruction of Mr. Taft, the Attorney General of the United States, to the Republicans of St. Louis that those three districts must be carried for the Republican Party by the use of the instrumentalities provided in the Federal election law. He carried the instructions of the Attorney General to Leffingwell, the U.S. marshal, and they both swear to it. Leffingwell said, "Why, there is profound peace in Missouri; there is no danger of any tumult or riot here in the city of St. Louis. The calm is profound politically, socially, and otherwise." Bernard said to him, "Here are your orders. Who made you marshal?" "Well," said Leffingwell, "you had a good deal to do with it. You are very near the President." "Well, sir," he said, "the man who made can unmake; and if you do not carry out these orders, I will put you out of this office." (CONGRESSIONAL RECORD, vol. 26–PA1, Jan. 18, 1894, p. 981.)

Mr. President, I call attention to the fact that Senator Vest, who made that speech, was not just talking. He said he could show affidavits to that effect. He did not say so, but I presume that what he quoted then was contained in the affidavits, and was not hearsay.

Then Senator Vest said:

> It is hardly necessary for me to remark that the conspiracy was carried out and that the three districts were carried by the Republican Party. R. Graham Frost was beaten by a Republican named Metcalf on the return, though he was elected at the polls. Frost contested the election, and here is the testimony taken in that contest.

There was a recitation of part of the testimony; and then, later, Mr. Vest continued.

Mr. President, I have been quoting from the CONGRESSIONAL RECORD for January 18, 1894. That part of the CONGRESSIONAL RECORD contains the debate had at that time in this very Chamber, the Chamber of the greatest legislative body in the world. The CONGRESSIONAL RECORD includes all that debate; and in the course of it, Senator Vest further said:

Mr. Bernard goes on to state that he himself took the authority away from the Chief Marshal and appointed 1,028 deputies—

I take it that was in that one congressional election district. Nothing in Senator Vest's speech states that; but the contest related only to that one congressional district—organized them into regiments, battalions, and companies; the captains reported to the majors, the majors to the colonels, and the colonels to him—

I suppose he was the generalissimo—and he reported to the Attorney General of the United States. They put the city of St. Louis under a military organization under this law. (CONGRESSIONAL RECORD, supra, p. 982.)

Later, Mr. Vest pointed out:

Now, Mr. Bernard under this authority from the Attorney General, * * * proceeded to carry those elections. Mr. Bernard testifies that he disfranchised 5,700 voters.

Mr. President, I am sorry that my friend the Senator from Pennsylvania [Mr. SCOTT], who is so anxious to guard the voting rights of all citizens of the country, is not now in the Chamber to listen to my reading of this part of the debate in this very Chamber in 1894. I would that he were here now to listen to my reading of that part of the debate, which was had on that occasion in this very Chamber.

Mr. President, I am delighted to see that my friend the Senator from Pennsylvania has returned to the Chamber. Let me state, for his benefit, that I have been referring to the referees proposed to be appointed under the provisions of the pending amendments to the bill now before the Senate. Previously, the Senator from Pennsylvania spoke of those provisions as a means of assuring that some citizens have the right to vote. I have been reading part of the history of this subject.

I am sorry the Senator from Pennsylvania was called out of the Chamber for a few minutes. I hope that tomorrow he will read the part of today's CONGRESSIONAL RECORD in which I have quoted from the debates which occurred in this very Chamber, the Chamber of the greatest deliberative body in the world, back in 1894, when the vicious anti-southern Reconstruction Act, which was directed against the Senator's forefathers and mine, back in 1871, was under debate, prior to its repeal. That vicious act is the original from which the proposal now before us has been copied.

In 1894 that vicious act was stricken off the statute books; and I have been quoting from the debate which occurred in the Senate Chamber at that time. I shall read again a portion of that debate, inasmuch as the Senator from Pennsylvania has now returned to the Chamber.

Mr. SCOTT. Mr. President——

Mr. SPARKMAN. Mr. President, if the Senator from Pennsylvania will promise me faithfully that tomorrow morning he will read in the CONGRESSIONAL RECORD the remarks I have recently been making, I shall not repeat what I said a few minutes ago.

Mr. SCOTT. To the best of my capacity, I shall devour what the Senator from Alabama may have said.

Mr. SPARKMAN. I know the Senator from Pennsylvania can do it.

Mr. SCOTT. I think there may have been some misunderstanding in regard to the use of the word "expanded." My concern is that every man and woman who is qualified to vote shall be protected in the exercise of that right; but I believe the exercise of that right is denied in many parts of the country. So the question is one of the protection of the right to vote.

I do not believe that a play on the word "expand" fully represents what I was trying to say.

I apologize to the distinguished Senator from Alabama for leaving the Chamber. However, in this world there are demands for other kinds of nourishment, aside from intellectual nourishment, which is best to be had on the floor of the Senate. I am sure that under those circumstances the Senator from Alabama will forgive me.

Mr. SPARKMAN. Mr. President, I was not being at all critical of the Senator from Pennsylvania. I really want him to hear me read this part of the historical account. I am very glad that he has returned to the Chamber at the right time.

The pending amendment is a resurrection of the vicious Reconstruction Act which was on the statute books from 1871 until approximately February 9, 1894, when it was repealed by Congress. Even the Republicans were glad to have it repealed, because the Democrats had then come into power; and after the Republicans had used the Reconstruction Act to take away the voting right of many citizens and to run the elections in the way the Republicans wanted them run, they naturally were afraid of what the Democrats were going to do with that Act. So the Republicans themselves were really glad to see the vicious Reconstruction Act taken off the statute books. There was no weeping or gnashing of teeth or wailing when that statute was removed from the books.

In the debate in this very Chamber in 1894, Senator Vest, of Missouri, referred to a case which had arisen in Missouri.

I know the Senator from Pennsylvania is familiar with Senator Vest's remarkable tribute to a dog; and a few minutes ago I said that Senator Vest probably is better remembered for that tribute than for anything else he said.

Senator Vest then made a very fine, clear, and lucid speech on the floor of the Senate—in this greatest deliberative body in the world—in urging the repeal of the vicious Reconstruction Act; and in the course of that speech he related some actual experiences. I suppose we could dig up the records of them, although I have not done so, inasmuch as Senator Vest then presented the matter in a very clear way, as shown by the CONGRESSIONAL RECORD for that date.

In short, there was an election contest in Missouri; and the evidence showed that instructions went from the Attorney General of the United States to the State of Missouri. Remember, the man who got the orders swore to this. He swore that three congressional districts there were to go Republican—regardless. The orders were that they had to go Republican. Those who received the orders started to move to make certain they went Republican, and they went Republican—that is, they were counted Republican. They did not go Republican; they were counted Republican. They did it by carrying out the instructions of the Attorney General, and the testimony was that this man appointed 1,028 deputies.

Let me repeat what Senator Vest said:

Mr. Bernard goes on to state that he himself took the authority away from the chief marshal—

Mr. Bernard was acting under the directions of the Attorney General of the United States—and appointed 1,028 deputies.

Suppose in the congressional district which is so ably served by the now distinguished Senator from Pennsylvania there had been turned loose 1,028 deputies to watch over, supervise, control, regulate, and carry out the elections in the district. What chance would the Senator have had, if they had not been on his side? In this instance they were there for a certain purpose, and the purpose was to see to it that the district went Republican.

Mr. SCOTT. Mr. President, will the Senator yield?

Mr. SPARKMAN. I yield. Remember where I left off, because I want to start there when I get back to my statement.

Mr. SCOTT. First, it is not necessary to turn 1,028 people loose in my district, because the Democratic political forces of the party bosses up there turn loose a great many more than 1,028 in every election, and they do the job, I am sure, with better results than those to which the Senator referred.

I never thought that this opportunity would come to me. The Senator has given me an opportunity to tell a little bit of untold history that, so far as I know, has never been told about the 1928 election. The Senator will recall, I am sure, in that election the official vote, in connection with the candidate of the Democratic Party, Mr. Alfred E. Smith, showed that he had carried the State of Alabama and had defeated the candidate of the Republican Party, Mr. Herbert Hoover.

Some few weeks ago a political scientist from a university not far from here, making a study of voting habits and trends in various parts of the country, secured permission to go to the Cap-

TO ALL LAW ENFORCEMENT OFFICIALS:

America, historically an impregnable fortress against tyranny, is engaged in a mortal struggle with world communism. It is time for both citizens and governmental authorities to confront this threat in a calm, realistic, rational, law-abiding manner.

The ingredients for communist coups in nations which have fallen under its spell always include a populace shaken with fear, hysteria, and confusion. Above all, however, is the danger of irresponsible counteraction by citizens who lend impetus to communism through inept attempts to fight this insidious menace.

The leaders of worldwide communism proclaim that even America can succumb to the "rules of revolution" conceived by Karl Marx and galvanized into the first successful communist revolution by V. I. Lenin.

Lenin said, "The more powerful enemy can be conquered only by exerting the utmost effort, and by necessarily, thoroughly, carefully, attentively and skillfully taking advantage of every, even the smallest, 'rift' among the enemies...."

There exists today in our land a vital "rift" which the communists are exploiting. Unfortunately, this involves certain people across the country who engage in reckless charges against one another. The label of "communist" is too often indiscriminately attached to those whose views differ from the majority. Those whose lives are not led according to what one segment of society might decree to be the "norm" are too frequently challenged as "Reds."

Attributing every adversity to communism is not only irrational, but contributes to hysteria and fosters groundless fears. Communism is, indeed, our paramount adversary, and it leans on its credo of invincibility and a concept of historical inevitability to accomplish its ends. The way to fight it is to study it, understand it, and discover what can be done about it. This cannot be achieved by dawdling at the spring of knowledge; it can only be accomplished by dipping deeply into thoughtful, reliable, and authoritative sources of information.

The job of curtailing and containing communism is one for legally constituted authorities with the steadfast cooperation of every loyal citizen. This is neither the time for inaction nor vigilante action. We must unite as a people, we must understand our basic American heritage under law, and we must face the communist menace with deliberation, quiet courage, and knowledge. These are the qualities which communism shrinks from--these are the qualities against which communism can never succeed.

Very truly yours,

J. Edgar Hoover

Mr. Dabney Sees "Trouble"

Norfolk Journal & Guide 4/7/62

VIRGINIUS DABNEY, Pulitzer Prize-winning editor of the Richmond Times-Dispatch appeared in Portsmouth last week as first speaker for the Frederick College Lecture Series on "Current Issues in American Public Life, 1962," and expressed great concern over the planned voter registration movement among Negroes in the Southside section of Virginia.

Mr. DABNEY was kind enough to admit that it is not unreasonable for colored people to aspire to full citizenship or even to hold elective office, but he cautioned that pushing too fast would bring about "trouble."

We wonder what form this "trouble" will take in Virginia. Mr. DABNEY apparently did not say, but he certainly should have. After all, he was talking to young white college students who had every right to know all about this expected happening and particularly what part they would be expected to play. More importantly, Mr. DABNEY owes it to his State and fellow-citizens to reveal any secret information he may have relating to "trouble planning" in Virginia.

We think this to be far more reasonable and honorable than to ask certain citizens in the Commonwealth to deny themselves the full exercise of their citizenship in order to prevent "trouble."

With reference to the possibility of a Negro being sent to Congress from Virginia, Mr. DABNEY advised against pushing "too hard" and trying to get there "too fast." We would expect the learned lecturer to define his terms. How hard is "too hard," and how fast is "too fast"—here in Space Age, 1962?

JOHN M. LANGSTON, Negro, born in Louisa, Virginia, and graduate of Oberlin College, Ohio, represented the Fourth Virginia District in Congress during the late 1890s. Then came the Constitutional Convention of 1901-02, the poll tax, educational tests and disfranchisement.

Sovereignty Commission PR Chief Asks For Racial Cooperation

Only Way To Keep Segregation In Schools, Johnston

Grenada — (UPI) — Erle Johnston, Jr., public relations director of the State Sovereignty Commission, said Friday night Mississippi's only hope of maintaining school segregation rests in the cooperation of its Negroes. He said extremists on both sides are preventing that cooperation.

"We already have many allies among the colored school teachers, bus drivers and other employers who want to preserve their employment. We can earn the cooperation of others with consideration and recognition and an honest attempt to provide colored citizens with facilities to which they are entitled."

Johnston, who edits the Scott County (weekly) Times at Forest, addressed graduates of Grenada high. He described himself as neither "an extremist, liberal or moderate" but a "practical segregationist."

"Mississippi needs more white people who will publicly speak out for recognition without being branded as liberal leftists and more colored people willing to cooperate without being branded as Uncle Toms," he said. "We can be practical without being radical. We can be realistic without being ridiculous."

"I have often thought that if the extremists at both ends of this racial situation would quit wildly wagging their tongues and suspiciously pointing their fingers we could restore some racial harmony in Mississippi and make better progress."

* * * *

Johnston, without mentioning either group by name, had harsh words for the NAACP and the Citizens Councils.

The Negro group, he said, has clamored for special privileges rather than better treatment and has thrived "on "strained relations to strengthen their appeals for more funds from the North."

The white organization, he said, "believes in threat and intimidation." He said its able to take that mile whenever they please.

"It would seem far better to offer an inch of consideration across a table of harmony than to be forced to retreat further in an atmosphere of friction and bitterness."

Johnston, who was president of the Grenada Class of 1935, told the graduates:

"My generation, which is past the halfway mark, has been dedicated to educating the colored people and raising their standards of living. Many thousands have improved themselves educationally, morally and hygienically. As this number increases, it will become your decision as to how they should be treated in the future.

"Our colored people know about the hypocricies of the north. They know there is discrimination. They know attitudes cannot be legislated.

"Our separate school system of the future depends on our ability to earn and retain the cooperation, trust and confidence of the colored race in Mississippi. There are militant hot heads in both races. They must restrain theirs and we must restrain ours.

"As you contemplate the decisions you graduates may be called on to make, let me suggest that courtesy is better than coercion, interest is better than intimidation, recognition is better than retribution and friendship is better than force."

Johnston has been public relations director of the Sovereignty Commission since 1960. As part of his job with the official state agency he travels to the North speaking in defense of Mississippi views.

The trips have been effective, he said, but "we can expect no national movement of any strength which would support the Southern tradition of segregated societies."

Later, she was found guilty of contempt of court for interviewing a witness — the widow of a Negro murder victim — and was fined $50.00 and sentenced to 15 days in jail. The sentence was suspended and she was put on probation for a year. The Mississippi Supreme Court reversed the decision on appeal.

In 1954 she criticized the Holmes County Sheriff in a front-page editorial and was promptly faced with a $57,500 libel suit. The trial jury awarded him $10,000 but this

Editor's Letter Box

Jackson, Miss.

Dear Editor:

A few days ago one of the Jackson papers published a news story from Houma, Louisiana to the effect that a young science teacher of that town had been arrested and placed under bond for criticizing Governor Jimmie Davis and the Louisiana Legislature for building a million dollar mansion for the Governor of that state and his family to live in and refusing to give the poorly paid teachers a small raise. The 23 year old teacher's name was one Prof. Motto.

When I read of the arrest of that teacher I sat up and rubbed my eyes in utter astonishment. I wondered if there had been a misprint and the article had really referred to some incident in Communist Russia. Perhaps some correspondent had lost his sanity and had written the truth about some happening in Castro's Cuba. Surely a neighboring state of a citizen arrested for daring to criticizing the governor. No, the offending teacher, as the news story shows, was not a colored man or a member of the NAACP. Here we have been criticizing the President and the United States Supreme Court whenever and wherever we pleased and I haven't heard of any white man being jailed for it. Why we have even said some pretty mean things about our governor's $10,000.00 bath room and a few other things and so far as I know no-

NAACP and the Citizens Councils.

The Negro group, he said, has clamored for special privileges rather than better treatment and has thrived "on "strained relations to strengthen their appeals for more funds from the North."

The white organization, he said, "believes in threat and intimidation.." He said its members "mean well. They are dedicated to their cause. But they have agitated the friction and bitterness and there is some question as to whether this attitude is a help, a hindrance, or merely creates hysteria."

Persons who want to keep segregation by "organizing and fighting" have only four courses to take, he said.

"They can fight through the courts, with weapons, with violence, or with boycott.

"Our attorney general and his staff are already doing an excellent job in the courts, but all litigation eventually reaches the dark corridors of the Supreme Court.

"Mississippians are courageous but not foolish. I don't believe we will open fire on U. S. marshals or soldiers in uniform.

"Mississippians are not barbarians. We will not don the sheets of an ancient era and inflict harm on colored people or destroy their property.

"Boycotts would be ineffective because white employers are not going to fire colored workers from certain jobs and I don't believe retailers are going to refuse to sell merchandise to colored customers."

Some segregationists heatedly argue that to give up an inch is to give up a mile, Johnston said. "Yet they conveniently disregard the fact that the colored people of Mississippi, with the federal government and courts ready to support them, soon may be to report "an out and out falsehood." The report was that a visiting segregationist minister, the Rev. Robert Ingram of Houston, Texas, had been "threatened and intimidated" if he appeared in Jackson to speak at the Citizens' Council annual meeting on May 17 and that the telegram threatening him was sent by a Jackson Episcopal minister, the Rev. Edward H. Harrison.

It turned out that the telegram was not sent by Rev. Harrison — and that even if it had been — it could not have been construed as a threat or attempted intimidation wording.

Despite the fact that a vestryman of St. Andrews Episcopal Church told John Wright, president of the Jackson Citizens' Council, before the CC meeting started that Rev. Harrison had said he did not send the telegram, Mr. Wright permitted the telegram to be read and photostatic copies of it distributed to those attending. Mr. Wright also promised to permit the Vestryman to speak at the meeting but did not, later saying he "changed his mind."

The next day copies of the telegram were distributed to members of the Legislature in a further effort designed to smear the Rev. Harrison and intimidate the Legislature, possibly to keep it from selling a plot of land to the Episcopal Church for a day school. Fortunately the truth was learned and the Legislature was not intimidated.

But the whole truth has either not yet been learned or told.

Responsible officials of the Citizens' Council should not stop until the person who sent the faked telegram is found and exposed.

jail. The sentence was suspended and she was put on probation for a year. The Mississippi Supreme Court reversed the decision on appeal.

In 1954 she criticized the Holmes County Sheriff in a front-page editorial and was promptly faced with a $57,500 libel suit. The trial jury awarded him $10,000 but this decision, too, was reversed by the state's Supreme Court.

Her fight against injustice and crime has been costly. Her husband lost his job as administrator of the county hospital in 1956 solely because Mrs. Smith had become "a controversial figure." Her opponents organized a concerted advertising boycott and in 1958 founded and subsidized a competing weekly newspaper in Lexington.

Among her honors are the National Editorial Association's Herrick Award for "editorial writing, embracing the highest type of American principles and ideals" in 1956; a citation from the Fund for the Republic to "an American whose actions have made an unusual contribution to advancing the principles of freedom and justice and the Bill of Rights" in 1957; a commendation from the Mississippi Press Association for "her epochal fight in the interest of freedom of the press" in 1957 and the 1960 Elijah Parish Lovejoy Award for Courage in Journalism from the University of Southern Illinois for "demonstrating the ability to perform under great stress — her role as editor of the community's newspaper so effectively as to win the approval and support in growing numbers of the right-thinking people of her town and county."

We are his workmanship, created in Christ Jesus unto good works. (Ephesians 2:10.)

After the early worship service in a chapel one morning, I remained in the pew and meditated for some time. At first lost in thought, I did not notice the man who was placing hymnals in the racks and collecting copies of the order of worship left in the pews. As he approached I saw a pro

PROFESSIONAL HATE HUCKSTER

For the past several weeks the Miami Herald and the Ft. Lauderdale News have been publishing a regular series of so-called "Crime Exposes". The artices are dedicated to creating the impression the "Vigilant Guardians" of the newspapers have discovered the entire South Florida area is a cesspool of crime and corruption. Not just runofthemill crime, but real bigtime "Organized Crime" — including prostitution, gambling, murder, etc. — all directed by some vague "Syndicate"

In my opinion these so-called "Crime Expose" articles are politically motivated garbage that has deliberately established a fake and damaging image of the entire community with cheap sensationalism that has cast doubt and suspicion on every law enforcement officer in South Florida.

"FEARLESS CHAMPION"

The area-degrading "Exposes" were started by the Miami Herald. The "Sensational Revelations" were written by a self-styled "Gang Buster" named Hank Messick

Messick, sometimes known as "Hogwash Hank" and "Fearless Fats" (because he tried to intimidate a woman in an attempt to reincarnate a fake and vicious rumor) launched a fanatic attack on the law enforcement agencies throughout the South Florida area . . .

BLADE CUTS BOTHWAYS

I hear "Fearless Fats" has made quite a few "unpleasant" remarks about me since I published the first "IB" article identifying Messick for what he was, a troublemaking phony . . . Messick reportedly sneered and attempted to laugh-off the "IB" articles, saying he wasn't bothered by "amateurs."

Messick seems to pride himself on his ability to research and report a person's well guarded past . . . Messick has painted himself as a "Mystery Man," so I made my "amateur" try at checking "Mysterious Messick's" well guarded background. Let's see him try this on for size.

"Fearless Fats" should learn the old axiom about pegging rocks from a glass house — the "exposure" bit is a double-edged shiv that can slice in both directions . . . Since the rollypoly rot writer likes to digup things, let's take a fast look at HIS scoreboard. — Here are a few reported high spots from Messick's rather checkered past:

"RED STAR" HATE HUSTLER

Messick, born Aug. 14, 1922, is married to the former Faye Elisabeth Hancock. (They met at the Univ. of North Carolina) . . . The Messick's now reside at 915 S.E. 10th St. in Ft. Lauderdale, (supposedly a "secret location") . . . Messick drives a new

THE DOUBLE EDGE

Hollywood city commissioner David Keating has proposed the city adopt an "Anti-Hate" Ordinance". Keating's ordinance would create a law banning the display of what he describes as "Hate Signs & Symbols" — such as KKK cross burning, or painting and displaying the Swastika. — Commissioner Keating said his proposed law would not "ban" the Klan or similar organizations, but it would give the City the legal machinery to control the activities of the Klan, the American Nazi Party, etc. . . . I'm sure Commissioner Keating is acting in what he considers to be the best interests of his community — but in my opinion, the proposed "Anti-Hate" Ordinance would be a direct violation of the Constitution . . . I am diametrically opposed to any and all extermist groups like the Klan, the Communist Party, the Nazis, the NAACP, etc., etc. — but unless or until they are declared illegal, these groups are subject to the same rules and regulations used to govern any and all groups . . . I agree with Comm. Keating's belief that various signs and symbols can and do insight unrest, trouble and violence — But if Hollywood creates a law to "control the activities" of one group, say the Klan — then what's to stop future Commissioners from using the same ordinance to "control" the activities" of the Knights of Columbus, the B'nai Brith or the Masons? Comm. Keating's proposal is sincere, but misguided. I wonder if Keating realizes that in trying to "control" these hate-mongers, he is guilty of the same unsavory "We Are Superior" pitch used by the same groups he opposes?

The "stolen property" was several official police records. Messick was accused of paying police Sgt. Myron Marrs to steal the records from the desk of Chief Walter Layman. (Messick is continually screaming about police taking "pay-off" from hodlums).

The "Champion of Justice" was brought before the Jefferson County Grand Jury directed by a State's Atty. named Kenneth Grantz. Messick was reportedly ordered to explain his actions. Messick talked fast, but apparently not very convincingly.

The Grand Jury indicted Messick on the "Receiving Stolen Property" charge on Oct. 2, 1957. — Indictment #108757, filed in the office of Elmer N. Carrell, Clerk of the Jefferson Circuit Court . . . Both Sgt. Marrs and Chief Layman lost their jobs.

COP HATER KEEPS COMING

Messick still maintained his efforts to deliberately cause trouble for the Louisville police by writing countless "expose" articles that maligned the officers by insinuating they indulged in various illegal activities . . . This is proved by the report of another Jefferson County Grand Jury, sworn in on December 7, 1959, and signed by the foreman Graham B. McDonald—states Judge L. R. Curtis instructed the jury to —: "Investigate the insinuation by Courier Journal reporter H. Messick in his article of November 22, 1959, that the Louisville Police Force is not exerting all possible efforts to curb and control handbook operation." . . . In short, "Hogwash Hank's" article "insinuated" the police were allowing the bookies to operate — Sound familiar?

JURY VERDICT — "BALONEY"

The Grand Jury's investigation produced the following verdict —: "No evidence was given to sustain H. Messick's insinuation that the Louisville Police Force is not exerting all possible efforts to curb handbook operation" . . . In other words their investigation proved "Hogwash Hank's anti-police articles were pure BALONEY!

MESSICK WINS "RED STAR"

Messick's second attempt to foul the Louisville police was a dismal failure, but he had attracted the attention of a large and controversial outfit, the Ford Foundation . . . The well-heeled Ford Foundation has (and is) spending millions of dollars financing, among other things, some of the most notorious "Left Wing" organizations in the country . . . For example —: In 1954, the Ford Foundation presented a $240,000 "grant" to the "Southern Regional Council," a rabble-rousing extreme Left Wing group — headed by Dr. George S. Mitchell, an active member in the notorious "Civil Rights Congress" and two other organizations declared to be subversive Communist-front groups by the U.S. House Un-American Activities Comm., also listed as "Subversive" by the United States Attorney General.

According to reports from Norman Isaacs, Exec. Editor of the Louisville Courier Journal, "Hogwash Hank" received a multi-thousand dollar

Dr Paul Anthony Executive Director
Southern Regional Council
Five Forsyth Street NW
Atlanta Georgia

Dear Paul Anthony:

It was interesting to have the memo on the Knoxville Journal incident and I was pretty well satisfied with the outcome. I was especially happy to read that because things moved too slowly the leadership of the North moved, when they failed to hee my opening statement made at the Collaboration Meeting held in Richmond. My statement was burdened with the thought that full support of the Southern Regional Council was the only hope that we could work an amicable understanding in the South. One Reverend Jones an Atlanta white minister cold-watered my speech and onlt the heroic stand of Dr Odum saved the day; but I was right. They failed the Council and the tragic results of the hour became inevitable.

Furthermore I am convinced that if the Old South had spent as much time cooperating with the Southern Regional Council as they spent trying to connect the Council with communism, we would have been much farther along with the work of working out programs for a workable democracy in the South and nation. As concerning James Jackson! He was a student in more than one of my classes in Virginia Union. He was always of an aberrant type of student, and his course in general has been no surprise to me. In one of my courses I discussed all the socialistic "isms" including communism. I made the first part of the course mostly a build up for the socialistic "isms" and took a poll of the class which numbered about forty. Three fourths of the class were socialistically inclined-with only half the evidence in. Then I proceeded to tear down the socialistic isms and build up the democratic ideals, and at the end of the course we had only one of socialistic devotees left.

Many years ago when communism had not been fully revealed in its ultimate designs to destroy human freedom and install human slavery instead, I was quite open-minded on the subject and so when the communists held one of their national or regional meetings here they had trouble finding a suitable auditorium so as pastor of Moore Street Baptist church I had our doors opened to them as a gesture of bignes of democracy and therefore unafraid of communism. My noble intention was misconstrued both by the communists and by the community as a leaning toward communism. I was flooded with communist literature. The FBI began calling on me under pretext of getting aline on certain others. I finally decided that they were checking on me. Several white students registered for my courses in Virginia Union, but they found nothing so the watch finally was called off so I imagine. But whereas once I had an open mind on communism my mind in no longer open. It is closed to communism and everything pertaining thereto. I am for freedom! I am against slavery! I am against all those who oppose our stand in Viet Nam! I am for all who favor our stand in Viet Nam! How Jackson came to be in the Durham meeting is a mystery to me, for I was Director and issued every invitation and one was not issued to James Jackson Jr.. Two or three others came in "mysteriously" as spies I have imagined.

Kindly always Gordon B Hancock Sr

MEMORANDUM

To: ADL Regional Offices

From: Arnold Forster

Date: July 27, 1967

Subject: Personal Attacks on ADL Over Radio and TV.

As you know, there has been an increase in use of radio by extremist groups for attack on ADL and other like-minded organizations and individuals. It is essential, therefore, that each regional director and area civil rights coordinator be fully acquainted with various machinery for counteraction of such attacks.

This memorandum is intended to acquaint you with such machinery. It will discuss invocation of the FCC's fairness doctrine. It will advise you as to how to invoke this aspect of the fairness doctrine.

But before dealing with the specifics of the application of the personal attack principle of the fairness doctrine, let us first call your attention to certain preliminary factors. Traditionally when there are unfair attacks on ADL or its leaders in any of the mass media, we have given consideration to getting directly in touch with the persons responsible for the management of the particular mass medium involved such as the local newspaper or radio station and discussing with the management the impropriety and unfairness of the attack. Sometimes local ADL leaders who are prominent figures in the local community join in these discussions. Sometimes even non-Jewish local leaders in the community discuss the problem of such unfair attacks with the management of the mass medium disseminating the attack.

Thus, in the case of KTYM, we first got in touch with the station management and pointed out the unfairness of the attacks made by Cotten on ADL and also stressed the great unfairness of a radio station permitting its facilities to be used for dissemination of blatant anti-Semitism. The management of KTYM met with ADL staff and leaders. On this occasion, ADL's record and status were explained to the station management. Only after the direct approaches and efforts to reason with the station management proved fruitless, did ADL resort to complaint to the FCC.

In this connection, it must also be pointed out that there is a difference between a "personal attack" on ADL and the dissemination of blatant anti-Semitism. This distinction must always be kept in mind. Blatant anti-Semitism cannot be handled under the fairness doctrine. The equal time to answer formula cannot be applied to blatant anti-Semitism.

In determining whether to invoke the personal attack principle of the fairness doctirne, consideration should also be given to the general nature of the operation of the radio station in question. If the station is generally one which operates fairly and carries programs which do promote better inter-group relations and has not, in the past, broadcast personal attacks on ADL, it may be sufficient to raise the question of the propriety of permitting such a personal attack with the licensee. If it appears, after such discussion, that the licensee will in the future be sensitive to its responsibility to avoid the dissemination of such personal attacks, your local leaders may decide to let the matter rest there without insistence on the allocation of free time in which to answer the personal attack.

The foregoing considerations should be kept in mind in connection with a determination of a course of action involving attacks on the ADL by radio broadcasters.

Under the "personal attack" principle of the FCC fairness doctrine, a station which broadcasts a personal attack on an individual or organization has an obligation to send the person or organization so attacked, within a reasonable time and in no event later than one week after the attack, a tape or transcript of the broadcast (or an accurate summary of the broadcast if a script or tape is not available) along with an offer of reasonable opportunity to respond to the attack.

The mere fact that a person or a group is named in a broadcast or disagreement is voiced with the views of that person or organization does not mean that there has been a personal attack. According to the FCC, a broadcast which falls within the category of a personal attack, is one which attacks an individual's or group's "integrity, character, honesty or like personal qualities." There may be some cases in which a legitimate question may exist as to whether a personal attack has occurred, but in most instances the evidence will be clear.

Where such an attack has occurred, the regional director, if his office is located in the station's listening area, or otherwise a layman residing in the area of the station involved should write a letter to the station along the following lines:

> It has been called to our attention that (name of) program broadcast over your station (give date and time) contained a personal attack on the Anti-Defamation League of B'nai B'rith. To date we have not been notified by you of the attack nor have we been furnished with a tape or transcript of the broadcast or even a summary of the attack as you are required to do under the Commission's fairness doctrine. It will be appreciated if you will send us without delay the required transcript or tape and also make comparable time available to us, as you are obligated to do, so that we may respond to the attack.

Such a letter should be sent to the station, certified, return receipt requested, as soon as possible after you learn of the attack. Even though you may have taped the program yourself and have the text of the attack, nonetheless write to the station and request the tape or transcript. A copy of this letter to the station should not be sent to the FCC. Only where a station refuses time to reply or imposes unreasonable requirements as a condition precedent to the broadcast of a reply should a complaint be made to the FCC. But, no such complaint should be filed with the Commission without first obtaining the prior approval of the national office.

Where a personal attack has occurred, the individual or organization attacked has a right to free time to answer even though the attack was made on a sponsored program. While the station may ask whether the person or individual attacked is willing to pay to appear or even seek a sponsor of the program on which the reply is to be broadcast, the person or group attacked has a right to reply which cannot be denied simply because paid sponsorship of the program is not forthcoming.

The national office has a series of taped broadcasts which it will make available to you for use in replying to the personal attack.

Finally, if in the process of monitoring a program for possible attacks on ADL you find that other persons or groups are attacked, notify the person or groups so attacked and tell them to follow the same procedure outlined in this memo.

3 Poverty Workers in Pike County Arrested, Charged With Sedition

PIKEVILLE (AP)—Pike County officials raided the homes of three mountain poverty workers last night, confiscated some literature, and charged the trio with sedition, Commonwealth's Atty. Thomas Ratliff said today.

The accused are Allen McSurely, 31, and his wife, Margaret, 28, both field workers with the Southern Conference Educational Fund (SCEF), and Joseph Mulloy, 23, a staff member of Appalachian Volunteers, Inc.

Mulloy is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph P. Mulloy, 229 N. 37th, Louisville.

Appalachian Volunteers is a poverty program supported by the U.S. Office of Economic Opportunity. The SCEF is a private Louisville-based civil-rights action group.

SCEF records indicate that McSurely is a former staff member of the United Planning Organization in Washington, D.C., a federally supported poverty program. Mrs. McSurely was said to be a former project worker for the Student Nonviolent Coordinating Committee.

Ratliff, who described the arrests, is Republican candidate for lieutenant governor.

Carl Braden, executive secretary of SCEF in Louisville, said that SCEF lawyers take the position that the sedition statute is "unconsitutional, invalid and void."

Braden recalled that he, himself, was convicted under the sedition statute in 1954, but that the state Court of Appeals threw out the conviction on the strength of a Supreme Court decision.

Ratliff asserted that later decisions assure the statute is usable in this case.

The McSurelys were arrested by Pike County Sheriff Perry A. Justice at their home in the Pleasant Valley community near Pikeville. Mrs. McSurely is expecting a baby in January. Mulloy was arrested separately at his home later.

The sedition statute carries a penalty of up to 21 years in prison or a $10,000 fine or both. A preliminary hearing was set for today.

3 Pike Poverty Workers Charged With Sedition

The Courier-Journal

SUNDAY, AUGUST 13, 1967.

By KYLE VANCE
Courier-Journal Staff Writer

PIKEVILLE, Ky. — A midnight raid on the rural mountain homes of three antipoverty workers resulted yesterday in sedition charges against the three and confiscation of a truckload of books and papers.

Commonwealth's Attorney Thomas Ratliff said the seized material included what he called a "communistic library out of this world."

Arrested and held for examining trial were Al McSurely and his wife, Margaret, both staff representatives of the Southern Conference Education Fund (SCEF), and Joe Mulloy, field representative for the Appalachian Volunteers.

Mulloy was released after posting $5,000 bail. Mr. and Mrs. McSurely were held in jail in lieu of $5,000 and $2,000 bond respectively.

Carl Braden of Louisville, head of SCEF, said the McSurelys chose to remain in jail to test the law on habeas corpus motions.

Mulloy also posted $250 bond on a charge of flourishing a dangerous weapon. He said he had carried a pistol when he answered a knock at his door because he did not know who was there. When the callers identified themselves as officers, he handed the gun to them, he said.

Dan Jack Combs, attorney for the three, said he will go either to a state or federal court tomorrow with habeas corpus motions to free the McSurelys.

SCEF, whose headquarters are in Louisville, has been active in civil rights movements in the South and recently has turned its attention to organizing both Negro and white poor.

Appalachian Volunteers works with the poor of the mountains to inform them of their rights and to organize them into community action groups. They also train VISTA volunteers, the domestic version of the Peace Corps.

Landlord Complained

Ratliff and Sheriff Perry A. Justice led the raids on the complaint of James M. Compton, of Collins, former landlord of the McSurelys.

Ratliff said Compton evicted the McSurelys after examining their collection of books and papers and seeing "a parade of strange looking visitors at their house."

He said the material taken from McSurely included a "white paper" on how to "take over Pike County from the power structure and put in the hands of the poor."

"The paper also included a narrative on ways to get into the government's antipoverty programs and take advantage of the money available through the programs," Ratliff said.

"Every piece of evidence we have points to just one objective, to stir up dissension and create turmoil among our poor."

He said the confiscated material will be made available to Washington, including congressional investigators, and that it will be used to try and convince the Office of Economic Opportunity that federal funds should be withdrawn from the Appalachian Volunteers and VISTA.

"We have good evidence that government funds are being used to promote causes aimed at downgrading and maybe overthrowing the government," Ratliff said.

He said his investigation will continue and that it will include interviews with local young people who have been "indoctrinated" by McSurely and Mulloy.

Works by and about Lenin, Marx, Mao Tse-tung, Castro and other Communist leaders were among the books seized, Ratliff said. Others dealt with Russian short stories, Socialist thought and the so-called Berkeley student revolt at the University of California. These were paperbacks and are available at some bookstores.

Ratliff said he also found instructions on how to use weapons and how to fight guerrilla wars. Correspondence taken included letters in which certain teachers were favored for the Pike County school system.

"They have been getting real close to our young people," Ratliff said. "They have what they call the Marrowbone Folk School out in the county which I understand is an indoctrination school."

"They have helped get boys into the Neighborhood Youth Corps and they have taken some young people to civil rights meetings in Chicago and other places."

Convicted in 1954 Case

The habeas corpus motions to free the McSurelys will attack the validity of the sedition charges in view of decisions holding that states cannot enforce sedition laws. One such decision dealt with a sedition conviction in Kentucky against Braden, head of SCEF, who called the state sedition statute "unconstitutional, invalid and void."

Braden was convicted in 1954 on charges of advocating sedition after the bombing of a Negro home in a previously all-white neighborhood in Louisville. Braden had sold the home to the Negro. The conviction was later set aside by the state Court of Appeals after the U.S. Supreme Court ruled in a Pennsylvania case that the states do not have the authority to bring such charges.

The SCEF headquarters was moved to Louisville in 1966 from New Orleans. In 1963, police raided the New Orleans headquarters and claimed to have found subversive literature. The U.S. Supreme Court overturned prosecution arising from the Louisiana raid.

Ratliff said the prosecution may base its case on the theory that states can punish violators of state sedition laws.

'Exaggeration,' Braden Says

Ratliff said the Smith Act, which pre-empted states from enforcing state sedition laws, was found unconstitutional by the Supreme Court and, because of this, the state can now enforce state sedition statutes.

"That is an exaggeration," Braden said. "The Smith Act is still on the books, in case Mr. Ratliff is not up on his law."

Mulloy made a statement on his release deploring "this travesty of justice." He said Ratliff, the Republican nominee for lieutenant-governor, was trying to gain politically on the issue.

Tom Bethel, information officer for the Appalachian Volunteers, said the organization is dedicated to building, not overthrowing, the government.

"We are interested in working with local, county, state and federal officials to improve living conditions in Appalacia," he said.

"We do not always agree with the elected officials in the area, but we do respect the fact that they are elected. In return, we hope they will respect our constitutional right of dissent. Dissent and sedition are two very different things, and we hope this will be recognized in Pike County."

IMMEDIATE RELEASE

Grass Roots League, Inc., Box 551, Charleston, South Carolina

Charleston, December 20 - "Michael (called Martin) Luther King (exposed as a fraud by an editorial in the Columbia, S. C. STATE, July 13, 1966), apostle of violent non-violence, may be a traitor as well as a fraud", reports the Research Department of the Grass Roots League, Inc. "King apparently was influenced in his law-defying activities by such Communist-fronters as Benjamin E. Mays, negro, president of Morehouse College; Allan Knight Chalmers (formerly treasurer of the NAACP); and Rev. Howard Thurman, negro, dean of Boston University Chapel. Also, FBI Director, J. Edgar Hoover, called King 'the most notorious liar in the country' at a press conference in August, 1964 (NEWS & COURIER, August 19, 1964). Also, King had as aides one Hunter Pitts O'Dell, a negro member of the National Committee of the Communist Party, USA, and Red-affiliated Bayard Rustin, negro rabble-rouser.

"Moreover, THE AUGUSTA COURIER, October 30, 1967, reports that the Lynchburg, Va., NEWS of October 6, 1967, published an editorial revealing that the FBI has compiled a secret report that its agents '...secured evidence that King was receiving large sums of money from a well-known American Communist agent, who gives King instructions which he implicitly obeys'. Also, '...when the FBI agents had King under surveillance they observed him meet a well-identified Soviet espionage agent at the Kennedy Airport in New York'. This editorial states that the NATIONAL OBSERVER, February 15, 1966, declared that the Justice Department at first refused to turn this file over to the House Committee on Un-American Activities, but now this shocking report is in the Committee's hands.

"In spite of these disclosures, King continues his defiance of law and order, and has recently held a meeting of some 80 leaders of his Southern Christian Leadership Conference at the notorious bi-racial Penn School at Frogmore, Beaufort County, South Carolina. Why did King select Penn School as a meeting place for his Southern Christian Leadership Conference leaders to plot anti-American activities (civil disobedience) against the U. S. A.? Courtney Siceloff, head of Penn Center, also has been chairman of the South Carolina Council on Human Relations which is one of the 12 Councils on Human Relations in 12 Southern states established by the Southern Regional Council of Atlanta, Georgia.

"The Southern Regional Council (SRC), a bi-racial, pro-integration organization, according to the Communist DAILY WORKER of December 1, 1954, had as one of its founders James E. Jackson, Jr., negro, a top official of the Communist Party USA. In 1944, the SRC was incorporated and has been financed mainly by the Fund for the Republic, which received $15,000,000.00 from the Ford Foundation. The Southern Regional Council had two known Communists on its Board of Directors and, at least, 38 officers, members of the executive staff or directors of the SRC have known records of association with organizations cited as Communist fronts by either the Attorney General or the HCUA, it was reported in THE AUGUSTA COURIER of September 26, 1955. Hence, the SRC's branch, South Carolina Council on Human Relations, which has been located at 1330 Laurel Street, Columbia, S. C., must be a Red suspect, presumably implicating Courtney Siceloff, who has been chairman.

"Another connecting link between Southern Regional Council and the Penn School is the fact that James McBride Dabbs, after serving as president of the SRC (elected 1957) was named chairman of the Penn Trustees in April, 1964.

"A raid on the Southern Conference Educational Fund New Orleans headquarters by Louisiana authorities in 1963 yielded a number of important documents revealing the inter-locking connections of Communist and other subversive leaders.

"Both the Southern Regional Council and the SCEF have been disclosed as subversive organizations, successors of the defunct Communist-front Southern Conference for Human Welfare. Also, James McBride Dabbs, before serving as president of the SRC was listed in the 1955 'call for a general meeting of the SCEF' as a member of its Advisory Committee. Documents seized from the SCEF show that M. L. King has been working closely with this subversive organization, even accepting its money for travelling expenses. At the same time, King has held his SCLC Conferences in 1965 and 1967 at the SRC-allied Penn School.

"One of King's principal aides, Rev. Fred L. Shuttlesworth, negro, in 1963 was named president of the SCEF. Three years later, the Red character of the SCEF was firmly established by the appointment of an identified Communist, Carl Braden, as its executive director. A letter written by King in October, 1959, invites Carl and Anne Braden, both Communists, to join the SCLC.

"That M. L. King, who was a protegé of Dr. Benjamin E. Mays, president of Morehouse College where King studied, is believed under the control of Mays is revealed by two letters written by Aubrey Williams, known Communist and president-emeritus of the SCEF. Benjamin E. Mays ('Benny Mays'), negro, has a public record of affiliation with some 25 fronts of which 'seven were Communist Party fronts operating amongst the negroes'.

"Do the Communist-inspired, 'black power' negroes following King's leadership realize that their revolutionary activities against the American Republic constitute TREASON by 'giving aid and comfort' to the Soviet Union, the enemy of the United States of America? The punishment for treason is death.

"J. Edgar Hoover, FBI Director, in a report to the Senate Internal Security Subcommittee January 22, 1960, stated '...the Communist Party is not interested in the welfare of the negro, but only in using him as a tool to advance Party interests'."

The Birchers Expose Another Plot

THE STAR of the John Birch Society seems to be dimming. One rarely hears from the organization any more these days, and that's a pity, because we need a bit of comic relief as we assess the gloomy political landscape, both foreign and domestic.

In keeping with the season, however, the Society has delivered us a handsome gift in its assessment of the Nixon Administration. A recent piece in the Society's monthly publication, American Opinion, is entitled "A Worried Look At the Nixon Administration." The piece concludes the President, once an anti-communist with impeccable credentials, is in fact being controlled by "leftist insiders." These include not only those professors who are suspect by their very occupation — Henry Kissinger and Daniel P. Moynihan — but such Cabinet officers as Secretary of State Rogers, Secretary of Housing Romney, Secretary of Treasury Kennedy, Chief Justice Burger, and Atty. Gen. Mitchell (!). Doubtless some local citizens will find comfort that our PMG Blount was omitted from the Birch Society's rogues gallery.

In yet another Birch publication the Society's guru, the former candy manufacturer Robert Welch, makes the startling disclosure that the nomination of Barry Goldwater in 1964 "fitted very neatly into the Communist strategy." This he deduced from the fact that a West Coast communist-oriented newspapers had published a picture of Goldwater giving a clenched-fist salute. This, in Welch's view, was "a direct message to the faithful . . . that despite any public appearance to the contrary, the communist high command was NOT opposing Goldwater's nomination, and neither should those in the ranks below."

We once suggested that the Birch Society's ultimate conspiratorial conclusion might be that false teeth are a communist trick to get the people to eat. It appears they have even topped that one.

In 1914 They Called Foundations Reactionary

The current controversial investigation of philanthropic foundations has brought the cry of unfairness by the foundations themselves and echoes in Congress. The Reece inquiry panel, it is charged, has heard only the critics of foundations' work.

Rep. Wayne L. Hays (D-O), likens the probe to "an Alice in Wonderland investigation in which a verdict against foundations was entered before the evidence was heard."

Whatever conclusions the committee reaches, the last inquiry, headed by Georgia's late Rep. Eugene Cox, was only two years ago. After hearing more than 40 witnesses, the panel reported favorably on the work of the foundations. In its conclusions was the following interesting commentary:

"It seems paradoxical that in previous congressional investigations in 1914, the fear most frequently expressed was that the foundations would prove the instruments of vested wealth, privilege and reaction, while today the fear most frequently expressed is that they have become the enemy of the capitalistic system. In our opinion, neither of these fears is justified."

The Reece committee report, according to the foundations and the panel members themselves, would have to be adverse. Most of the witnesses were against their work.

Financed by the most conservative interests in America, most of whom supported Eisenhower, the foundations have been guilty of furthering the health, education and living standards of millions of Americans. Their few mistakes are far outweighed by the good they've accomplished.

IN COOPERATION WITH THE COMMISSION ON PUBLIC INFORMATION OF THE METHODIST CHURCH

Return to HCF

The Rev. L. Blake Craft, Clayton, Ga., was given a year's suspension from the Methodist ministry July 8 by a 13-member jury of ministers of the North Georgia Annual Conference of the Methodist Church. The suspension lasts until the opening session of the 1955 Annual Conference session next June.

The church court found Mr. Craft, editor of "One Methodist Voice," guilty of "unchristian tempers, words or actions" and "imprudent and unministerial conduct." The trial lasted six days. A total of 62 witnesses were heard.

Mr. Craft and his counsel, the Rev. J. Ed Fain of Moultrie, Ga., said they will take the case to the Committee on Appeals of the Southeastern Jurisdictional Conference of the Methodist Church. Mr. Craft said, "We have good grounds for an appeal to the appelate court of the conference...My conscience is clear..."

Mr. Craft was given a sabbatical leave at the 1953 annual conference. At that time the conference condemned his publication and expressed "complete confidence in the Christian integrity and patriotic loyalty of our brethren who have been attacked by 'One Methodist Voice'."

The matter was placed before the Annual Conference again last month when a group of ministers presented charges against Mr. Craft. These were studied by the conference committee of investigation which reported that Mr. Craft was liable to trial under the Discipline of the Church for "unchristian tempers, words or actions; disobedience to the order and discipline of the church; and imprudent or unministerial conduct."

The committee of investigation gave the following specifications to the charges: (1) The Rev. L. Blake Craft publishes a paper, "One Methodist Voice." (2) It is not a parish paper, nor a paper to aid ministers in the conduct of their work. It injures the effectiveness of the work of his ministry, hampers the work of his fellow ministers and damages the good name of the Methodist Church. (3) The paper is not distributed to subscribers only, but is sent out by subsidy as propaganda to both ministers and laymen. The effect has been and is to create confusion among laymen. (4) There is evidence to the effect that the accused has violated the vows of his ordination.

The trial was held at First Methodist Church in Atlanta, with the Rev. Dr. Claud M. Haynes, Atlanta, presiding. The Rev. Dr. Waights G. Henry, LaGrange, was counsel for the church and the Rev. Dr. Harvey C. Holland, Atlanta, was assistant counsel for the church. The trial was behind closed doors, a traditional Methodist court procedure.

MORE

The following verdict of the trial court was read by the Rev. Frank Q. Echols, Augusta, secretary of the jury.

"PREAMBLE; We, the Trial Court, recognize the right of the individual as an American citizen and minister in the Methodist Church. We are not in opposition to Rev. L. Blake Craft publishing a paper, nor his personal fight against Communism, for which he is not charged.

"We point out, also, that the Methodist Church is definitely against Communism.

"VERDICT: Under the charges set forth by the Committee on Investigations of the North Georgia Conference, under paragraph 921, Section (a) (b) and (c) Discipline 1952, we find the defendant, Rev. L. Blake Craft, guilty of the following charges:

"1. Section (a) paragraph 921, "unchristian tempers, words or actions.

"2. Section (c) paragraph 921 "imprudent and unministerial conduct.

"We specify his use of 'One Methodist Voice' as a means to personally attack his brother ministers to discredit the leadership of his conference and to confuse the laymen of the church, creating doubt in their minds by the dissemination of inflamatory writings.

"We point out that the guilt is substantiated by various and sundry evidence given during the trial.

"PENALTY: We specify the penalty to be suspension from the exercise of the functions of his office, effective from this date to continue until the opening date of the Annual Conference of the North Georgia Conference in the year 1955."

The document was signed by the Rev. J. Foster Young, Atlanta, foreman of the jury, and Mr. Echols.

Sec - Criticism

ANNOUNCER: Ladies and Gentlemen, Station W.I.L.D. calls your attention to the fact that the following program is purchased by the American States Rights Association. The views andopinions expressed are not necessarily those of this radio station.

This is Ace Carter, speaking for the American States Rights Association with the history you and I are making. The growing activity in the South From the extreme racist groups has reached stepped-up activity and new organizations are appearing almost daily apparently well-financed. They seemingly never lack for funds. Many of them attracting attention to their product of propaganda, while others are working quietly to promote from various angles the integration of the races. Much of these supplied funds for the propaganda work is forthcoming from foundations of one sort or another, tax exempt usually. Some money in the operation, mongrelization, is being passed through (to) the organization of so-called political action groups, who receive their (funds) from indistinct sources. Some national labor bosses are investing in the integration scheme apparently on the theory that the colored bloc will afford them added personal power, great power. As it has to some politicians in Washington, D. C. and no questions asked.

Across the Southland, the great social fixer, the dowdy race expert, the men with hot hand, eager for personal power through the colored bloc, the pompous ones, who step aboard the power wagon for social and publicity reasons and the wet eyed hysteric who wants every Negro and white integrated in to a cauldron of what he thinks is the end to life's problems; and behing them in the center of the widening ring as described by Senator Jenner is the master of the show, the communists, whipping up the fools and the lackeys, steering the line of communist race relations, meaning integration, pointing out every flaw in America, the inequities of racial separatists, urging the dupes that the house of Americans be burned down and that the races must be destroyed and the barriers broken in order to correct the flaws.

The clue to the mast of the show is the affiliations of these people who are working in (for) the great experiment of race integration, for they have in the past blinded themselves to everything else and worked so closely with the communists that their organizations and their work has been so flavored with the communists line that they have been duly listed as communist fronts, fronts ! for the Communist Party machinations to destroy America and yet they move on to other organizations, to still others, always carrying on the line, propaganda, developing techniques to c nvince you and me that race integration must be -- that mongrelization is ideal, is demanded of conscience and morals.

They are investigated, their label is (colored) for the communists and they move into another organization or form a new one and the attack upon the white people of the South does dnot cease. They make great due to the transmission belt of propaganda by which the communist line is passed through them and parceled out to the wire services to the so-called liberal newspapers, to schools, discussion groups, clubs, working to make the communists line of integration the pppular thought of the people. Every (city) of size and many smaller towns of the South are now carrying groups and organizations of the race integrationists on its back.

Birmingham, Alabama is no exception, it is beleaguered of several such groups of racists. They form under almost every conceivable name-- object, integration. Polite social name-- race relations. If one would just think back race relations were doing just fine in America until the communists became active in America in the thirties, and the race relations groups began to operate just a short time later.

The most recent group to form in Birmingham is a group which calls itself, the local chapter of ALABAMA COUNCIL on HUMAN RELATIONS, listed under the temporary leadership of Rev. Alfred W. Hobart of the Unitarian Church. The first meeting's discussion? Why, the Supreme court's decision, naturally, and its effect on race relations.

This organization, reportedly, is to affilia- affiliated with the Southern Regional Council, Incorpoarted. Yes, they are incorporated, now. The Southern Regional Council, Incorporated operates out of Atlanta and described in the Birmingham News as, quote-an organization of southerners of both races working in interest of all people in the South, Unquote. We would remind that many of the leaders of the Southern Regional Council's pedigree is hardly of theSouth. Working in the interest of southerners, a nice bed-time story. George Mitchell is director of the Southern Regional Council, Incorporated. George Mitchell has been affiliated with a notorious communist organization, the Civil Rights Congress. George Mitchell was a sponsor of that urgent summons to a meeting of the Civil Rights Congress held in Detroit when communists were being tried for advocating the overthrow of the United States Government. The House Committee on Unamerican Activities subpoenaed the records of the Political Action Committee and those records showed that George S. Mitchell was head of a region eight which includes Alabama. To quote a Georgia paper, one Methodist Voice, edited by Rev. Craft of Georgia- quote-- at a meeting held at the Atlanta Y.W.C.A September 9, 1952 under the sponsorship of the Friends Service Committee, another such group, a Negro man, when speaking to the group said in effect, that it was a shame that one could not present an effective program on peace in his community without being called a communist. The person presiding,according to a reliable source, said, we have a member of the Communist Party here, let's see what he has to say to that. George S. Mitchell arose and said: "I'm not talking to day but I will say that we will never get anywhere by moral force alone". I am still quoting. according to my source, George S. Mitchell did not deny that he was a member of the Communist Party. Unquote, You know, Rev. Craft hasn't been sued, yet, by Mitchell or anybody else.

George Mitchell belonged to (as) sponsor various vicious front organizations. Oh yes, they are interested in the people of the South, all right, very interested. Mitchell has been pictured and quoted quite fluently (frequently) in the Birmingham News with his admonitions to the white people to integrate with the Negores, stating that southerners are going to have to learn all about human dignity, and must be wretched (wrenched) into position. We understand that communists once they've mongrelized the mass into slavery by government has very very definite ideas on human dignity. The Southern RegionalCouncil, of course, is a typical race mixing propaganda group dominated by at least twenty (20) and perhaps more peoplewho have records ef (as) communist fronts and as vicious an array of communist front names you'll probably mot find anywhere ~~o~~ outside of Moscow and New York city.

There is the Negro, Rufus Clement, president of Atlanta University, having belonged to several communist front organizations and one of them, let's have a look at his fellow associates and members. Paul Robeson, Negro communist, John Gates, editor of the communist Daily Worker, and one of the eleven convicted communists, Alexander Tractenberg, who when convicted in New York, preferred to go to jail in the mean old capitalistic, prejudiced United States than to return to the good old integrated Soviet Russia, of which he wrote so glowingly about. Clement is on the Board of Education of Atlanta, helping to shape the thought of the children there, Negro and white children, both. A position of influence, he was aided mightily by leftist newspapers and magazines. There is Negro Benjamin Mays having belonged to communist fronts and so on, also a member of the Southern Regional Council.

All of this makes a nice affiliate, we suppose, for the Alabama Council on Human Relations in Birmingham. After all, it isn't too difficult to understand that the race mixing ideal is a communist ideal, Who else is there to work with, besides (aside) from those of the left and the communist fronts? So again, after these many years, the Southland is under definite attack. It has been for quite some time. That attack is being stepped up-- the minds (lives) of the people, their children and their future is under attack, quite different from the days of Reconstruction-- or we should say the days of destruction, - when the vultures descended to pick over the remains of a starved and outwardly helpless people. The vultures of a carpet bag and the racists found that the people of the South would never be defeated in their purpose and aim and now, again, the South is the object of the racist. The white people of the South are again faced with a desperate situation and invaded on every turn by the avowers of race integration. This time with the world power of the communists working for the mass integrationist. Still, the commie fronters come, they set up shop and the gullible and the weak join in and others become convinced they must integrate their children with the Negro. If ever a land deserved the tears and the devotion, it is the South. And through the years and in the past, it received that devotion and few tears from men and women of an era now dead but forever living and the proudest moments of any land and any people. We are again a trial geief of the South and it surely shall and then again and a hundred times if necessary-- its people could meet trial and write their moment in history and leave behind a Southland and an America for their children.

This is Ace Carter, and that is the history we are making. I thank you for your company.

COMMUNIST, NEGROES, AND INTEGRATION

The Communist Party has long been expert at the business of fishing in troubled waters - - the more troubled, the more to its liking.

The Communist Party is at it again today; and, unfortunately, the "Keep Off" signs have been taken down by order of the U.S. Supreme Court, in its decisions of June 17, 1957, affecting the Communist conspiracy.

If any of our society today may be properly characterized as troubled waters, it is unquestionably the issue raised by the Supreme Court's desegregation order of May 17, 1954. And there is no hazard in predicting that these waters will be troubled for a long time to come.

The situation is one which the Communists have welcomed eagerly. It offers them an almost unparalleled opportunity to exploit, for their own ulterior and revolutionary purposes, the inevitable social turbulence resulting from the Supreme Court's order for public school integration. Violent agitation is the meat on which Communism feeds.

THE BAIT: NEGRO LIBERATION

The bait on the Communist hook is "Negro liberation", a phrase which has been reiterated by Communist leaders with such frequency over the years that it has become a cliche. It matters not that liberation at the hands of Communists is demonstrably a cruel euphemism for a slavery worse than that from which Lincoln's Emancipation Proclamation freed Negroes. The Communists still approach the Negro people of the United States with the premise of liberation dangling from their hook.

As long ago as 1928, the Communist Party of the United States published a pamphlet written by John Pepper, the representative of the Communist International in the United States, in which Pepper said: - - "The Communists must participate in all national liberation movements of the Negroes which have a real mass character". (American Negro Problems, Page 14)

In a Communist pamphlet entitled "The Road to Negro Liberation", published in 1934, Harry Haywood writes about "Party leadership in the Negro liberation movement". (Page 62)

In 1937, the Communist Party issued a pamphlet entitled "The Road to Liberation for the Negro People", by Abrew W. Berry and others.

Ten years later, in 1947, Negro Communist leader Benjamin J. Davis, published his pamphlet entitled "The Path of Negro Liberation", in which he wrote:

"Consequently the Negro people are moving in the direction of some form of statehood in the Black Belt. This would mean an adjustment or rectification of the lines demarking 12 states through which runs the Black Belt area where the Negro people are in a majority.(Pages 19 and 20)

In 1948, Negro Communist leader Harry Haywood published a book entitled "Negro Liberation".

That "Negro Liberation" has priority on the Communist Party's agenda today is confirmed by the foremost Negro Communist leader in the United States. Writing in "Political Affairs", the theoretical magazine of the Communist Party, U.S.A., which lays down the Party line, Benjamin J. Davis declares:

"The struggle for Negro rights - - particularly in the deep South - - is the single most crucial and decisive issue in the United States today . . . . . The massive significance of the national liberation struggles of the Negro and colonial people, here and abroad, envelopes this work with additional importance.(Page 13)

NEGRO REPUBLIC IN THE BLACK BELT

The Communist slogan of "Negro Liberation" is simply a watered-down version of the Party's original slogan of "A Negro Republic in the Black Belt". The propaganda which the Communist Party conducted on thebasis of the latter slogan fell flat in its appeal to Negroes and only served to show how far the Kremlin's agents are removed from the realities of the American scene.

In October, 1930, the Communist International adopted a resolution "on the Negro Question in the United States". It was published in the United States by Workers Library Publishers, the publishing adjunct of the Communist Party, in a pamphlet entitled "The Communist Position on the Negro Question".

On the subject of an independent Negro republic in the Black Belt, the Comintern took the position that "as long as capitalism rules in the United States the Communists cannot come out against governmental separation of the Negro zone from the United States". (Page 51) But, in the event of the establishment of a Soviet Government in the whole United States, Communist Negroes would come out against "separation of the Negro Republic from federation with the United States", while unconditionally giving "the Negro population of the Black Belt freedom of choice even on this question".(Pages 50-51)

The Comintern's resolution held that there was a "prospective sharpening of the national conflicts in the South, with the advance of the national revolutionary Negro movement", and that in such a situation the Communist Party must "stand up with all strength and courage for the struggle to win independence and for the establishment of a Negro republic in the Black Belt.(Pages 51-52).

William Z. Foster points out that the "Program of the Communist International" declares for:

"The recognition of the right of all nations, irrespective of race, to complete self-determination, that is, self-determination inclusive of the right to State separation".(Toward Soviet America, Page 304)

Foster then applies this principle of self-determination and State separation (or secession from the United States) to the Negro population in the Black Belt, in the following statement:

"Accordingly, the right of self-determination will apply to Negroes in the American Soviet System. In the so-called Black Belt of the South, where the Negroes are in the majority, they will have the fullest right to govern themselves and also such white minorities as may live in the section".(ibid Page 304)

CONFISCATION

The program of the Communist Party calls for the confiscation of the property of the white people in the so-called Black Belt. According to William Z. Foster, writing in his book entitled "Toward Soviet America":

"In a Soviet system, the Negro will have the most complete equality - - economically, politically, socially . . . He will have ample land, confiscated from the great white landlords . . . Socialism will mean the first real freedom for the Negro. He is beginning to realize this, hence his mass turning to the Communist Party for leadership, and the consequent deep alarm of the capitalists and big landowners at this growing unity of white and black toilers" (Page 303)

There is no doubt about the Communist program of confiscation. But after 40 years of Communist agitation, there is no evidence of the "mass turning" of Negroes to the Communist Party - - a fact which William Z. Foster knows very well now, and which he knew very well when he wrote about it.

COMMUNIST AIM: RACIAL AMALGAMATION

In their franker moments, Communist leaders in the United States have stated bluntly that one of their aims is to bring about racial amalgamation. Thus, William Z. Foster, present head of the Communist Party in America declared in his book "Toward Soviet America".

"The American Soviet will, of course, abolish all restrictions upon racial intermarriage . . . The revolution will only hasten this process of integration, already proceeding throughout the world with increasing tempo."(Pages 305-306)

PENETRATING NON-COMMUNIST ORGANIZATIONS

In addition to building their own Party-controlled organizations, the Communist Party has from the beginning pursued a policy of sending its members into non-Communist organizations. Their own word for this type of activity is "penetration".

The Communist objectives in penetrating other groups are varied.

In some instances, the goal is outright control. In other instances, the objective is to disseminate and gain support for the views of the Party apparatus outside the immediate circle of Communists or, in other words, to win fellow travelers on specific issues. In yet other and rarer cases, the aim of penetration is to destroy the organization which is penetrated.

For more than 20 years, the Communist Party has pursued this tactic of penetration of non-Communist organizations and groups. With the current dwindling of its membership, the Party is pursuing the tactic more assiduously than ever. Recently, it has applied the tactic on a broad scale among scientists on the issue of radioactive fall-out.

It hopes to reap vast gains on the issue of integration in the public schools of the South. Communists measure their gains in terms of social turbulence, wherever they are permitted, they will penetrate non-Communist groups which favor federal intervention by force in the field of integration, hoping thereby to increase turmoil and incite to violence. The indispensable pre-conditions of Communist revolutionary sentiment are chaos and violence.

The Communist Party cared little or nothing about racial discrimination in the Queen's Hospital, about the fate of the Scottsboro boys or Julius and Ethel Rosenberg, about the Italian War against Ethiopia, or about the unemployed; it cares much about fishing in troubled waters. Only so can it serve its Kremlin master.

UNITED STATES HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES, SUB-COMMITTEE OF THE COMMITTEE ON UN-AMERICAN ACTIVITIES

Tuesday, July 29, 1958 Atlanta, Georgia

A sub-committee of the Committee on Un-American Activities met, pursuant to call, at 10:07 A.M., in the Courtroom Old Post Office Building, Atlanta, Georgia, Honorable Francis E. Walter (chairman) presiding.

Committee members present; Representatives Francis E. Walter of Pennsylvania; Edwin E. Willis of Louisiana; William M. Luck of Virginia; and Donald L. Jackson, of California.

Staff members present: Richard Arens, Staff Director, and George Williams and Frank Bonora, investigators.

Mr. Armando Penha, 22 Dover Street, Fairhaven, Massachusetts, an investigator of veteran's services for the City of New Bedford in the state of Massachusetts.

After being duly sworn to tell the truth, Mr. Penha answered in the following manner:

Mr. Arens: At the outset, Mr. Penha, may I ask you if you have ever been a member of the Communist Party and, if so, over what period of time?

Mr. Penha: I have been a member of the Communist Party from the very beginning of 1950 to March 1958.

Mr. Arens: Is it a fact, Mr. Penha, that during this period of time from 1950 until March of this year, you have served in the Communist Party at the behest of the Federal Bureau of Investigation?

Mr. Penha: That is correct, sir.

Mr. Arens: Why would the Communist Party covet the South in this colonization program.

Mr. Penha: The South, as far as the party is concerned, is a virgin territory. Insofar as that the party sees the potentials that exist here, the potentials are those that the party will exploit for their own gains. They will agitate and use every means within their command to raise political and economic issues of the Negro people in order to create mass agitation and foment discord at the same time.

Mr. Penha stated in a previous answer that Mr. Eugene Feldman, a member of the Industrial Commission was sent down to Alabama. As a result the following questioning ensued:

Mr. Chairman: You say he was sent. By whom was he sent?

Mr. Penha: He was sent by the national leadership of the Communist Party, sir. He was very instrumental in his own synagogue, teaching Sunday School to children, which is another party technique.

Note: Mr. Feldman was the editor of the Southern News letter and National Guardian, publications cited as being under Communist control July 9, 1956. Mr. Feldman took the first and fifth amendment on all pertinent questions.

Wednesday July 30, 1958, Atlanta,Ga.

Testimony of Carl Braden, accompanied by Counsel E. Eubank Tucker and John M. Coe.

Mr. Arens: Kindly identify yourself by name, residence and occupation.

Mr. Braden: My name is Carl Braden. I live at 4403 Virginia Avenue in Louisville, Kentucky. I am a worker in the integration movement in the South, having been employed by the Southern Conference Educational Fund,Inc. which is southwide interracial organization working to bring about integration, justice, and decency in the South.

Mr. Arens: In what capacity are you employed, Mr. Braden, with the Southern Conference Educational Fund?

Mr. Braden: I am employed as field secretary, and I am also associate editor of their newspaper, the Southern Patroit, which is a paper that disseminates information on integration in the South and about the people who are working for integration.

Mr. Arens: What was your last principal occupation?

Mr. Braden: I was a newspaper man, employed as a copy editor by the Louisville Courier-Journal.

Mr. Arens: How long did that employment endure?

Mr. Braden: I was employed on two different occasions. You mean my entire newspaper career?

Mr. Arens: Just the highlights, please, sir.

Mr. Braden: All right, I was a reporter and rewrite man for the Louisville Herald-Post from 1930 to 1936; a reporter for the Cincinnati Inquirer; city editor of the Hazon, Kentucky, Daily Enterprise; labor reporter for the Louisville Times; and then editor of the Courier Journal, in addition to being editor of several labor papers.

Mr. Arens: Would you give us now please just a word about your education?

Mr. Braden: I studied from 1928 to 1930 for the Catholic priesthood. I might add that I am now a member of the Episcopal Church.

Carl Braden and Frank Wilkerson surrendered to the U.S. Marshall in Atlanta, Georgia, May 1, 1961 to begin serving one-year sentences for contempt of Congress,(see photostat).

SOUTHERN CONFERENCE FOR HUMAN WELFARE

The first big penetration of the Communist Party into the South came with the launching of the Southern Conference for Human Welfare in November 1938. The launching took place in Birmingham, Alabama, with the blessings of the White House, Eleanor Roosevelt was the principal speaker.

On November 22, 1938, Mrs. Roosevelt, addressing the conference said: "The eyes of the world are upon us . . .The future of democracy rests with the nation's youth. Face the question with open minds and above all make sure a thing is true before accepting it as true. On this alone can we stake our hopes for democracy."

Franklin D. Roosevelt sent a letter to the Birmingham Conference, in which he said: " . . . if you steer a true course and keep everlastingly at it, the South will long be thankful for this day". (Report of Proceedings of the Southern Conference for Human Welfare, p. 29)

Paul Crouch, John Donovan, James Jackson, Robert F. Hall, and Don West - - all Communist Party members - - manipulated the conference from behind the scenes. William Z. Foster writes with unusual modesty: "Communist influence was strong in the Southern Conference for Human Welfare from the start and this was reflected in the advanced program it adopted". (The Negro People in American History, p. 487)

The first president of the Southern Council for Human Welfare was Frank P. Graham, then president of the University of North Carolina. Later presidents were John B. Thompson (of the Highlander Folk School Seminar) and Clark Forman (now director of the Communist-controlled Emergency Civil Liberties Committee). Throughout its existence, James A. Dombrowski has been an administrator of S.C.H.W.

The House Committee on Un-American Activities had something to do with the liquidation of the S.C.H.W., but the decisive factor in its demise was the switch from the wartime honeymoon of the Washington-Moscow axis to the Cold War.

Under date of March 29, 1944 the Dies Committee dubbed the S.C.H.W. a Communist front, and in a special report of the Committee on Un-American Activities, dated June 12, 1947, the following indictment of S.C.H.W. was made:

"Careful examination of its official publication and its activities will disclose that the conference is being used in devious ways to further basic Soviet and Communist policy. Decisive and key posts are in most instances controlled by persons whose record is faithful to the Soviet Union."(P. 1)

In a 1954 report, the Senate Internal Security Sub-Committee reached the following unanimous conclusion: "The Southern Conference for Human Welfare was conceived, financed, and set up by the Communist Party in 1938 as a mass organization to promote communism throughout the Southern States". (P.V)

Earl Browder, former general secretary of the Communist Party in the United States, in a public hearing, identified the Southern Conference for Human Welfare as one of the Communist Party's "transmission belts".

Under date of March 29, 1944, the Southern Conference for Human Welfare was cited by the Special Committee on Un-American Activities as a Communist front and, on June 12, 1947, by the Congressional Committee on Un-American Activities as a Communist-front organization", which seeks to attract southern liberals on the basis of its seeming interest in the problems of the South", although its professed interest in southern welfare is simply an expedient for larger aims serving the Soviet Union and its subservient Communist Party in the United States.

The Southern Conference Educational Fund, Inc., was initially an adjunct of the Southern Conference for Human Welfare. After the exposure of the Southern Conference for Human Welfare as a Communist front, it began to wither and was finally dissolved, but the Southern Conference Educational Fund, Inc., continued. The official paper The Southern Patroit, which was published by the Southern Conference for Human Welfare, was taken over by the Southern Conference Educational Fund, Inc., which professes the same ostensible purpose. (Senate hearings New Orleans, March 19,19 & 20)

SOUTHERN CONFERENCE EDUCATIONAL FUND

The Southern Conference Educational Fund, Inc.; hereafter referred to as SCEF, with home offices at 822 Perdido Street, New Orleans, Louisiana, is a Communist-controlled-front organization. It took the place of the Southern Conference for Human Welfare, which was formed in November, 1938 (in Birmingham, Alabama) at the direct instigation of the Communist Party in New York City. The original organizers were John Donovan, James E. Jackson, and Paul Crouch, all well-known Communist Party members. Jackson is still the Communist Party's main representative in the South. James Dombrowski was installed as its Executive Director and The Southern Patroit was established as its official propaganda and news organ.

Following a Federal investigation, which labelled the Southern Conference for Human Welfare as Communist organized and controlled, this organization was transformed in the twinkling of an eye into the SCEF. When this transformation occurred, nothing changed except the name. The SCEF retained the same office address, the same telephone number, the same publication, to wit; The Southern Patroit, with the same name, the same Executive Director, to wit; Dombrowski, the same officers generally. Thereafter, in 1954, following an extensive investigation of the SCEF, the Sub-committee on Internal Security of the United States Senate, in a unanimous report stated that the SCEF retained the same objective as the Southern Conference for Human Welfare, to wit; The Promotion of Communism in the South.

Subsequently Carl Braden and his wife, Anne, became field secretaries for the SCEF and editors of its publication, The Southern Patroit.

In 1959, the SCEF made an extensive survey of the State of Florida. Its representatives travelled 1,900 miles and visited 12 cities within the state. On this original survey trip, the SCEF's agents proposed the establishment of a co-ordinating committee set up by the SCEF to coordinate the efforts of the SCEF and other organizations in agitating the race issue. On November 19, 1959, the SCEF, through its official statement, announced the result of this survey and called for the organizational meeting to occur March 12, 1960 in Orlando, Florida. This meeting occurred on the date and at the place originally scheduled by the SCEF. The Committee, having enrolled a fictitious name, as a member of the SCEF, was of course aware that the meeting had been called and arranged for cooperative witnesses to attend.

Among the organizations which sent representatives to the meeting in Orlando on March 12, 1960, were the Florida Civil Liberties Union, Council on Human Relations, The NAACP, The Congress on Racial Equality, The Fellowship of Reconcilliation, The Emergency Civil Liberties Committee and the Committee to Secure Amnesty for Morton Sobel. Braden and Dombrowski were present and took personal charge of the meeting. (Florida Legislative Investigation Committee to the 1961 Session of the Legislature)

Much has already been said about Aubrey Williams, president and James A.Dombrowski, executive director of the Southern Conference Educational Fund. It may be added that the names of both Williams and Dombrowski were attached to the brief amici curiae which was submitted to the United States Supreme Court, October 1955, Term, on behalf of the Communist Party, U.S.A. Their support of this brief amici curiae, written with a typical Communist flair, sufficiently reveals the idealogical position of these two principal officials of the SCEF.

As has already been indicated, the Southern Conference Educational Fund exerts a commanding influence in the South today, and is in the vanguard of the pro-Communist integration forces. The principal function of the Southern Conference Educational Fund is to serve as a bridge between the Communist Party on the one hand and misguided Southern Liberals on the other hand. In this fuction, it has been remarkably successful.

The below-named persons were identified in the hearings, held in New Orleans, March 18, 19 and 20 by the Special Committee on Un-American Activities, as former officials of the Southern Conference on Human Welfare, who are or have been officials of the Southern Educational Fund, Inc.

SOUTHERN REGIONAL COUNCIL

On October 4, 1940, the Commission on Interracial Cooperation, Inc., instructed its Executive Committee " to take whatever steps are necessary to carry out the plans for the development of a council on southern regional development," which would include in its program the work of the Commission and other activities connected with the economic, educational, and social development of the South.

On January 6, 1944, after many months of work, and following the developments and instruction growing out of the conference of Southern Negroes, held in Durham, North Carolina October 20, 1942, the conference of Southern whites held in Atlanta, Georgia, April 8, 1943, and the conference of Negroes and whites held in Richmond, Virginia, June 16, 1943, the Southern Regional Council was incorporated. At the meeting of the incorporators of the Southern Regional Council held in Atlanta, Georgia, February 11, 1944, charter members of the SRC were designated: all members of the Commission on Interracial Cooperation and all active participants in one or more of the conferences leading to the formation of the Southern Regional Council.

On February 16, 1944, the Commission on Interracial Cooperation met in Atlanta at a special meeting and took the following action:

> It being made to appear to the meeting that all of the Commissions obligations and liabilities have been fully discharged, and further that the Southern Regional Council, having been duly incorporated to carry on the work with ideals and program similar to those of this corporation: It was, upon motion duly made and seconded - Resolved that the corporation transfer and convey to the Southern Regional Council, Inc. a corporation of Fulton County, Georgia, all of its property of every nature whatsoever and wherever situated, absolutely and in fee simple.
> On the same date charter members of the Southern Regional Council met in Atlanta, adopted by-laws, elected officers, and formulated the initial policy of the organization.

ITS PROGRAM AND METHODS

The Southern Regional Council will operate in all of the states of the South in an effort to improve the regions economic, civic, social and racial conditions.

It proposes to promote greater unity among people and agencies in all efforts for regional and racial adjustment; to attain, through research and action, progress and equal opportunity for all people; to reduce race tensions, misunderstanding, distrust; to develop and integrate leadership in the South on new levels of national, regional and racial development. These are its long time goals.

For its immediate objectives the SRC proposes to perfect its organization, to conserve and enlarge the scope of work now being done by the local and state interracial bodies; to take the preliminary steps necessary to bring about a realization of the long-time goals mentioned above, and to give immediate attention to war and postwar problems in the South.

The SRC plans to operate through several commissions in the fields of human relations, economic affairs, community welfare, public affairs, and cultural development.

The programs under these commissions will be sponsored with the aid of approximately 100 elected Fellows of the SRC, selected from the several states, and with the cooperation of local and regional religious, social and economic groups.

One of the chief purposes of the SRC will be the development of new techniques and strategies for meeting constructively the problems of the region. To achieve this end the SRC will encourage the development of action groups at local, state and regional levels; recruit and develop leadership; develop necessary research through the universities and colleges of the region; seek to remold and articulate public opinion through the radio, press, speakers and publications; cooperate with and stimulate action in the region from Federal, state and local governments; conduct special experiments and programs in an effort to effect desirable changes in the South; render such specialized services as may be necessary in this connection; render such emergency services as may be necessary; hold technical conferences, promote fuller participation in democratic processes in the South.

The Southern Regional Council is the recipient of the largest single grant ever awarded by the Ford Foundation's, "Fund for the Republic", having received as of 1956, a total of $445,000.00 "in support of the studies and activities to promote interracial improvements in the South", (See Fund for the Republic's Three Year Report, May 1956, Page 22) An additional $200,000.00 was awarded according to American Legion's "Firing Line", February 1, 1958, and Florida Legislative Investigation.

Records of the American Legion's Americanism Commission, Florida Legislative Investigation Committee reports of 1959 and 1961 discloses that directors of the Southern Regional Council have, in the past, supported the subversive Southern Conference for Human Welfare and the SouthernConference Educational Fund.

From 1947 through 1957, Director of the Southern Regional Council was Dr. George S. Mitchell, former Southeastern Regional Director of the C.I.O. Political Action Committee.

The Southern Regional Council issues a monthly magazine, New South, which has featured articles by Stetson Kennedy, writer for the Communist Daily Worker, and Federated Press Communist news service.

Today the Southern Regional Council has expanded its activities into twelve (12) States. Virtually supported by the grants from the "Fund for the Republic", it has organized "Councils on Human Relations", with interracial boards and staffs in the following states: Alabama, Arkansas, Florida, Georgia, Kentucky,

Louisiana, Mississippi, North Carolina, South Carolina, Tennessee, Texas and Virginia

The Ford Foundations, Fund for the Republic, Inc., Two Year Report issued May 31, 1958, reveals the following facts relative to the Southern Regional Council's source of funds, and its affiliation with Councils on Human Relations in the Southern States:

September 1956 - $110,000.00 "To support the expansion of the educational work of the Council in twelve Southern States, and to assist the central office in Atlanta for the fiscal year ending Sept. 30, 1957." (Quote, Fund for Republic, May 31, 1958)

May 1957 - $200,000.00 "To support the Council's educational program in the South for the three year period beginning October 1,1957 or such longer period as Council may determine".(Quote, Fund for Republic, May 31, 1958)

September 1957 $1,500.00 "To help defray the cost of the staff work of the Arkansas Council on Human Relations in its work in Western Arkansas". (Quote, Fund for Republic May 31, 1958)

The Alabama Organ of the Southern Regional Council is the "Alabama Council on Human Relations", offices in the Comer Building, Birmingham, Alabama. Rev. Robert Hughes, Methodist Minister, formerly residing on 3209 Ridgley Drive, Cahaba Heights, was the Executive Director through 1960. (See Alabama Council on Human Relations for further details)

The Southern Regional Council was represented at the Highlander Folk School Seminar, Labor Day week-end, August 30 - Sept. 7, 1957 at Monteagle, Tennessee by Fred B. Routh. Mr. Routh bears the title of Assistant Director of the Southern Regional Council. Notorious Communists, veteran Communist fellow travelers, and Negro leaders in all the recent major incidents attending integration were present at the Highlander Folk School, 25 anniversary on "the human aspects of the integration struggle."

The Highlander Folk School at Monteagle, Tennessee, was organized around 1932 by Myles Horton and Don West. (See testimony of Paul Crouch, May 6,1949, Sub-committee of the Committee on Un-American Activities, Page 193). In his testimony, Mr. Crouch said: "I would like to mention in this connection that the Highlander Folk School at Monteagle, Tennessee, was a school organized by Myles Horton and Don West, and which Mr. James Dombrowski shortly thereafter joined".

Paul Crouch, who gave the foregoing testimony concerning the Highlander Folk School, was the top Communist functionary in the South. His Communist record given to the Senate Committee by Crouch himself attests his importance.

In the early period of the Highlander Folk School, Alton Lawrence was a member of its faculty. On August 13, 1938, Mr. John P. Frey, president of the Metal Trades Department of the A.F.L., testified before the Dies Committee on Un-American Activities, and named Elizabeth Hawes, Alton Lawrence and Myles Horton as persons who "attended a secret convention in North Carolina, at which time plans were made for spreading the revolutionary theories throughout the South". Mr. Frey further testified: "In connection with this I might mention that the Highlander Folk School at Monteagle, Tennessee, was mixed up in this secret convention, in which three C.I.O. organizations took a very prominent part". (See Dies Committee Hearings, Volume 1, Page 126)

Myles Horton was ejected by the United States Marshall from the witness stand and the hearing room, for disorderly conduct at the New Orleans hearings of the Senate Committee, on March 20, 1954.

Don West, who has already been mentioned as connected with the Highlander Folk School, was district director of the Communist Party of North Carolina. (See House Committee Hearing, May 6, 1949, Page 191)

In March 1954, the Senate Sub-committee on Internal Security held hearings in New Orleans on the subject of Southern Conference Educational Fund, Inc., of which James Dombrowski was and is Executive Director. Among the witnesses who testified before the Senate Sub-committee on Internal Security in New Orleans was one John Butler who had formerly been a functionary of the Communist Party in Alabama.

In the course of his testimony, Mr. Butler stated that he attended a meeting of Communist Party Leaders in July of 1942, in the Thomas Jefferson Hotel in Birmingham, Alabama. Mr. Butler stated that Alton Lawrence introduced James Dombrowski on that occasion as a Communist Party member. (See Senate Subcommittee on Internal Security Hearings, March 18, 1954, Page 45) According to Mr. Butler, this meeting of the Communist Party leaders was held in Dombrowski's own hotel room. In November, 1956 Alton Lawrence was indicted on a charge of conspiring to file a false non-Communist affidavit with the National Labor Relations Board, which non-Communist affidavit is required of trade union officials by the Taft-Hartley Act. (New York Times November 17, 1956) James Dombrowski along with Aubrey Williams, were signers of the brief amici curiae submitted to the United States Supreme Court, 1955 Term, on behalf of the Communist Party, U.S.A.

The presence of a prominent Communist Party Negro leader at the Highlander Folk School Seminar is of major significance. Through Abner W. Berry, the Communist Party established personal contacts with the Southern Leaders of the Fight for Integration. The Party, in its present-day strategy, sets the highest value on such personal contacts. It is the current strategy of penetration. Abner W. Berry is a veteran Communist Party leader with over 25 years service.

Another individual who has a long record of Communist affiliations and activity was also a prominent participant in the Labor Day week-end Conference at the Highlander Folk School, namely Pete Seeger. Pete Seeger has been prominently identified with the Communist Movement for many years.

The Reverend John B. Thompson was billed as a Seminar Director at the Highlander Folk School Labor Day week-end affair. Thompson is Dean of the Rockefeller Memorial Chapel at the University of Chicago.

From 1940 to 1942, John B. Thompson was head of the Southern Conference for Human Welfare, a Communist Organization.

Aubrey Williams, Montgomery, Alabama, and the Rev. Martin Luther King were the two featured speakers at the closing session of the Highlander Folk School Seminar.

According to Abner W. Berry's account of the Highlander Folk School Seminar in the Daily Worker (Sept. 10, 1957, Page 5) Aubrey Williams spoke "prophetically" when he declared that the present situation in the South "is only a short step to general violence" and that the "stuff out of which rebellions are made is definitely being planted".

The Rev. Martin Luther King, President of the Montgomery, Alabama Improvement Association and Pastor of the Dexter Avenue Baptist Church, delivered the closing address at the Highlander Folk School Seminar.

King is the nationally acclaimed Negro leader of the integration forces in the South. Leading Communists have been writing enthusiastically about King's movement. Writing in Political Affairs, James E. Jackson (one of the top Negro leaders of the Communist Party) says:

> "It has for decades been the honorable (sic) task of Communists to set a high standard of devotion to and energetic leadership in the fight for Negro rights. Recognizing the special national character of this question, we have raised our voices among the workers when others stood mute." (Resolution presented to the 16th National Convention of the Convention of the CPUSA by James E. Jackson, chairman, Sub-committee on Negro Rights, Political Affairs, March 1957, Page 34)

Mrs. Rosa Parks was in attendance at the Highlander Folk School. It was Mrs. Parks who started the Montgomery bus boycott. Shortly prior to her dramatic defiance of the segregation ordinance, Mrs. Parks had taken a course at Highlander Folk School. Mrs. Parks promptly became a heroine to the Communists. The Emergency Civil Liberties Committee, a Communist front, arranged meetings for her in New York City, including one at the home of Mr. & Mrs. Corliss Lamont.

Charles G. Gomillion, Dean of Tuskegee Institute, Tuskegee, Alabama and Director Southern Regional Conference, was one of the prominent participants in the Labor Day Conference at the Highlander Folk School.

As president of the Tuskegee Civic Association, Gomillion received a considerable amount of publicity in the nations press and the summer of 1957, in connection with his leadership of a Negro boycott against the white merchants of the town of Tuskegee.

Dean Gomillion's pro-Communist connections have been significant. In testimony before the House Committee on Un-American Activities on July 21, 1947, he was identified as a current member and Secretary of the Advisory Board of the Southern Negro Youth Congress, an outright Communist organization. (See biographical data for further associations)

Others present, included Rev. David A. Brooks, Protestant Episcopal high church clergyman (Negro), speaker at the Highlander Folk School Seminar. He was a leader of the Tallahassee bus boycott which occurred during the last seven months of 1956.

Allen McSwain (Negro) was a speaker who represented the Clinton, Tennessee school incident.

Bernice Robinson, also a speaker at the Highlander Folk School Seminar, discussed the Johns Island, South Carolina, integration incident.

Conrad Browne (white) who addressed the Birmingham Council on Human Relations, October 8, 1957, was present representing Koinonia Farm, an interracial colony near Americus, Georgia. This interracial community has been an incitement to prolong violence.

Ralph Helstein, President of the United Packing House Workers of America, AFL-CIO, was also a speaker. This union has been heavily infiltrated by known Communist.

Reverend C. H. Oliver, Chairman of the Alabama Council on Human Relations, was in charge of the meeting. The meeting was titled "Second Annual Cultural Meeting for Elementary Teachers". The theme for discussion being "Educating Children in an Anxious World".

Reverend Oliver is regular in attendance at the meetings of the Shuttlesworth and Martin Luther King groups of which Shuttlesworth is President, Eddie Gardner, Mt. Olive Baptist Church, First Vice President, and Reverend Abraham Woods, Pastor of the First Metropolitan Baptist Church, second Vice President.

At a meeting, May 1, 1961 at the Bethel Church in Ensley, Rev. Oliver reported:

"The Southern Regional Council, in Atlanta sends word that:

Mary Frances Early, a music teacher, had been approved for graduate study in music this summer - - she will be the first Negro to attend summer school at said university.

William D. Jones, an instructor at Abram's High School in Bessemer had received a Federal scholarship to study French. He is the first Negro from this area to receive one of these scholarships.

Three Negroes were accepted for the fall term at Georgia Tech."

Each Communist affiliation above referred to is properly shown by sworn testimony to be an act or association on the part of the individuals referred to that furthered the Communist aims in this country. This is not to infer, and there is no assumption that any of the individuals or organizations listed is a Communist because of his or their Communist affiliations, unless the Communist Party itself is listed as one of his affiliations. It is, however, absolute proof that the various individuals listed have knowingly aided the Communist cause in this country in the total number of times and ways listed as his Communist affiliations.

There seems to be little excuse for any reasonably well-informed citizen to continue association with these organizations, unless said association is knowingly intended.

ALABAMA COUNCIL ON HUMAN RELATIONS

The Alabama Organ of the Southern Regional Council is the Alabama Council on Human Relations, with offices in the Comer Building, Birmingham, Alabama. The Birmingham Chapter of the Alabama Council on Human Relations was organized in 1956.

Since its inception meetings have been held in various places including the Chamber of Comm. Building, Negro Miles College and prior to November 4, 1957, meetings were held at the Negro Y.M.C.A., 326 South 18th Street, Birmingham, Ala.

Executive Director of the Alabama Council on Human Relations was Reverend Robert E. Hughes. Hughes is a Methodist Minister in the North American Conference. Hughes formerly lived at 3209 Ridgley Drive, Cahaba Heights, Birmingham, Alabama. Hughes was born in Gadsden, Alabama - educated in Gadsden Public Schools, University of Alabama and Emory University, Atlanta, Georgia.

Rev. Hughes lived in Birmingham before he left to study languages necessary for his assignment in Africa. Rev. Hughes was assigned this post after the publicity received from his having been jailed in Bessemer, Alabama for contempt by the Grand Jury investigating his activities, September 2, 1960. Hughes refused to answer questions pertaining to the Council on Human Relations.

Mr. John Hall Jones, former professor at Howard College was President of the Alabama Council on Human Relations during 1956.

The Birmingham News of January 17, 1957 quotes Reverend Alfred W. Hobart, Minister of the Unitarian Church, Birmingham, Alabama, as President.

The Birmingham News of January 17, 1957, Page 2 lists the following directors: (Quote) "The Greater Birmingham Council is a part of a statewide organization. Its Board of Directors is composed of Perry Daugherty, Dr. Roger Hanson, Robert Johnson, Dr. Beryl McClasky, William Mitch, Rev. J. L. Ware, Rev. [illegible]llson, Mrs. H. C. Bryant, Peter Cowin, Justine Barker, Dr. Fredrick Kraus, [illegible]e White, Mrs. James Battle, Dr. John Hall Jones, John Martin, Mrs. R. M. Ho[illegible], Emory Jackson and Arthur Shores.

The Alabama Council on HumanRelations met February 14, 1957 [illegible] Stillman College, a Negro Presbyterian Institution in Tuscaloosa, Alabama and elected the following officers:

Chairman:	Dr. Duncan Hunter, Pastor of the First Methodi[illegible]rch, Alexander City, Alabama.
Vice Chrmn:	C.G. Gomillion, Dean of Students, Tuskegee Institute, Tuskegee, Alabama (See Bibliography Southern Regional Council for affiliations)
Secretary:	William Irby, Sylacauga, Alabama
Treasurer:	J. E. Brooks, Alabama State Teachers College, Montgomery, Alabama.

On October 8, 1957 at a meeting held at the Negro Y.M.C.A., 328 South 18th Street, Birmingham, Alabama, Conrad Browne, Head of the infamous and illegally operated interracial Kiononia Farms located in Americus, Georgia, was the principal speaker. During the speech he made in part the following statement; "Some people accuse us of being Communist . . . Well, I guess we are - ".

On April 5, 1957, A Grand Jury in Sumter County, Georgia charged in a 20 page presentment that Koionia Farm "May be a front for the Communist Party". Summarizing its 7 day inquiry, the Grand Jury uncovered evidence the 1,100 acre interracial establishment had "close friends among known Communists and has entertained known Communists."

Mr. Conrad Browne, Director of Kiononia Farms attended the Highlander Folk School Seminar, Labor Day week-end, August 20 - Sept. 2, 1957 along with Aubrey Williams, Montgomery, Alabama publisher, Rev. Martin Luther King, Montgomery, Ala. minister, Mr. Fred B. Routh Assistant Director of the Southern Regional Council, Abner W. Berry, prominent Communist Party Negro, Pete Seeger, who has a long record of Communist affiliations and Rev. John B. Thompson, Seminar Director. Few clergymen have better claims to qualifications as veteran Communist fellow travelers than Rev. John B. Thompson, Dean of the Rockefeller Memorial Chapel at the University of Chicago.

Aubrey Williams, editor and publisher of the "Southern Farm and Home", Montgomery, Alabama which has a circulation of 800,000. Aubrey Williams with Martin Luther King were principal speakers at the Highland Folk School Seminar.

Aubrey Williams is a Past President of the Southern Conference for Human Welfare, President Southern Conference Educational Fund and signer of the amici curiae on behalf of the Communist Party, at the October 1955 Term of the U.S. Supreme Court.

Reverend Martin Luther King, former President of the Montgomery Alabama Improvement Association and former pastor of the Dexter Avenue Baptist Church, delivered the closing address at the Highlander Folk School Seminar. Leading Communists, Benjamin J. Davis, Herbert Apthiker and James E. Jackson write enthusiastically about King's movement.

Charles G. Gomillion, Director Southern Regional Conference, Vice Chairman Alabama Council on Human Relations, Dean of Tuskegee Institute, leader of the Tuskegee boycott, was one of the prominent participants in the Labor Day Conference at Highlander Folk School.(See Bibliography Southern Regional Council)

Another interesting member of the Council on Human Relations is:

Claude Williams, R.F.D. Helena, Alabama. The American Mercury magazine, issue of February, 1954 features an article by Dr. J. B. Matthews, "Reverend Claude Williams, a Communist Party member under the name "John Galey".

Williams record on file before the U.S. House of Representatives Committee on Un-American Activities is composed of seven single space type-written pages. His record places him as one of the most radical and revolutionary figures in the history of the Communist Party, U.S.A.

Claude Williams record - From the House Un-American Activities Committee - - Claude Williams left-wing radical record dates back to the early 1930's. In the early 30's he was minister of the First Presbyterian Church of Paris, Arkansas. During his ministry at this church, he carried a continuous campaign of agitation among farmers and workmen urging them to militant action by revolutionary means against our system of free enterprise. Finally, his congregation could no longer stomach his radicalism, particularly his advocacy of violent overthrow of our social, economic, and political systems, and expelled him from the Church.

In 1947 the Rev. Williams in company with six other American clergymen, visited Communist Russia-dominated Yugoslavia. Members of this group included Dr. Guy Emery Shiperland, Dr. William Howard Melish, individuals who like Rev. Williams have long records of support of Communist-front organizations. After returning from this trip, these despicable supposedly "Men of God" issued a report containing high praise of conditions in that Russian satellite, stating among other things, "that religious freedom exists in Yugoslavia". This in spite of the fact that irrefutable evidence from highly authoritative sources gives the lie to this report in toto.

Rev. Williams has been prominently connected with the Peoples Institute of Applied Religion, Inc., and organization cited by the United State's Attorney General as subversive and Communist, and identified in testimony before the U.S. House of Representatives Committee on Un-American Activities as one of the most vicious Communist groups in the United States. In this testimony Williams was named as Director of the Institute and its location was given as 4105½ - 3rd Avenue South, Birmingham, Alabama.

The Peoples Institute of Applied Religion has for its avowed objective the destruction of Catholic and Protestant religions. In a speech in New York on December 29, 1945 at the National Convention of the Institute, Rev. Williams said:

"Catholic church religion came into being to buttress the decaying Roman Empire. It proclaimed the divine rights of kings. It prospered and protected lords and ladies. It oppressed and persecuted serfs and chattels. Today this church religion is controlled by a closely-knit politico economic leadership. This heirarchy has economic investments in virtually every country".

"Protestant church religion came into being to enhance the rise of capitalism. It proclaimed the divine right of property. It defied (sic) the kings of finance, the lords of commerce and the captains of industry. Today this church religion is directed by remote control from the Chamber of Commerce, the National Association of Manufacturers and the offices of cartel imperialists. With these it has economic investments in the capitalist exploits of the whole world".

"The Peoples Institute of Applied Religion, therefore, goes beyond church religion of all kinds, it goes back to the class struggle basis of true religion, It defines, reclaims, and acts upon the democratic dynamic of our Judaeo-Christian Heritage".

In addition to the foregoing, the following are more of Williams "left-wing Red" activities:

1. According to the Daily Worker of March 5, 1941, he was one of the signers of a statement sent to the President in defense of the Communist Party.

2. Former Director of Commonwealth College, Mena, Arkansas, an institute cited by the Attorney General as Communist.

3. Editorial advisor of "The Protestant's" publication cited by the Special Committee on Un-American Activities as "a magazine which has faithfully propagated the Communist Party line under guise of a religious journal".

4. In 1950 Williams was one of the sponsors of Mid-Century Conference for Peace, a conference cited by the House-Un-American Activities Committee as a sounding board for Communist propaganda.

5. Signed letter to U.S. Attorney General Biddle defending Harry Bridges, notorious West Coast Communist.

6. Member of Civil Rights Congress and National Federation for Constitutional Liberties, both of which are on the subversive list of the U.S. Attorney General.

7. Has participated in meetings of the National Negro Congress, an organization cited as subversive by the U.S. Attorney General.

Numerous other examples of the Communist tinge of Claude Williams could be cited but space does not permit. Need we say that this man presently living in our midst, and active in the Birmingham Chapter of Alabama Council on Human Relations is a dangerous, dedicated agent of Moscow, Russia.

Mrs. Clifford Durr, Montgomery, Alabama, member Alabama Council on Human Relations, Vice President Southern Conference for Human Welfare, Director Southern Conference Educational Fund, member and vice chairman, National Committee to Abolish the Poll Tax, Virginia, Member of the Committee, National Citizen's Political Action Committee, major Communist-front organizations in the U.S.A., (House Un-American Activities Report.)

Reverend C. Herbert Oliver, Co-Chairman, Alabama Council on Human Relations, Dr. Albert C. Wynne, profess or Stillman College, Tuscaloosa, Alabama, and Earl Andrews are in regular attendance at the meetings.

The Alabama Council on Human Relations is divided into five (5) districts throughout the State of Alabama with two co-chairmen for each district, one white and one Negro.

The Council distributes the New South, a small magazine published (eleven issues annually) by the Southern Regional Council, 5 Forsyth Street, N.W., Atlanta, Georgia. The New South features articles on integration with special emphasis on areas hit by racial strife such as, Little Rock, Tallahassee, Birmingham and Montgomery.

Typical of thesw writings are:

"Birmingham Blues" from New Republic, May 30, 1960. "Jacksonville Experience is another Costly Lesson" by William K. Williams, Executive Director Florida Council on Human Relations.

"The South Says it Will Come" - Editorial May, 1960.

"Band Together for Genuine Unity" - Colbert S. Cartwright.

The basic theme of the publication is integration of the races. Graphic accounts of the freedom-rides, sit-ins, kneel-ins, and other racial disburbances are featured articles.

The Alabama Council on Human Relations, is a clandestine organization. The meetings are held in secret and membership lists are not available to anyone.

The Birmingham Police Department investigated a meeting held at the Negro Y.M.C.A., 326 South 18th Street, Birmingham, Alabama. There were approximately thirty persons present, equally divided between whites and Negroes.

Due to the hurried exit of some of the members present, it was difficult to identify everyone present. A partial list is available, however.

The Alabama Council on Human Relations is a Tax Exempt Organization, having qualified with the Internal Revenue Service, United States Treasury Department. The Alabama Council on Human Relations will not divulge its source of income, however, photostatic copies of their financial report indicates the main source of revenue to be the Southern Regional Council.

Reverend C. H. Oliver, Co-chairman of the Alabama Council on Human Relations is also active in Reverend Shuttlesworth and Martin Luther King's groups, who hold regular meetings throughout Birmingham.

Reverend Oliver was chairman and in charge of a meeting held, May 9, 1961 at Miles College, Birm ingham, Alabama. The principal speaker being, Mr. Leslie W. Dunbar of the Southern Regional Council, Atlanta, Georgia.

Mr. Leslie W. Dunbar was appointed Executive Director of the Southern Regional Conference, Atlanta, Georgia May 1961, replacing Mr. Harold C. Fleming.

The meeting was titled "Second Annual Cultural Meeting for Elementary Teachers". The theme for discussion was "Educating Children in an Anxious World."

The Alabama Council on Human Relations, Comer, Building, Birmingham, Alabama, has a new Executive Director. The Southern Regional Council, Atlanta, Georgia employed the new director to replace the notorious Reverend Robert E. Hughes; and, to direct the activities of the Alabama Council on Human Relations, commencing August 1, 1961.

Reverend Norman C. Jimerson, Baptist Minister, who resides at 1905 Saulter Road, Homewood, Alabama, is the new Executive Director of the Alabama Council on Human Relations.

Reverend Jimerson was formerly employed as a chaplain, Hopewell Prison, Hopewell, Virginia.

This report makes no accusation that every member of any of the aforementioned organizations is a Communist, nor is any assusation made that every such person is a deliberate subversive. However, every such person is either knowingly or unknowingly lending aid to the subversive thrust of the Communist Party.

An analysis of the entire list of members affiliated with these organizations shows several things:

(1) It follows the usual pattern of personnel in Communist-front organizations - - so many trusted Communist Party lieutenants, so many veteran fellow travelers, so many gullibles picked up for the first time and used for a front for purposes which they do not fully comprehend.

(2) It serves as an excellent illustration of the well-known principle of the interlocking directorate which is common in the party's front organizations.

On May 28, 1942 the Attorney General issued an order for the deportation of Harry Bridges. Two things stand out in the text of the Attorney General's order:

(1) A finding of fact concerning the subversive character of the Communist Party.

(2) An observation concerning the nature and purpose of Communist front organizations.

Concerning the Communist Party, the Attorney General found the following:

"That the Communist Party of the U.S.A., from the time of its inception in 1919 to the present time, is an organization that believes in, advises, advocates and teaches the overthrow by force and violence of the Government of the United States."

Concerning Communist-front organizations, the Attorney General made the following observation:

"Testimony on "front organizations" showed that they were represented to the public for some legitimate objective, but actually used by the Communist Party to carry on its activities, pending the time when the Communist believe they can sieze power through revolution".

The foregoing statements of the Attorney General are amply substantiated by the overwhelming mass of evidence which bears upon them. These statements say categorically that the Communist Party is a subversive organization which aims at the violent overthrow of the United States Government, and that Communist-front organizations are one of the instrumentalities used by the Communist Party for this ultimate purpose.

Each Communist affiliation above referred to is properly shown by sworn testimon to be an act or association on the part of the individuals referred to that furthered the Communist aims in this country. This is not to infer, and there is no assumption that any of the individuals listed, is a Communist because of his Communist affiliations, unless a Communist Party itself is listed as one of his affiliations. It is, however, absolute proof that the various individuals listed have knowingly or unknowingly aided the Communist cause in this, in the total number of times and ways listed as his Communist affiliations.

There seems to be little excuse for any reasonably well-informed citizen to continue association with these organizations, unless said association is knowingly intended.

A YANKEE'S IGNORANCE OF THE SOUTHLAND IS REFRESHING

It has been said there is not anything so detrimental to human behavior as a little knowledge; it seems,, however, a greater and more constant danger lies in man's weak tendency to accept unsubstantiated information as proven facts.

Premier U Nu of Burma was asked his opinion of America after his tour. He wisely refrained from commenting because a lack of time had not permitted him a proper perspective; he had covered only part of the vast area and activities of America too hurriedly.

Some egotistical reporter was quoted as saying he could pass through a section of country and tell, in a few hours, all anyone wanted to know about that section. That is attaining the height of brazen effrontery to the intelligence of the reader or listener.

Of course, the Hollywood and TV version of our reporters and Columnists portrays them as being super-sleuths who would pale Sherlock Holmes into juvenile insignificance by comparison. There are several infamous murders on the Atlanta records that have been unsolved, whereby the Detective Bureau could avail themselves of these untrained master minds' superb services.

While in one of the Northern States a Yankee acquaintance of a traveling lady, who had travelled over 44 states and Canada with her husband, and who had lived temporarily in most of these states, tried to draw her into an inflammatory conversation about the South and what she had heard or read about the South generally, consisting of propaganda, critical, biased, and prejudiced, tending to inflame and incite anti-Southern opinion. This lady, bearing familiarity with all sections of our country and no partiality toward any area, refused to discuss the subject, avoiding the issue simply by stating that if her inquisitor would go South and live one year then she would be happy to talk with her about the South.

We are not foolish to the point of thinking we could convince some Yankees there is anything good about the South, that we do not have a diet consisting of anything other than turnip greens, cornbread, sow belly, chitlins, grits, blackberries, and other Yankee fictional Southern delicacies. Neither would I try to convince some Yankees that we have everything which makes for full, good, wholesome and highly varied livelihood over and above that which is to be found in the refrigerator of this continent. We have a coast line from the great State of Texas, via the gulf, alongside Louisiana, Mississippi and Alabama—each a great individual state—to the tip of Florida; up the coast along the Golden Isle of Georgia, the Carolinas, Virginia and Maryland. Nowhere in the world can you find a more varied and historical coastline: Houston, New Orleans, Mobile, Tampa, Key West, Savannah, Charleston, Norfolk, and Baltimore.

We would not attempt convincing some new Yankee Americans that within the boundaries of our great domain there live the greatest people on Earth, homo-geneous, loyal, honest, straightforward, softspoken, confident but not cocky, proud but not boastful, kind and tolerant, well-tempered and mannreed, respectful of women and children, demanding same respect from others. Poor and the rich, privileged and under-privileged, ignorant and the educated, fools and the wise, slums and mansions (both black and white), criminals and saints, righteous and the unrighteous; all in all we are just a cross section of God's "chillun".

Neither would I try to convince even one Yankee that we in the South do not use "you-all" in our speech to indicate the singular as some comic jokers in their ignorance and shallow thinking would believe. If these same jokers are so gol-durned smart, why do they not appoint themselves to invent an English plural for y-o-u, which our founding Fathers of the King's English failed to take into consideration. The mountaineers invented their own word to suffice—"you-ense"; we lowlanders adopted you-all for the plural. I still maintain this is preferable to Brooklyn's "youse".

We dare not hope to influence the opinions of the city dwelling Yankees who have not been outside the confines of their city, and have not the knowledge to identify as common a farm and rural animal as a cow, and who believes that a hen gives birth to a chicken. Anybody with that degree of stupidity can certainly not be calculated to expostulate on anything outside their immediate environs.

I would also hesitate with fortitude in thinking of convincing some, possibly the majority of Yankess, that the Negro and the Whites get along smoothly, evenly, and with the least friction, discord, or trouble, until some no-account white man starts meddling and gets out of his sphere, and in an improper status with usually an ulterior motive in view to accomplish some snaky result. In time of trouble, as has always been the case since the Negroes were imported from Africa and sold as slaves to the cotton picking Southland, the Negro will search and seek out his foremost White man friend; he is rescued from his trouble even to the point of the White friend jeopardizing his life at gun point in a duel. Records reveal one incident where a sheriff was murdered by a white man who defended the Negro. That has been duplicated time and time again. We failed to have read or heard of any like experience in our holier-than-thou complexed, Negro-thumping neighbors to the North.

It would be foolish to try convincing our Yankee "Saviors" that the Negroes in the South have risen and will continue to rise just so fast and not faster than his neighbors, the white man, rises. There are poor white souls in the South who are in far worse condition due to ignorance and poverty than his colored brother. In the larger cities of the South, where the fish grow larger than in the shallow waters of the small towns and the country, the negroes grow larger in proportion. Atlanta has been tabbed by our ex-Governor Talmadge as the Negro capitol of the world; it is doubtful that any other proportionate city has a greater number of negro citizens, both population and prominent-wise. They have access to the field of business, trade, services and commerce, combined with the professions; apart and separate from the White World about them, yet mysteriously and majestically harmonious.

Where else in the white man's world will you find such great opportunity for the Negro to develop into great leaders of their race. There are some minority groups from outside the South who will bring the house down on the Negroes' heads if they have their way. America may need not worry about our enemies abroad, as we will be alert to their actions; however, we need to be alert for infiltration within our borders of these heterogeneous peoples of the minority races who stratigically are getting and have gotten their members into the key offices and positions of influence and power, even into the lofty offices of our country. They are using the Northern negroes of power within their district as spearheads to torpedo southern segregation and tradition through our schools.

This same race has not only maneuvered its members into key spots in our government but has a strangle-hold on Hollywood and finance, together with a complete new army of new TV faces that are putting out cheap, quick, shallow productions to make a fast, quick, easy buck. Very characteristic of cutting down on quality and fullness in order to capitalize and profit. They have hit a bonanza in this field. It matters not whether their production in the movies or TV is morally clean and acceptable to home audiences or to bobby-soxers at the theatre, or will pass censorship, as their money will buy their way around such minor obstacles and they can display in front of their marguess sexually suggestive pictures of depravity normally reserved for the intimacy of one's private sanctum. To entice and lure the unwary into their folds they will sell sex in the open market to the detriment of all youth.

Our country, by the Grace of God, has and will, we hope and trust, continue to throw off the minority groups' influence which would shackle us with chains of oppression and terror, that would eventually rain down on these promoters themselves, who realize not what they teach or preach.

The vast majority of all Americans of every race and color realize that God being the Creator of all did not endow the Southland with creating the Negro, or the Northern Negro problem; nor did our Creator place on the South the monopoly of ignorance, poverty, evil, crime, and other negative qualities the misinformed minority of Yankees would have the world believe by shouting from the roof-tops.

No section can claim a monopoly on goodness, that is to be found all over; likewise evil is not confined to any one particular region or section.

No amount of legislation can eliminate the so-called second-class citizen which we hear prated about by the apostles of Eisenhower. If this were possible then we could also have legislated moral and social laws for the elimination of sin and all its stain. Only by his continued good, clean, moral example can he lead the people of our country out of graft, greed, sin and corruption. Legislation and compulsion won't do. Good leadership is followed voluntarily. There lies its proven power. There are more than two classes of people. Mr. Eisenhower knows this from personal military experiences. How many ranks, classes, and categories are there in the armed services, and who, may I ask, is more clannish, jealous, outspoken, forward, and active in defending, promoting, and making an ass and nuisance of pulling their rank on a subordinate, even to the lowly Corporal? If these apostles of generosity and brotherly love are conscientious and earnest, why not let them start with our clannish armed services as an example. No, they don't believe it, they want no part of it and do not have any idea of practicing what is being preached.

They do know from experience that familiarity breeds contempt and that the armed services must maintain the same autocratic system with as much democracy as possible and yet maintain a fighting unit. I am, as stated before, not out to convince anyone against their will, be he a dam Yankee, plain Yankee, or whatever other specimen he may be. The Yankee in general has an open invitation to Dixie and I think we, in our entirety, will be delighted to have the independent, middle of the road, good people to our North come down and stay with us long enough to form an opinion of our section, its people, habits, customs, and general human behavior in a true light through a mind and eye that is open and broad to assimilate all that is seen and heard.

Their stay should be most pleasant and enjoyable as they will experience a hospitality which comes as natural as breathing. Their northern accent will not be criticized, as we are too gentle to reveal our difficulty of understanding. At times, however, we must have them repeat themselves, much to our embarrassment.

Their accent will not draw side remarks by any means; it is only neighborly to question their origin, as we are interested in them, their presence and happiness while visiting within our borders.

They will discover a natural wanting to be helpful and readiness to accommodate them in case of difficulty or need, without thought of compensation.

This trait is ingrained, and inherited through our ancestors', fighting an economic war for survival, thanks to John C. Calhoun and other hot headed, fool hearted, stubborn, bullish Southerners, along with the Yankees of like ills. The South would have sold out to the Yankees then and there. Our economy was ruptured. Slavery was wrong and evil. There was only one wise recourse and that was to sell the slaves back to the Yankees. There was very little money and neighbors had to pitch in and help out a neighbor who had sickness, death, or misfortune, with no thought of payment. The only requirement being that the neighbor who received help would do likewise when the time came to someone else. Their motto being, "Do unto others as you would have them do unto you". There was mutuality in their love, courtship, marriage, frolics, labors, worship, grief, happiness, trials and tribulations, births and deaths. A brotherhood that did, and does now exist in the rural areas, and without doubt is to be found today in our industrialized areas and largely populated cities.

It has been a blessing to have known individuals from Yankeeland, both White and Negro, who were the last word of being ladies and gentlemen and solid in character, apparently, as Stone Mountain. I treasure their memory and place a high value on having benefited from the association and fellowship.

Southerners have difficulty understanding the Yankee attitude of noticing and remarking about our Southern accent, whereas Southerners would no more remark or poke fun at a Yankee about his accent than he would take wings and fly. We do not know whether or not the Yankees are doing it to be cute, whether they really enjoy the soft sounding phrases, which are unique and different from harsher, gutteral, rapid fire, crackling, rasping, wheezing noises emitting from some people of the other regions.

An acquaintance of mine visited some friends in Texas and one of his friends, who was not a native Georgian, as he was, quipped about his Georgia brogue, whereupon he stated, "I can't tell any difference in our speech except you Texans talk with your teeth clamped together." The accompaning Buddy retorted, "That's right, give it to him; he has been giving me the old rib, too." This is illustrative of differences even among homogenious peoples.

The kind of scrambled, exortic, racial, provincial, strange, and idiotic accents emitting through TV, and which draws no fire, makes me appreciate and be proud of our average Southern dialect. (Not the Hollywood exagerated and synthetic version). Some of our panel members talk as though they had a mouthful of hot mush and were trying to cool it off rather than spit it out, and attempting to talk at the same time.

We will not try to convince those Yankees of the opinion that the South is a push-up and over for the Union of Un-Americans, regardless of what alphabetical letters they use. As one over-optimistic Negro stated, "The South is halted at the red traffic light, waiting for the Supreme Court's unquestionable negative opinion toward segragation will spontaneously after the Supreme Court flicks the signal to green, automatically rush forward to heed the go signal." Perhaps that was what they merely hoped for with little anticipation of its becoming a reality. Just pious wishing.

The Supreme Court with all of its packing from the Roosevelt days and with its cheap political trappings has replaced the highly respected, and honored body of men of profound understanding and wisdom, whom the people held in utmost awe and respect as the ultimate human judgeship of our land, and whose opinion when handed down was unquestioned and accepted as final if backed by the crystalized opinion of the majority of the people.

How can the masses of people have any respect, confidence or faith in a politically appointed body of men through party patronage and party politics and the removal of one into a high office to destroy his threat as a political competitor in future races for the Presidency? Governor Warren of California, a highly esteemed man in the Nation's eye, sold out to the Republicans, thereby lowering himself in the eyes of the nation as an individual rugged statesman. The Supreme Court has lost its savor and like salt is not fit for anything but to be cast aside, as is, to be replanted with sturdy acorns from which mighty oaks again may grow.

We have a good sample of California quality of Statesmanship in Nixon and Warren.

It seems as if the Senate and Congress would remove the fangs of an hostile group that has ceased to serve the vast majority of our people in favor of the small minority of classes and races that are greedily and selfishly promoting their special interests to the detriment of our nation as a whole.

One particular group would like to do as they do in Italy, Argentina, Belgium and other nations where their church is dominant. The leader or ruler is found to play second fiddle to their Hierarchy and synthetic religion which caters to whatever force is in power, preferably the church's power over state. Their pious pratings of tolerance is a oneway avenue for use by their enemies; however, when they get the upperhand, justice and tolerance jumps out the window and flees.

This is why the churches, schools and social life of the individual or groups should be sheared and shorn from any political influence of nine old men who, due to politics and influence of small minorities, are swayed to take unwise steps and make unpopular decisions.

There is no law under the stars and skies that can be legislated to enforce any obedience to that which is contrary to the crystalized opinion of the masses of the people. Prohibitoin, the grand experiment, minus the undercurrents of sectionalism or racial undertows, or color barriers, turned out to be a miserable flop: therefore, how much chance has the very unpopular anti-segregation measure of succeeding? Georgia alone, the largest state east of the Mississippi, together with her sister states and the largest state of Texas, comprising a vast land area with a great population of Whites and Negroes will never submit to this ramrod measure of pushing un-American idealogy and brain child of border Whites through to a conclusion, however utopian it may seem in their pipe dreams.

We are not out to convince any Jewish Yankees, Italian Yankees, Exotic Yankees, Catholic Yankees, McCarthy Yankees, Communist or any other heterogeneous peoples, who are attempting to remake our country or rewrite the Constitution of the United States to conform to their selfish or greedy and clannish purpose, and who would split this Nation asunder to foster and promote a mongrel race of peoples with no nationality. You may bet your last dollar the Jewish race has no idea of intermixing or intermarriage with their colored brethern except to use the Negro for special purposes and to succor all possible out of them, in patriotism to their flag, the green currency of Uncle Sam.

The only true and tried friends through the history of the American Negro is the Southerner, the only ones who understands them and has a heart for them. The Northern agitators are not out for any benevolence or God sent to lead the Negro into the land of Utopia, as they profess. The democratic way would be to put an end to all future contentions by having each state vote on the issue and forever after keep Washington politics out.

There are those level-headed Negroes of the North who have the foresight to see the repercussions and the disaster that would befall their people if the South is unduly tried, prodded and provoked with continued thorns in the flesh as the N.A.A.C.P. entertains ideas of so doing, with the solace and succor of Supreme Court sanction. It is time for all good men to come to the aid of their Nation. We do not think we have convinced any man against his will as "A fool convinced against his will is of the same opinion still".

"Dixie Land"

I wish I was in de land ob cotton,
Old times dar am not forgotten,
Look away, look away, look away, Dixie Land.
In Dixie land whar I was born in,
Early on one frosty mornin',
Look away, look away, look away, Dixie Land.

Old Missus Mary "Will-de-wea-ber"
Willium was a gay de-cea-ber;
Look away, look away, look away, Dixie Land.
But when he put his arms around-er,
He smiled as fierce as a forty pound-er,
Look away, look away, look away, Dixie Land.

His face was sharp as a butcher's cleaver,
But soon after he did leave 'er;
Look away, look away, look away, Dixie Land.
Old Missus acted de foolish part
And died for a man dat broke her heart,
Look away, look away, look away, Dixie Land.

Now here's a health to the next old Missus,
And all de gals dat want to kiss us,
Look away, look away, look away, Dixie Land.
But if you want to drive 'way sorrow,
Come and hear dis song to-morrow,
Look away, look away, look away, Dixie Land.

Dar's buckwheat cakes an' Ingen batter,
Makes you fat or a little fatter,
Look away, look away, look away, Dixie Land.
Den hoe it down an' scratch you grabble,
To Dixie land I'm bound to trabble,
Look away, look away, look away, Dixie Land.

AVOID BEING ENTICED INTO FRONTS

It is stated on good authority that there are 215 front organizations spending a total weekly budget of $150,000 in our country. Use care in joining new organizations. Do not be misled by names that imply that the group is "progressive," or is interested in needed social reforms, protection against injustices and discrimination; or the development of a higher form of democracy. Who started the organization? Who belongs? Who are its leaders? What is its history?

"Too often I have seen cases where loyal and patriotic but misguided Americans have thought they were 'fighting communism' by slapping the label of 'Red' or 'Communist' on anybody who happened to be different from them or to have ideas with which they did not agree.

"Smears, character assassination, and the scattering of irresponsible charges have no place in this nation. They create division, suspicion and distrust among loyal Americans—just what the Communists want—and hinder rather than aid the fight against communism."

—J. Edgar Hoover

In assessing the purposes of a new organization, it should be remembered that freedom of thought and support for minority opinion is an American right.

TEACH THE FACTS ABOUT THE AMERICAN WAY OF LIFE

Communists are busy spreading calumnies about our country. They call it imperialistic. They picture it as poised and eager for a nuclear war. They magnify isolated cases of discrimination and injustice and represent them as typical of American life. They seldom point to great American achievements, but exult in American failures.

The United States Government is maintaining a great effort to tell the world the truth. The United States Information Agency broadcasts radio and television programs, distributes films, issues publications, maintains libraries in foreign countries, sends speakers around the world to interpret American aims and estimates the degree to which they have been actually attained.

The official student exchange programs and the students who choose on their own to seek some of their education abroad, in 1961-62, totaled 58,086 foreign students from 149 countries in 1798 institutions of higher learning in the United States. In 1960-61 there were 19,836 students from the United States in 66 foreign coun-

LR Chamber Manager Does Flip on Integration

JACKSON, Miss. -- Mississippi's Capitol reporters have chuckled more than once at a strange sidelight of the continuing racial crisis in Little Rock.

News reports from the Arkansas capital now picture Boyd Ridgway, manager of the pro-integration Little Rock Chamber of Commerce, as a leading disciple of order-at-any-cost.

It hasn't always been this way.

They recall, with considerable amusement, a rather one-sided Congressional race held in Hinds (Jackson) County in 1952.

It pitted Rep. John Bell Williams against a stuffy young Jackson press agent name of Boyd Ridgway.

If John Bell Williams has ever been called a left-winger, the term hasn't stuck. But that was Mr. Ridgway's chief charge against Mr. Williams.

"Boyd just didn't think John Bell was doing enough for segregation," a veteran of the Mississippi political wars said this week. "God knows what he could have done. Remember, this was two years BEFORE THE Supreme Court's de segregation decision."

Actually, Ridgway's strange race against Williams was believed by some to have been a tantrum against former Mississippi Gov. Hugh White.

Ridgway was allowed to take care of minor publicity chores in Governor White's successful 1951 race for governor. When the new administration passed out the top jobs, Boyd Ridgeway was passed over.

"Boyd wanted to be director

The first cache of dynamite was found under a piece of rusted tin and it was without moisture content despite a series of heavy rains, indicating it had been placed there only a few hours prior to discovery.

County Judge Arch Campbell explained the second cache of explosives. He said a county road crew was doing work in the vicinity of area where the explosives were found. He said the work required rock blasting.

Utility Rate Hike

Gov. Orval Faubus is opposed to any futher rate increases in utilities. He said utility rates in Arkansas are high enough right now.

The governor's comment came after he revealed that he had been asked by Southwestern Bell Telephone officials to intervene in the current rate squabble before the Arkansas Public Service Commission. The telephone company is seeking a rate increase. The PSC ordered the company to file a show cause order as to why their rates should not be reduced.

Governor Faubus added that a six percent earning on utility holdings is ample for the protection of the company's investors. The six percent limit is the maximum allowed under the Arkansas constitution.

Highlander Padlocked

MONTEAGLE, Tenn. --- State officials padlocked the Highlander Folk School near here pending a State Court hearing set for Nov. 3.

The Highlander school has been a target of Tennessee officials for a number of years. It has been criticized for its inter-racial characteristic and "questionable activity" which went on there.

Circuit Judge Chester Chattin ordered the school padlocked until his court can determine whether the tax-exempt charter of the inter-racial adult school should be revoked.

of the Mississippi Agricultural and Industrial Board," a newsman here recalled. "But Mr. Hugh, who was elected largly on the basis on his flair for obtaining industry, had no intention of trusting that sort of job to a Boyd Ridgway.

"But Boyd insisted that the job be his. Finally he was told firmly that if he didn't shut up and behave himself he wouldn't get anything."

The next summer he announced against Williams, "just to show Governor White what a fine politician he was."

But his campaign never quite got off the ground.

He devoted most of his time to mimeographing lengthy statements contradicting points in Williams speeches. These he dutifully passed out every Saturday during the campaign, catching the unwary reporters as they left their weekly press club luncheons.

The morning Clarion-Ledger largely ignored Ridgway, although the afternoon Daily News allowed its political pundits "to let him sound off. It livens up the classified pages."

"We sort of looked on Boyd as a white man's Prophet Willett," said this informant. Soon after the campaign, Ridgway drifted downstate to a radio station, where he sold advertising, and finally was hired at Greenville in his first Chamber of Commerce job. The Little Rock chamber hired him away from Greenville.

I did go to see Mr. Haas with the statement. He read it through, made one minor change (substituted S.C.H.W. where you had used only the word "Conference") and said he thought it was a good statement. He thought that it should go out as from the Council rather than from any one person.

I took the copy complete with list of Board members, etc. to Keutner (sp?) explained that any statement would go from the Council as a group.

I also took a copy minus board list to Helen Bullard. She was out but I left it for her.

Roy Harris has announced in his personal political newspaper that he intends to publish what he calls "exposures" of some members of the Southern Regional Council as having unpatriotic associations. We believe that Georgians know Mr. Harris and his methods well enough to recognize this unfounded attack for what it is: a politically motivated essay in character assasination. The Southern Regional Council has through all its history been the exact opposite of a communist-influenced organization. It works for democratic solution of Southern problems, by Southerners themselves. There is a Georgia statute which makes it a crime to belong to a communist-front organization. If Mr. Harris were making his charges in good faith he would have had resource to due process of law instead of cunningly distorted propaganda.

The organizing meeting of the Council was held in response to a "call" issued by some of the South's finest leadership, including:

C. H. Gillman, Georgia Director, C.I.O.
George L. Googe, Southern Director, A.F.L.
M. Ashby Jones, Baptist Minister
Ryland Knight, Baptist Minister
Rabbi David Marx, The Temple, Atlanta
Ralph McGill, The Atlanta Constitution
Bishop Arthur J. Moore, The Methodist Church
Stuart R. Oglesby, Presbyterian Minister
Rt. Rev. Gerald P. O'Hara, Catholic Bishop of Savannah-Atlanta
Dean S. Paden, President, King Hardward Co.
J. McDowell Richards, President, Columbia Theological Seminary
Bishop John Moore Walker, The Protestant Episcopal Church
Goodrich C. White, President, Emory University

Following the deliberations of this group and a subsequent conference with Southern Negro leaders, the SRC was chartered, the incorporators being Bishop Arthur J. Moore, Ralph McGill, Dr. Rufus E. Clement, Dr. Charles S. Johnson, and Dr. Howard W. Odum.

Attached is a complete list of SRC's Board members, past and present, showing the dates served. It is obvious that the Board, from the beginning, has been composed overwhelmingly of Southerners whose record of patriotism and public service is above reproach.

The members of the Board receive full reports on the activities of the SRC and review them in detail at an annual session. The Executive Committee, which is elected by the Board, meets quarterly, intimately reviews the SRC's activities, and formulates the detailed policies of the organization. (The full minutes of these meetings are on file in the SRC's offices.) A list of the members of the Executive Committee, past and present, with their terms of service indicated, is also attached.

From its inception, the SRC has had substantial contributions from many of the major religious groups (Methodist, Protestant Episcopal, Presbyterian, Congregational, Society of Friends, Catholic, Jewish). Representatives of these and other religious groups have also participated actively in the SRC's affairs.

In view of the nature of the charges here considered, it is perhaps particularly pertinent to note the extent of Catholic participation in the SRC. One of the founders and charter member of the SRC is the Most Rev. Gerald P. O'Hara, Archbishop of Savannah-Atlanta. The Executive Committee has always included a Catholic clergyman. Mr. Paul D. Williams, a distinguished Catholic layman, a founder of the Catholic Committee of the South, and more recently a Knight of St. Gregory, was president of the SRC from 1945 through 1951. In April 1953, Dr. George S. Mitchell, executive director of the SRC, received the award of the Catholic Committee of the South for his

"significant contribution to the welfare of the South." The same award was conferred in previous years on Dr. Howard W. Odum, the first president of the SRC, and Dr. Guy B. Johnson, executive director from 1944 to 1947.

The publications and public utterances of the SRC speak for themselves. They have been read, used, and acclaimed by hundreds of persons whose intelligence and loyalty are unquestioned. The SRC has a wide reputation for temperateness and constructiveness. Three noted Southern journalists who are closely familiar with the SRC's work have given the following public estimates of it:

Ralph McGill, in The Atlanta Constitution: "The Southern Regional Council is an able and worthwhile organization working in the field of race relations. It has no radical tinge, but is, nevertheless, an aggressively energetic coordinating agency."

Hodding Carter, in Collier's: "The SRC is unique in a number of heartening directions. It is bi-racial, non-denominational and non-political. It does not indulge in tom-tom beating, parades or lengthy pronunciamentos slanted for non-Southern consumption and approval. But it is not an isolationist effort to separate the South's problems from the nation's -- or from the nation's concern."

Virginius Dabney, in Saturday Evening Post: "The sanest and best-informed organization dealing with race relations."

Irresponsible charges have been made to the effect that the Southern Regional Council is "the successor" of the discredited Southern Conference for Human Welfare. This is completely false. The Southern Conference was organized in 1938 and continued in existence until 1947. The Southern Regional Council was chartered in 1944 and has continued to date. During the years of their co-existence, the two organizations were regarded as rival agencies, markedly different in ideology and approach to Southern problems. Ralph McGill, editor of the Atlanta Constitution, who led the exposure of the Southern Conference in its latter years, was an incorporator of the Southern Regional Council. To suggest that the Council was related to the Southern Conference is to fly in the face of every known fact. It is well known that the S.C.H.W. was succeeded by the Southern Conference Educational Fund, with headquarters in New Orleans, which is still in operation today.

Much has been made of the fact that several people active in the Council were at one time affiliated with the late Southern Conference. This is a threadbare technique of those who would attack liberal-minded Southerners, and is best answered by the following quotes from an editorial in the Atlanta Constitution of May 12, 1953, dealing with such an attack on Dr. Rufus E. Clement:

"A member of the Board has charged that Dr. Clement is a Communist sympathizer because he once belonged to the now defunct Southern Conference for Human Welfare. This newspaper is proud of the fact that it contributed largely to the demise of that organization. We were twice threatened with lawsuits because of our exposure of it; therefore, we believe we have some authority to speak.

"The Southern Conference for Human Welfare was organized by honest, loyal Americans, with a viewpoint to organizing all constructive forces in the South to improve the South's economic and social status. It latter was infiltrated by Communists, but for a good many years it was composed of and led by persons of unquestioned loyalty, during which time its membership was about 99.95 per cent loyal.

It offers the typical example of a few rotten Communists spoiling a good barrel of apples.

"Even so, it was not until a good many years had passed, and after most of the membership had withdrawn, including Dr. Clement, that persons of suspected Communistic tendencies took over what remained of the organization. They did not long endure, largely because this newspaper exposed them and kept upon them the full light of publicity."

The Council in the past ten years has worked temperately and constructively for better race relations. It has represented an effort by Southerners themselves to build cooperation and mutual trust between the races.

The grant from the Fund for the Republic was given specifically in order to make possible state organizations, with their own independent boards, officers and staff. In Georgia, this means that Georgians themselves will establish and direct the activities made possible by this state's portion of the grant. The regional office in Atlanta will continue to perform fact-finding and coordinating functions that will assist the various state groups.

This is an opportunity for Southerners of both races to work together effectively on race relations programs of their own choosing. Anyone who is opposed to this course is opposed to local initiative and progress in the field of human relations.

I hear that Mr. Roy Harris, in his weekly paper, has jumped on the Southern Regional Council. I haven't seen what he printed, but I have seen one or two of his previous statements.

Sad, you know, that in this time of special strain within the South repponsible people stop to thresh this ragged old wheat. It takes time from the work the South needs to do, and it raises suspicions and tempers when we need the minimum of both.

Let it be said that the Southern Regional Council is not and never has been influenced by the Communit Party or the communist movement or communist ideas. We have been from our beginning in 1944, and from the earlier beginninf of the Commission on Interracial Cooperation in 1919, a body of Southern people, white and Negro, working intelligently and calmly and constructively at our common regional problems. Oh, yes, by picking and poking in this Committee's files or that you can come up with the fact that out of ninety-odd persons who have at one time or another been on the large Board of Directors of SRC a handful have been identified also with causes unpopular and unwise. The same kind of "research" can find that the Council's present Executive Director, this fellow George Mitchell, taught a class at a Labor College, or worked for a year for the CIO-PAC (no secret that; it's in any standard biographical reference-work), or was on the Board of some other organization. What do such things prove? That the Board members, and this Mitchell man, have been sensitive to human injustice, and active in causes that they thought would lessen the sum of injustice. But it doesn't prove that the Southern Regional Council is less than what it is; Southern people, white and Negro, working together with all the wisdom and effort they can muster to bring about the kind of South in which democracy and brotherhood can hold up their heads.

The United States Supreme Court now says that the South's cherished arrangement about schools is unconstitutional. We agree, and we work to get the people of the South to agree and to obey and implement the law.

George Mitchell is not and never has been a Communist, these various people who have lent their advice and aid to the Council are not Communists, and we have our suspicions that not more than a couple of those who have ever been on our Board have been even close to the Communist movement. Nor is the Southern Regional Council an outgrowth of any other organization (except the Commission on Interracial Cooperation 1919-43). Specifically as to the Southern Conference for Human Welfare. That was begun in 1938, and and included much of the best and wisest leadership the South had. Notwithstanding the successful start of that body, those who formed the Southern Regional Council wanted a quite different organization, working quite differently, and drawing up a type of support and effort which the SCHW did not seem to them likely to achieve. George Mitchell and some few others associated with the Council later on became participants in the Southern Conference for Human Welfare, but the two organization were seldom in agreement on ends or methods, and when it became evident that Communist inflence was playing a part in the Southern Conference for Human Welfare the two ~~groups~~ bodies became further apart than ever.

The South's job, in this time, is to find means of cmplying with the lw of the land, and of expressivng, in positive achievement, the fundamental princple that men are of equal stature in law and in the State and in religion. That's not easy, considering history, and with a hard job to do the Council urges that people who want to get on with it et to work.

Dear Sir:

We have seen copies of your political paper dated June 28 and July 5 in which you purport to "expose" the Southern Regional Council. As you must know, your charges that the Council is the "successor" to theSouthern Conference for Human Welfare, that it is a "political" organization, and that it is a "haven for Communists" are utterly false. Your articles are full of gross misstatements, cunning omissions, and deceitful innuendo. We do not know what your motives may be for this baseless attack upon reputable Southerners, but we ~~believe the people of Georgia will see the~~ have no doubt that the people of Georgia will recognize its ~~baseless and~~ unprincipled nature.

The Southern Regional Council was chartered in 1944, after a series of meetings of prominent Southern people. ~~(As you know, deliberately and conspicuously failed to mention, Bishop Arthur J. Moore was one of the incorporators.)~~ It was and is an independent body, successor only to the old Commission on Interracial Cooperation, begun in the South in 1919 and continued until the Council took over its work.

The Southern Regional Council is an organization combining people from the ministry, church lay leadership, education, business, and labor. It has been reasonable, accurate, non-inflammatory, educational, and non-political. It has worked to get an even break for all the people of the South, regardless of race, in matters of health, education, housing, employment, and farming. It can point to some achievements in law enforcement, better public services, and a growing understanding of the dignity of all human beings. It is widely held to be the South's most useful body in race relations.

The Council and all of its officers are opposed to Communism and all that Communism stands for. You do your State and the South a disservice in equating the Council's careful, thoughtful approach with Communism. Nothing pleases Communists more than to have people's own, native, intelligent efforts to solve problems confused with the Communist method of wrecking and revolution.

Georgia has a statute which makes it a crime to engage in subversive activities. If you believe your own charges, you are free to prosecute the Southern Regional Council under the law. The Council's sound Americanism can stand any honest investigation.

Sincerely,

George S. Mitchell
Executive Director

Report on Meeting of the METROPOLITAN ASSOCIATION TO CONTINUE SEGREGATION; Lenox Square Auditorium, January 11, 8 p.m.

Attendance: Approximately 500 to 600 persons. Seating room for 350 with all available space on the sides and in the rear of the auditorium filled with standees. Great majority of those present were well-dressed, established persons. Most of the men wore coats and ties, many were accompanied by their wives. Probably a large number from out of town. A number of teen-agers, well dressed, clean cut, sympathetic to speaker. Thoroughly respectable crowd.

When asked to do so, approximately nine members of the legislature indicated their presence.

Among those on the stage: T.J. Wesley ~~(Jr.?)~~, Dixon Oxford, R. B. Patterson, Roy Harris, and a Rev. George King. (Believe King was identified with a Baptist Church in Sandy Springs.)

Meeting: Chairman (unknown) praised Governor and quoted at length from State of the State speech. Introduced Roy Harris who praised the Governor and criticized HOPE and "Rastus" McGill. In identifying the speaker, Harris stated that in year past the Citizens' Councils of Mississippi raised $100,000 for the operation of their organization and an additional $50,000 for Citizens' Councils Forum, a radio-T.V. program service. (At the height of the Citizens' Council movement in Mississippi it was estimated that the state office raised $400,000 or more per year.)

Harris introduced Robert Patterson, Executive Secretary of the Citizens' Councils of Mississippi.

Patterson is a relatively young, red-headed, imposing individual with heavy Mississippi accent and a slow, very poor speaker. Spoke for approximately thirty minutes in a rather disorganized fashion. Theme throughout: "need to organize", power of "organization."

Significant comments from Patterson's speech:

1. Boasted of no visible activity of NAACP in Mississippi.

2. Corrected Roy Harris who had said "Battle of Atlanta" would determine victory or defeat for South. Patterson said Atlanta could determine victory but that whatever the outcome in Atlanta, other Southern areas, notably Mississippi, would continue to fight.

3. Praised new Governors of Mississippi and Louisiana along with Vandiver.

4. Nearest thing to "Rastus" McGill in Mississippi is "Rastus" Carter. And Carter has been made largely ineffective. Carter spends lots of time in places like Africa and that might be a good place for McGill too.

5. Boasted that "liberal" leadership in Little Rock has disappeared. Mayor of Little Rock at time of first desegregation no longer remembered.

Harry Ashmore in California working for the Fund for the Republic; husband of Daisy Bates now working full-time for the N.A.A.C.P., since his paper will no longer support him. No mention of Faubus or school situation.

6. Advised citizens of Atlanta not to let integration come without use of "many-many" federal marshalls and FBI men. Cause the federal government to spend a lot of tax money and Yankees would soon protest.

7. Many slaps at HOPE. Claimed that organization for HOPE had been in planning stages for some years. All of the left-wing elements are organized, therefore only way to combat this element is for segregationists to organize.

8. No "Rockefeller or Ford" money available, therefore organization is only answer.

Audience applauded throughout, though obviously would have preferred a stronger speech.

Chairman introduced Dixon Oxford who was on stage and announced that Peter Zack Geer was in audience. Geer was asked to come to the platform.

Oxford endorsed the group and then introduced Geer as he came onto platform. There was heavy applause, after which Geer began a speech of his own which lasted some fifteen minutes.

Geer began by praising Roy Harris as being a great Georgian and one of the greatest living Americans. Explained his presence at meeting by saying that he had been having dinner "and drinking some ginger ale" with friends at a nearby restaurant when he heard that Roy Harris was holding a meeting. He wanted to stop by to indicate his support for Harris.

Geer is an excellent speaker and with comments, jokes, and manner of speech he greatly pleased the crowd. He strongly resembled a young, articulate, Eugene Talmadge. Temper of his comments is indicated by the following joke which he told in mid-point of speech:

Southwest Georgia, home country, will compare favorably in attitudes and actions with Mr. Patterson's Mississippi. Down there two men went fishing. In time they both hooked onto some object at the bottom of the stream. After much pulling, they brought to the surface an "African." The corpse was wrapped from neck to feet with chains. Being "good law abiding citizens" they called the sheriff. When the sheriff arrived he remarked, "Now ain't that just like a nigger; stole so many chains he couldn't swim with them."

The story was received with laughter and heavy applause.

Following Geer, T. J. Wesley ~~(Jr.?)~~ was introduced as the man most responsible for the meeting. Wesley made a plea for funds and announced that the next meeting would be held at the Tower Theater with _____ _____ of Farmville, Virginia. _____, a retired vice president of Standard Oil is chairman of the private school group in Prince Edward county, an authority on the "efficiency, standards and workability" of private schools. Wesley stated his strong belief that private schools could work, be operated economically, and serve all the people. Purpose of having _____ _____ as speaker was that he could tell Atlantans how they could begin private schools.

Women at the exits collected contributions in large paper buckets. The collections seemed to be heavy and few left the auditorium without giving a dollar or more.

"ACT FOR GOD AND COUNTRY — HELP DEFEAT COMMUNISM"

COMMUNISM, a word describing the evil force which works day and night to destroy Christianity and Freedoms of the people. This group of athiest are not confined to Russia, but indeed are imbedded in many sections of our nation.

They range from the pick and shovel man in the ditch to the highest court in our land. These imps of satan are continually trying to take out the commands of God. Remember the 312 False-prophets who signed the manifesto, which urged you to integrate and mongrelize your future generations. By all means remember those commie stooges of duped physicians.

These false-prophets use the pulpits but have never read a verse from the Bible which tells us that God favors mixing the races. We shall set forth in the next paragraph several verses and chapters from the Bible, which demands that we keep segregation.

Read These Bible References

St. Matthew 25:32; Acts 17:26; Book of Ezra, chapter 9 and 10; Book of Joshua; 2 Cor. 6:17; Neh. 10:28-30; Neh. 13:23-27; Deut. 32:8; I Kings 8:53; I Kings 11:2; Gen. 6:18-20; Gen. 10:5-20; Gen 11:8; Gen. 24:3; Gen 28:1, 8, 9; Num. 6:2; Luke 6:22; Romans 8:35, 39. Then read Deut. 23:2, study this very seriously.

Think of how many generations it would take to remove all traces of the blood line from a half-breed mongrel created by a nigger and white. This breed of outcasts are the "BASTARDS" referred to in the Bible. NO, a child born to unmarried white or black people, is referred to as "A child born out of wedlock." The "BASTARD" is the mixed-breed mongrel created by the immoral acts of lowest of human forms. Now you understand why they shall not enter the Kingdom of Heaven even unto the tenth generation. Do you now realize just how terrible is the sin because of any mixing of the races?

"Clean the House of The Lord"

What do you have in the pulpit of your church? Now is the time to make your preacher declare himself. Is he a preacher or a false-prophet? If he follows the communist line of integration, then remove his hand from the bread-basket of the church. If you fail to do this, then you become a part of the communist conspiracy.

We believe the word of God and fear the wrath of the creator of all things within and beyond the universe, therefore we believe in the teachings of Jesus Christ as our Saviour. The above Bible teachings among the many others are sufficient to lead Christians above and beyond the Devil's cesspool of integration.

Our God fearing white people have been trodden down as far as they can go. They are beginning to fight back and it is time they did so. They are tired of all the trouble-makers who are filled with communist ideas of integration, and who are now using funds from various Foundations (American Money) to mix you with the nigger.

"Know Your Enemies — Work Against Them

The Southern Regional Council (Ralph McGill's Baby) has received hundreds of thousands of dollars from the Ford Fund for the Republic. Why do you still buy the Constitution or Journal or the Fords? Then we have to be on guard against the H.O.P.E. organization.

Benjamin E. Mays, president of Atlanta's Morehouse College has (31) communist citations and a member of the NAACP; Ruby Hurley, formerly of Little Rock, now bedding down in Atlanta rat nest, is an NAACP member and noted race-agitator; Rufus E. Clement, in the top committee of 100 of the NAACP and has 27 commie citations for his work, he is a member of the Atlanta Board of Education. WHY? WHY? Who would be so ignorant as to think that the niggers holding positions in the education system of Georgia is not rubbing some of their communist ideas on to the students?

"This Is Your Fight"

Our loyal citizens of this nation must protest loud and long against these organizations and demand that they be put on the Subversive list. The NAACP; the Southern Regional Council; the Southern Conference Education Fund; the Georgia Committee on Interracial Co-operation. Don't forget the H.O.P.E. gang.

"Trouble and How to Correct It"

When niggers try to integrate with our white people and cause any school to close, it is time for action. The employment office throughout the South know of many white people who need jobs. Some time ago there was a plan adopted which has been spreading over the South. It is an easy operated plan which removes the niggers from every job. The white people know this is the solution of ending the Black Plague. NO NIGGERS WORKING, MEANS NO NIGGERS IN TOWN? NONE IN TOWN, MEANS NONE IN OUR SCHOOLS.

It is this easy and is being done NOW, WHITE people have begun to trade with firms who hire all white people. This reduces the funds of the NAACP. Only a nigger-mixer will continue to hire or work a nigger. This covers filling stations and elsewhere.

"TAXES and HOW TO REDUCE THEM"

Do you know the Atlanta's population is one-third niggers? They are paying five per cent of the taxes and receive a strong margin of seventy-five per cent of the tax for their race. Also there was a total of 6,000 nigger babies born at your expense at Grady Hospital. Also that there was only 600 white children coming into the schools of Atlanta and a total of 8,000 niggers.

"SHALL YOU CONTINUE TO PAY FOR THEIR PLEASURE"

While they sit in the shade and spoon in the moon light, multiplying like rats, we continue to bleed ourselves with heavy taxes to carry the socialistic burden of feeding and clothing them. They do not remain as slaves and therefore are certainly not your wards.

This is our peaceful way to win our right and it is your chance to help. Those not with us are against us. Which means the most to you, the command of the Lord, or the traditions of men?

FORD FUND GRANT SCORED

Atlanta Paper Says Tax Money Spurs Segregation Fight

ATLANTA, April 16 (AP)—Gov. Herman Talmadge's political weekly, The Statesman, today charged that Southern income tax money in effect was being spent to foster a fight on Southern segregation.

An unsigned article in the publication criticized a recent grant of $240,000 by the Ford Foundation to the Southern Regional Council. It called the foundation "a charitable fiction."

The council was organized in 1944 to work for better race relations. Its members number both whites and negroes. In announcing receipt of the grant a week ago, the council said the money would be used in an educational program extending into twelve Southern states and lasting eighteen months.

The Statesman said the Ford Foundation was exempt from Federal income taxes.

"This means," the article said, "that the money which we in the South pay in Federal income taxes, in effect, goes to support this organization which is working night and day to destroy our way of life."

In reply, Leonard Haas, Atlanta attorney and member of the council's executive committee, said the organization represented an effort by Southerners to build cooperation and mutual trust between the races. He said the Ford Foundation money was specifically for local organizations to work along these lines.

Body of Youth Taken From River

The body of a 13-year-old Negro boy was recovered Saturday from the Chattahoochee River.

He was identified as Charles Beckton of 244 Butler St., NE.

Police Lt. Ellis Barrett, aided by W. C. Brown Sr. and his son, both of Atlanta, recovered the boy's body about 150 yards from where he sank Friday.

Detective Lt. L. T. Bullard said the boy drowned while swimming with five companions Friday at 6:30 p.m.

One drowning has a city pool (Grant Park) to date this season. In Piedmont, the city's largest public pool, Cobb said, 28 persons have been "pulled in" to safety to date this season.

An average of 1,000 swimmers a day have been splashing in each of the city pools these recent hot days. Piedmont had 1,500 swimmers on July 4. A total of about one million bathers were reported over Atlanta's last season, according to Simons.

New Chapter Starts in Stormy Life of Rev. Craft

Ardent Follower of Talmadge Praises Senator McCarthy as Great Patriot

By MIKE EDWARDS

The Rev. Blake Craft parts his hair in the middle, has a sort of hooked nose and looks at the world from behind steel-rimmed bifocals.

He is an ardent Talmadge follower, a vigorous supporter of segregation, thinks Sen. McCarthy is a great patriot and was for Gen. Douglas MacArthur "1,000 per cent." And he doesn't mind saying so.

He is happiest when he is preaching, and he is considered a good man in the pulpit. His sermons dwell heavily on "the hell in this world and the hell in the other world."

When he isn't preaching he likes to fish with a cane pole and a can of worms.

He has had an interesting life. But the chapters which are yet to be written may be just as interesting.

LAST THURSDAY—in the latest chapter in his life—13 of the Rev. Mr. Craft's fellow ministers, sitting as a jury in a church trial, found him guilty of "unchristian tempers, words or actions' and "imprudent or unministerial conduct."

The charges sprouted from a little newspaper the Rev. Mr. Craft publishes. He calls it "One Methodist Voice" and he has filled it with some pretty vigorous statements about alleged Communist influences in the clergy and liberal teachings.

Church people say privately that this isn't the reason he was brought to trial. They said he had printed "slurs and innuendos" about his fellow Georgia ministers in addition to what he said about Communist influences.

THE REV. MR. CRAFT plainly thought he was right in printing what he printed. And the trial jury plainly thought he wasn't.

So he was suspended from the ministry for a year.

The Rev. Mr. Craft was born at Toccoa 52 years ago. He was the son of a preacher in the Holiness faith. His parents operated an orphanage "on faith" for 30 years.

Rev. Mr. Craft — Sen. McCarthy — A. J. Moore — Bishop Oxnam

At 16 Blake Craft was preaching. He went off to college—he attended three—and got a degree from the old Atlanta Theological Seminary.

THEN HE WENT BACK to preaching, still in the Holiness faith.

But in 1929 he asked for admission into the Methodist Church. He had a Methodist family background that stretched across generations. He was admitted and given a circuit of four little churches near Alpharetta.

Then other churches followed. In 1940 he was called to active duty as a Navy chaplain. He stayed in the Navy until 1946, then returned to Georgia and became the pastor at East End—now East Lake—Methodist Church in Decatur.

During this time he had no quarrel with the church about communism or liberalism.

BUT IN 1950—about the time of some of the Communist exposes in Washington—the first issue of "One Methodist Voice" Council, an organization which encourages racial harmony and which, incidentally, numbers appeared.

It was, from the beginning a militant paper. It attacked some Georgia ministers who signed a petition advocating FEPC. It went after the Southern Regional Methodist Bishop Arthur J. Moore among its directors.

He went after Bishop G. Bromley Oxnam and other churchmen.

He accused the church of disseminating literature which advocated world federalism.

THEN—in 1953—his disagreement with the church became sharper. He was placed on leave and told by Bishop Moore that no church would have him unless he quit "slandering his brethren" in his newspaper.

The Rev. Mr. Craft kept publishing the paper.

Next came the trial, writing another chpater in his life.

The chapter yet to be written may be as interesting.

The Rev. Mr. Craft hasn't said whether he'll keep on publishing his paper. But he has indicated he will as long as he feels there's a need for it.

So, there could be more fireworks.

Protestants Cry Out From Pulpits Against Stifling Freedom of Mind

By New York Times News Service.

NEW YORK, July 5—Protestant leaders spoke out strongly from New York pulpits today against the threat of "McCarthyism" to intellectual freedom.

The burden of their sermons was a general denunciation of alleged attempts to stifle freedom of expression, rather than direct criticism of Sen. Joseph R. McCarthy, the junior Republican senator from Wisconsin, who is chairman of the Senate's permanent subcommittee on investigations.

Some of the speakers, however, were provoked by an article in the July issue of the American Mercury in which J. B. Mathews, the executive director of the committee, asserted that "the largest single group supporting the Communist apparatus in the United States today is composed of Protestant clergymen."

The statement, Dean James A. Pike of the New York Cathedral (St. John the Divine) said, "is so absurd on the face of it as to reflect on Mr. Matthews' competence to hold any public office." He added that "if this systematic smearing of our fellow citizens continues to go on, more than the Rosenbergs will have died in our land."

The Rev. Adam Clayton Powell Jr. of the Abyssinian Baptist Church declared that Matthews had "lied" in making the statement and said it should be an example to the church that "this is the hour of antichrist."

Dr. Charle C. Cole Jr., assistant dean of Columbia College, delivering a sermon as a layman, denounced attacks on clergymen by "McCarthyism, blotant exaggeration, half-truth and political demagoguery." He said that "freedom of thought must remain inviolate in the ministry."

The Rev. Joseph D. Huntley, speaking at the Broadway Tabernacle (Congregational) at 56th Street, declared that ministers had become "suspect" because "unfortunately we sometimes find Communists espousing some of the same causes that we espouse." Despite such a development, he said, "one of the greatest tasks of the church is social action."

The Rev. John Paul Jones of the Union Church of Bay Ridge (Presbyterian) declared in a sermon on "The Use of Freedom" that "there are a lot of men in places of authority without sufficient character and discipline to hold to the American ideal, and they are backed up by a great multitude of people who are timid, selfish and blind to all values except the prosperity of the moment."

These sentiments were by no means unanimous among Protestant clergy, however. The American Council of Christian Churches, which describes itself as being organized "to offset the modernist, Socialist influence" of its rival, the National Council of Churches, released the text of a telegram sent to Sen. McCarthy praising Mathews' article.

"This council has long urged that the spotlight be thrown on religious leaders aiding Communism," the telegram stated, "and their traducers are not," Dean Pike said. "The only conspiracy between us is our common allegiance to the Kingdom of God, which is a higher loyalty than to acts of Congress or the un-American activities of congressmen or their employes."

Dr. Cole, a layman, conducted the services today at the Washington Square Methodist Church, 133 West Fourth Street, and preached on "our fight for freedom."

He observed that there are those who would in fanatical fervor hound those ministers, teachers, editors and others with whom they disagree; the very persons for whom freedom of thought has the greatest meaning.

"To be pastor of a congregation, to be teacher of a class is to have a loyalty higher than that to a state or of a narrow political creed," he said. "To preach or to teach demands loyalty to one's God and to the truth."

The battle against Communism should not prevent the waging of battle against economic inequities, he declared, adding: "We must not forget that even in this age one-tenth of all our families still survive somehow on an income of less than $20 a week."

Criticism of the American economic system evokes cries of indignation today, he said. But even though citizens must be alert to "the subversive elements in our nation," they must never cease improving "our system of production and distribution so that no classes or groups are discriminated against." The national wealth, he said, must be apportioned so that everyone may have "a decent standard of living."

Jones, preaching at his home church in Brooklyn, denounced the use of congressional investigating committees for a "clever and sinister bypassing of the courts." He declared that as a result:

"Countless individuals have been accused of all sorts of crimes, principally disloyalty, which is the worst of all, and have been tried, condemned and disgraced without due process, and without resort to the courts which have been set up for their protection. Some of these have been guilty; the majority have been wholly innocent. They have committed only one offense—thinking for themselves and insisting upon the right to be different."

Powell, in the sermon at his church, also spoke on the problem of racial discrimination against Negroes in the churches. He praised the action of the Roman Catholic bishop of Raleigh, N. C., in abolishing segregation in the churches of his diocese and said his action "has shamed the Protestant church in the South."

If there was any truth in the statements made by Matthews, he said, it lay in this area. "Communism only succeeds when democracy fails," he said, "and so long as Protestantism continues to ignore democraic principles then they are Communism's greatest strength."

The burden of their sermons was a general denunciation of alleged attempts to stifle freedom of expression, rather than direct criticism of Sen. Joseph R. McCarthy, the junior Republican senator from Wisconsin, who is chairman of the Senate's permanent subcommittee on investigations.

Some of the speakers, however, were provoked by an article in the July issue of the American Mercury in which J. B. "This council has long urged that the spotlight be thrown on religious leaders aiding Communism," the telegram stated. Mathews, it said, "is to be honored as a patriot and factual analyst" for "too long has Comthrough clergymen who have enjoyed immunity from investigation."

Dean Pike's sermon was delivered at morning services in the Whitestone Bridge Drive-In Theater, Bruckner Boulevard and Hutchinson River Parkway.

He declared that it is "alarming to find that procedures resulting from fear of Communism are causing us to lose those very things that most distinguish our way of life from theirs." As an example of this he cited the article by Mathews.

Cites Petition

Mathews had cited as proof that clergymen were tainted by Communism, Dean Pike said, the fact that 528 of them had signed a petition opposing the McCarran Act, which governs immigration and naturalization.

"I can give Mr. Mathews some more evidence of 'treason,'" he said. "The almost 1,000 delegates to the convention of the Episcopal Diocese of New York voted by a large majority a sharp condemnation of the McCarran Act. If this be evidence of Communist conspiracy, then he can add to his list the clergy and laymen of the convention—mostly vestrymen. Heretofore Episcopal vestrymen have not been principally distinguished for their radical leanings."

Ministers have spoken out on social questions, he said, "because as ministers of God they are under ordination vows to proclaim the gospel of freedom and human dignity against all that would tyrannize the soul—on either side of the curtain."

"They are the true Americans; which is a higher loyalty than to acts of Congress or the un-American activities of congressmen or their employes."

Dr. Cole, a layman, conducted the services today at the Washington Square Methodist Church, 133 West Fourth Street, and preached on "our fight for freedom."

He observed that there are those who would in fanatical fervor hound those ministers, teachers, editors and others with whom they disagree; the very persons for whom freedom of thought has the greatest meaning.

"To be pastor of a congregation, to be teacher of a class is to have a loyalty higher than that to a state or of a narrow political creed," he said. "To preach or to teach demands loyalty to one's God and to the truth."

The battle against Communism should not prevent the waging of battle against economic inequities, he declared, adding: "We must not forget that even in this age one-tenth of all our families still survive somehow on an income of less than $20 a week."

Criticism of the American economic system evokes cries of indignation today, he said. But even though citizens must be alert to "the subversive elements in our nation," they must never cease improving "our system of production and distribution so that no classes or groups are discriminated against." The national wealth, he said, must be apportioned so that everyone may have "a decent standard of living."

Jones, preaching at his home church in Brooklyn, denounced the use of congressional investigating committees for a "clever and sinister bypassing of the courts." He declared that as a result:

"Countless individuals have been accused of all sorts of crimes, principally disloyalty, which is the worst of all, and have been tried, condemned and disgraced without due process, and without resort to the courts which have been set up for their protection. Some of these have been guilty; the majority have been wholly innocent. They have committed only one offense—thinking for themselves and insisting upon the right to be different."

Powell, in the sermon at his church, also spoke on the problem of racial discrimination against Negroes in the churches. He praised the action of the Roman Catholic bishop of Raleigh, N. C., in abolishing segregation in the churches of his diocese and said his action "has shamed the Protestant church in the South."

If there was any truth in the statements made by Matthews, he said, it lay in this area. "Communism only succeeds when democracy fails," he said, "and so long as Protestantism continues to ignore democraic principles then they are Communism's greatest strength."

The Voice of Our Readers

Church Leader Hits Literature Of Council of Church Women

TO THE EDITOR:

What does Christian citizenship require of us today? Being human, none of us actually practice perfect Christian citizenship. Most of us know what we believe it to include—reverence for God, daily worship, observance of the Sabbath, to abide by the Ten Commandments but most of all to let the spirit of God dwell in our hearts and command our lives. This is not an easy thing. It is something we have to constantly be conscious of.

As Christian Citizenship chairman of our local Council of Church Women I am amazed at finding in the literature for our use suggestions for reference including "Public Affairs Pamphlet" on politics. It is my understanding that the editor of these pamphlets is listed as "a consistent supporter of the Communist Party, its leaders and various front organizations" on page 109 of the Fourth Report of Un-American Activities in California.

As Christian women, must we bring politics into our church groups, especially by editors like this? Certainly, as Christians, we should exert our influence in everyday living, but why take up precious time in church meetings for politics?

I have before me the national publications of "The Church Woman" requesting our Christian support of FEPC. (Certainly this would be derogatory to free enterprise if an employer could not ask an applicant if he is or has been a Communist Party member or his national origin descent. We are urged to keep the UN flag flying above our American flag in our communities (where does this place our loyalty to our American flag rules?) Many of our church leaders are against the Bricker amendment. (As Christian women is it necessary for us to oppose a bill that may be necessary to preserve America and to assure us the ultimate protection of our Constitution as we have known it?)

Another book I recently acquired at a meeting sponsored by four religious groups, including the Council of Church Women, refers us to the writings of Dr. Gene Weltfish and Ruth Benedict. In this we find the sanctioning of the amalgamation of the races (intermarriage to you and I.)

As Christians we are asked to support UN and UNESCO and to prepare our communities for the acceptance of Human Rights and Genocide.

As Christian women we would ask ourselves where is this "Separation of Church and State" we have always heard of? Since when is it acceptable to bring political and controversial issues into our churches?

If the above be the issues confronting us today, let's make a study of them and each make our own individual appraisal and take our own stand instead of just accepting the "package thinking" that is being projected into our minds today.

Certainly it is the duty of every Christian to project Christian leadership in all the organizaitons and political groups we can, but must we bring politics into our churches?

Did God command us to preach "UNESCO" into all the world? My Bible says: "Go ye into all the world and preach the gospel." We can't always be agreeable and remain on the fence. We must take our stand. With righteous indignation we must make our stand as Christian women.

A GROUP OF SOUTHERNERS

representing both races, many occupations, all faiths and denominations got together in 1943 . . .

and decided . . .

IT'S UP TO US, as Southerners, to join together, face up to the South's problems honestly, and work to solve them . . .

That's how the SOUTHERN REGIONAL COUNCIL was born

SRC belongs to its members. It is non-profit, non-denominational, non-political. It is Southern in its make-up and its work.

SRC is not, however, an "isolationist" movement to separate the South's problems from the Nation's. It welcomes support and understanding from all sincere people, wherever they are. But voting membership is limited to persons living in the South.

SRC members include people from all walks of life — white and Negro, city and country, men and women, church people, businessmen, educators, labor men, and plain everyday citizens.

SRC BELIEVES that the South can be prosperous and healthy, freed of poverty, prejudice, and fear . . .

It believes in the ideals of democracy for which this Nation was founded . . .

It believes — in the name of democracy, Christianity, and common decency — that the Negro must have equal opportunity in the schoolroom, on the job, and at the polls . . .

SRC BELIEVES THAT DEMOCRACY IS SAFE ONLY WHEN EVERYBODY CONTRIBUTES TO IT AND EVERYBODY SHARES IN IT.

TO ACCOMPLISH ITS AIMS THE SOUTHERN REGIONAL COUNCIL WORKS THROUGH - - -

★ Its local groups. SRC has State Divisions and affiliated committees in eleven Southern States, and smaller groups in communities over the South . . .

★ Its Regional Office. SRC's headquarters in Atlanta, Georgia, guides the work of the local groups, advises private and official agencies, issues timely statements and publications . . .

★ A monthly bulletin. NEW SOUTH keeps members and friends of SRC informed about Southern problems and progress . . .

★ Special pamphlets. These give the facts, based on careful study of the region, in simple, illustrated form . . .

★ Public opinion. SRC helps create a better climate of opinion through newspapers, radio, speakers . . .

★ Cooperating groups. SRC works with civic clubs, church groups, labor organizations, and other groups to bring about wholesome improvements . . .

★ Home Town Self-Surveys. SRC helps local groups organize to collect the facts about their communities—and to follow through with corrective action.

TO ACCOMPLISH ITS AIMS THE SOUTHERN REGIONAL COUNCIL WORKS FOR - - -

★ Better understanding between the races. SRC helps lessen the violence that has plagued the South by providing a meeting ground where people of good will, white and colored, can come together, air their common problems, achieve honest solutions . . . When trouble brews, SRC members know whom to reach and what to do . . .

★ Equal justice. SRC watches the courts . . . points out injustices . . . works for fair police practices . . . has successfully urged the hiring of Negro policemen in towns and cities throughout the South . . .

★ Equal public services. SRC works to get a square break for ALL our people in —

HOSPITALS AND MEDICAL CARE

SCHOOLS

JOBS

FARMING OPPORTUNITIES

VETERANS SERVICES

HOUSING

★ Full citizenship for everyone in

VOTING

JURY SERVICE

REPRESENTATION ON OFFICIAL BODIES

★ State government for ALL the people. SRC works for the day when our States will serve all citizens equally.

SOME ACHIEVEMENTS OF THE SOUTHERN REGIONAL COUNCIL - - -

Supplied the basic facts in successful campaigns to secure Negro policemen in Atlanta, Memphis, Nashville, Conway (S.C.), and other cities.

During 1945-1947 helped smooth the path for the returning veteran by a widespread field program. Nine World War II veterans — eight of them Negroes — made personal visits to veterans servicing officials in over a third of the counties in the South . . . acquainted them with the needs of Negro veterans . . . taught veterans the full range of services they could get . . . spent $75,000 on this project alone.

Sponsored the 1948 Southwide Meeting on Human and Civil Rights at which four hundred community leaders, representing both races and every Southern State, devised ways to strengthen basic rights at the local level.

Has worked for Negro representation on school boards and other official bodies, elective and appointive.

Has assisted church women in a Southwide program for better law enforcement and equal justice in the courts.

Has successfully encouraged improved practices in the handling of racial news in Southern newspapers.

THROUGH STATE DIVISIONS AND AFFILIATES - - -

Aroused public opinion against the Ku Klux Klan and played an active part in getting local ordinances passed curbing the activities of such terroristic groups.

Persuaded numerous white churches throughout Georgia to be hosts to interracial meetings.

Has encouraged and aided bi-racial committees in Southern towns and cities to make community self-surveys. These have brought striking improvements in Negro communities — most notably in Jacksonville, Fla., and Greenville, S. C.

Played a leading part in bringing about the establishment of the State Training School for Negro Girls in Texas.

Was largely responsible for the creation of Negro community centers in Macon, Savannah, and other Georgia cities . . . Helped secure a modern, well-equipped Negro Boys' Club for Atlanta.

Aided the Florida Citizens Committee on Education in drawing up recommendations to the General Assembly which would provide equal education for ALL children.

Took the lead in getting Kentucky's Day Law amended to permit Negroes to receive medical and nursing education in institutions formerly open to white students only.

What They Say About The Southern Regional Council—

"The SRC is unique in a number of heartening directions. It is bi-racial, non-denominational and non-political. It does not indulge in tom-tom beating, parades or lengthy pronunciamentos slanted for non-Southern consumption and approval. But it is not an isolationist effort to separate the South's problems from the nation's — or from the nation's concern."

— Hodding Carter

"The sort of organization which makes . . . progress possible, and which therefore deserves the support of all Southerners."

— Richmond TIMES-DISPATCH

"The most widely respected interracial group in the South."

— Asheville TIMES

"Progress can surely be made if liberals, North and South, will sit down and reason together along the lines this group suggests."

POLICE SCIENCE BOOK REVIEWS

Edited by Ralph F. Turner*

RACE AND LAW ENFORCEMENT: A Guide to Modern Police Practices. Southern Regional Council, 63 Auburn Avenue, N.E., Atlanta, Georgia. Pp. 20.

This terse but forceful pamphlet sets forth some clear and pertinent answers to the question of the role of the police in racial problems. It begins with a far sighted and sound analysis of the profession of "policemanship" including attitudes toward all people that lessen tension. Then the basic problems of prejudice are discussed with clarity and understanding. Methods of understanding and preventing prejudice are set forth.

The role of the negro policeman is discussed, and some of the excellent experiences in cities employing them are explained. The booklet concludes with a checklist for race and law enforcement in a typical community and a short but important bibliography.

Although this pamphlet is primarily designed for southern communities, it could be read and studied with great profit by all municipal police departments throughout the country.

This is a fact-packed publication of the Corrections Department of California. It contains the "accumulated experiences of many peace officers" in the transportation of persons under restraint. Some of the escapes and injuries resulting from hidden hazards and improper safeguards are discussed. Methods of safeguarding the persons transported from escape are clearly established. This is a clear, well written, well illustrated (19) manual, which is a valuable source of information for all agencies concerned with the transportation of persons under restraint. Southern Groups Seek Own Race Solutions

White, Negro Leaders Want Chance To Work Free From Outside Pressure

By the Associated Press

Southerners, represented by separate groups of white and Negro leaders, are planning new efforts to solve their racial problem, letting it be known that they want to tackle the question themselves, free from outside pressure.

White leaders, conferring in Atlanta last week, emphasized their opinion that the program must be one of "evolution and not revolution."

The Atlanta conference arranged for a committee to be named later from this group to meet with a similar committee appointed by a conference of Southern Negro leaders at Durham, N. C., last October. The two committees jointly will work out a program.

In a formal statement of policy issued today, the Atlanta group asserted that "either to deny or ignore the increased tension between the white and colored races would be a gesture of insincerity," and offered the Durham conference assurance of "our desire to co-operate in any sound program aimed at the improvement of race relations."

Negroes' Wishes Set Forth

The Durham conference set up a specific program of "what the Negro wants and is expecting of the postwar South and nation," and enumerated, among other things, full political and civil rights for the Negro. Equal rights in labor, industry, education, agriculture, military service, social welfare and health, and improvements in the service occupations, including social security benefits for these occupations.

The Atlanta conference, while holding that the Durham "statement is so frank and courageous, so free of any suggestion of threat and ultimatum . . . that we gladly agree to co-operate," did not "attempt to make here anything like a complete reply to the questions raised."

The Atlanta conference included religious, educational, labor, and business leaders from Georgia, Florida, Alabama, Louisiana, Mississippi, Texas, North Carolina, South Carolina, Tennessee, Kentucky and Virginia.

Ralph McGill, editor of the Atlanta Constitution, was elected to preside at the one-day session.

Statement in Full

Text of the statement of policy by the conference of white Southerners on race relations follows:

"In October, 1942, a representative group of Southern Negro leaders met in Durham, N. C., and issued a statement in which they addressed themselves 'to the current problems of racial discrimination and neglect, and to ways in which we may co-operate in the advancement of programs aimed at the sound improvement of race relations, within the democratic framework.'

"Their statement is so frank and courageous, so free from any suggestion of threat and ultimatum, and at the same time shows such good will, that we gladly agree to co-operate.

"We do not attempt to make here anything like a complete reply to the questions raised nor to offer solutions for all the vexing problems. We hope, however, to point the pathway for future co-operative efforts and to give assurance of our sincere good will and desire to co-operate in any sound program aimed at the improvement of race relations.

Discrimination Admitted

"These Negro leaders rightly placed emphasis in their statement on discrimination in the administration of our laws on purely racial grounds. We are sensitive to this charge and admit that it is essentially just. From the Potomac to the Rio Grande there are some ten million Negroes. While all citizens are governed by the same laws, it is recognized that Negroes have little voice in the making and enforcement of the laws under which they must live. They are largely dependent upon the will of the majority group for the safety of life and property, education and health, and their general economic condition. This is a violation of the spirit of democracy. No Southerner can logically dispute the fact that the Negro, as an American citizen, is entitled to his civil rights and economic opportunities.

"The race problem in any Southern community is complicated by our economic limitations. The factors which have kept the South a tributary section have also kept it poor and lacking in sufficient industry to develop and to provide enough jobs and enough public funds for every public need. Yet the only justification offered for those laws which have for their purpose the separation of the races is that they are intended to minister to the welfare and integrity of both races. There has been widespread and inexcusable discrimination in the administration of these laws. The white Southerner has an obligation to interest himself in the legitimate aspirations of the Negro. This means correcting the discrimination between the races in the allocation of school funds; in the number and quality of schools, and in the salaries of teachers. In public travel, where the law demands a separation of the races, primary justice and a simple sense of fair play demand that facilities for safety, comfort and health should be equal. The distribution of public utilities and public benefits, such as paving, playgrounds, public health and hospital facilities should come to the Negro upon the basis of population and need.

Rap at Law Enforcers

"It is recognized that there is often practical discrimination by some peace officers and in some courts in the treatment of Negro prisoners and in the abrogation of their civil rights. There is no such discrimination incorporated in the laws of any of the Southern states. False arrests, brutal beatings and other evils must be stopped.

"In the economic field, unquestionably procedures should be undertaken to establish fully the right to receive equal pay for equal work. To do otherwise works a wrong to our entire economic life and to our self respect. With so large a proportion of our wage-earning population belonging to the minority race, if we cannot plan for a well-trained, well-employed and prosperous Negro population, the economic future of the South is hopeless.

"Most of the Negroes in the South are on farms and in rural communities. Failure to provide for them all the facilities for improving agricultural practices through schools, county agents and supervision holds back all of the South. Fair wages, longer tenures of leases and increased opportunities for farm ownership are also necessary.

"All men who believe in justice, who love peace and who believe in the meaning of this country are under the necessity of working together to draw off from the body of human society the poison of racial antagonism. This is one of the disruptive forces which unless checked will ultimately disturb and threaten the stability of the nation. Either to deny or to ignore the increased tension between the white and colored races would be a gesture of insincerity.

Path to Solution Pointed

"That there are acute and intricate problems associated with two races living side by side in the South cannot be denied. But these problems can be solved and will ultimately disappear if they are brought out into an atmosphere of justice and good will. If we approach them with contempt in one group and with resentment in the other group, then we work on hopeless terms. The solution of these problems can be found only in men of both races who are known to be men of determined good will. The ultimate solution will be found in evolutionary methods and not in ill-founded revolutionary movements which promise immediate solutions.

"We agree with the Durham conference that it is 'unfortunate that the simple efforts to correct obvious social and economic injustices continue, with such considerable popular support, to be interpreted as the predatory ambition of irresponsible Negroes to invade the privacy of family life.' We agree also that 'it is a wicked notion that the struggle by the Negro for citizenship is a struggle against the best interests of the nation. To urge such a doctrine, as many are doing, is to preach disunity, and to deny the most elementary principles of American life and government.'

"It is futile to imagine or to assert that the problem will solve itself. The need is for a positive program arrived at in an atmosphere of understanding, co-operation and a mutual respect."

Signatories, announced by the conference as having signed in their individual capacities and not as representatives of any organization to which they might belong, numbered 97 from all the Southern States except Oklahoma and Arkansas. —Atlanta Journal, April 11.

SOUTHERN REGIONAL COUNCIL
63 Auburn Avenue, N. E.
Atlanta, Georgia
(WAlnut 7963)

FOR RELEASE SUNDAY, APRIL 11

(The following statement was issued today by the Executive Committee of the Southern Regional Council. A list of the Executive Committee members, as well as the members of the full Board of Directors, is attached.)

We are pleased to announce that the Fund for the Republic has approved a grant of $240,000 to assist the Southern Regional Council's educational program in twelve Southern States for an 18-month period. The Fund for the Republic, which was established by the Ford Foundation in December 1952, is concerned with preserving and extending those individual rights which are the essence of our American heritage. The Southern Regional Council, since its founding in 1944, has expressed that concern as it exists among thoughtful people of both races in the South. As the successor to the Commission on Interracial Cooperation, the Council goes back, in experience and good will, to 1919. Its aim is the attainment of equal opportunity for all the people of the South.

Throughout these years the Council, like the Commission before it, has sought to unite the best of Southern thought and leadership, without racial distinctions. It has employed the familiar methods of fact-finding, conference, and persuasion, and has fostered the development of state divisions and affiliates through which its members might work in their respective states and communities. The central office in Atlanta coordinates and services the state groups and individual members throughout the region.

The grant from the Fund for the Republic, together with contributions from other sources, will make possible stronger and more independent state bodies. It is contemplated that each state organization affiliated with the Council shall have its own membership, governing board, and officers. The greater part of the newly available funds will be used to enable the state groups to employ professional staff persons, white and Negro. Thus each Southern state will have a full-time human relations service, available to both public officials and private citizens, maintained and directed by local leadership. The states to be included are Alabama, Arkansas, Florida, Georgia, Kentucky, Louisiana, Mississippi, North Carolina, South Carolina, Tennessee, Texas, and Virginia

The grant of funds is in reality a challenge to the strengthened state bodies to win the local support necessary to become self-sustaining human relations agencies.

The Southern Regional Council proper will now consist of a widely representative board drawn from both races and every state in the region. The Atlanta office will continue to perform fact-finding, information, and coordinating functions.

We believe that this approach is well suited to the human relations needs of the South. It puts major reliance where it belongs---on local responsibility and initiative -- and it gives opportunity for the constructive forces in every Southern state to work effectively.

This pattern has characterized the activities of the Southern Regional Council from the beginning, and with heartening results. It has helped secure the right of Negro citizens to vote without hindrance. It has provided a network of Southern people with the will and the know-how to curb racial tension and violence. It has helped make possible the employment of Negro policemen and other municipal workers in scores of Southern cities. It has spread the example of the self-survey, through which a number of communities have achieved cooperation and progress across the lines of race. It has mobilized church women in a Southwide effort for impartial law enforcement and equal justice in the courts. It has stimulated local groups to study and seek correction of school inequalities. It has made widely known every Southern precedent for the dropping of racial barriers -- in professional associations, higher education, transportation, public libraries, and the like.

The impending Supreme Court decision on public school segregation -- whatever it may be -- will call for all that is best and most responsible in Southern life. Fortunately, there is abundant and growing evidence today of Southern willingness to find positive, democratic solutions to the problems of the region. It is our hope and belief that the Southern Regional Council, through its expanded state services, will make an important contribution to this effort.

The Executive Committee of the Southern Regional Council expresses its gratitude to the Fund for the Republic for putting this new strength into the growth of human opportunity in the South.

Statement concerning SRC which appeared in Research Bulletin No. 2, issued by the Grass Roots League, Inc., Box551, Charleston, S. C.

"The Southern Regional Council of Atlanta is conducting racial integration propaganda among church and other groups, and recently has received a $240,000 grant from the "Fund of the Republic" (Ford Foundation) for "educational purposes" in 12 Southern states. The Southern Regional Council in 1951 received $2,500 from the Sidney Hillman Foundation (C.I.O.) for improvement of race relations and social justice in the South* (N. Y. World-Telegram, March 31, 1951). Communist affiliations of members of the board of directors of the Southern Regional Council are disclosed by a series of articles in the AUGUSTA (Georgia) COURIER beginning with its issue of August 16, 1954, based on reports and records of the House-Un-American Activities Committee and the U. S. Attorney General, stating: "At least 38 of SRC's officials and members of its board of directors have association with groups and activities which have been branded as Communist-fronts by responsible federal officials or congressional committees...That Dr. George S. Mitchell, Executive Director of SRC, was also a top official in the Southern Conference for Human Welfare and his name has been linked to other 'red' fronts, according to records and reports of the House Committee Investigating Un-American Activities." The Red records of many of these SRC officials are being published currently. The official monthly publication of the SRC is called NEW SOUTH. Is it the successor or continuation of the Communist Party organ, NEW SOUTH, launched August, 1938, with negro Communists Henry Winston and Benjamin Davis among its editors? Also the Southern Conference Educational fund, (whose address is 822 Perdido St., New Orleans), under investigation by the Senate Internal Security Sub-committee as a poosible Communist-front, is headed by James A. Dombrowski, formerly secretary of the Communist-front Southern Conference for Human Welfare, at 808 Perdido St., New Orleans. In addition, the House Un-American Activities Committee lists as subversive some 87 Communist and Socialist organizations which have been active in the pro-negro campaign.

NOTICE

Ford Motor Company and its dealers have been falsely accused of contributing to the NAACP. In an effort to clarify these rumors, we telephoned and wrote Ford Motor Company and received the following replies:

"Wilcox Service Company,
"Camden, Alabama
"Dear Mr. Webb:

"I have read your letter with interest. Ford Motor Company has no control whatever over either the Ford Foundation or any of the funds, including the Fund For The Republic, established by the Foundation.

"Besides being President of Ford Motor Company, I am chairman of the trustees of the Ford Foundation. It is only natural for me to feel a deep sense of concern for any action that reflects discredit on either the Company or the Foundation.

"Because the Fund For The Republic was established as a completely independent organization, neither I nor any of the other trustees of the Ford Foundation has a voice in the Fund's activities or projects. We have no control over selection of personnel for the Fund's staff. As trustees of the Foundation, we appointed the original Board of the Fund, consisting of 16 well-known and patriotic people, in 1951. These directors were given authority to select other directors and their successors without reference to us. They have exercised this authority in 7 instances, and carried out their program on their own responsibility.

"Despite the fact that I have no legal right to intervene in the affairs of the Fund Of The Republic, I have, as a private citizen, questioned the manner in which the Fund has attempted to achieve its stated objectives. Some of its actions, I feel, have been dubious in character and have led to charges of poor judgement. What effect my comments may have remains to be seen. I am satisfied, however, that no public trust can expect to fulfill its responsibilities if it does not respond to intelligent and constructive public criticism.

"Dear Mr. Webb:

"Thank you very much for your recent letter. We certainly share your concern about the unfavorable—and I might add, unjustified—criticism being leveled at Ford Motor Company in your territory.

" The substance of criticism is that Ford Motor Company, the Ford Foundation, or both are contributing to organizations engaged in controversial issues. The facts simply do not support the charge.

"I have ascertained that the $50,000 grant given such wide publicity was made by an organization known as "The Fund For The Republic".

"There apparently has been a common misimpression in the South that the Ford Foundation itself has been heavily engaged in the segregation problem. I have in-

"Dear Mr. Webb:

"Thank you very much for your recent letter. We certainly share your concern about the unfavorable—and I might add, unjustified—criticism being leveled at Ford Motor Company in your territory.

"I have ascertained that the $50,000 grant given such wide publicity was made by an organization known as "The Fund For The Republic".

"There apparently has been a common misimpression in the South that the Ford Foundation itself has been heavily engaged in the segregation problem. I have investigated and found that this is not the case. The most striking example of the Foundation's work is the $500 million gift it has just made to the colleges and hospitals of America.

"It seems unfortunate that the good work of the Foundation should suffer in the eyes of the public because of the inaccurate rumors which are being circulated. I cannot speak for the Foundation, of course, because I have no connection with it. My concern, a concern I share with you, is for the good name of the Ford Motor Company. But since I have made it a point to acquaint myself with all the facts, I know without question that attempts to place the Ford Company and the Foundation on one side or the other of difficult local controversies are based on misunderstanding or malice, and possibly both.

"The Company's record in the South is an excellent one, and we have every reason to be proud of it. The same applies, in my opinion, to the record of the Ford Foundation.

"I know from your letter that the problem facing you is a serious one. We want to be of every assistance possible to you in dealing with it. I hope you will not hesitate to write me again if there is any additional specific data which might be useful.

"Very sincerely,
"FORD MOTOR COMPANY,

"Assistant to the President."

We have the above letters on file and will appreciate the opportunity of discussing with you these matters. We invite you to come in and talk with us about them.

Collegians Protest Over Cuba

Civil Liberties

By HAL GULLIVER

About 25 demonstrators carrying posters marched at the edge of Hurt Park in Atlanta Wednesday protesting United States policy on Cuba.

Typical posters read, "Negotiations Instead of Quarantine," "What About Our Unborn Children?", and "Let's Talk in the U.N."

The demonstrators included college students from Spelman, Morehouse and Georgia State College. There were also several faculty members from Spelman.

A COUNTER-MARCH

At about 5 p.m., 30 minutes after the protest demonstration began, a larger crowd of students —from Georgia State—began an impromptu march across the street protesting the anti-U.S. policy demonstration. This group carried signs reading, "Better Dead Than Red" and "Look What Pacifism Did for India."

Various spokesmen for the pacifist demonstrators said that no one organization sponsored the protest gathering.

"It came about through a number of phone calls between concerned individuals," said a young American history teacher, Staughton Lynd, from Spelman College. Both Lynd and his wife carried posters in the demonstration.

A one-page mimeographed statement, headed "Why We Are Here," was handed to passers-by.

EXPRESSES DISTRESS

"We are disturbed," read the statement, "by the President's decision to blockade Cuba.

dent's hasty and provocative response."

The statement further argued, "Thus far the principle (sic) aggressor in Cuban-American relations has been the United States . . .," and suggested that domestic politics played an important part in the President's decision.

RISK FEARED

"Are we risking nuclear annihilation so that the Democratic Party can win an election?" the statement asked.

The protest march included approximately 15 white persons and 10 Negroes.

Many of the marchers were recognized by newsmen as persons involved in desegregation demonstrations, including members of the Student Non-Violent Coordinating Committee and the Albany Movement.

Also recognized were members of the National Student Association.

Vincent Harding, a Negro lay minister for the Menonite Church, who several months ago helped lead a march on the city hall in Albany, made this comment:

"As a Christian I have to find some way of seeing what it means to love my enemy. I don't think the way is to shoot missiles."

GIRL SINGS HYMNS

One Negro girl, who said she was a college student, sang hymns as she marched along and declined to say where she was a student.

Professor H. C. Steinmetz, who teaches psychology at Spelman, walked along arm-in-arm with his wife.

Persons walking along the sidewalk usually hesitated at sight of the posters, but there were very few comments, only apparent puzzlement.

Several Georgia State students crossed the street to attempt to argue with the marchers, but in general Atlanta police kept people moving along. There was never any suggestion of violence, verbal or physical.

One Georgia State student, Mrs. Janet Hose, carried a sign protesting the protest, "Better Dead Than Red."

"I only got here at two minutes till five," said Mrs. Hose, a housewife with two children. "Students who'd seen the signs across the street just decided to make signs of their own.

POINTS TO PLACARD

"Look at that sign," she said, pointing to one reading, "What About Our Unborn Children." "Why don't they ask, what about our born children?"

The demonstrators ended their march at 5:30 p.m., exactly one hour after it began.

They then gathered in Hurt Park for a brief meeting of the group, agreeing that the march had been worthwhile and that they would demonstrate again Thursday afternoon at 4:30 at the same place.

A telegram had been sent to the group, said one girl, from the "Harvard Peace Group." She read the telegram aloud:

"The Harvard Peace Group and hundreds of the Boston area students wholeheartedly support your demonstration. We demonstrate tomorrow in Boston Common. We demonstrate together."

MAY SHIFT SITE

A suggestion was offered that Thursday the group demonstrate in front of the General Services Building on Peachtree Street, where a regional conference of Congressmen will be held for briefing on the Cuban crisis, but the group decided instead to return to Hurt Park.

Other posters carried by the marchers read, "We Want Freedom to Live," and "Peace in the World, Not the World in Pieces."

Georgians Picket

Special to The New York Times

ATLANTA, Oct. 24—A biracial group of 25 persons picketed for an hour here today at downtown Hurt Park in protest against the Cuban blockade.

There were no incidents and no arrests. The police took the names and addresses of the demonstrators but told them they were free to picket as long as they did not block the sidewalk.

Students at Georgia State College, across from the park, gathered in front of the institution on the opposite sidewalk and a few staged a half-hearted counter-demonstration.

The demonstrators said they were acting as individuals. Most were students or faculty members at Spelman and Morehouse Colleges, both Negro institutions, or persons associated with various civil rights groups.

Anti-Blockaders Plan New March

Anti-blockade demonstrators, who marched Wednesday afternoon near Hurt Park, planned to return Thursday at 4:30 p.m.

The group, self-described as individuals "representing only ourselves," marched more than an hour Wednesday with signs protesting the Cuban blockade.

IN A PREPARED statement, the group said:

"If it is true that the Soviet Union has . . . (stationed) long-range missiles in Cuba, this does not necessarily justify the President's hasty and provocative response."

The statement continues:. "Are we risking nuclear annihilation so that the Democratic party can win an election?"

The group was made up of college students from Spelman, Morehouse and Georgia State, and several nonstudents, one of them an 86-year-old woman.

THEY CARRIED signs that proclaimed, "Peace in the world; not the world in pieces," and "We want to live."

Across the street from the demonstration Georgia State students came out of class buildings and watched the marchers. Then, a few signs appeared among the students, protesting the protest.

These students' signs read "Better dead than Red," and "War or peace, we back Jack."

But the mood of the students protesting the march was similar to that of a collegiate football game, whereas those demonstrating against the blockade were for the most part quiet and serious.

There was no disorder and police kept the sidewalks from being blocked.

MEMBERS OF Atlanta's special security police squad, who have handled racial demonstrations in the past, took the names of demonstrators.

Several participants in the biracial event Wednesday have taken part in demonstrations before.

Rev. Vincent Harding and Dr. Staughton Lynd, who took part in the demonstration Wednesday, both said they had been to Washington last year to "express our great concern over efforts for disarmament."

individuals, not as members of an organization.

ONE DEMONSTRATOR, who has been active with the National Student Association, said there has been wide diversity of opinion over Cuba in that organization, and that no one person could say what the organization believed on the blockade issue.

One demonstrator said he was there to show the public that Americans have the right to dissent, and the freedom to speak out on issues.

Mr. Harding is a Mennonite minister and Mr. Lynd is an American history teacher at Spelman College.

But several demonstrators, including at least one from Georgia State, just saw the group protesting, agreed with them, and joined the line of about 25 who were walking back and forth.

TWO GEORGIA STATE students standing nearby were asked their opinion of the protest. "We're all for it," they answered. "If it wasn't for the television cameras we'd be there too."

But another Georgia State student, on the other side of the street, voiced an opposing view. "This is how the majority of us feel," he said, picking up a poster which proclaimed, "We Back Jack."

Dr. Lynd and Mr. Harding, who acted as spokesmen for the protest group, emphasized that all the persons there were acting as Demonstrators protesting U.S. Cuban policy marched again in Atlanta Thursday along the edge of Hurt Park across from Georgia State College.

They were answered in kind by two groups of pickets, also carrying posters, who demonstrated against the demonstrators.

Georgia State College students began their rival march shortly before 5 p.m., just after the 15 to 20 pickets protesting U.S. policy began demonstrating for the second afternoon in a row.

"ALL THE WAY"

The posters carried by Georgia State students read "JFK All the Way," "Freedom at All Cost," and "Students Back Jack."

At approximately 5:15 p.m. four young men, one carrying an American flag, marched on Hurt Park from the southeast and began their own demonstration along the southeast side of the park.

The four men identified themselves as members of the National States Rights Party.

They wore crisp uniforms with black trousers and shoes, white shirts, a black belt diagonally across the chest, and arm bands with a thunderbolt insignia imposed over a Confederate flag.

HAND OUT PAPERS

The two posters they carried read, "Blood is the Price of Liberty," and "Invade Cuba, Not Mississippi." They also handed out copies of The Thunderbolt, "The White Man's Viewpoint."

Robert Bolling, leader of the states rights group, said, "We advocate an immediate invasion of Cuba."

The pickets demonstrating against U.S. policy on Cuba turned out in smaller numbers Thursday than the day before. Before beginning Thursday's march, they met briefly on the sidewalk to decide whether they would march again, then demonstrated for approximately 45 minutes.

"This isn't merely a negative protest," commented Staughton Lynd, an American history teacher at Spelman College. "We are here to witness to the necessity of negotiations in the present Cuban crisis.

"I'm emphatically in favor of all citizens freely expressing their opinion," Lynd added, nodding at the rival Georgia State student pickets across the street. The reason we're here is that we want to communicate our opinion to our fellow citizens."

The demonstrators against U.S.-Cuban policy included college students from Georgia State, Emory University, and a Negro student from Southern Illinois.

ONE PASSING THROUGH

John O'Neal, the student from Illinois, said he was a field secretary for the Student Non-Violent Coordinating Committee and was only passing through Atlanta.

SNCC has been active in various desegregation demonstrations, including the Albany Movement.

Also marching in the protest against U.S. Cuban policy were two members of the National Student Association, although they emphasized that they were participating as individuals, rather than NSA members.

NSA, they said, has abstained from taking any position, regionally or nationally, on the Cuban crisis.

The demonstrators again, as they had Wednesday, passed out copies of a mimeographed statement reading in part, "If it is true that the Soviet Union has committed the criminal folly of stationing long-range missiles in Cuba, this does not necessarily justify the President's hasty and provocative response."

AN ENDORSEMENT

Georgia State students, in their opposition march, also passed out a statement, one also headed, "Why We Are Here."

"As students of Georgia State College," the statement read, "we feel compelled to demonstrate our approval of the action taken by President Kennedy to cease further Communist military advances in the Western Hemisphere. . . .

"The United States cannot wait until after Soviet missiles are fired to take defensive measures. . . ."

The statement was signed by Stuart Strenger, president of the Student Government Association at Georgia State College.

'WERE FURIOUS'

One Georgia State student, Miss Cary Elizabeth Howard of Atlanta, commented, "We were just furious last night about the views expressed in the demonstration.

"The overall student reaction was definitely in favor of President Kennedy's position. We believe in freedom of dissent, that the demonstrators can express their view, but we want to express ours."

Other signs carried by Georgia State students read, "Freedom of choice, not fear of choice," "Think, Americans," and "Submission is Death."

One poster carried in the anti-Cuban policy picket line across the street read, "They are demonstrating in California, Boston, Detroit, Minnesota, Wisconsin, and Chicago."

The group protesting U.S. policy ended their demonstration at 5:30 and held a brief meeting, agreeing that they would not at present plan additional demonstrations.

Atlanta police kept passers-by moving along and allowed no blocking of the sidewalk by any demonstrators.

There was never danger of violence at any time.

Picket Admits Ties to Braden

Atl Const 10-26-62 Civil Liberties

By BILL SHIPP

A 24-year-old New York woman who participated in Thursday's demonstration here against the U.S. blockade of Cuba said she is a paid associate of Carl Braden.

Braden, field secretary of the Southern Conference Educational Fund, Inc., was imprisoned for a year on a contempt of Congress conviction after he refused to tell the House Un-American Activities Committee whether he was a Communist.

In House Un-American Activities Committee hearings in Atlanta in June 1958, Richard Arens, the committee's staff director, said the committee had received sworn testimony that Braden was a Communist.

Arens also said in the hearing that the Southern Conference Education Fund has been labeled as an offspring of the Southern Conference for Human Welfare, an alleged Communist front organization.

Miss Dorothy Rochelle (Dottie) Miller, who works for the Braden organization, said she helped organize the picketing opposing President John F. Kennedy's stand against the arms buildup in Cuba.

Miss Miller told newsmen she is paid $75 a week by the Southern Conference Education Fund to handle "staff work" for a proposed Civil Liberties Conference which is expected to be held in Atlanta next spring.

Miss Miller said she informed newsmen the demonstration would be held. She said she also called other persons about participating in the demonstration, and she said she received calls from persons asking about participating.

Miss Miller, a native of New York and a 1960 graduate of Queens College, came to Atlanta in June of 1960. She said she formerly was employed by the Southern Regional Council, and had worked with the Congress on Racial Equality (CORE).

She presently has an office with the Student Nonviolent Coordinating Committee, and works on civil rights drives with SNCC, she said.

She traveled to Albany during the demonstrations organized by the desegregationist Albany movement.

Miss Miller, a pretty brunette with a pony-tail hair-do, said the proposed civil rights meeting is being organized by the Southern Conference Education Fund, SNCC, and other desegregation organizations including the Southern Christian Leadership Conference, which is headed by Dr. Martin Luther King Jr.

A reporter who walked along the picket line with Miss Miller Thursday asked her if she is, or had ever been, a member of the American Communist party.

She replied:

"Whether a person is a Communist or not is secondary to whether he believes in and acts for integration and peace."

She said she would not answer the question because "I believe a person's political views are inviolate. . . ."

Miss Miller said she sympathized with Braden in his refusal to answer the questions of the House Un-American Activities Committee.

Pickets Put Forth Two Moods; The People Move Between Them

By PAT WATTERS

THERE THEY were. For two days, they staged a little atomic-age drama by Hurt Park where yellow fall flowers bloom and by the Municipal Auditorium where civil defense works in the basement and the sign on the front advertises symphony concerts for children.

On one sidewalk, a peace protest group marched, about half adult, half student, half white, half Negro. The first day there were 22, the second, 14.

They were there presumably driven by the threat to human life that all of us feel in regard to the horror prospect of nuclear holacaust. Some of their signs "What about unborn children?" touched on philosophical fears raised at the dawn of the atomic age and rehashed in great verbal profusion ever since, with apparently little practical effect.

HANDBILLS

The stenciled handbills they distributed were less philosophical. In the assessment of whom to protest against, these were amazingly unilateral. Perhaps the group felt as Americans they couldn't influence Russia, but one felt Russia should have got its lumps, too.

Across the street on the other sidewalk were Georgia State College students raising placards of their own, the first day spontaneously, the second day in an organized, dignified demonstration, also.

"Better dead than red," said some of their signs in classical popular-level misinterpretation of Bertrand Russell's chilling rationale for historical perspective which refers to death of all life, not individuals or nations.

Generally, the Georgia State marchers and their signs expressed the predominant, patriotic run of opinion in the Cuban crisis, the willingness to trust leadership in its judgment of the Cuban threat and its ability to protect our interests and ideals without risking world's end in war.

On the first day, when the Georgia State mood was jeering and wisecracking, one student arrived late, assessed the situation of peace protesters and protester protesters, and said: "I guess I better get in the street."

Out in the street, in the antline rows of going-home cars, and on the sidewalks where throngs of going home city workers walked was, indeed, the significant place in this strange, eloquently symbolic, atomic-age scene.

For these great masses of Atlantans passing by had almost stock and identical reactions. They looked at the marchers and competing signs, registered something, mostly sort of a blank, stony stare, and then, virtually all, went right on. This was truer the first day than the second when crisis tension was less and smiles easier.

A few paused. "I agree with almost every sentiment on their signs," said one about the peace marchers. "But my gosh, I don't agree with what they're doing." Said another: "I guess they have to have police protection." These were mute-toned comments, devoid of strong feeling, like absurdist comments of characters in existentialist novels.

Most of the great hordes of these home-going Atlantans didn't pause, didn't comment. They saw; they reacted deep inside, and they kept going.

THE MIDDLE

They didn't engage the peace slogans, no more than a majority of the people of the world, Communist or democratic, have come to grips pro or con with the ideas behind them on a philosophical level. Also they did not join the group which jeered lightheartedly with wisecracks, approaching such serious business in pep rally spirit.

They just went their own ways, and of course no one knows their innermost thoughts and mood. But they seemed somewhere between being lighthearted at this time of danger and peril and being point-missingly zealous over ideas and ideals at a time when it is too late or, at best, inappropriate.

And out there in the street where the crowds were, in the middle, there seemed great strength and psychological wisdom at this time of testing of the people of the nuclear age.

Why Bother With Cuba?

Cin'l Libertie

atl Const 10-26-62

Three social scientists at the Atlanta University Center have written me a letter of dissent. Dr. Howard Zinn, Dr. Staughton Lynd and Dr. Samuel DuBois Cook have this to say about the blockade of Cuba:

"Even if it is true that the Soviet Union has committed the criminal folly of stationing long-range missiles in Cuba, this does not in itself justify the President's hasty and provocative response.

"We believe the President had several alternative courses of action which would not have thrust the world so close to the possibility of nuclear annihilation.

"He could have brought the situation to the United Nations before taking a unilateral action which clearly contravenes international law. He could also have accepted the many Cuban invitations to negotiate differences directly with them."

I think these professors are entirely wrong, just as I think the war-now boys of the jingo wing have been entirely wrong. It seems to me the John Birch crowd is ready to destroy American ideals in favor of blind force, but that the pacifist theory at this moment of history also invites destruction of those ideals by blind recoil from force.

There is no "if" about the presence of offensive missile bases in Cuba. If there were, the Soviets would have denied it. They cannot deny the "criminal folly" because we took pictures of the sites. The President told the Soviets directly a month ago to keep the missiles out of Cuba and they falsely assured him they would.

Second, Britain tried alternative courses of action in the 1930s. Chamberlain went dutifully to the League of Nations at each step as Hitler rearmed, reoccupied the Rhineland, seized Austria, invaded the Sudetenland. Chamberlain accepted Hitler's many invitations to negotiate differences directly. While Britain shrank from unilateral action, Hitler negotiated publicly, expressed contempt for British courage privately, and conquered at will without clearing his aggressions with the League of Nations until, when he struck Poland, the British stood.

Neither did communism clear its unilateral actions with the United Nations when it built the Berlin wall, struck India, smashed Hungary, invaded South Korea, sent offensive missiles to Cuba and announced its intention to abrogate its Berlin obligations to the West. Meanwhile, Khrushchev has begun expressing contempt privately for American courage, as Hitler ridiculed the British. When does our restraint become folly?

Chamberlain wanted peace. He got war. Kennedy wants peace. Should he emulate Chamberlain?

At what point does it become the duty of a Prime Minister or a President—or of a social science professor—to consider issues as well as ideals and relate the two?

At what point should Chamberlain have backed League ideals with British power to chasten Hitler? In what particular have communism's unilateral policies differed from Hitler's? At what stage should American power be shown to back U.N. ideals? If not now, when? After which criminal folly should the President act? Of course the President had many alternative courses of action. He chose the most difficult one. In my opinion Khrushchev, like Hitler, had proved to us by his own acts that the difficult course was the right one.

vith major differences, in a class vith Russia "protecting" itself rom Hungary, Germany "proecting" itself from Czechoslozakia.

In the main, our national morality has been above reproach: Stevenson's point that "when we had the control of the earth—overwhelming power—we withdrew," needs reiteration. How best can we keep this record clear, correct those instances of military behavior which are offensive in design, and at the same time properly protect this nation?

I want to add most urgently my plea that we make clear throughout the world that we do not intend to use, offensively, nuclear weapons; I ask that we begin, even unilaterally, the withdrawal of nuclear testing, and that we cease the pile-up of bombs, of which we have more than enough to destroy the earth.

Sometimes—often—nations quarrel, then subsequently find that larger mutual interests replace the current antagonisms. Let us hope this may now be the case. I hope also that our distinguished national leadership will have the wisdom to be firm when firmness is required, but also the courage to make adjustments when the larger interests of the world so dictate.

Protest Made About News Story

Atlanta—I feel I must respond to the article written about me by Bill Shipp. Mr. Shipp talked to me on the Cuba protest picketline for about 30 minutes and took many pages of notes. Yet he only quoted two isolated sentences in what was a lengthy statement.

I am not trying to deny Mr. Shipp's right in getting a story, but what I said was roughly this: that I believed the label of "communism," either stated or implied, is used as a technique by segregationists and John Birchers to destroy the civil rights and peace movement in this country. I consider the attempt to disparage me, and therefore disparage the whole demonstration, yet another example of the methods made so famous by a man named Joseph R. McCarthy.

When Mr. Shipp asked me questions I answered fully, and yet The Constitution saw fit to headline the story, "Picket Admits Ties to Braden," implying that I was confessing to something other than answering his questions.

The fact is that I, and others present at the picketline, were acting solely as individuals, that our organizational and personal affiliations were unimportant—much as Mr. Shipp's personal history is irrelevant to his reporting—and that we have every right to do so, without being subjected to this kind of treatment.

Messrs. McGill, Patterson, and Shipp: why not write articles debating the issue of the Cuban blockade instead of attacking one individual who was present at a demonstration?

Racial Incidents Help Kennedys?

Decatur—It is about time that people realized that the racial incidents provoked in the South really do only one thing, get votes for the Kennedys in the heavily populated cities of the North.

Surely the American people aren't so gullible as not to see that these racial incidents are provoked right at election time. Kennedy was elected because of a racial incident right here in Atlanta.

Outspoken Defender

Minister Says Religion, Segregation Compatible

By Marjorie Hunter
Staff Reporter

STATESVILLE — A white frame rectory on a quiet residential street here has become, in the past few weeks, something of the unofficial headquarters for the latest segregation movement in North Carolina.

Official headquarters, no. The pro-segregation North Carolina Defenders of States' Rights, Inc., has set up official quarters in Raleigh.

But, it is quite natural that much of the work is being done by the Defenders' first president, the Rev. James Parker Dees, outspoken segregationist, rector of Trinity Episcopal Church and president of the Statesville Area Ministerial Assn.

The Rev. Mr. Dees finds segregation and Christianity are quite compatible.

"I feel my stand is in accord with the Christian gospel," he says, firmly.

"The supreme command is to love thy neighbor," he continues. "I feel that when we help the Negro race to retain its racial integrity we show more love for the Negroes than when we try to destroy their racial integrity."

This has been his public stand for four years now—in civic club speeches, letters to editors and in a sermon delivered in his own church last month.

In taking this stand, he finds himself in opposition to the 190-member House of Bishops of the Protestant Episcopal Church.

In early November, the bishops unanimously passed a resolution urging religious and political efforts to wipe out racial discrimination and separation.

The Rev. Mr. Dees took sharp issue with this resolution in his morning sermon one Sunday in December. And, within a month, he had become president of the Defenders of States Rights, Inc.

It is an open secret that the Rev. Mr. Dees' growing importance in the pro-segregation movement in this state has caused concern in the ranks of the Episcopal Diocese of North Carolina.

And, reportedly, there is some unrest in his own congregation.

Bishop Edwin A. Penick of the Diocese of North Carolina said last week that he had talked to the Rev. Mr. Dees about his segregation activities but "I have never reprimanded him."

The bishop said that the Rev. Mr. Dees is not only an ordained minister, but is also "a citizen of the United States and as such is entitled to private opinions. I understand he makes an effort to distinguish between his rights as a citizen and as an ordained minister."

Bishop Penick said that he recognizes the Rev. Mr. Dees' right "to think as he pleases as a private citizen."

Asked if the Rev. Mr. Dees' stand on segregation conforms to that of the Episcopal Church, Bishop Penick said:

"What I have read of his statements in the press are quite at variance with the position of the Episcopal Church."

Even before the Supreme Court decision designed to end school segregation was handed down in 1954, the General Convention of the Episcopal Church went on record in opposition to segregation, the bishop said.

Unlike some denominations, an Episcopal Church congregation cannot fire a parish priest. The only recourse is to ask the bishop to dissolve the pastoral relationship—a move that is seldom taken.

simple matter, either.

A bishop can depose a priest, who then has the right to trial by an ecclesiastical court of the church. He can be tried only for violations of doctrine, discipline and worship, immorality, crime or conduct unbecoming to a clergyman.

There have been few such trials.

Even those who fail to agree with the Rev. Mr. Dees' stand do not doubt his sincerity. He is a bouncy, friendly man with a hearty laugh, a man who can be heatedly discussing segregation one minute and talking baby-talk to his daughter the next.

But some who are aware of the rigid testing given those seeking the Episcopal ministry wonder if, perhaps, his feelings on the racial issue have changed in the past few years.

The Rev. Mr. Dees says emphatically that his thinking has not undergone any change.

Monument Maker's Son

"I have felt this way all my life," he says. "I will admit that my feelings have been crystallized, you might say, in the past few years by study and observation."

A person's early environment undoubtedly plays a large part in later thinking. And it was into a segregation setting that James Parker Dees was born 43 years ago, the son of a Greenville monument maker.

Greenville, then as now, is part of the eastern North Carolina area generally regarded as about the most staunchly segregationist of any in the state. People regard segregation there as a way of life.

As the Rev. Mr. Dees explained it in a talk to the Statesville Lions Club several years ago:

"I feel that I am able to speak of this problem out of a background of intimate and personal relations with Negroes; I am a native of the South; I grew up among Negroes; when I was a baby I was bathed by a Negro mammy, fed by a Negro mammy, and, I suspect, at times spanked by one . . ."

Quiet, Studious Boy

Those spankings were probably few, for childhood friends remember Jimmy Dees as a rather quiet, studious boy, interested in music and in the Episcopal Church that was part of the family heritage.

He liked to play with neighborhood children but always seemed "just a little different," one neighbor recalls.

The family was neither rich nor poor. But, like many eastern Carolina families, there was a certain pride in ancestry.

In the ancestoral background were at least three prominent men—William Bradford, who came over from England on the Mayflower and became governor of Plymouth colony; Gov. Abner Nash of Craven County (1780-81); and Gov. Samuel Johnston of Hayes Place plantation, Edenton, (1787-89), the first senator from North Carolina.

James Dees' mother was Margaret Parker, sister of the late Judge John J. Parker of the Fourth Circuit Court of Appeals.

Worked in Dime Store

As a teen-ager, young James worked Saturdays in a Greenville dime store to earn extra spending money. His final year of high school was spent at Campbell Junior College.

He entered the University of North Carolina during the depression years, majored in political science and economics. But, even then, as he said later, he had it in the back of his mind to become a minister.

As a high school student, he had won first place in the baritone section of the state music contest. At Carolina, he organized a quartet, did solo work with the glee club and sang over radio stations in Durham and Raleigh. He was a member of Phi Mu Alpha music fraternity, the Phi Assembly and the YMCA.

He graduated in 1938, went back to Carolina for graduate work and in the summer of 1939 went to work as warehouse superintendent for the Atlantic Coast Line Railroad.

The next year, he married Margaret Lucinda Brown of Asheville, whom he had met at Carolina.

In the winter of 1943, he was drafted into the Army, spent two years in Italy as supply clerk with the Quartermaster Company of the 88th Infantry Division. He spent his leaves attending opera in Rome, Milan and Florence.

Italian opera, he discovered, was something he had been seeking all his life.

He also loves the music of Bach and Vivaldi and has a homemade hi-fi set.

"Ministry . . . Where I Belong"

In the fall of 1946, his Army service was over, he set out to find the other thing he had been seeking—the ministry. He entered Virginia Theological Seminary at Alexandria.

"I just felt the ministry was where I belonged," he said.

He finished Seminary in 1949, at the age of 33, and, after the usual tests and waiting period required for those entering the ministry, became rector of the Episcopal church at Aurora, on the south banks of the Pamlico River.

Three years later, he became the rector at Beaufort, then in the summer of 1955 came to Trinity Church here.

By that time, the Dees family had grown to four. Margaret is now 7 and a first-grader. Eugenia (Genie) is just 4.

For a few months, the Rev. Mr. Dees had a double job, as rector of Trinity and priest in charge of a Negro parish. He gave up the parish work after what he refers to as a difference of opinion with "some integrationist NAACP Negroes." Since then, the parish has been served by a Winston-Salem rector.

The Rev. Mr. Dees had voiced some views on the segregation subject early in his ministry. But his first major assault on school integration came one spring day in 1955 in a talk to the Statesville Lions Club, of which he is a member.

"Good Will for the Negro"

His topic was: "Is it Necessary for a Christian to Support Integration?"

"I believe that I love the Lord and I believe that I have a profound affection and good will for the Negro race and concern for their progress," he told the Lions. "At the same time, I am unequivocally opposed to de-segregation."

Some of the ideas he expressed in that speech were included in his later letters to the editor:

"Do black birds intermingle with the blue birds? Does the red-wing fly with the crows? Would it make sense for my Senior Warden to mix Black Angus cattle with his purebred Herefords? Common sense, knotty - headed common sense, cries out against it, 'No'."

"I believe that the NAACP (National Association for the Advancement of Colored People) is the greatest enemy that the Negro people have. The NAACP is driving the Negro race to destruction."

190,000 Copies of Speech

He also termed the racial tension in the South as Communist-inspired.

The pro-segregation Patriots of North Carolina, Inc., was so impressed with the speech that it printed and distributed 190,000 copies throughout the United States.

The Rev. Mr. Dees says he was not a member of the Patriots "but I think I was the only honorary member they ever took in."

In the summer of 1956, the Rev. Mr. Dees journeyed to Raleigh to appear before the State Legislature in support of the Pearsall Plan for handling school segregation.

The new segregation organization he heads does not support the Pearsall Plan, which has led to limited integration.

In its platform, the Defenders of States' Rights, Inc., contends that "the governor has betrayed the people of the state in not fighting integration to the last ditch and we lay the integration accomplished in this state to him and call on him to do something about it."

But in the summer of 1956, the Rev. Mr. Dees supported the Pearsall Plan.

Looking back to that stand, he now says that he told legislators at the time "that the Pearsall Plan would ultimately be inadequate but I felt it was a stop gap for the time being."

He looks upon the limited integration (in Charlotte, Winston-Salem and Greensboro) as "token integration that doesn't satisfy anybody, except maybe the Supreme Court for the time being."

After that legislative appearance in 1956, the Rev. Mr. Dees came more and more into the segregation spotlight. He wrote many letters to the editors of major daily newspapers in the state. Some of them were reprinted for distribution.

He delivered a pro-segregation speech on "A Survey of the Racial Issue," which has been printed and distributed as a pamphlet by the Defenders, Inc., of Wichita, Kans.

Last summer, he was spokesman for a group of Episcopal laymen and clergymen in announcing the formation of an organization set up within the church to prevent "physical mixing" of the races.

The group, known as Concerned Churchmen, was created to resist an "organized and church-financed drive of integrationists with the church," the Rev. Mr. Dees explained

The Rev. Mr. Dees says he is not a member of Concerned Churchman but is in sympathy with the group, headed by James W. Cheshire of Hillsboro, son of the late Bishop Joseph Blount Cheshire of the Episcopal Diocese of North Carolina.

In November, the Rev. Mr. Dees joined with other segregationists, including some of the leaders of the old Patriots organization, in chartering the Defenders of States' Rights, Inc., designed, among other things, to foster racial segregation.

Early this month, it was announced that the Rev. Mr. Dees had been elected president of the Defenders.

As head of the state's newest pro - segregation organization, the Rev. Mr. Dees does not pretend to know what the future will bring.

"The most crucial issue right now is to show the people the consequences of integrated schools," he says. "But we can't get it in the press. Integration will destroy education."

Much of the trouble, he feels, is that people so often associate segregation with white supremacy.

"I am a segregationist," he says. "I am not a white supremacist. That is one who would keep himself up by keeping others down. There's all the difference in the world. That is a basic fallacy held by integrationists. They can't see how one could stand for segregation and at the same time for advancement of the colored race."

Perhaps the Defenders can set the record straight, he believes.

"I just don't think the people of North Carolina would put up with integration," he says. "I just don't believe they would."

Dallas Gwynn . . . active defender, too.

Defenders of States' Rights Leads Tar Heel Segregationists

By Marjorie Hunter
Staff Reporter

An organization that once led the pro-segregation movement in North Carolina has quietly moved aside to make way for another.

Nearly four years ago, the Patriots of North Carolina, Inc., made its debut with an impressive list of charter members, many of them widely-known politicians and businessmen.

Today, there are few signs that the Patriot flags are still flying.

Some former members believe the Patriots, as a statewide force, is thoroughly dead, though perhaps not yet buried. Some local chapters, such as the one in Mecklenburg County, are still active.

The North Carolina Defenders of States' Rights, Inc., headed by the Rev. James Parker Dees of Trinity Episcopal Church, Statesville, apparently has taken the place of the State Patriots.

It may be that the Defenders' rolls contain many of the same names that once were on the books of the Patriots. Certainly, there are some duplications, for six of the directors of the Defenders were prominently identified with the Patriots.

But the Rev. Mr. Dees said the new organization is not yet ready to say how many members it has.

"We're getting new ones every day," he said. "I wouldn't even make a guess."

Serving with the Rev. Mr. Dees as officers of the Defenders are Dallas Gwynn of Leaksville, first vice president (once a vice president in the Patriots); Lucius M. Cheshire of Hillsboro, second vice president; Joseph D. Butler, Burlington, secretary; and Arthur A. Gould of Raleigh, treasurer.

On the board of directors are Dr. W. C. George of the University of North Carolina faculty (former president of the Patriots); John W. Clark of Greensboro, an industrialist and University of North Carolina trustee (a prominent Patriot); Allison James of Walnut Cove (secretary of the Patriots); Kenneth Whitsett of Charlotte (head of the still active Mecklenburg County Patriots) and V. C. Estes of Durham (also once active in the Patriots); Roger Winborn, Lenoir; Bernard H. Dixon, Providence; Erwin A. Holt, Burlington; W. N. Jefferies, Burlington.

Gwynn says he is still a member of the Patriots but has not attended a meeting in a year and has no idea who the officers are.

J. S. Kuykendall of Winston-Salem, once on the board of the Patriots, believes the old organization is dead.

The Patriots seemed lively enough at birth, one August day in 1955, a year after the Supreme Court handed down its historic decision calling for moves toward school integration.

C. L. Shuping, Greensboro attorney, was the founder and signer of the 234-page document of incorporation that listed 356 charter members.

On the list were three former State House speakers (John Kerr Jr. of Warrenton, Frank Taylor of Goldsboro and John G. Dawson of Kinston) and numerous former legislators and active politicians.

Winston-Salem was represented by Kuydendall, George W. (Bill) Coan Jr., R. C. Pratt, Clint R. Lawrence and F. W. Neumann.

At one time, it was believed there were at least 25,000 Patriots in the state.

No one recalls just when the state Patriots organization began sagging.

In Forsyth County, the Patriots chapter had a number of meetings. Then the pro-segregation banner was taken up by the Citizens Government Council, organized in the early fall of 1957.

Council aims were, among other things, opposition to racial integration, excessive government spending and high taxes.

The council now has voted to affiliate with the state-wide Defenders of States' Rights, Inc.

Thus, it now appears the major activities of segregationists will be through the Defenders, in whose platform its members refer to themselves as "conservative American citizens who are blessed with a love for our native land, America."

The platform contends that there are concerted efforts by the Supreme Court, the "so-called liberal clergy," numerous outstanding foundations, the National Council of Churches, the Communist Party, the NAACP and others "to destroy what our founding Fathers have constructed."

It calls for "a governor and state administration dedicated to serving the principles for which we stand . . . one of which is the complete segregation of the races in the public schools." It expresses the belief that the governor (Luther Hodges) "has betrayed the people of the state in not fighting integration to the last ditch . . ."

Among other points in the platform:

1. A belief that some educational institutions have become too liberal in "inviting integrationists, Pinks, Reds, world citizens, etc., to speak under their auspices . . ."

2. A belief "that segregation of the races is in accordance with the Divine Will and Plan as manifested in the Created Order."

3. A belief that "it is for the best interests of both races that segregation continue."

4. A belief that "the ministers in the state and liberals in the various churches are doing more to destroy our heritage than anyone or anything else."

5. A belief that the "teaching and administrative personnel of our state's schools would bear being investigated and the left-wingers and subversives and pseudo-liberals should be exposed."

6. Opposition to socialism and state ownership and control of the economy.

LINVILLE FALLS, NORTH CAROLINA
January 19, 1959

Rev. James P. Dees
Trinity Episcopal Church
421 Walnut Street
Statesville, N. C.

Dear Mr. Dees:

I appreciate your having written me under date of January 15 as follows:

"Be assured that you do not stand for what the South stands for. If you are a Southerner, then you have betrayed your heritage."

I am not facetious when I express my thanks for your having written me. In the absence of such a letter I would not have the occasion or the incentive to correspond with the head of one of the resistance groups in North Carolina and its chief theological champion. Your letter gives me a convenient opportunity to place before you considerations you may otherwise overlook.

You are no doubt entirely correct in asserting I do not speak for the South. I have never assumed that I did. There are some 30,000,000 people in the South of many colors and descriptions and gradations and shadings in their beliefs. It would be quite presumptuous for anyone to pose as spokesman for so conglomerate a group.

For example, for whom do you speak? The millions of Negro citizens? The states of Kentucky, Tennessee, Texas, West Virginia, Delaware, Maryland, Missouri, Oklahoma and the District of Columbia, all of which are peacefully de-segregating their schools? The Catholics, the Quakers, the Unitarians? The Southern divinity schools, including, notably, Sewanee? The ministers of all denominations in Atlanta, 311 in number, in Dallas, in Little Rock, and in scores of other Southern cities? The Methodist Council of Bishops who spoke their convictions in their statement of Nov. 13, 1958? The Protestant Episcopal Bishops with whose profound utterance of Oct. 17, 1958, you must be familiar?

Surely you do not speak for any of those groups. Your convictions must be at war with theirs. And, particularly in your isolation from the moral and religious trends which now nobly assert themselves, you must be a very lonely figure.

Circulated to: Reed Sarratt, W-S Journal & Guide
Harry Jones, Dir., N.C.H.R. - 6 copies
Rev. Arthur Walmsley
Mr. Neil Tarplee

It is only fair to say that you must be conceded spokesmanship for the official policy of the "hard core" states. Those states are now in open rebellion against the law of the land. They have suspended guaranties of the Federal Constitution as effectively as if such suspension were formally proclaimed by edict of a Hitler, a Batista or a Fidel Castro. The fruits of such policy have been cross-burnings, bombings, assaults and murder. For these the policy makers and policy spokesmen must answer to their consciences.

While I speak for no one except myself, I derive comfort from the fact that the Supreme Court, both political parties, all religious bodies, United Nations, labor unions and the overwhelming weight of informed opinion throughout the world condemn legalized segregation. The Southern "stand" to which you refer is in opposition to such imposing and respected forces.

So, when you say I do not stand for what the South stands for I must ask what South you mean. There are many features of Southern life worth preserving -- the tradition of hospitality; urbanity, good manners, mastery of parliamentary procedure; sense of international obligation and responsibility evidenced by support of the old League of Nations and United Nations; and a scale of values which minimizes the importance of the sharp commercial instinct. For all of those things I should like to stand. This heritage I do not betray.

But when you and your associates use the expression "our Southern way of life," you never seem to mean any of those things. You seem to mean only a system of caste legally enforced. Probably you do not intend to do this, but the image of the South which you are fashioning and exhibiting to the rest of the world is of a region obsessed with the significance of pigment, with the preservation of a fixed status for some millions of Southerners. For those features of Southern life I do not stand. I should be humiliated if I were thought to stand for them. If they are a part of my heritage, I have no particle of loyalty to them.

If I have understood anything at all of the religion you profess, it is that the supreme loyalty is not to state, or region, or race, but to truth as it is given one to see the truth. And if your religion has the slightest meaning for mankind, that meaning is that no man looms larger or smaller in the divine vision because of his color. Man-made institutions which attach personal status to color depart from what even the conscience of the unorthodox tells him is the only honorable way of life.

You and your associates seem deeply disturbed that I and others seek to change Southern custom, "the Southern way of life." My answer is that there is nothing sacred about custom; that its right to survive unchanged depends upon how it affects humanity; that the human race has progressed as it has had the wisdom to abandon outworn institutions, and, that the only way of life worth preserving is one which is always subject to change.

You will no doubt recall that the complaint of the rabble of Thessalonica against Paul and Silas was that they had "turned the world upside down"; and that the founder of your religion said, "I come not to send peace but a sword."

Those who hack away at the injustice and cruelty inseparable from segregation feel that they humbly wield that sword. All the world's great religious bodies and the vast majority of their ministers, rabbis and priests have their hands upon the hilt. The defection of any one of their number causes the peculiar sorrow with which one always observes a betrayal of a noble faith.

Sincerely,

/s/ M. A. WRIGHT

TRINITY EPISCOPAL CHURCH
Statesville, N. C.

Rev. James P. Dees, Rector
421 Walnut Street

February 20, 1959

Mr. Marion A. Wright
Linville Falls, N. C.

Dear Mr. Wright:

I want to thank you for the items you sent me. Of course I consider you and your tribe perhaps the greatest menace to America that exists, not excluding the Communists.*

I note Bishop Lichtenberger's remarks concerning segregation. Segregation is a sociological issue and not one of the Faith. He is entitled to his private opinion on the matter, but he had best not try to enforce it on the church.

I would be pleased to have any additional items that you can send me, similar to the ones I have just received.

Yours very sincerely,

JPD:dp

*J. Edgar Hoover is of the same opinion.

Of course this should not be circulated.

Feb. 28, '59

Rev. James P. Dees,
Trinity Episcopal Church,
Statesville, N. C.

Dear Mr. Dees:

I must again thank you for writing me so frankly your unsolicited opinion of me and my "tribe", whom you consider "perhaps the greatest menace to America that exists, not excluding the Communists." While I naturally have great respect for your opinion, I am much more concerned about the opinion of Mr. J. Edgar Hoover, in whose confidence you seem to be, since you say he shares your views.

This places Mr. Hoover in a very bad light. It so happens that I held under the Roosevelt, and hold under the Eisenhower, administration appointment presumably requiring F. B. I. approval. Certainly, Mr. Hoover was incompetent or grossly inconsiderate of the national safety to give clearance to a national "menace."

But my own case loses much of its significance in view of the fact, as you state, that you and Mr. Hoover feel the same way about my "tribe". (You are, of course, referring to our position on the segregation issue.)

Without going beyond the confines of your own church, you must include in this grave indictment all of your bishops, ninety per cent of your clergy, your seminaries and the church itself. Almost it may be said that you alone among Episcopal clergymen are not a national menace. You must be quite uncomfortable in membership with so perfidious a group.

As a segregationist, I assume you embrace the guilt-by-association theory. Surely there must have occurred to you the possibility that the theory may apply to you and that you may therefore be regarded as a national menace because of your Episcopalian connections.

Frankly, Mr. Dees, you cannot produce one word from Mr. Hoover in-pugning the loyalty of myself or of any group with which I am connected. Your charge is a malicious fabrication. I ask you to reflect upon the venality of a clergyman who thus bears false witness against his neighbors.

It is a real tragedy that from the lofty eminence of a pulpit one should stoop so low.

You will little note nor long remember my opinion of you. But the views of your fellow clergymen of the Statesville area, I hope, must cause you seriously to reflect upon the course you are now pursuing.

Yours sincerely,

M. A. Wright

IS ACTIVE SEGREGATIONIST

Minister Censured By Fellows

An Episcopal minister who doubles in bass as president of the Statesville Area Ministerial Association and head of North Carolina's newest segregationist organization was censured by his fellow ministers this week.

He is the Rev. James P. Dees, rector of Trinity Episcopal Church in Statesville.

The verbal slap came as a result of the Rev. Mr. Dees' activities with the North Carolina Defenders of States Rights Inc., which fights for "racial integrity and states' rights."

The censure motion was passed at a meeting of the ministerial association Monday by a vote of 16-2. Immediately after the motion was passed, the Rev. Mr. Dees offered his resignation from the group. This was not accepted by the members.

The motion read: "We assert that the statements of the principles of the Defenders of States' Rights and those of the president of this organization revelant thereto do not reflect the thinking of the members of the Statesville Area Ministerial Association relative to human relationships and the oneness in Christ that should characterize us as ministers of the Gospel."

The Rev. Mr. Dees offered an amendment which would make the motion read "do not necessarily reflect" the thinking of the members.

The amendment was turned down and the original motion passed. The Rev. Mr. Dees then offered to resign.

After some confusion as to whether he was resigning as president or offering to quit the association, the Episcopal minister said he was resigning from membership in the organization.

He gave as his reason that the motion "inferred one could not accomplish that 'oneness in Christ' unless he were an integrationist."

Other ministers said his resignation was not accepted because his grounds reflected an interpretation of the motion which was not intended.

The Rev. Mr. Dees is an outspoken foe of integration, who once stated that integrations "seems to me to be contrary to the natural primal creation of God and to natural law, and to enlightened common sense."

His stand directly opposes the Episcopal Church's official statement on segregation. This statement, passed at the church's general convention in 1955, advocates acceptance of the Supreme Court's ruling and acceptance of people of any race into the "full fellowship" of the congregation.

March 13, 1959

The Rev. James P. Dees
Trinity Episcopal Church
Statesville, North Carolina

Dear Mr. Dees:

With many letters to write and various organizations to head I am sure you are a busy man. Please feel under no obligation to reply to this letter which is sent in response to your letter appearing in the March 15th issue of The Living Church.

You state that you stand for "racial segregation in the Churches and the schools". Presumably you did not mean to imply that you would be against segregation in restaurants, movie theaters, public transportation and the like. In apparent substantiation of your stand for segregation in schools you refer to "the situation in Washington, D. C.". You have probably been the recipient of, and, I daresay, the dispenser of, materials that portray that situation as Congressman Davis of Georgia subjectively wants it to be. For the broadening of your perspectives please accept with my compliments the enclosed leaflet entitled, "The Truth About Desegregation in Washington's Schools". Should you desire to make a full and objective study of this school system and its experience with desegregation, there are more detailed materials available which, at first-hand observation, have a different impression of "the situation in Washington, D. C.," than you seem to have.

As for segregation in the Churches, you are probably not familiar with many learned treatises that speak to this subject and to related areas such as the Bible and Race, etc. You will find a book published by Abingdon, "Segregation and the Bible", enlightening. Even Broadman, the Baptist publishing house, has just come out with a similiar work . I am enclosing a little leaflet published by the Baptists (Southern, mind you!) which may be informative to you. As to resources from our own Church, you are no doubt familiar with the excellent brochure just issued by the Department of Christian Social Relations of your Diocese entitled, "The Church and Race". There are lots and lots of other materials which might clarify your thinking. But, oh my! I'm sorry! I should not confuse you with the facts since your mind is already made up.

With reference to a news report about you, you said in your letter to The Living Church, "I am utterly amazed also at the viciousness of this scurrilous attack on me by a brother priest who is not concerned to find out the truth before spreading his false accusations..." May I remind you, that in response to a letter of mine appearing in The Charlotte Observer indicting the Ku Klux Klan, Citizens Councils, and other racist groups, you took it upon yourself to attack me in correspondence which you initiated although my letter in the Observer did not include you and your organizations which it should have. For some strange reason, but perhaps too apparent, you felt called upon to defend Klansmen, Councilmen and your other bedfellows. In doing so you made every accusation against me which you could muster to align me with Communists. Were you "concerned to find out the truth before spreading" your accusations? In a letter published in the Charleston, S.C., News and Courier on September 5, 1958, you continued your attack in likening my expressions to "words used by the Reds and their dupes". Alas, alack! To think that it had to be a "brother priest" to give me the distinction of being called a Communist. "Breathes there the minister with soul so dead, Who never hath been called a Red?"

In your letter in The Living Church you disclaim adherence to the ideology commonly called "white supremacy". You state, "A white supremacist is one who would try to keep the White race in a relatively superior position by trying to keep the other race or races down". Come now, Mr. Dees! This describes you exactly. Please go to your literature supply and re-read some of the hate pieces you sent to me which plainly are white supremist in nature. Of course, I know you'll say that you love the Negro, but in his place. We love our dogs in their place.

When clergy and concerned churchmen (not the brand you are affiliated with) get together the query is often heard, "Have you seen the latest from Dees?" There is humor, pity and astonishment that one in your office could be committed to the principles you espouse. The only positive thing that can be said about your prattle is that it has caused the Church in North Carolina, and its clergy in particular, to think through their positions to a clear affirmation of a Truth which you deny. You must be an extremely lonely man in your Diocese. When I reflect upon this I am moved to pity. But when I observe the enormity of your offenses and the supposed vows of your ordination, I am indignant that you presume to be a priest of the Church.

Yours truly,

John B. Morris

WHY PICK ON DIXIE? by Harold Lord Varney

The American Mercury July, 1957

"It is evident in magazine publishing offices, which, with a uniformity now becoming almost compulsive, invaribly give their assignments of stories about the South to race-obsessed foreigners like Gunnar Myrdal or Alan Paton, or to unrepresentative Southerners like Hodding Carter, Harry S. Ashmore, Lillian Smith, Robert P. Warren, Mark F. Ethridge, ---men and women who have achieved a quick, synthetic popularity among Northern South-haters by affecting the pose 'reasonable Southerners.'

".....The staffs of the network news interpreters, headed by such Left-leaners as Edward R. Murrow and Chet Huntley, are unanimously anti-South."

"The climate of opinion in the North is similarly saturated against the South by most of the effective and well-financed organizational molders of public opinion. All the Foundations stand in solid ranks, with their billions, in determined opposition to the traditional Southern viewpoint. Instead of providing a forum for the honest discussion of Southern issues, the Foundations have underwritten a controversial organization in the South, the Southern Regional Council, which is staffed by Southerners who have unreservedly accepted Northern opinion patterns. The Council, in a dignified way, is the clearinghouse of most of the indoctrination of the South which is now in furious progress by Nothern agencies.

"In the last three years, the Council has received a total of $445,000 from the Fund of the Republic of the Ford Foundation. The Council has also been on the receiving end of sizeable funds from the William C. Whitney Foundation, the Field Foundation, the Marion Ascoli Fund, the Sidney Hillman Foundation and others.

"More militant organizations in the field of South-baiting which have received Fund of the Republic money are the Legal Defense Fund of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People ($50,000) the Urban League ($50,000) the Commission on Race and Housing ($118,954).

"All of these agencies are engaged in the determined task of discrediting in national public opinion the recognized leaders and spokesmen of the South."

MEMORANDUM FOR CRITICISMS FILE - general
December 2, 1957

From: Harold C. Fleming

On November 22, 1957 a rough cut man, who identified himself as Clarence Hall of Titus, Alabama, appeared in the office for the stated purpose of getting some information about SRC. He wanted a list of officers and board members. He said he worked for the Postal Transportation Service and was an active Methodist. He had been exposed to the charges against the SRC involving Bishop Moore, the Wesley Memorial Building, and so on.

I talked with him at some length, pleasant on both sides but to no purpose. His views were unshakeably pro-segregation, though he claimed to deplore "extremes" on both sides. I gave him a copy of the brief history of SRC before he departed.

Dear Fred:

I thought you and the others in the Atlanta office might like to see the enclosed clippings from the Richmond News-Leader. The editorial appeared a day or two after you and Emory were in town, and the letter in the paper's Forum columns appeared yesterday afternoon.

You or Harold may have some suggestions as to possible replies that might be made to one or both of these statements. Concerning the editorial, I have been torn between an urge to write a letter to the editor and the feeling that it would be better just to ignore it. As for the letter from Edward O. McCue, III, (he's the son of E. O. McCue, Jr., the state Senator from Charlottesville and several surrounding counties), I felt that maybe a letter from Harold to the news paper--of the kind he wrote to the Charlston News and Courier some months ago--might be in order.

We would be glad to get any ideas or suggestions you may like to pass on.

Called Gray & Suggested he get state person in Va to answer charges - Ben Muse, Wilson Brown or Msgr. Flaherty. FBR.

TO THE FORUM: Richmond News - Leader - 5/1/58

Study Asked of ADL, Southern Council

Editor, The News Leader:

Constant pressure is being applied to every age group of every segment of our citizenry to embrace new concepts of government, religion and social relations. This pressure is being generated by an impressive array of religious, educational, civic and social action organizations. A review of some of the major activities of the American Jewish Committee will reveal the nature and extent of this nation-wide campaign to influence public opinion. Compounding the effectiveness of the intensive but diversified activities of this one organization is the intimate cooperation that is maintained between many such groups.

The ultimate goal of these national organizations is a radical change in the social and political order in the South. The average citizen is totally unaware of the existence of the nation-wide ideological offensive to achieve this end. He is under the impression that the NAACP is the sole agency responsible for the racial agitation and alien propaganda that have enveloped the South. He is not cognizant of the fact that it is the Anti-Defamation League of B'nai B'rith and the Southern Regional Council that are providing the stimulus and momentum to these revolutionary activities in the South.

Our political leaders have concerned themselves primarily with the activities of the NAACP. Their program of "massive resistance" has so far failed to provide any counter measures to the widespread activities of the Anti-Defamation League of B'nai B'rith, the Southern Regional Council and their Virginia affiliates. It would be well-nigh impossible for scattered groups of private citizens to meet the challenge posed by the activities of these national and regional organizations. The most practical and effective means of checkmating their revolutionary programs would be through the facilities and resources of an appropriate State agency.

In its recent session, the General Assembly authorized the creation of a Commission on Constitutional Government. This commission was granted authority to "publish such information as it deems appropriate in order to acquaint the general public, both in this State and elsewhere, with the nature of the relationship between the individual States and the United States and the freedoms reserved to the States and their individual citizens under the Constitution of the United States." A speedy implementation of such a program of public enlightenment would be a great stride in stemming the tide of radical politics which is currently seeking to engulf the South.

Very truly yours,

EDWARD O. McCUE, III.

Urges Emphasis On the Individual

Editor, The News Leader:

There are more clubs, groups, causes, clinics, churches, centers and movements in the United States today than at any time in its history. And their accomplishments are spectacular.

Everyone is so busy today. Numbers of people are fund-raising, marching, attending luncheons, quoting statistics, compiling long lists and engaging in endless group activities. But, despite the fact that hundreds of people are so "busy being busy," there is a shortage of people who will take time out to be humane. Few people have time to really know a person.

So many groups deal with the "masses," and on just that basis. There seems to be little interest in the person as an individual. Too many problems of the individual are dealt with on an assembly-line principle. Too many people are listed "statistically," or find themselves or a member of their family recorded as a "case history."

Probably, it is quicker and more efficient that way. Then, too, it is easier to make a decision if you don't know an individual personally. But, what a cold inhuman method! There is no warmth in it to soothe the troubled spirit; whether the person who needs special help and consideration is a handicapped person, a shut-in (because of his own illness or because he must care for someone else who is ill) or because he is one who carries a heavy burden of another kind.

Of course, the person who seeks out others in a personal way needs special qualities himself. Above all, he needs to be understanding. He should be be able to imagine how he might react if he were in a similar position as the one he would like to assist. And, most of all, he cannot be condescending, or a phony. Even a child recognizes these attitudes. And, he should be slow to judge.

Many organizations fail to bring satisfaction; either to those who manage the particular set-ups or to those who are supposed to benefit. You often find dissension within the groups. Selfishness is a common ailment.

What happened to the "old-fashioned virtues": integrity, kindness, compassion, sincerity and love? These qualities used to be admired in a person. Styles have changed so drastically. Could it be that old values will return, too, along with the revival of the sack dress?

Perhaps people could find a solution to some of these flaws that exist within groups by being a member of only one organization; or, at the most, two. In this way, a person could really give of himself to others in the only way that counts. I believe that this would not only benefit the receiver immeasurably; but it would also reward the giver beyond anything he could possibly imagine. (Particularly, if he has heretofore given only his "name" to causes.)

I recommend the personal approach to you who may favor a certain group. As a giver, I have tried to follow these precepts. And, I hope one day, "if I faint not," to reap the rewards that come to a receiver.

MRS. C. S. HICKS.

Students Now, Parents Later

Richmonders who are opposed to racially-mixed schools would do well to look with equanimity upon a Tuesday headline: "Ready to Integrate, Six Students Say." Disturbing as the caption might appear at first glance, it is not necessarily an indication that all high school students have swallowed the social theories of the Supreme Court and the propaganda of the NAACP.

The news story dealt with a panel discussion sponsored by the Virginia Council on Human Relations. The gathering was held at the First Unitarian Church. Under the circumstances, what could one have expected? If the panel discussion had been held by the Defenders of State Sovereignty and Individual Liberties in the auditorium of Farmville High School, you can bet your bottom dollar the headline would have read, "Not Ready to Integrate, Six Students Say."

Student opinion on this issue is divided, just as adult opinion is divided. But the interesting thing is that resistance to race-mixing hardens as young people grow older. Every public opinion poll has reflected this trend. By the time high school students marry and have children of their own, the realities of integration have a way of overcoming the sweet theories of a sociology class.

The six students who participated in Monday's panel discussion may never change their minds; they may remain always agreeable to racial integration. That is their privilege. But it is equally the privilege of other students, equally intelligent, equally capable of forming their own decisions, to grow in age and wisdom and to come in time to appreciate the Supreme Court's decree for the reckless evil that it is.

The South Is Due an Apology

EVERY RESIDENT of the eleven Southern states from Virginia to Texas is due a personal apology from three organizations which united to publish a slanderous and prejudicial document purporting to show that there has been a general breakdown of law and order in the South in the past four years.

The 30-page booklet, entitled "Intimidation, Reprisal and Violence in the South's Racial Crisis" was published jointly by (1) Southeastern Office, American Friends Service Committee of High Point, N.C.; (2) Department of Racial and Cultural Relations, National Council of Churches of Christ in the United States of America, of New York City; and (3) the Southern Regional Council in Atlanta.

The purpose of the tract, obviously, was to amass a box score of real or alleged "incidents" from newspaper clippings, and to present the total listing largely out of context without benefit of any statistical comparisons on which it could be properly judged or evaluated, in an effort to prove that the South is fairly wallowing in race riots and anarchy.

FROM THE RESULTING conglomeration came a "news release" announcing widespread "erosion of individual liberties" in the eleven Southern states involved attested to by a list of 530 specific cases of "violence, reprisal and intimidation" in the four-year period. The story made page 1 of New York papers last Monday. Editorials of condemnation followed. Declared the South-hating Washington Post & Times Herald: " . . . there is little hope for the South to shake off this trend toward violent eruptions until its own basic thinking about adherence to the law as defined by the courts is straightened out."

Thus, the three groups responsible for the publication have, for reasons best known to themselves, contrived through a misleading document to fan the fires of sectional animosity.

LET'S TAKE A LOOK at the report itself, which covers the period from Jan. 1, 1955 to Jan. 1, 1959, during which 530 specific cases of violence, intimidation or reprisal were cited. How many cases occurred in the four years from 1951 to 1955? This is not listed, but if twice as many occurred, it could be said that conditions in the eleven states are improving. More important, what would the box score show for the same period in eleven Eastern or Midwestern states, of any eleven chosen at random with the highest Negro-white ratios of population, if a similar count were made? Would the South show more cases—or would it show less?

Since no attempt was made to give such a comparison, the motive of the joint endeavor may be taken for granted—namely, to hold the South up to scorn and contempt.

DOES A TOTAL of 530 "incidents" in eleven states over a four-year period show a general breakdown of law and order? This would average out to about a dozen incidents per state per year.

Last year a congressional committee investigated more than 800 specific incidents of violence (not including intimidations and reprisals) during the same period of time in one labor dispute in Kohler, Wis. And this was by Walter Reuther's union—we don't even have to get into the statistics from the real bad boys such as Jimmy Hoffa. Does this indicate a widespread erosion of individual liberties in Wisconsin? And if so, why was this not included in the report?

On race incidents, what about Cicero, Ill., or Levittown, Pa., or Dearborn, Mich.? What about New York, Washington, Baltimore, Philadelphia and Chicago? The box score, had one been kept, of similar incidents, would have shown a greater number in New York or Chicago during the four-year period than the 530 total for eleven Southern states!

IN FACT, when we consider that the Southern states have the highest proportion of Negro population to white, we'll bet our last dollar that an honest survey would prove race relations in the South to be better and more amicable than any other area of the country where there is an appreciable Negro population.

The organizations responsible for this report have done an irresponsible thing that will not help the cause of better race relations in the South or elsewhere. Their report, itself, admits "this is not a comprehensive survey . . . It describes only their angry, violent side." We ask them—Why? We think the South is due an explanation.

Hold On, Senator

SEN. PAUL DOUGLAS of Illinois has leveled a broadside against retired military officers who accept positions with industry. He said that when firms seeking defense contracts "hire former officers of high rank to negotiate with their former fellow officers—some of whom they have promoted—the potential and actual abuses are magnified."

we can, the historical situation in which the issues have been posed.

Since the war which ended 15 years ago Franco-American relations have been based on a premise which was never openly avowed but has always been assumed both in Paris and in Washington. The premise has been that France, though it is counted among the victors, was in fact defeated, and that her colonial empire is in the process of dissolution, and that she is no longer a first class power. The chronic instability of the post-war governments in France, the budgetary and monetary disorders, supported this view.

LIPPMANN

Our government acquired a habit of not consulting France regularly and genuinely, and indeed of treating her with less intimacy and confidence not only than Great Britain but even West Germany. On two recent occasions which might have led to a war involving France—the landing in Lebanon and the affair at Quemoy—there was no full consultation with Paris.

THE ADVENT to power of Gen. de Gaulle was bound to mean, as it has meant, that France would not accept the lower position which she has occupied. She has been regarded not only as not so great a power as Russia and the United States, but not even as being in the second rank with Great Britain or even with Adenauer's Germany.

We must never forget that Gen. de Gaulle, to his everlasting honor, is the Frenchman who never surrendered and who never accepted defeat, and it is a kind of historic justice that he should be the man who now insists that France must not be treated as a defeated and inferior power.

In this context we may look at the issues. They were raised diplomatically last summer and then in a note addressed to President Eisenhower and Prime Minister Macmillan on Sept. 24, 1958. This note has never been published. But it is said to set up three French objectives.

Mr. Richard O. Mitchell
Florida Legislative Investigation Committee
Tallahassee, Florida

Dear Mr. Mitchell:

It has come to our attention that a letter, dated July 5, 1963 and purporting to be from Mr. R. J. Strickland, Chief Investigator for the Florida Legislative Investigation Committee, has circulated among many persons in Florida. The copy of the letter we have seen does not show an addressee, but is on the letterhead of the Committee. For your information and files, I am enclosing a copy of the letter as we have it.

The purported letter deals with the origin and organization of the Southern Regional Council and of the Florida Council on Human Relations. The information presented in it -- which is being circulated throughout Florida -- is almost wholly false. Specifically:

(1) We assume that the House Un-American Activities Committee does have in its files documentation regarding the Southern Regional Council. We assume this because the Committee has once informed us, and to our knowledge has on several occasions, one as recent as August 9, 1963, informed others, that its files contain no adverse information. If your staff has received contrary advice from the Un-American Activities Committee, or from any other Congressional source, we would like to hear about it.

(2) The Florida Council on Human Relations was established under our auspices, but since 1957 has been legally and organizationally autonomous. Relationships between it and the Southern Regional Council are close, but consist of cooperation and not direction.

(3) It is categorically false that the Southern Regional Council was "formed under the auspices and direction of the Southern Conference Educational Fund, Inc." There are no organizational ties of any kind between us and the other named organization, and there never have been.

(4) It is categorically false that the Southern Regional Council adopted "the same charter as the Southern Conference Educational Fund, Inc. verbatim."

(5) It is not even true that "the Florida Council on Human Relations adopted as its charter the same charter of the Southern Regional Council." Nor is this statement even intelligible in the light of the next succeeding sentence of the letter.

If this letter did actually originate from your Committee, I believe you will agree that fairness dictates that a correction be sent by your Committee to whatever person or persons have received it.

To the best of our knowledge, we have never received any inquiry from the Florida Investigation Committee. If you want any information regarding our charter, our purposes, our program, our membership, our organizational structure, or our finances, you have only to ask.

Sincerely yours,

FLORIDA LEGISLATIVE INVESTIGATION COMMITTEE

Tallahassee

July 5, 1963

In answer to your letter dated June 26 to the Hon. Mark Hawes, attorney for the Florida Legislative Investigation Committee, I wish to advise that documentation inregards to the Southern Conference for Human Welfare, Southern Conference Educational Fund Inc., and Southern Regional Council can be obtained from both the House Committee on Un-American Activities and the Senate Sub-Committee of the United States Senate. Also wish to advise that the Florida Council on Human Relations is set up under the auspices and direction of the Southern Regional Council out of Atlanta, Georgia. The Southern Regional Council having been formed under the auspices and direction of the Southern Conference Educational Fund Inc.; the Southern Conference Educational Fund Inc. being the follow up organization of the old Southern Conference for Human Welfare which was discontinued after the expose by the House Committee on Un-American Activities and Senate Sub-Committee of the United States Senate. Said Southern Conference Education Fund Inc. having come into effect immediately after said expose with the same phone number, the same address, the same offices, the same board of directors, the same president or chairman, and the Southern Patriot being the official publication of both organizations.

I think you will find upon inquiry that the Southern Regional Council adopted in Atlanta, Georgia the same charter as the Southern Conference Educational Fund Inc. verbatim. I do know personally that the Florida Council on Huamn Relations adopted as it charter the same charter of the Southern Regional Council of Atlanta, Georgia. It was intended to adopt the same charter verbatim until an expose was made showing the direct connections between the old Southern Conference for Human Welfare, Southern Conference Educational Fund inc. and Southern Regional Council; a copy of this charter this committee holds in it files.

Trusting that this answers your inquiry directed to Mr. Hawes and that we can assist you in the future, I remain

Memo from VERNON E. JORDON, JR.

Les,

I'm not sure that we ought to send these guys our charter and finances, even though you indicated we would upon request.

Maybe the Florida Council should but not us voluntarily.

I would recommend L-1, all public statements, any specific Florida report, and our '63 publications.

D R A F T for LWD

Dear Mr. Evans:

Your letter of December 26 is acknowledged.

We are pleased to have an opportunity to give the Florida Legislative Investigation Committee a true and accurate account of the Southern Regional Council per se and our relationship with the Florida Council on Human Relations. The utterly false and inaccurate information about the Council that your successor, Mr. H. J. Strickland, apparently disseminated is so inconsistent with fairness and truth that we feel an obligation to the Committee and the people of Florida to set the record straight. And it is our hope that the Committee, once armed with the real facts concerning the both organizations, will report them to the general public.

The Southern Regional Council, incorporated under the laws of Georgia in 1944, is an organization to attain the ideals and practices of equal opportunity for all peoples in the South. Ninety distinguished Negro and white Southerners from the major religious faiths make up our non-profit non-political, and non-sectarian organization. The Council's predecessor was the Commission on Interracial Cooperation, a group of the South's leading church men and women which formed in 1919.

The Council seeks through research and education to help the South find its own answers to social issues within the framework of law and conscience. We are not an action group in the sense of picketing, selective buying compaigns and demonstrations.

Our finances come from individuals, churches, labor, foundations, and subscriptions to our monthly magazine, New South. We are a tax-exempt organization under state and federal regulations.

Seven Florida citizens serve on our Board. They are: Mr. I. H. Burney, Jacksonville; Mr. Herbert M, Davidson, Daytona Beach; Rev. Claxton Doggett, Lakeland; Rev. Theodore R. Gibson, Miami; Dr. John A. Griffin, Tallahassee; Mrs. Austin Kimball, Gainesville; Dr. H. Franklin Williams, Coral Gables.

Our activities in Florida are, for the most part, in cooperation with the Florida Council on Human Relations. As indicated in my letter of December 11, the Florida Council was established under our auspices, but since 1957 has been legally and organizationally autonomous.

DRAFT for LWD

Ltr., Mr. Evans
January 4, 1964

We exchange with the Florida Council data and information relating to social change and human relations in Florida and the South, ~~as well.~~ We assist the Florida Council financially, but only to the extent of a minor fraction of its budget, & consult with it from time to time on its planning & fulfilment of its program. ~~with a quarterly grant-in-aid upon receipt of quarterly reports of its human relations activities. These grant-in-aid funds have been specifically and trusted in our care for state Councils on Human Relations throughout the South by a prominent national foundation. We also help the Florida Council Board in the recruitment of staff personnel in the event of staff vacancy. Despite this limited assistance from us the Florida Council determines its own policy and modus operandi and we make no attempt to influence these decisions.~~

With the foregoing information, Mr. Evans, it is our sincere hope that the Florida Legislative Investigation Committee is better informed ~~xxxxx~~ about the Southern Regional Council and its relation to the Florida Council on Human Relations. We trust that you will make these facts available to the people of Florida consistent with the mandate from the Florida Legislature.

Dear Mr. Evans:

Thank you for your letter of December 26, 1963. We are glad to learn that neither your Committee nor its predecessor has publicly re-heard any statements regarding the Southern Regional Council.

As requested, we are enclosing:

a - a copy of our charter

b - The South & its Future. Although adopted by the Council in 1957, this statement was reviewed by the membership in 1961-62, & stands as the most succinct & authoritative expression of purpose. On December 7, 1963 our Executive Committee issued "A Statement of Views," which also ~~expressed~~ expresses concisely the outlook of the Council. This too is enclosed, as is a brief document, "The South Beyond Segregation" & Aims.

c. Two annual reports of program activities for 1961 & 1962. As you will notice, this customarily is written in February, & ~~consequently~~ our 1963 report ~~is not yet prepared~~ ~~and~~ will be forwarded to you on request.

d. ~~In~~ 1963 annual meeting was postponed from November 27 & 28, because of President Kennedy's death, until January 29 & 30, 1964. Because membership changes somewhat at each annual meeting, it would be pointless at this time to send you the membership list. You may expect to receive the revised & complete list of members in early February.

e. a copy of our by-laws in order to indicate organizational structure.

f. our 1962 financial statement. The 1963 audit ~~should~~ will be completed & return next month, & would be available to you on request.

Mandate For Mobocracy

No informed observer expects the Southern Regional Council, an interracial propaganda agency in Atlanta, to give a fair appraisal of the contemporary history and outlook of the South. Though it is labeled "Southern," the organization is a carbon copy of ultra-radical groups such as the Fund For The Republic, which seems dedicated to promoting economic disruption and social revolution in this region.

A New Year statement made by the Southern Regional Council's executive committee deserves special public attention, nevertheless, because of its extraordinary viciousness and its relationship to the political goals of the national Democratic Party in 1964.

Virtually putting aside any pretense of being genuinely Southern, the council declares that "white Southerners have a much inferior record of loyalty to the principles of America and of the Judeo-Christian religion."

No fair-minded citizen can condone this falsehood.

If white Southerners were hard-hearted and irreligious, they would not have carried the Negro along step by step. In Southern cities, for instance, white taxpayers could insist that the indigent sick, the vast majority of whom are Negroes, should not be helped at public expense.

As for American principles, it is not the white people of the South who are demanding that the Constitution be dismantled and replaced by an all-powerful government that can order every citizen's life. It is not white people who are subverting American society by trying to impose alien techniques of civil disobedience developed by revolutionists in Europe and Asia.

The Southern Regional Council's allegations do not deserve a point-by-point rebuttal, for they are as preposterous as they are insulting. But the chief allegation should be known because of the organization's political slant.

In view of the council's violent attitude against the white race in the South, it is important that the public be familiar with its outspoken enthusiasm for the late President Kennedy and for his successor, Lyndon B. Johnson. The Southern Regional Council is a partisan on the side of the national Democratic Party, urging ever stronger support of what it terms the "Negro revolt."

This council, we regret to say, is headed by a resident of South Carolina. He is James McBride Dabbs of Mayesville. The council's New Year statement commends the street demonstrations that convulsed the nation last summer. It praises leaders of so-called "non-violent demonstrations." But policemen were injured in American cities last summer by supposedly "non-violent" bricks.

As is made clear in an article from the San Francisco Chronicle reprinted today on this page, the leader of the Student Non-Violent Coordinating Committee is counting on violence and justifies it.

The Southern Regional Council is therefore, giving moral support to those who want America to get more than a taste of street revolution. It holds that the revolutionary qualities demonstrated in street demonstrations are the qualities needed in schools, universities and churches.

No matter how the Southern Regional Council may torture words, its statement comes out as a plug for the national Democratic Party and a mandate for mobocracy in America.

No fair-minded citizen can condone this falsehood.

If white Southerners were hard-hearted and irreligious, they would not have carried the Negro along step by step. In Southern cities, for instance, white taxpayers could insist that the indigent sick, the vast majority of whom are Negroes, should not be helped at public expense.

As for American principles, it is not the white people of the South who are demanding that the Constitution be dismantled and replaced by an all-powerful government that can order every citizen's life. It is not white people who are subverting American society by trying to impose alien techniques of civil disobedience developed by revolutionists in Europe and Asia.

The Southern Regional Council's allegations do not deserve a point-by-point rebuttal, for they are as preposterous as they are insulting. But the chief allegation should be known because of the organization's political slant.

In view of the council's violent attitude against the white race in the South, it is important that the public be familiar with its outspoken enthusiasm for the late President Kennedy and for his successor, Lyndon B. Johnson. The Southern Regional Council is a partisan on the side of the national Democratic Party, urging ever stronger support of what it terms the "Negro revolt."

This council, we regret to say, is headed by a resident of South Carolina. He is James McBride Dabbs of Mayesville. The council's New Year statement commends the street demonstrations that convulsed the nation last summer. It praises leaders of so-called "non-violent demonstrations." But policemen were injured in American cities last summer by supposedly "non-violent" bricks.

As is made clear in an article from the San Francisco Chronicle reprinted today on this page, the leader of the Student Non-Violent Coordinating Committee is counting on violence and justifies it.

The Southern Regional Council is therefore, giving moral support to those who want America to get more than a taste of street revolution. It holds that the revolutionary qualities demonstrated in street demonstrations are the qualities needed in schools, universities and churches.

No matter how the Southern Regional Council may torture words, its statement comes out as a plug for the national Democratic Party and a mandate for mobocracy in America.

Gabby Spies

The press conference recently engineered by the Central Intelligence Agency to report on Russia's economic troubles is an unprecedented lifting of the veil from espionage. Normally the cloak is more important for spies than the dagger.

The raised eyebrows that have greeted the new policy on CIA publicity may turn into official frowns against repeating the experiment. As for ourselves, we place more reliance on U.S. News & World Report's current article on the Soviet Union than on CIA's evaluation, either secret or public.

Mr. John E. Evans
Staff Director
Florida Legislative Investigation Committee
Tallahassee, Florida

Dear Mr. Evans:

Thank you for your letter of December 26, 1963. We are glad to learn that neither your Committee nor its predecessor has publicly released any statements regarding the Southern Regional Council.

As requested, we are enclosing:

(a) a copy of our charter

(b) The South of the Future. Although adopted by the Council in 1951, this statement was reviewed by the membership in 1961-62, and stands as the most succinct and authoritative expression of purposes. On December 30, 1963 our Executive Committee issued "A Statement of Views," which also expresses cogently the outlook of the Council; this too is enclosed, as is a brief document, "The Southern Regional Council: Its Origins and Aims."

(c) My annual reports of program activities for 1961 and 1962; as you will notice, this customarily is written in February, and my 1963 report will be forwarded to you on request.

(d) Our 1963 Annual Meeting was postponed from November 25 and 26 because of President Kennedy's death, until January 29 and 30, 1964. Because membership changes somewhat at each Annual Meeting, it would be pointless at this time to send you the membership list. You may expect to receive the revised and complete list of members in early February.

(e) A copy of our by-laws, in order to indicate organizational structure.

(f) our 1962 financial statement. The 1963 audit will be completed some time next month, and would be available to you on request.

Our activities in Florida are, for the most part, in cooperation with the Florida Council on Human Relations. As indicated in my letter of December 11, the Florida Council was established under our auspices, but since 1957 has been legally and organizationally autonomous.

We exchange with the Florida Council data and information relating to social change and human relations in Florida and the South. We assist the Florida Council financially, but only to the extent of a minor fraction of its burget, and consult with it from time to time in the planning and fulfillment of its program.

Sincerely yours,

Leslie W. Dunbar

December 26, 1963

Mr. Leslie W. Dunbar
Executive Director
Southern Regional Council, Inc.
5 Forsyth Street, Northwest
Atlanta 3, Georgia

Dear Mr. Dunbar:

The Honorable Richard O. Mitchell, Chairman of the Florida Legislative Investigation Committee, has asked that I acknowledge your letter of December 17, with its enclosures.

Mr. Strickland, the purported author of the letter to which you referred, has not been in the employ of this Committee since its reorganization under a fresh mandate from the 1963 Florida Legislature and Representative Mitchell's assumption of the responsibilities of Chairman.

The files and records of the Committee, as property of the sovereign state, are subject to neither disclosure nor discussion by the Committee or its staff, and it is the strict policy of this Committee that, except for necessary relationships with qualified cooperators, no information be divulged other than through public reports and statements authorized by the Committee. I have reviewed the publicly released materials of our predecessor Committee and find no reference or information relating to the Southern Regional Council.

We are grateful for your offer of information on the Southern Regional Council, and, to assure the currency and correctness of our information on your organization, would be appreciative of such information as you may wish to provide us relating to the several items suggested by your letter, including your charter, purposes, program, membership, organizational structure and finances. In view of our responsibilities under our Legislative mandate, we would be particularly appreciative of information relating to the scope and nature of your activities in Florida, either independently or in conjunction with the Florida Council on Human Relations.

For your information, I am enclosing a copy of the only public report thus far issued by this Committee, which sets forth its basic philosophy and approach, which we trust you will find to be of merit.

Sincerely,

John E. Evans

LEGISLATIVE INVESTIGATIONS COMMITTEE

INFORMAL REPORT #1 SEPTEMBER 16, 1963

To The Honorable Speaker of the House,
President of the Senate, and Members of
The 1963 Florida Legislature

Your Committee believes that its work is of vital concern to all who share our desire that Florida be free from the unsavory influences of those "isms" that would deprive the individual of his rights, and the responsibilities of his citizenship.

Your Committee is equally aware of the heavy responsibility with which it has been charged by the mandate of the Legislature, and determined to conduct itself in such a way as to properly reflect the high level of integrity which is the hallmark of the Florida Legislature. We believe that our activities of this biennium will be of benefit to all Florida and will ultimately be reflected in new or amended Florida laws.

Because our work is statewide in nature, and may well affect the interests of each member, we will seek to keep the members of the Legislature advised of our activities through a series of Informal Reports such as this. We solicit your comments and your suggestions, and will be happy to have any members of the Legislature attend any of our meetings to advise and consult with us on matters which may be of mutual interest.

ORGANIZATION

The Committee met to organize for this biennium at Jacksonville on August 8. At that time Representative Richard O. Mitchell of Leon was named chairman, and Senator Robert Williams of Graceville was elected vice-chairman. The entire Committee, composed of Senators Johns, Williams, and Young, and Representatives Mitchell, Owens, Stallings and Jones was present.

The resignations of Mark Hawes as Committee Attorney and R. J. Strickland as Committee Investigator were accepted. Mrs. Lamar Bledsoe agreed to continue to serve as secretary of the Committee, and Mr. Dave McGriff was employed as Administrative Assistant to the Committee.

It was agreed that the Committee would seek as its first order of business to define the issues to be explored during the coming biennium; to lay down guide lines for such exploration, and to assemble a high calibre staff to assist the Committee.

It was further agreed that, as a result of the activities of prior investigating committees of the Legislature, the Board of Control and the officials of the state universities have become more conscious of their responsibilities to protect against improper influences on the campuses. There was agreement that it is possible for the Committee, the Board of Control and educational institutions to work well together, and agreed that it should at all times be made plain to educational authorities of the state that this Committee, in raising questions about conduct or activities on any campus, is anxious to work with responsible officials in a constructive manner.

A discussion of the often unfair picture of the Committee's activities in the past presented to the people of Florida resulted in a renewed recognition by the members that the Committee's mandate from the Legislature leaves no room for either politics or publicity. The members were united in the conviction that upon its work the Committee must be judged, and that its concern should not be with public relations, but rather with the quality of its investigations, the soundness of its reports, and the effectiveness of its liaison with other state agencies and with the members of the Legislature.

The Committee recognizes that it is not engaged in a popularity contest, and that it cannot expect its efforts to be accomplished without the possibility of controversy or criticism. The Committee is, however, dedicated to the proposition that it is engaged in a serious effort to preserve Florida as a state of which we are proud, and is determined to meet its responsibilities in an honorable and forthright fashion.

ACTIVITIES

To determine the course of Committee action; areas which might compliment activities of other agencies having interest in Florida, and those qualities desirable for staff personnel, your Committee traveled to Washington and Chicago September 3-6.

Conversations with C. D. DeLoach, Assistant Director, and Inspector Edward Kemper, Federal Bureau of Investigation; Congressman Johansen, Republican of Michigan, Pool, Democrat of Texas, and Bruce, Republican of Indiana, members, Francis J. McNamara, staff director, and Donald Appell, chief investigator of the House Committee on Un-American Activities; David Martin, investigation evaluator and Special Assistant to Senator Thomas Dood, Democrat of Connecticut; J. Sourwine, Chief Counsel to the Senate Internal Security Sub-Committee; John M. Fisher, William K. Lambie and Clarence Perry Oakes of the Institute for American Strategy and American Security Council, made possible these conclusions:

1. That a definite need for this Committee exists. That there are substantial areas of concern to appropriate Federal agencies existent in Florida which by the necessities of priority and the limitation of budget are not now being delved into and which merit scrutiny by this Committee in keeping with its legislative charge.

2. That experience in a number of states over a long period indicates that great good can come from the effective activities of such a Committee as this.

3. That a highly qualified staff director is essential, and that men of superior qualifications can be found if an intense and careful search is undertaken.

Every official with whom we talked commended the State of Florida and its Legislature for the creation of the Legislative Investigations Committee. All felt that a useful service could be performed by this Committee, and all were generous with their time in allowing us to seek from them advice and suggestions that will be of great benefit to the Committee, both in its operations and in the selection of staff.

As a result of these conferences, we have:

1. Undertaken a survey of the activities of similar committees, current and past, in other states, and a review of state laws which have come into being as a result of their activities.

2. Begun work on Rules of Procedure which allow for business-like operation of the Committee and make possible maximum protection of the rights and interests of all those whom we may scrutinize or who may cooperate with us.

3. Established criterion for consideration in the selection of staff, and begun to make known in national investigative and intelligence circles our desire to employ a staff director of high and proven capabilities.

4. Obtained for Committee review a wealth of materials pertinent to our responsibilities and helpful as guides to the development of successful investigative programs and meaningful reports.

5. Established channels of communications and access to information which will save this Committee and its cooperators literally thousands of hours of research and investigative time, and will assure the prompt development and thorough evaluation of information coming to the Committee.

INVITATION TO COLLEAGUES

In determining our course of action for the biennium, we have been keenly conscious of the many problems Florida faces because of her unique geographic position and the role she plays as vacationland for peoples of other states and other lands. Influences upon young people of the state; the effect of large numbers of foreign nationals among our population, however welcome they may be, and the ease by which men and materials may be landed on our coasts, all represent areas of concern which may be subject to investigation.

In our conversations in Washington and Chicago we explored these and other possibilities. We would like at this formative stage of our program to invite members of the Legislature to suggest to us areas of concern they believe we should consider, and to suggest to us any outstanding individuals, in or out of Florida, they believe we should interview for our staff.

While we cannot in these reports detail our investigative plans, or spell out specific inquiries either under consideration or underway, we can assure each member of the Legislature of our desire to carefully consider all information and suggestions forwarded to us, and of our willingness to provide a confidential briefing on our activities for any member wishing to review in detail our efforts.

This Committee is an investigative arm of the Legislature, set up to inquire, report and recommend. This we shall do. We are cooperators with law enforcement agencies, not enforcers ourselves. We are your Committee, and we seek your assistance to assure that our service be of the highest calibre.

Sincerely,

Richard O. Mitchell

VOL. NO. VI, NO. 10 May 15, 1957

SOUTHERN REGIONAL COUNCIL, INC.

Beneficiary of the largest single grant ever awarded by the Ford Foundation's Fund For The Republic is the Southern Regional Council, Inc. (SRC), whose headquarters is located in the Wesley Memorial Building, 63 Auburn Avenue, N.E., Atlanta 3, Georgia. As of last year, the Council received a total of $445,000 "in support of studies and activities to promote interracial improvements" in the South. According to The Fund For The Republic's Three-Year Report, dated May 31, 1956, page 22, the SRC "has concentrated on building strong state organizations, so that each of its groups will be able to stand on its own feet when Fund support is terminated." (See "The New York Times", 12-16-56, page 117.)

Founded in January 1944 as a successor to the Commission On Interracial Cooperation, Inc., the Council's original corporation papers reflected its following "objects and purposes": "...to organize and maintain a Regional Council for the improvement of economic, civic and racial conditions in the South, in the endeavor to promote a greater unity in the South in all efforts towards regional and racial development; to attain through research and action programs the ideals and practices of equal opportunity for all peoples in the region; to reduce race tension, the basis of racial tension, racial misunderstanding, and racial distrust; to develop and integrate leadership in the South on new levels of regional development and fellowship..."

This document, filed in the Superior Court of Fulton County, State of Georgia, listed the names of five incorporators of the Council as follows: DR. RUFUS E. CLEMENT, RALPH McGILL, and BISHOP ARTHUR J. MOORE, Atlanta Georgia; DR. CHARLES S. JOHNSON, Nashville, Tennessee (now deceased); and DR. HOWARD W. ODUM, Chapel Hill, North Carolina. (See Petition of Incorporation, Book 062, pages 64-67, 1-6-44; and "The New York Times", 10-17-55.)

Today, the Council has expanded its activities into 12 states. Virtually supported by the enormous grant from The Fund For The Republic, the SRC "has strengthened its head office in Atlanta and organized Councils on Human Relations with interracial boards and staffs" in the following states: Alabama, Arkansas, Florida, Georgia, Kentucky, Louisiana, Mississippi, North Carolina, South Carolina, Tennessee, Texas and Virginia. (See Fund For The Republic "Three-Year Report," 1956, page 22.)

Formerly entitled The Southern Frontier, SRC's official organ is called New South, a 16-page monthly journal published in Atlanta, Georiga. With the approval of the United States Treasury Department, the Council enjoys tax-exempt status and all contributions to the organization can be treated as Federal income tax deductions. According to a revised roster dated April 1957, the SRC's REPRODUCTION IN WHOLE OR PART WITHOUT AUTHORIZATION IS PROHIBITED.

Board of Directors numbered 78, which included some of the following as officers and staff members: MARION A. WRIGHT, President; Vice-Presidents: GORDON B. HANCOCK, A. W. DENT, and PAUL D. WILLIAMS; RUFUS E. CLEMENT, Chairman, Executive Committee; JOSEPH HAAS, Counsel; HAROLD C. FLEMING, Executive Director; JOHN CONSTABLE, Director of Information; and FLORENCE B. IRVING, Research Assistant. (See "New South", February 1955, page 1; and March 1957, page 2.)

"RED FRONT"

Readers of the April 15, 1957 issue of the Firing Line will recall the Council was identified as a "Southern Red front by MANNING JOHNSON on March 8, 1957 before the State of Louisiana Legislative Committee On Segregation." The Firing Line report also revealed testimony which reflected the Council was "formed by JAMES E. JACKSON, a southern organizer of the Communist Party" and "is affiliated with the Mississippi Council On Human Relations."

Records of The American Legion reveal a definite trend of interrelationship between the SRC and the Southern Conference For Human Welfare, a defunct Communist front organization. According to the files of the National Americanism Commission, the following 16 former Directors of the SRC have been supporters of this aforementioned subversive organization: CHARLOTTE H. BROWN, LOUIS E. BURNHAM, GEORGE E. CLARY, HERBERT DAVIDSON, J. M. ELLISON, CLARK H. FOREMAN, GUY B. JOHNSON, DAVID D. JONES, GEORGE S. MITCHELL, HOWARD W. ODUM, F. D. PATTERSON, EDWIN A. PENICK, HOMER P. RAINEY, IRA DeA. REID, FORRESTER B. WASHINGTON and AUBREY WILLIAMS. (See SRC publication "What Kind of South Do You Want?", undated, pages 7 and 8; "New South", December 1946, pages 25 and 26; "The Southern Frontier", March 1944, page 1; "The New York Times", 12-16-56, page 117; HUAC, Appendix IX, 1944, pages 1589, 1595-1598; HUAC, Report, Southern Conference For Human Welfare, 1947, page 1; "New York Journal American", 11-7-55, page 1; and HUAC, Guide To Subversive Organizations and Publications, 1957, page 81.)

The files of The American Legion reflect the following 9 current SRC Directors have also been affiliated with the subversive Southern Conference For Human Welfare: RUFUS B. ATWOOD, PAUL R. CHRISTOPHER, RUFUS E. CLEMENT, A. W. DENT, BENJAMIN E. MAYS, H. COUNCILL TRENHOLM, E. C. PETERS, JOSEPHINE WILKINS and MARION A. WRIGHT. (See HUAC, Appendix IX, 1944, pages 1594-1597; HUAC, Report, Southern Conference For Human Welfare, 1947, pages 1 and 15; and "Daily Worker", 5-20-47, page 5.)

At the conclusion of a 1954 investigation, the Senate Internal Security Subcommittee reported the Southern Conference Educational Fund, Inc. (of 822 Perdido Street, New Orleans 12, Louisiana), "was initially an adjunct of the Southern Conference For Human Welfare. After the exposure of the Southern Conference For Human Welfare as a Communist front, it began to wither and was finally dissolved, but the Southern Conference Educational Fund, Inc., continued." The Subcommittee found that after "an objective study", the "Southern Conference Educational Fund, Inc. is operating with substantially the same leadership and purposes as its predecessor organization, the Southern Conference For Human Welfare." (See Senate Internal Security Subcommittee, Hearings, Southern Conference Educational Fund, Inc., 1955, pages V and VIII.)

For the information of Firing Line readers, the following 8 current Directors of the Council have been affiliated with the aforementioned Southern Conference Educational Fund, Inc., which was fully exposed in the July 1, 1955 issue of this publication: F. WOODS BECKMAN, BLAILSFORD R. BRAZEAL, RUFUS E. CLEMENT, JAMES M. DABBS, CHARLES G. GOMILLION, DUNCAN HUNTER, BENJAMIN E. MAYS and JOSEPHINE WILKINS. It may be of interest to recall that former SRC Director AUBREY WILLIAMS has been President of the Southern Conference Educational Fund since 1948. He was named as a member of the Communist Party during the Senate Internal Security Subcommittee's 1954 hearings. (See Senate Internal Security Subcommittee, Hearings, Southern Conference Educational Fund, Inc., 1955, pages VI, VII and 102; and Southern Conference Educational Fund, leaflets and letterheads, 1953-1956.)

REPORT FROM THE SUBVERSIVE ACTIVITIES CONTROL BOARD

Due to the increasing number of petitions filed by the United States Attorney General with the Subversive Activities Control Board (SACB), the National Americanism Commission has compiled the following statistical report on the status of 24 cases which this quasi-judicial body has received since it creation by the Subversive Activities Control (Internal Security) Act of 1950:

The SACB has ordered six organizations to register under the Subversive Activities Control Act. In a Modified Report dated December 18, 1956, the Board "recommended that the United States Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia Circuit affirm the Board's Order entered April 20, 1953, requiring the Communist Party of the United States to register as a Communist-action organization under section 7 of the Subversive Activities Control Act of 1950." The Board also ordered each of the following groups to register as a Communist-front organization: Jefferson School of Social Science (1955), Labor Youth League (1955), National Council of American-Soviet Friendship (1956), United May Day Committee (1956) and Veterans of the Abraham Lincoln Brigade (1955.)

Subject to review of the whole Board, Recommended Decisions have been issued to require each of the following groups to register as a Communist-front organization: American Peace Crusade (1957), California Labor School (1957), Civil Rights Congress (1955), and the Washington Pension Union (1956.)

In various procedural stages are the cases of the following 7 alleged Communist-front organizations: American Committee For Protection of Foreign Born, California Emergency Defense Committee, The Colorado Committee To Protect Civil Liberties, Committee To End Sedition Laws, The Connecticut Volunteers For Civil Rights, National Negro Labor Council, and Save Our Sons Committee. Cases of the following two alleged Communist-infiltrated organizations are also pending: International Union of Mine, Mill & Smelter Workers and the United Electrical, Radio & Machine Workers of America.

After extensive hearings, the Board ordered dismissal of the following petitions on the grounds that evidence reflected these organizations to be defunct: American Slav Congress, The Committee For A Democratic Far Eastern Policy, Council On African Affairs, International Workers Order, Inc., and the Joint Anti-Fascist Refugee Committee. According to the Sixth Annual Report of the SACB, dated June 30, 1956, six organizations have appealed Board decisions to the United States Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia, namely: Communist Party, U.S.A., Labor Youth League, Jefferson School of Social Science, National Council of American-Soviet Friendship, Inc., Veterans of the Abraham Lincoln Brigade, and the United May Day Committee.

TODAY'S ASSOCIATES - "PROGRESSIVE LITERATURE" OUTLET

In her January 1957 issue of Today, MISS ANNA LOUISE STRONG declared her periodical will be converted from its present form to a monthly column of the same title scheduled for future appearances in the National Guardian. Mimeographed on legal colored paper, Today has used the following mailing addresses: Post Office Box 161, Montrose, California, and Post Office Box 87, Altadena, California. For the information of readers, MISS STRONG is a long time supporter of the international Communist conspiracy. An identified member of of the Communist Party, U. S. A., she has "collaborated with agents of the Soviet Intelligence apparatus" and has written for Communist Party publications. (See Senate Internal Security Subcommittee, Report, Institute of Pacific Relations, 1952, page 158.)

On March 14, 1957, BETTY CHESLEY, Secretary of the apparent newly formed Today's Associates of Post Office Box 87, Altadena, California, wrote the following message to Today readers: "This is a plan to share good progressive literature. It grows from the letters that came to ANNA LOUISE STRONG'S Today. Some people wrote offering books and magazines; they take many progressive periodicals and are willing to share them. Other people want progressive literature but have little means to buy it and live miles from any source. The staff which handled the volunteer mailing of Today have worked out a plan by which they hope to supply the names of those wanting good reading matter to those having good reading matter to give away...If you are able to help in this project, please fill out the coupon...and return to us at above address."

This plan listed the following "progressive literature": Catholic Worker, I. F. Stone's Weekly, Manchester Guardian, The Nation, National Guardian, New Republic, New Statesman & Nation, Monthly Review and The Progressive.

FACTS ON CHESLEY

According to The American Legion files, one MRS. ELIZABETH R. CHESLEY of Pasadena, California was listed as a signer of a quarter-page advertisement which appeared in the September 20, 1951 edition of The Los Angeles Times, demanding a reduction of bail for Communist Party leaders who have been involved in Smith Act prosecution cases. The Daily Worker of April 13, 1951, page 5, reflected that a MRS. BETTY CHESLEY, Chairman of the Pasadena Non-Partisan Peace Committee, led a "two hour vehicular parade through the main streets of Pasadena", California. On May 8, 1954, a MRS. ELIZABETH CHESLEY was honored at a "Mother's Day Testimonial For Peace", which was announced by the Southern California Peace Crusade, an identified subversive organization. (See "Daily People's World", 5-5-54, page 6; and HUAC, Guide To Subversive Organizations and Publications, 1957, page 80.)

COMMUNIST PARTY MEMBERSHIP: According to FBI Director J. EDGAR HOOVER, Party membership as of January 1, 1957 totaled 17,360. This represents a drop of 14.4% from last year's total of 20,289. He warned against discounting Party strength based on actual membership.

AMERICAN
33RD YEAR MERCURY JULY 1957

Why Pick on DIXIE?

by Harold Lord Varney

A new and wonder formula for quick literary success is now emerging. The formula is a simple one—easily within the reach of the most uninspired plodder in American letters. Expressed in a single sentence it is this: damn the South.

So rapidly has this new literary fashion fastened itself upon us that there is now scarcely a publishing house or a national magazine which does not have a dreary stable of hacks grinding out anti-South treatises or fiction. The theme assails our ears nightly on the airwaves via both radio and television. It comes to us cloyingly in the dignified columns of the New York Times or in the more tabasco pages of Mr. Luce's TIME. It is becoming a literary occupation. We are all becoming South-baiters.

An incredible example of this new literary genre was displayed a short time ago on the mass audience TV Climax show, sponsored by one of the "Big Three" auto makers. Probably 30,000,000 TV viewers saw an implausible political story, "Stain of Honor," confected by Adrian Spies. No TV fan could rise from this performance without the ineluctable impression that Southern politicians as a breed were a thoroughly bad lot, with unmistakable overtones of insanity. Whether intended or not, the fact remains that every Southern character in the play with the exception of the hero, who had repudiated his Southern heritage, was unsympathetic. The only role of nobility in the play was assigned to a Negro character.

BEST COPY AVAILABLE

Such a play—and it is only a sample of the dreadful tripe which is now on display—is vicious and malevolent. It attempts to place the Claghorn stamp on all Southern political leaders. Its effect is to fan hate between Northern and Southern Americans. The fact that the message is not spelled out—that it is conveyed by innuendo and through the heavy lines of caricature—makes it all the more deadly in its impact on the mass mind.

Going the rounds of the second-run movie house circuit at this time are three hit pictures stressing Southern themes. These are Giant, Baby Doll, and Written on the Wind.

Of Giant, which is based upon the Edna Ferber book of the same name, TIME declares that the book from which the screen play was confected,

> "...bellowed from the bookstalls that Texas in modern times is a microcosm of materialism, a noisome social compost of everything that is crass and sick and cruel in American life."

Although not as wholehearted in its malice as the Ferber original, the story which George Stevens directed for the movies is one continuous preachment against Texans. They are pilloried as cruel and inhuman in their treatment of the Mexicans. They are shown as vulgar and devoid of the human sympathies which characterize Northern Americans. A mounting atmosphere of disdain pervades the whole screen play.

Although nowhere stated bluntly, the message comes through in every scene of the play, and particularly in the pumped-up overwrought finale. That message is that Texans aren't on the same emotional wave length with the rest of us. It is a technique which Hollywood perfected in its depictment of Germans and Japanese during the late war. The vast Giant audience rises from its plush seats with the inevitable stereotype that Texans simply aren't good Americans.

In another picture, Written on the Wind, the unpleasant Southerner stereotype is not quite so clear. Some sympathetic Southern characters are allowed to enter the cast. The main action is in New York rather than in the Deep South. But in the central story line, the neurotic, wastrel protagonist who snatches Lauren Bacall from the clean-cut boy of the plot is—you have guessed it—the inevitable Texas oil man. Audiences all over the United States are now engaged in a collective emotional wallow, hating the Texan.

But the most malicious caricature of the South is given by Baby Doll, which Cardinal Spellman described as "revolting" and "morally repellent."

Baby Doll is slanted cynically at the Tobacco Road Northern thea-to going public. Its action takes place in Mississippi among a weird collection of unbelievable "Deep South" whites. The heroine, Baby Doll, is a near-cretin and a slut. Her middle-aged husband is a creep. They live together in one of the most nauseous situations ever depicted on the American screen. The most nearly normal character in the picture (all of the cast are fugitives from Krafft-Ebbing) is, of course, the Northern outsider to whose obscene arms Baby Doll flees.

The whole story leaves a sickening savor in the viewer's mouth.

These three unpleasant examples are cited, not because they are any worse than other treatments of the South which Hollywood has ground out. What is noteworthy in them is that they represent a trend which seems to be dominating large areas of the communications media of the country. It is the trend to defame and defoul the composite picture of the Southern American which is in the people's mind. It is the trend to libel 46,000,000 Americans who happen to live South of Mason and Dixon's line, and to hold them up to national contempt.

This lynch spirit against the South is evident throughout the public opinion field, as registered by the various media. It is evident in book publishing houses which have discovered that a novel, such as Lettie Hamlett Rogers' Birthright, which draws a horrifying likeness of the "best families" of the South while sobbing tearfully over the wrongs of the Negro, will sensationally outsell any book about the South which presents white Southern characters as ordinary, decent-spirited Americans.

IT IS EVIDENT in magazine publishing offices which, with a uniformity now becoming almost compulsive, invariably give their assignments of stories about the South to race-obsessed foreigners like Gunnar Myrdal or Alan Paton, or to unrepresentative Southerners like Hodding Carter, Harry S. Ashmore, Lillian Smith, Robert P. Warren, Mark F. Ethridge—men and women who have achieved a quick, synthetic popularity among Northern South-haters by affecting the pose of the "reasonable Southerner." True experts on the South such as Virginius Dabney, James J. Kilpatrick, Clifford Dowdey, James G. Stahlman, Jonathan Daniels, James F. Byrnes, Luther H. Hodges, are seldom if ever published in the mass circulation Northern slicks. It is evident that most Northern editors are little interested in the Southern state of mind, but only in its denunciation.

When the brightest star in the Southern literary constellation, Nobel-Prize winner William Faulkner, wrote a two-page letter to a national weekly defending the attitude of the South, a deep stunned silence engulfed him. He has been invited to write no more articles on the South for the Northern magazines.

Television is another medium which appears to have joined wholeheartedly in the anti-South brainwashing. Occasionally, a spokesman for the Southern attitude is reluctantly included in a panel program or a discussion or interview show. When this is done, the announcer or interviewer is certain to make it plain, directly or indirectly, that the station disassociates itself completely from the views of the speaker. The bias of the station is so obvious as to nullify any gain in understanding which might result from the presentation of a Southerner. The staffs of the network news interpreters, headed by such Left-leaners as Edward R. Murrow and Chet Huntley, are unanimously anti-South.

The only time when an influential network discussion program attempted to give a fair break to the South was during the late lamented career of the Facts Forum. The Forum was continually harassed during its life by "Liberal" pressure before the FCC to have it thrown off the air. It was smeared in exposés charging "Rightism" in such Leftist magazines as The Reporter, etc. It was cited before the Internal Revenue Bureau. Instead of welcoming this opportunity, in the American tradition of fair play, to hear this dissenting voice, the South-baiters thought only in terms of suppression.

The climate of opinion in the North is similarly saturated against the South by most of the effective and well-financed organizational molders of public opinion. All the Foundations stand in solid ranks, with their billions, in determined opposition to the traditional Southern viewpoint. Instead of providing a forum for the honest discussion of Southern issues, the Foundations have underwritten a controversial organization in the South, the Southern Regional Council, which is staffed by Southerners who have unreservedly accepted Northern opinion patterns. The Council, in a dignified way, is the clearing house of most of the indoctrination of the South which is now in furious progress by Northern agencies.

IN THE LAST three years, the Council has received a total of $445,000 from the Fund for the Republic of the Ford Foundation. The Council has also been on the receiving end of sizable funds from the William C. Whitney Foundation, the Field Foundation, the Doris Duke Foundation, the Marion Ascoli Fund, the Sidney Hillman Foundation and others. More militant organizations in the field of South-baiting which have received Fund of the Republic money are the Legal Defense Fund of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People ($50,000), the Urban League ($50,000), the Commission on Race and Housing ($118,954).

All of these agencies are engaged in the determined task of discrediting in national public opinion the recognized leaders and spokesmen of the South.

THE great national organizations which represent important occupational and religious belief blocs are, to an appalling extent, also enlisted in this indiscriminate "damn-the-South" drive. The South's right to observe its own folkways is being assailed on platform and in print by such potent national groups as the National Education Association, the National Parent-Teachers Association, the AFL-CIO, the League of Women Voters, the Americans for Democratic Action, the American Civil Liberties Union, and the clearing house of affiliated civil liberties organization, the National Council of Churches, the denominational secretariat of most of the church bodies and many others. Even the national spokesmen of the Republican and Democratic National Committees make discreet political noises directed against the South on appropriate occasions.

Under this high-level prompting, indoctrination against the South is slowly blanketing most of the opinion-influencing agencies of the North. It is being taught openly in the classrooms of the public schools, and in many of the private ones. It permeates the newer textbooks and teaching aids which are given to the teacher. It is slipped styly into the children's books and the comic strips. It is the theme of impressive seminars in the colleges and universities. It is being preached from the pulpits of religious "Liberals," proclaimed from the lecture platform and the women's club stage, reiterated ad nauseam at Rotary, Kiwanis, Lions and other business club luncheons. It saturates the Northern press. The fair-minded American, seeking honest light on the Southern question, finds himself asphyxiated in a suffocating fog of indoctrination and propaganda.

No such private war of spite and calumny has been directed against a minority of fellow-Americans since the days of the Mormon persecutions.

It is inevitable, in such an atmosphere of all-pervading malice, that the people of the South are beginning to feel themselves outsiders in the national family. Thanks to seniority, Southerners still wield a potent influence over the committees of the Senate and House, but there their influence ends. They have lost the battle of national public opinion. Under this bludgeoning, the Deep South has become a sort of American Sudetenland—a deep fault of explosive political unhappiness and humiliation threatening our national unity.

Who has done this to the South? Certainly, this recrudescence of anti-Southern animosity is not something which has just happened spontaneously in the North. The average Northerner has no particular dislike of the Southern American, although he may be conscious of certain surface differences. If, today, he is supporting movements and leaders which are engaged in all-out anti-Southernism, it is because he is reacting unthinkingly to the propaganda that is filling the airwaves and the public prints. This propaganda emanates from a relatively small group of Northern "Liberals." This group is willing to revive all of the sectional hates and passions which were buried almost a hundred years ago in the Civil War, in order to serve their own ignoble purposes of power.

BRIEFLY STATED, the men and women who are behind the anti-South drive are the familiar figures who, in other fields, have been trying since the days of Roosevelt to remake America in the image of their one-world, one-race ideology. It is the same inglorious crowd which has committed the United States to the United Nations, and to UNESCO and to the Mrs. Roosevelt-written Covenant of Human Rights. It is the same crowd which hounded Bob Taft to his grave, which humiliated MacArthur, which has declared political vendettas against Jenner and McCarthy and Knowland, and which is still unconvinced of the guilt of Alger Hiss.

To these resourceful schemers, the South, with its deep-running conservatism and with its unshaken Anglo-Saxon traditions, was an obstacle which had to be removed. Its leaders must be discredited as political pariahs, its way of life must be held up to public detestation and ridicule.

What better instrument was there to direct against the South than the Negro question? Americans, both Northerners and Southerners alike, have long felt a sense of national guilt over the Negro, and there has been general agreement that inherited discriminations must be gradually abolished. The fact that the South was doing something about it made little difference to the doctrinaire "Liberals," whose book called for a political jehad against Southern conservatism. It was determined to use the Negro issue as a smashing club against the South, to compel immediate compliance with the blueprints of "one world" liberalism.

What assured "Liberal" success in this undertaking was the political poteney of the Northern Negro vote. An organization such as the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People which has always been under Left Liberal (before World War II, even Communist) influence, offered itself as a ready-made instrument for this purpose. The NAACP could direct terrific influence upon Northern politicians, both Republican and Democratic, by threatening reprisals by the Negro voters. The 6,000,000 Northern Negro voters, acting as a bullet bloc, could easily decide the outcome of a Presidential election. They meant the difference between victory and defeat in the hairline outcome of many a House or even Senate election in the North. No ambitious politician, who wanted to stay alive, would willingly affront such a balance of power.

Commencing sometime in the early 1940's and taking on accelerated speed as the years passed, we have seen the spectacle of an almost bandwagon rush of Northern politicians to the NAACP side in local and national elections. The pressure of the local politicans, who get out the vote, upon individual Senators and Congressmen in Washington, became terrific. From a dominant place in the legislative picture, which they had enjoyed in coalition with conservative Republicans throughout the Taft-Wherry period of Republican leadership, the Southern legislators have now sunk into a sad status of isolation. Through their control of committees they can exercise some restraining influence upon the speed of the anti-Southern measures. But they can no longer check them. Republicanism under Eisenhower, and Democracy under Adlai Stevenson and Walter Reuther, are sternly against them.

In a period in which the South is no longer feared politically, it has ceased to be respected intellectually or socially. It has become the butt of mediocrity in literature, in journalism, on the screen and over the airwaves. It has become the whipping boy of every political and journalistic demagogue who is seeking an easy road to quick success. Enlistment in the anti-South hate campaign is the surest pathway for the unscrupulous to win the great claque of "Liberalism" to further his career.

IT IS a shameful episode in the history of our times. It is also a disastrous experience for Americans. At an historic juncture when the hostility of the American people should be channeled exclusively against our enemies at home and abroad, "Liberalism" has detoured us into a hate drive against other Americans. At a time when "tolerance" has become almost a national religion, the "tolerance" high priesthood is itself launched on one of the most intolerant smear campaigns in the annals of propaganda.

America, in releasing the anti-Southern hate waves, is weakening our most precious possession—the unity of the American people. It will not be easy to recapture it after the present dementia is past.

COMMIES AND INTEGRATION:

Little Rock Luster Dimmer; Reds Eyed in School Fight

WASHINGTON — The luster is wearing thin at Little Rock, Ark. where bayonets were used last fall to enforce integration in a public school. Some of the trail-blazers appear to have washed their hands of the cause of Negro "rights." Others have been seen in roles considerably less flattering than those they played last fall.

Ernest Green's observation, "I'm glad that's all over," is perhaps not untypical. Ernest, 18, was one of the nine Negro youths admitted to Little Rock's Central High School under the guns of federalized National Guardsmen and U.S. paratroopers.

Last month Ernest was graduated. One of the nine was expelled: the other seven may never return to Central.

If the experiment continues at Central, it will have to do so without the assistance of many persons who were instrumental in launching it.

Mayor Woodrow Wilson Mann of Little Rock, who made the daily telephone calls to the White House that led to Federal intervention, has left town.

He is now a resident of Denver, Colo., working in an investment banking firm.

Max Rabb, the presidential assistant who was at the White House end of the Mayor Mann calls and was a key man in the decision to send Federal troops, has left Washington.

He is now a partner in a big New York law firm.

Despite apparent "success" in its part in obtaining the Little Rock test, the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People has experienced a "sharp drop" in membership.

Federal Judge Ronald Davies, whose ruling that integration must begin "forthwith" in Little Rock was the foundation for what followed, has long since left Little Rock.

He is now back in his court in North Dakota, where there are but 257 Negroes in the entire state. Arkansas has 462,000.

Harry Ashmore, the Little Rock editor whose editorials in behalf of integration stirred the controversy and brought him a Pulitzer prize, has conceded he will not employ a Negro on his newspaper.

Mrs. Grace Lorch, the Little Rock "housewife" who attracted national attention by "befriending" one of the nine students, has since refused to declare whether she is a Communist.

Herbert Brownell, whose U. S. Justice Department gave the orders for dispatch of troops, is no longer attorney general.

He has taken up the more lucrative private practice of law.

The Justice Department, itself, has had a change of heart. Under its new chief, William P. Rogers, the word is "never again" on the use of federal troops to enforce integration.

The Little Rock School Board, which had worked out a gradual integration program that Judge Davies' ruling nullified, has thrown in the sponge on any integration in the near future.

Central High School has claimed that the educational program for its 2,000 students was so badly dislocated by the one-year experiment the school could not survive another year without complete disintegration of morale.

This was a major consideration in Federal Judge Harry J. Lemley's approval of a 2½-year stay of integration for the Little Rock high school, a decision that may have made the best of a very unfortunate situation.

Judge Lemley, while acknowledging the interest of Negroes in obtaining equal rights, said the "public interest" of the majority rated consideration, too. The burden placed on other Central High students and the "racial tension and unrest" created in Little Rock itself demanded a delay in integration, he said.

The ruling led to another example of apparent change in viewpoint among those who had been insistent on an immediate end of segregation.

When Judge Lemley's decision was taken to the U. S. Supreme Court, whose 1954 "sociological" and subsequent decrees had started the ferment in the South, that body declined to break up its summer vacation for a special sitting.

The court, in effect, passed the buck to a lower court with an admonition to act fast.

Little Rock, the morning after, appears to have been a venture that has not served racial harmony or promoted integration. As such, its origin, its leaders and its original objectives invited inquiry.

Main Goal of Reds Revealed As Racial Strife—Then Rule

This is the second of a series of five articles written by Edward B. Simmons of the Standard-Times, New Bedford, Mass., after a survey of segregation-intergration issues in the South. Simmons traveled from Washington southward to the Midwest in preparing these articles.

WASHINGTON — To incite racial strife is one of the oldest objectives in the Communist program for getting world domination. "We must realize that our party's most powerful weapon is racial tension," states a Communist Party handbook of 1912, well before a few hundred Bolsheviks seized control of Russia.

"By propounding into the consciousness of the dark races that for centuries they have been oppressed by the whites, we can mold them to the program of the Communist Party," the handbook continues.

"In America, we will aim for subtle victory. While inflaming the Negro minority against the whites, we will endeavor to instill in the whites a guilt complex for their exploitation of the Negroes. Thus will begin a process which will deliver America to our cause."

COINCIDENCE OR STRATEGY?

Is it coincidence or the result of strategy that, some 45 years later, racial unrest in an outstanding Southern city, Little Rock, Ark., has increased so sharply that a Federal judge called for a 2½-year delay in any integration?

Again, is it coincidence or the result of Communist strategy that one of the most influential of all Southern Negro leaders, the Rev. Martin Luther King, exhorts his followers with these words:

"It (the Montgomery, Ala., bus boycott) is a part of something that is happening all over the world. The oppressed people are rising up. They are revolting against colonialism and imperialism and all other systems of oppression."

When Mr. King draws a parallel between the situation of the American Negro and "oppressed peoples" rising against "colonialism" and "imperialism," he is following exactly, to the word, the Communist line.

DIRECT APPROACH FAILED

At first, the Communist drive for creation of racial strife called for a direct approach to Negroes, using labor unions and Communist fronts like the American Negro Labor Congress and the League for Struggle for Negro Rights.

This approach was brazenly direct, and it failed. Former Communist Joseph Kornfelder, one of the party founders in the United States and its first director of Southern operations, has described what happened:

"The South to the Communists was always of the most vexing problems," Kornfelder told a joint legislative committee of the State of Louisiana in March 1957. "Moscow could never understand it . . . According to Marx' theory, the South should be leading the United States in Communist development.

"It just didn't work out that way.

"It was just to the contrary. The South proved to be a hard nut and it didn't conform to the doctrine.

BLOCKED BY RELIGION

"They decided that the big block against penetration of the South is religion. The Negroes believed in religion; the hillbillies believed in religion; nearly everybody is religious. The South is more religious than the North.

"Therefore, they decided maybe they should get at them under the auspices of the Cross."

Kornfelder and two Negro former Communist leaders, Manning Johnson and Leonard Patterson, told the Louisiana committee that the new tactics included, besides use of the church penetration of reputable Negro organizations and the founding, but not obvious control, of others.

World War II, with its migrations and general dislocation of living habits, produced what Kornfelder described as a "sort of honeymoon situation" between the Communist organizers and Negro organizations.

4 AGENCIES INFILTRATED

"It seems the intellectuals during that time had shown a remarkable weakness," he testified. "They were bigger suckers for the Communist propaganda than many others were, apparently because they sort of led a life apart from the daily troubles and toil of the population.

"They were the ivory tower boys who picked up the theories of the Communists, not looking at what is behind the theories."

The results of this "honeymoon" were vital Communist infiltration of the most important agencies in the South dealing in Negro issues. The Communists infiltrated four of these organizations and actually helped found three of them.

They are the Southern Conference Educational Fund, the Southern Regional Council, the Highlander Folk School in Tennessee and the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People.

An almost incredible maze of interlocking officials, ideas and publications linked the three first-named agencies with the Communist Party.

COUNCIL GOT FORD GRANT

The Regional Council and the Educational Fund were both offshoots of the old Southern Conference for Human Welfare, which was dissolved in 1948 after twice being described by the federal government as "a Communist front serving the Soviet Union and its subservient Communist Party."

Former directors and officers of the Conference for Human Welfare became directors and officers of the Regional Council and the Educational Fund and of the Highlander School. The Communist Daily Worker openly boasted that James E. Jackson, chief of the Southern branch of the U. S. Communist Party, was a co-founder of the Regional Council.

Although the Regional Council is not widely known in the North its influence in the South is attested by its receiving a $497,000 grant from the Ford Foundation's Fund for the Republic.

Likewise, the Highlander School plays an important role in Southern civil rights developments, although it is scarcely known in the North. The school, according to testimony before the Senate Internal Security Subcommittee, was co-founded by a Communist and by a man who refused to testify on his beliefs.

NAACP INFILTRATED

During these "organizing" years by the Communist Party, the NAACP was extensively infiltrated, although not dominated by Communist sympathizers. Many of its leading officals were members of Communist fronts.

In fact, by 1954 and the crucial Supreme Court decision, the Communist Party was so confident it had set the stage for developments in its favor that the party's national convention in the winter of 1953 declared, "The next period ahead will witness momentous struggles of the Negroes . . . given the vanguard leadership of the Communist Party, we may be confident that the Negro liberation movement will ally itself more fully with the camp of peace and democracy."

The Communist Party was in a position to follow its long-proved doctrine:

To get a "sociological" or pro-Communist book on the reading list of influential persons, like a Supreme Court justice;

To persuade a Negro to violate a civil rights statute, in the cause of "civil disobedience";

To inject a fellow-traveler in the forefront of a civil rights dispute;

To support the program of the NAACP.

These objectives were attained in the year to come.

Reds Goad NAACP Leaders Into Ending Moderation

EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the third of a series of five articles written by Edward B. Standard, New Bedford, Mass., on the segregation-integration problems after a survey in the South.

WASHINGTON — The success of Communist efforts to exploit the Southern Negro under the guise of "democratization" became fully evident in 1954 and the three subsequent years. The Supreme Court's historic 1954 ruling on school segregation was in judgment on four cases brought before it by the National Association of Advancement for Colored People, which for years had been a priority objective of Communist infiltration.

The NAACP charged that Negro children in Delaware, Kansas, South Carolina and Virginia were being denied their rights under the 14th Amendment.

The court did not rule on this aspect. Instead, Chief Justice Earl Warren in the written opinion, declared that the court found for the NAACP because segregated schools induced a feeling of inferiority among Negro children.

SIX BOOKS CITED

This sociological view, the justice stated, is "amply supported by modern authority." He cited six books by such "modern authority."

Two of the six authorities were Theodore Brameld and E. Franklin Frazier. Between them, they have been members of or identified with 28 organizations listed as Communist, Communist-fronts or Communist-dominated.

A third "authority" was K. B. Clark. While arguments were being heard by the court on the four cases, Clark was on the payroll of the NAACP as a "social science expert."

A fourth authority cited by Justice Warren was the book, "An American Dilemma," edited by Gunnar Myrdal, a Swedish Socialist. The chief justice emphasized the importance of this book in the court's deliberations by saying it was depended on "generally," that is from cover to cover.

RECORDS NOTED

Sixteen of the contributors to Myrdal's book have long records of pro-Communist affiliation and activity. One, W. E. B. Dubois, identified by the Communist Party as the "honorary chairman" of the NAACP, had a hand in 82 parts of the book. Dubois has been identified with 80 Communist fronts, reportedly more than any other American citizen.

Dubois intervened in behalf of executed Communist spies Julius and Ethel Rosenberg and sent the Kremlin a message of condolence on the death of Stalin.

Myrdal, himself, has written that the U. S. Constitution is "impractical and unsuited to modern conditions." Its adoption was "nearly a plot against the common people," said this foreign authority on American Negro problems.

The court's decision gave new influence to the NAACP. Its officers hailed the decision but indicated that it would not change the organization's plan for calm and orderly progress in race relations.

"We accept the decision quietly, unless there is deliberately-fomented trouble," said the late Walter White, then executive secretary of NAACP.

WANTED STRUGGLES

Thurgood Marshall, chief NAACP counsel, who had argued the school cases before the court, said, "The people will get together and work this thing out."

The Communist Party, however, wanted no part of moderation. It wanted the "big sharp struggles" its leaders had forecast, and racial unrest. Communist publications and officials shrilled for "immediate implementation of the Supreme Court decision, immediate abolition of segregation and discrimination from every facet of American life, immediate enforcement" . . . etc.

The record from the Supreme Court decision until the climax at Little Rock, makes it plain, which philosophy was the dominant one.

Moderation was forgotten.

The next three years brought unprecedented civil disobedience and violence in the South's racial affairs. There were all-out "incidents" of long duration in Tuskegee, Ala., Charleston, S. C., Tallahassee, Fla., Montgomery, Ala., Americus, Ga., and Clinton, Tenn., to name only the major ones.

COMMUNISTS BLAMED

The NAACP played a prominent role in each, but the atmosphere was not the moderate one ostensibly espoused by the NAACP.

"In my opinion, every major racial disturbance in the South since 1954 has been incited and directed by the Communist Party," Mrs. Paul Crouch, widow of a former Communist leader, told The Standard-Times. Her husband was a top Communist functionary in the South for 13 years, and she was his aid throughout the period.

Communist exploitation of the Negro through the NAACP is attested by the proceedings of the 1957 national convention of the Communist Party. That convention adopted as its main resolution, "The question of Negro freedom . . . the crucial domestic issue of the day . . . requiring support of the program of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People."

Communist penetration of the NAACP in these important years is conceded by the NAACP itself.

ALL CHAPTERS WARNED

On Feb. 14, 1956, Leroy Watkins, who succeeded White as NAACP executive secretary, warned all chapters to guard against the "intensive efforts" of Communists to infiltrate.

At that very time, however, the NAACP's official publication, "The Crisis," was recommending as MUST background reading for Negroes, books by Claude Lightfoot, chairman of the Illinois Communist Party, and Doxey E. Wilkerson, member of the party's National Committee. Both have written extensively in behalf of racial unrest.

Communist dominance of Negro civil rights developments after the Supreme Court decision is illustrated, also in the activities of the Highlander School, influential "sociological" workshop in the South. Highlander, according to testimony before a congressional committee, was founded by a Communist and by a man who refused to state his beliefs.

Since 1954, Highlander has held a series of "workshops to develop plans for an orderly transition from segregated to integrated schools." At the last workshop, held over the Labor Day weekend just before the trouble at Little Rock, the leaders of every important racial strife incident in the South since 1954 were present.

How sincere is the Highlander program for "orderly transition" in desegregation?

The actual curriculum at Highlander, its pamphlet statement in behalf of "orderly transition" notwithstanding, preached that "desegregation is more effectively accomplished in a single step than in a series of steps with delays in between."

This is fellow-traveler vernacular for the straight-out Communist program of "immediate desegregation."

Among those attending the important Highlander workshop was the Rev. Martin Luther King, leader of the Montgomery, Ala., bus boycott. King was to be at Little Rock, and in 1958, at the White House, protesting integration delay.

By the time Central High School in Little Rock was to open for its 1957-58 school year, the Communist Party was marching step by step with the NAACP, whether the good element in the NAACP liked it or not.

COMMIES AND INTEGRATION:

Daily Worker Led Intervention Cry

This is the fourth of five articles prepared by the Standard-Times of New Bedford, Mass., on the part the Communist party played in promotting racial troubles in the South.

WASHINGTON — "The honor of our country requires federal intervention now to end the organized defiance of decency and justice in the South." These words were not spoken by Mayor Mann of Little Rock. Nor by Maxwell Rabb, White House assistant to whom the mayor talked daily by telephone in the hectic days preceding intervention by the National Guard and Paratroopers.

They were not spoken by an offical of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, the dominant U. S. Negro organization.

The words were an official pronouncement of the Communist Party of the United States, issued two years before Little Rock, and printed in the party's official political guide, Political Affairs, issue of October 1955.

UTTERED BY COMMUNIST

"The federal government has the power and the duty to use troops and whatever other constitutional means are available to enforce the law of the land."

Use of the word "constitutional" in the above might lead someone to think a good American had said those words.

They were uttered 18 months before Little Rock's federal troop intervention by Benjamin J. Davis, chairman of the Negro Commission of the U. S. Communist Party.

"The federal government hasn't hesitated to use the force of jail and seizures in trying to destroy the Communists and other foes of Jim Crow," said Davis, who, like other Communists, has been able to predict the future in civil rights matters.

PRESSED FOR TROOPS

"It should not hesitate to use whatever force — troops if necessary — to put down violent defiance of the law of the land, and murderous terror against peaceful citizens seeking to exercise their constitutional rights."

From the very beginning of the Little Rock incident, the Communists pressed for "dispatch of federal troops to keep order in the South."

The Communist Daily Worker shrilled a demand for "action," on Sept. 5, the day after Governor Faubus stationed National Guardsmen around Central High School.

"The insurrection in Arkansas" must be put down, strummed the Worker the next day.

"G-men must be sent," said another edition, blasting FBI director Hoover for refusing to do so.

OTHER PHRASES

"Every prerogative" must be used by the President, was another phrase in the daily demands for use of the military."

"Threats of blood running in the streets" were cited by the Worker, without identifying the source.

Southern whites were charged with being "immune to education cajolery and pleas of moderation," so that troops were the only recourse.

"Why wait?" asked on Worker editorial.

"Patience!" scoffed another.

"Nothing is to be gained by handling Faubus with kid gloves," stated another diatribe.

"Shilly-shallying" was laid to the President.

And so it came to pass. On Sept. 24, Paratroopers were airborne to Little Rock. Exactly the methods advocated by the Communist ace-agitators — speed and force — were used in a civil rights dispute.

"A tremendous victory for the American people," rejoined the next day's Daily Worker.

Use of armed troops climaxed years of incitement by violence and distortion of truth by the Communists and their sympathizers. Again a helping [illegible] came from the Supreme [illegible] that had "opened the way to [illegible] gro freedom," as the Comm[illegible] Party observed, and from [illegible] misled NAACP.

Mrs. Daisy Bates, presiden[illegible] the Arkansas Conference [illegible] NAACP branches, had a key [illegible] at Little Rock.

MRS. BATES LAUDED

In an adulatory interview [illegible] Mrs. Bates, the New York P[illegible] reporter Ted Poston stated, "[illegible] sides in this embattled Sou[illegible] town agreed on one thing: "If there had been no Daisy B[illegible] there would have been no [illegible] Airborne Division patrolling [illegible] halls of Central High School.

"And no nine Negro childre[illegible] the once all-white high school."

Mrs. Bates' husband, Luci[illegible] Bates, is a director of the Southern Conference Educational F[illegible] which former Communists [illegible] indicted as a "Communist tr[illegible] mission" agency, for inculcating and carrying out Communist doctrine.

The Southern Conference Educational Fund took over many [illegible] the officers and all of the publications of the old Southern Conference for Human Welfare, twice listed as a Communist front, "doing the work of the Communist Party," by the U. S. government.

Mrs. Bates is listed as a "sponsor" of the Southern Conference Educational Fund.

ANOTHER WOMAN INFLUENTIAL

Mrs. Bates was a member of the organization known as Negroes for Wallace, a Communist rallying-point. He was a sponsor of the Bill of Rights Congress, a Communist Party front.

Also influential at Little Rock was Mrs. Grace Lorch, white woman who "befriended" one of the Negro students refused admission to Central High.

Widely-published press dispatches described Mrs. Lorch as a white housewife who protected a Negro girl before a jeering mob," and as "having defied an angry crowd of whites offer sympathy."

It was not reported, however, that Mrs. Lorch, according to Senate Internal Security Subcommittee records, has a thorough Communist Party background.

She has been identified as a former-time Communist Party organizer in Boston, as having attended a Communist Party convention, as a member of the New England District of the Communist Party, as former vice president of the Teachers Union, and as a director of the Samuel Adams School for Social Studies, both Communist fronts.

At the time Mrs. Lorch was active in Little Rock, her husband, Lee Lorch, was under federal indictment on eight counts of refusing to answer questions on his alleged Communist background put to him by the House Un-American Activities Committee.

Here, too, the Supreme Court rendered an assist. The charges against Lorch later were dismissed by a federal judge on the basis of the Supreme Court's freeing of John T Watkins, United Auto Workers official who refushed to name Communists he knew while he was one himself.

Little Rock found the U. S. Supreme Court, the NAACP and the Communist Party teammates.

It was a dazzling demonstration of what can happen, to quote former Communist Joseph Kornfelder, when "the ivory tower boys picked up the theories of the Communists, not looking at what is behind the theories."

South Called Reds' Target In Dixie Segregation Fight

(This is the fifth and last of a series of articles prepared by the Standard-Times, New Bedford, Mass., on Communist activities in connection with the integration campaign in the South.)

WASHINGTON — What lies ahead for race relations in the South and, indirectly, for the nation? If the pattern of the last three years is followed in the future, the outlook is not favorable. Some may want to ignore the record, but they cannot hide it. Racial disturbances since the Supreme Court decision of 1954, armed force at Little Rock, have made two areas of opinion where there were three.

The middle-ground on Southern civil rights issues, the ground on which progress has been steady if slow, is virtually deserted. Sides have been chosen, of necessity.

TWO EXTREMIST CAMPS

Without this conciliatory middle area, there are two extremist camps:

One is headed by the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People. The Communist Party officially has planted its standard in this camp, its purpose to promote racial tension behind the NAACP program.

The other camp includes various white citizen organizations, established authorities of many Southern municipalities and states and, as time passes, more and more of the "moderates."

The no man's land between these two camps is widened in an election year, like the present, and with the 1960 presidential campaign drawing closer. Neither major political party, nor, apparently, the federal government, wishes to intervene.

A HANDS-OFF ATTITUDE

The hands-off attitude in Washington was evident during Senate Judiciary Committee examination of incoming U. S. Attorney General William P. Rogers. The prospective head of the federal agency that sent troops to Little Rock was not asked about his views on civil rights, not even by southern senators.

Absence of leadership from Washington has increased the importance of the role played by the NAACP. Its leaders apparently plan no change in policy.

Reviewing events through Little Rock, Dr. Channing Tobias, board chairman of the NAACP, declared:

"But this record of advance is only a beginning. Unjust practices are still commonplace in many parts of the nation. The people have a continuing responsibility to take the lead, to assure the winning of equality in all communities, large and small, North and South.

"The pattern is set; it's up to us to fill in the details of the picture. Only then will we have achieved our goal of a democratic America living up to its ideals."

These words from an influential Negro leader describe an objective which the majority of Americans would be happy to work toward.

But there is little reason to suppose that the good intentions of the NAACP will not capitulate, as they have before, to the driving, inflammatory race-tension strategy of the Communist Party.

After the 1954 court decision, the leadership of the NAACP promised moderation, a "quiet" "talking over" of issues among all segments.

EXACTLY AS FORECAST

Instead what transpired was a series of "big, sharp struggles" in civil disobedience and violence, exactly as forecast by Benjamin J. Davis, chairman of the Negro Commission of the Communist Party.

Today, Davis and his coworker, James E. Jackson, Communist chief for southern affairs, are using phraseology much like Dr. Tobias' in predicting the future.

"The people must take the lead," says Davis. "Negro liberation is now the property of the whole American people."

Jackson's view: "The response to Little Rock has signalized that ours is the time ripe with opportunity to secure major victories in the cause of Negro freedom."

These words have a ring like Dr. Tobias', but an utterly different intent.

AIMS NEFARIOUS

"You are aware, of course," FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover commented for The Standard-Times, "the Communists have no sincere interest in promoting racial harmony, but are ever alert to exploit any issue to further their nefarious aims."

This observation may be obvious to many Americans.

But is it obvious to Dr. Tobias, who has been associated with 40 Communist fronts, board chairman of NAACP, or to W. E. B. DuBois, "honorary chairman" of NAACP, who has been identified with 82 Communist fronts, more than any other American citizen?

Apparently it is not.

As recently as March 1958, the NAACP leadership brought a court action in Florida seeking to halt an investigation by the Florida Legislature of Communist activity in that state.

Besides the NAACP, leadership in the integrationist camp will come from the Rev. Martin Luther King, leader of the Montgomery, Ala., bus boycott. Mr. King also seems hazy in distinguishing between the Communist way and the American way.

A COMMUNIST EXPLANATION

At its 1957 national convention, the U. S. Communist Party selected a man identified by the Communist Daily Worker as Mr. Rustin, to be an official "observer." Rustin praised the "democatic" proceedings of the convention in a report later denounced by FBI Director Hoover.

Mr. King was quoted as telling a Chicago assembly last year, "It (the Montgomery boycott, in which there was much violence) is a part of something that is happening all over the world. The oppressed people are rising up. They are revolting against colonialism and imperialism and all other systems of oppression."

This explanation is exactly that of the Communist Party, the depiction of the American Negro as a kicked-around colonial, oppressed by imperialists.

Yet the same Rev. Martin Luther King was one of four Negro "leaders" who called upon President Eisenhower in June 1958 to try and set the pattern for racial progress.

A LOOK TO FUTURE

A former Negro Communist official, who later worked for the U. S. Department of Justice, sees the future in these words:

"In my opinion, the Negro leadership should realize that they have responsibility," a Lousiana legislative committee was told by Manning Johnson, "a responsibility to guide and spirit their people along the right paths, help to pull themselves up by their own bootstraps, and to work together as a group for cooperation between races, to the end result that they can keep what they have, strengthen their economic and political position and move on to higher things.

"Men of King's type will not give that kind of leadership. The only thing they know is the threat and a sword.

"I know the NAACP can't do that. They have called the leaders of Southern life every conceivable type of name. They have labeled them everything they can, and there is no basis for them to negotiate with them because they have already built up a wall that cannot be gotten over, gotten under, or gone around."

Former Communist Johnson's judgment may be harsh. But the future will make him an accurate prophet unless there is wider understanding of the Communist background to "immediate" integration, to be accomplished by "force" if necessary.

In a little-publicized report of last November, the U. S. Senate Internal Security Subcommittee declared: "There is a present-day pattern of Communist activity in the mid-South area. The Communist participants . . . make up the basic framework of a Communist operation that is directed against all generations of people in the South."

To that could be added, "and in the nation."

BAD POLICIES IN MIDDLE EAST

To the Editor of The Herald:

If the United Nations can get a permanent police force composed of military units from all member countries and then is given authority to use this police force to straighten out the internal affairs of different nations as Henry Cabot Lodge has advocated for so long, everything will be fine, until our chickens come home to roost. I mean that [illegible] any other country. The Communist countries would have a vote in the U.N. on how it is to be used here just like any other country and in some cases they out vote us. The human rights committee in the U.N. has already voted by a large majority that they do not favor one person owning more property than another. As we are tied up in the U.N. through a binding treaty the Communists may vote that all property must be re-distributed among all the American people, so your son might be sent with a Yugoslavia soldier to move you off your property. Of course, it would be done in the name of brotherhood, peace, prosperity and Christianity.

One of the acts of brotherhood the world planners have performed is for 100,000 British troops to patrol Palestine to keep the Arabs from arming and then standing patiently by and allowing a well armed Zionist army to attack the unarmed Arab and driving them in the desert. When the Arabs obtained arms and came back to retake their land and homes the United Nations steps in and says they would settle the matter peaceably, so the U.N. sent Ralph Bunche over and he set a boundary line on what is now known as Israeli. So the U.N. says that all must abide by Bunche's decision. The result is the Zionists invaders are occupying the Arab homes and enjoying the fruits of heir labor while the Arabs are forced to live in the desert that is barren on only two dollars a head, of money furnished by the U.N. You can [illegible] where that money comes from. How would you like for some armed person to drive you off your property and then occupy same? Incidentally most of these Arabs are Moslems and some military experts estimate that they can raise a Moslem army of 300,000,000 people if they can find a country to arm and train them and it looks like Russia is doing it. A Moslem in Egypt is a brother to a Moslem in India.

While Truman's police action was going on in Korea, Anna Rosenburg was Assistant Secretary of Defense. Anna ordered the crosses moved [illegible] symbol of Christ. Truman refused McArthur a hearing when he fired him because Truman was getting military orders from the U.N. to pass on to McArthur and we all know that these orders were deliberately fixed so that McArthur could not win. When McArthur refused to take orders from this Communist in the U.N. then Truman hollered insubordination. It seems that will not be the last time American boys will have to fight under the U.N. flag instead of the U.S. flag. The brotherhood [illegible] cite one case, Bishop [illegible] of the Methodist Church along with Ralph Magill and five Negroes organized the Southern Regional Council. The fire that many of these preachers tell us we are headed for because we don't love our Communist brothers enough may be occupied by these same preachers. When the devil tempted Christ in the wilderness and later on the mountain He never took Mr. Devil by the hand and said you are my dear brother and I love you just as much as I do our Father in Heaven. Isn't it strange how Christ discriminated when some tell us we shouldn't?

The president of the NAACP is not a Negro and I challenge any one to disprove that statement.

The same conspirators that stirred up the race trouble in Little Rock are the same ones responsible for the trouble in Lebanon as well as France.

VIRGINIA JEWRY IN THE SCHOOL CRISIS

Anti-Semitism and Desegregation

MURRAY FRIEDMAN

RICHMOND

A YOUNG Jewish attorney in a small city in central Virginia was discussing school desegregation with a non-Jewish friend. "I hear that the president of the NAACP is Jewish," remarked the latter. Within twenty-four hours almost everyone in the Jewish community had heard the story, and next day a Jewish defense agency was phoned for information. When the Virginians learned that Arthur B. Spingarn of New York, the NAACP's president, was indeed Jewish, there was grim silence at their end of the line. The knowledge that a Northern Jew was head of the leading organization for Negro rights had shaken the security of this Virginia Jewish community.

The incident illustrates the special problem Southern Jews face today, at a time when American Jewry generally is enjoying an unparalleled prosperity, and discrimination against Jews is being steadily reduced. The Southern Jews' problem stems from the possible consequences of the struggle over desegregation, the region's most severe crisis since Reconstruction. Many Virginia Jews feel "caught in the middle," fearful that any action they may take in the public school controversy will lead to an increase in anti-Semitism. For the Old Dominion is currently a major battleground in the Southern effort to nullify the Supreme Court school decisions. "Massive resistance" was first decreed by Senator Harry Byrd's long-entrenched political machine in 1956. A powerful, organized segregationist movement soon sprang up to mobilize that resistance. Now Virginia's laws have collided with the rulings of Federal courts. Nine public schools in Warren County, Charlottesville, and Norfolk have been closed under state legislation which demands shutdowns when Negro children are enrolled. Early this year, Arlington and Alexandria faced similar battles. Although hastily organized private schools and tutorial systems have been seeking to provide a temporary and makeshift education, almost 13,000 youngsters are presently receiving inadequate schooling or none at all.

There has been considerable opposition to school closings in Virginia, especially in Norfolk, but the position of the state authorities has not changed. In a speech to the Virginia Education Association in Richmond on October 30, Governor J. Lindsay Almond, Jr., said: "The question becomes one of surrender or continued exercise of every legal and honorable means at our command to resist. I shall never willingly witness or become a party to the destruction of education by the mixing of the races in the classrooms of Virginia."

THE Virginia Jewish community numbers about 30,000 and is located primarily in Richmond, in the central part of the state, and in the Tidewater cities of Norfolk, Portsmouth, and Newport News. Richmond and Norfolk have 8,000 and 7,500 Jews respectively, while smaller towns such as Charlottesville have less than 100 each.

The first Jewish settler in Richmond, Isaiah Isaacs, arrived there before the Revolutionary War, and served on the original Common Council with John Marshall. Early Jewish settlers soon identified themselves with Virginia ideals and traditions. Lewis L. Strauss, former chairman of the Atomic Energy Commission and now Secretary of Commerce, is a worthy representative of Virginia's older Jewish families, with their tradition of public service and largely conservative attitudes. But their patterns have been modified since the Eastern European migrations, and particularly since World War II, which brought many second-generation Jews of East European descent to Virginia.

In the larger cities, Jews are active in all the businesses and professions; in the smaller ones, they generally own small businesses. In this well-to-do community, Jewish life is vigorous; in almost every town where Jews have settled, a temple, religious school, or community center is either being built or was recently completed. Until now anti-Semitism has scarcely figured as a problem, and Virginia's Jewish leaders regularly take their turns on planning commissions, in city councils, and as members and presidents of civic organizations.

Despite all these manifestations of security, the Virginia Jew is more keenly aware of the special character his Jewishness gives him than is his co-religionist in the North. He is, of course, far more isolated. Jews in New York, Chicago, or Boston live among a host of religious, ethnic, and racial groups, none of which can claim majority status. But the eighty Jewish families of Danville, Virginia, for example, are an obvious minority in an otherwise homogeneous white Protestant society. Their contacts with Christians are cordial, but rarely extend beyond business hours or community-service efforts.*

These factors help shape Virginia Jews' contradictory attitudes on the race question. Most Jews feel a natural sympathy for the aspirations of the Negroes, whom they see as a minority group now journeying down something like the same road they had to travel. But they are unwilling to set themselves off from the dominant white majority, to which they have made such strenuous efforts to belong. So they generally keep their views to themselves—which causes further uneasiness. As Rudolph M. Lowenstein says in Christians and Jews, "as much guilt is felt for unrealized intentions as for deeds actually committed." Because the thoughts they harbor on the race issue differ from those of the majority of their white neighbors, they feel "disloyal" to Southern attitudes and institutions.

Nevertheless, though Virginia Jews accept the idea of desegregation in principle, in practice their viewpoint is not far different from that of the general white population. The Jew frequently owns a grocery, appliance store, dress shop, or other business in the Negro section of town or where the Negro trades. He sees at first hand the poverty, disease, and lower cultural standards that are the lot of the poor Negro. While he understands their causes and acknowledges the responsibility of the white man in creating and perpetuating such conditions, he does not want the sins of the past visited on his own children. As one Norfolk Jewish businessman told me, "When integration comes, you know, our kids won't be going to school with Ralph Bunche's." There is also a small group of Jews who earnestly fear the dangers of "mongrelization" and the encroachments of the Federal government on states rights. But, unlike such states of the Deep South as Mississippi, there is not, to my knowledge, a single Jewish member of the Citizens Councils in Virginia.

The question of desegregation as such, in the minds of Jews, tends to be secondary to the possible effects of race violence on their own place in Southern society. The history of anti-Jewish persecutions tells them that an atmosphere of tension and conflict is not "good for the Jews," and they fear that any Jewish involvement on the side of the Negro—whether by a Jewish Senator from New York, a Jewish defense agency, or one of their own leaders or organizations—will bring reprisals. The degree to which this fear is economic has been exaggerated; one is hard put to it to find a half-dozen Jews in the South (let alone in Virginia) who have been hurt by boycotts resulting from the segregation fight. Rather, Virginia Jews are worried about their community status. Many have spent years working in Community Chest and Red Cross drives and other civic activities because of their natural interest in social improvement and in an effort to show their Christian neighbors that they "belong." If Jews now stand apart from the dominant white group, they fear, they may jeopardize the position and prestige they have worked so hard to secure. Besides, many ask, what good can the Jews do the Negroes? They can only bring hostility down on themselves without, they believe, significantly advancing the Negroes' cause.

VIRGINIA Jewry's new fear of anti-Semitism is legitimate. There have been no bombings in Virginia, but the Old Dominion has become a prime dumping ground for anti-Semitic leaflets, magazines, and pamphlets which pour into the state from the North and West. George Lincoln Rockwell, who has had contacts with two of the men indicted in the Atlanta temple bombing, prints handbills and other literature in his native Arlington for his "National Committee to Free America from Jewish Domination." The theme of this literature, whatever its source, is that desegregation is a Zionist-Communist plot to mongrelize the white race so that the Jews can take over.

Last spring, there was a series of anonymous mailings of racist and anti-Semitic pamphlets and letters to seniors at Washington-Lee and Wakefield High Schools in Arlington.* In recent months, Norfolk and Newport News business and professional people have been receiving hand-written envelopes with Los Angeles postmarks which contain literature published by Frank L. Britton, editor of the rabidly racist American Nationalist. ("The time has obviously come," says one such piece, "for white Americans to take action if this Jew-inspired program for compulsory mongrelization is to be defeated.")

On the eve of the opening—or, rather, the closing—of half a dozen junior and senior high schools in Norfolk last fall, an estimated 15,000 pieces of hate literature were distributed door to door in many sections of the city, including those heavily populated by Jews. There had been earlier distributions of such material in smaller quantities. The literature included copies of Conde McGinley's bitterly anti-Semitic Common Sense, published in Union, N. J.; reprints by the Norfolk Chapter of the Defenders of State Sovereignty and Individual Liberties of an Atlantic Monthly article entitled "Mixed Schools and Mixed Blood"; and copies of a monthly magazine called the Virginian.†

The Virginian began in 1955 as a four-page segregationist newsletter published by two young men in Newport News. It is now an ably written, slickly produced magazine with a format similar to Time. Its message is racial and religious hate, and it attacks organizations like the American Jewish Committee for allegedly leading the "integration conspiracy." Though only 7,000 copies of the Virginian are distributed, its very existence at a time of tension is a source of concern.

The organized segregationist movement in Virginia takes three forms. There is the Commonwealth of Virginia Association of Citizens Councils, consisting of units in the Arlington, Brunswick, Lunenburg, Mecklenburg, Fairfax, and Peninsula areas, which

*See William Korey and Charlotte Lubin, "Arlington—Another Little Rock?" COMMENTARY, September 1958.

†One of the men distributing this material stopped to discuss flowers with a former German Jewish refugee working in her garden. He left some of the literature with her when he moved on. She became ill when she saw it. The material created so much concern among Norfolk Jews that the Jewish Community Council wrote to its members urging calmness and recounting the steps it had taken.

The Fairfax Citizens Council has widely distributed a publication called The Shocking Truth About Northern Virginia's Parent-Teacher Groups. This publication contains an organization chart showing the "interrelationship" of groups labeled "Fairfax County PTA," "Zionists," "B'nai B'rith," "UNESCO," and the "Southern Regional Council," the latter described as a "Communist Front." The Shocking Truth recently turned up at the fall convention of the State Congress of PTA's in Richmond and has been distributed at public meetings of the Richmond Chapter of the Defenders. It was also used in interrogating witnesses by the now defunct Thompson Committee of the Virginia legislature.

Can people like this be sued for libel?

has demonstrated little strength or influence. Another, even smaller, organization is the Seaboard White Citizens Council established by John Kasper in Washington, D.C., and active in Northern Virginia. The handful of fanatics in this group are violently anti-Semitic as well as anti-Negro. In the summer of 1955, Kasper set up a unit in Charlottesville, but its members lost interest when they learned that Kasper had danced with Negro women in New York before he became a racist. However, since the closing last fall of the Lane High School and Venable Elementary School in Charlottesville, this group—or at least its leader, George Cason—has begun to stir. (On October 14, Kasper himself said he planned no activity in Virginia: "I believe that, now that the state government and the Governor have taken such an admirable position in defending the people, we truly have no business coming into Virginia.")

The most important of the organized segregationist groups is the Defenders of State Sovereignty and Individual Liberties. Founded in 1954, it claims some 12,000 members. Unlike the Citizens Councils and Kasper's group, the Defenders have attracted to their ranks prominent business and political leaders—among them Congressman William M. Tuck, a former Governor sometimes mentioned as Byrd's successor, and Congressman Watkins M. Abbitt, a Byrd lieutenant. Virginia Jews are uncomfortably aware that many of their co-workers in local civic undertakings are members of the Defenders.

With the growing school crisis, an increasing preoccupation with Jews and Jewish organizations became discernible among the Defenders. The February-March 1958 issue of their official organ, Defenders' News and Views, carried a picture of Thurgood Marshall, NAACP special counsel, receiving a plaque from Kivie Kaplan of Boston, described as co-chairman of the NAACP's Life Membership Committee, and Arthur Spingarn, NAACP president. The caption went on to note, "THE NAACP IS NOT A NEGRO ORGANIZATION and never has been." In more recent issues, the publication has urged its readers to obtain copies of "Our Nordic Race," a pamphlet written by a former field representative of the Defenders in Richmond. The pamphlet's theme is Anglo-Saxon "racial purity," and it concludes with a discussion of the "agitation Jews" who, "in close cooperation with a group of Nordic Race Traitors, are almost wholly responsible for the destructive 'one race, one creed, one color' Marxist campaign that has brought strife and disunity to our country and to the rest of Western civilization."

In spite of these indications of religious bigotry, it would be incorrect to characterize the Defenders as an anti-Semitic movement.* Actually, it is a loosely structured organization composed of diverse people joined together in the common purpose of seeking to maintain segregation. There is no reason to believe, for example, that Congressman Tuck, who has manifested his friendship for Jews by his support of Israel, has ever read Our Nordic Race or even knows of its existence.

LAST July 7, an editorial appeared in the Richmond News Leader entitled "Anti-Semitism in the South." The South, said the editorial, has honored such outstanding Jews as Bernard Baruch, Admiral Strauss, and, in Civil War days, Judah P. Benjamin. Recent manifestations of anti-Semitism, it went on, must be traced to the activities of the Anti-Defamation League. "By deliberately involving itself in the controversy over school segregation, this branch of B'nai B'rith is identifying all Jewry with the advocacy of compulsory integration." It cited the distribution of "pro-integration materials" by the League's Richmond office to a Charlottesville NAACP workshop as evidence to "embattled whites" of activity that has nothing to do with defamation of Jews. "Such inquiries, once bruited about," the editorial went on, "will be seized upon by the ADL as evidence of anti-Semitic feeling. And having thus stirred up defamation of the Jews, ADL can lustily combat defamation of the Jews. 'Look how much anti-Semitism there is!' " The editorial concluded with an invitation to Jews in the South to get rid of "an organization that foments hostility to Jews."

The News Leader is a highly respected newspaper, and its editorial was promptly reprinted elsewhere in the South. Its editor, thirty-eight-year-old James Jack Kilpatrick, is one of the most outspoken and influential segregationist spokesmen. It was he, in a previous series of editorials, who revived the old constitutional doctrine of "interposition" —that a state can block the application to its citizens of Federal laws and court decisions —and sold it to seven state legislatures and, apparently, Governor Orval Faubus of Arkansas.

Kilpatrick's editorial on "anti-Semitism" set off worried phone calls, hurried meetings, and other manifestations of alarm among Richmond Jews. Two views emerged from the Jewish discussions of the editorial. Some agreed with it, and said that Jewish organizations should not involve themselves in the integration struggle. Others read the editorial as a veiled threat of blackmail: if Southern Jews did not silence Jewish agencies working in the field of human relations, "embattled" segregationists would strike back at them. (Many Jews also wondered why Kilpatrick, a Roman Catholic, had not held the specter of anti-Catholicism over the heads of his co-religionists, whose parochial schools are integrated throughout the state.)

The theme first stated publicly by the News Leader was quickly picked up by the Arlington Defenders, the most extreme of the Defender chapters, who chose as their target Rabbi Emmet A. Frank of Alexandria, a suburb of Washington. In a Yom Kippur sermon from the pulpit of one-hundred-year-old Beth El Congregation, Rabbi Frank had charged that Senator Byrd and Governors Faubus and Almond had wrought more disunity in the nation in the last few years than U.S. Communists ever had. The Rabbi, sharply critical of Virginia's "massive resistance" laws, had urged Jews not to remain silent to injustice against anyone. There is only one word, he said, to describe the "madness" of segregationists: "Godlessness, or to coin a new synonym—Byrdliness. . . ." The Arlington Defenders demanded that the Jewish community of Northern Virginia openly condemn Rabbi Frank's "slanderous statements and innuendoes." His remarks, they said, "will cause irreparable damage to the hitherto friendly relations between Jews and Christians unless Jewish congregations . . . move quickly to refute and condemn Rabbi Frank. . . ." A number of newspapers joined their attack on Rabbi Frank. Soon afterward, the Unitarian Church in Arlington had to be emptied as a result of a bomb scare just before Rabbi Frank was to occupy the pulpit.

Northern Virginia Jews remained relatively unmoved; they are mostly Federal government employees of Northern origin and, as such, less susceptible to the pressures that trouble Jews in other parts of the state. Elsewhere, there was considerable anxiety. One Jewish group briefly considered—and rejected—a move to have the organization apologize to Senator Byrd. A number of Jews did write to him, declaring that the Rabbi did not speak for them.

THE Kilpatrick and Frank incidents have helped to focus public attention upon the Jewish community. Many white Christians are beginning to look more closely at Jewish neighbors whom they had taken for granted. A Jewish community recently debated whether former Senator Herbert Lehman should be invited to take part in a purely communal affair, since he has been a forthright advocate of civil rights legislation. A Jewish businessman was recently invited to lunch by his dentist, who wanted to know "what the Jews think" about integration, and whether they are the real force "behind" the Negroes. Another Jewish businessman wondered if he should accept a public post if it involved having his picture in the newspaper.

Virginia Jews have joined other Southern Jews in demanding that national Jewish organizations discontinue making public statements on the race issue or the problems growing out of this question. Recently, a national Jewish agency called a meeting of Virginia Jewish leaders to ask whether it should file a friend-of-the-court brief in the case of a Northern Virginia printer, a Quaker named David Scull, who had refused to answer questions put to him by a legislative committee because he believed its purpose was to harass pro-integration organizations. The local leaders succeeded in blocking such action, even though most of them recognized the civil liberties issues involved in the case. They argued that Scull was adequately represented by counsel and that intervention by a Jewish agency was therefore unnecessary and might be harmful to Virginia Jews.

In the face of pressures both outside and within the Jewish community, most of the outspoken Jewish integrationists in the South have, since 1954, retreated into positions of silence. In this respect the Jew is no different from the white Protestant liberal or moderate in Virginia—though he has more cause for inaction. Nevertheless, Jews in Virginia do not live in anything resembling a state of terror. Life, in fact, goes on very much the same for most Virginians. Nor have all Jews surrendered to their fears. A number have been active in Norfolk and Charlottesville pressing for the opening of public schools. Rabbi Malcom Stern of Norfolk publicly urged a city referendum on public school closings last spring, while Rabbi Frank continues to air his opposition to massive resistance. Other rabbis are working through ministerial associations and other groups in efforts to head off violence and mediate the racial struggle.

Nor is there evidence of any appreciable rise in anti-Semitism, as distinct from anti-Semitic activity. Recent temple bombings in other parts of the South have horrified Virginians. Early in November, Governor Almond told Milton Friedman, Washington correspondent of the Jewish Telegraphic Agency, that elements seeking to promote violence and anti-Semitism "are not friends of the South" and were hurting the states rights cause. A Virginia Congressman mailed a check for $50.00 to a prominent Jew in his community to help pay for the restoration of the "Jewish church" in Atlanta.

But Jews in Virginia remain worried nonetheless. And neither their own silence on the race issue, nor the silence of national Jewish organizations, can end that worry. When a society is experiencing crisis, pressures on its Jews usually increase. Virginia Jews can expect peace only when Virginia finds peace—that is to say, when leaders of the Old Dominion recognize the futility of "massive resistance" and begin to adjust their state's practices to the law of the land.

The South Is Due an Apology

EVERY RESIDENT of the eleven Southern states from Virginia to Texas is due a personal apology from three organizations which united to publish a slanderous and prejudicial document purporting to show that there has been a general breakdown of law and order in the South in the past four years.

The 30-page booklet, entitled "Intimidation, Reprisal and Violence in the South's Racial Crisis" was published jointly by (1) Southeastern Office, American Friends Service Committee of High Point, N.C.; (2) Department of Racial and Cultural Relations, National Council of Churches of Christ in the United States of America, of New York City; and (3) the Southern Regional Council in Atlanta.

The purpose of the tract, obviously, was to amass a box score of real or alleged "incidents" from newspaper clippings, and to present the total listing largely out of context without benefit of any statistical comparisons on which it could be properly judged or evaluated, in an effort to prove that the South is fairly wallowing in race riots and anarchy.

FROM THE RESULTING conglomeration came a "news release" announcing widespread "erosion of individual liberties" in the eleven Southern states involved, attested to by a list of 530 specific cases of "violence, reprisal and intimidation" in the four-year period. The story made page 1 of New York papers last Monday. Editorials of condemnation followed. Declared the South-hating Washington Post & Times Herald: " . . . there is little hope for the South to shake off this trend toward violent eruptions until its own basic thinking about adherence to the law as defined by the courts is straightened out."

Thus, the three groups responsible for the publication have, for reasons best known to themselves, contrived through a misleading document to fan the fires of sectional animosity.

LET'S TAKE A LOOK at the report itself, which covers the period from Jan. 1, 1955 to Jan. 1, 1959, during which 530 specific cases of violence, intimidation or reprisal were cited. How many cases occurred in the four years from 1951 to 1955? This is not listed, but if twice as many occurred, it could be said that conditions in the eleven states are improving. More important, what would the box score show for the same period in eleven Eastern or Midwestern states, of any eleven chosen at random with the highest Negro-white ratios of population, if a similar count were made? Would the South show more cases—or would it show less?

Since no attempt was made to give such a comparison, the motive of the joint endeavor may be taken for granted—namely, to hold the South up to scorn and contempt.

DOES A TOTAL of 530 "incidents" in eleven states over a four-year period show a general breakdown of law and order? This would average out to about a dozen incidents per state per year.

Last year a congressional committee investigated more than 800 specific incidents of violence (not including intimidations and reprisals) during the same period of time in one labor dispute in Kohler, Wis. And this was by Walter Reuther's union—we don't even have to get into the statistics from the real bad boys such as Jimmy Hoffa. Does this indicate a widespread erosion of individual liberties in Wisconsin? And if so, why was this not included in the report?

On race incidents, what about Cicero, Ill., or Levittown, Pa., or Dearborn, Mich.? What about New York, Washington, Baltimore, Philadelphia and Chicago? The box score, had one been kept, of similar incidents, would have shown a greater number in New York or Chicago during the four-year period than the 530 total for eleven Southern states!

IN FACT, when we consider that the Southern states have the highest proportion of Negro population to white, we'll bet our last dollar that an honest survey would prove race relations in the South to be better and more amicable than any other area of the country where there is an appreciable Negro population.

The organizations responsible for this report have done an irresponsible thing that will not help the cause of better race relations in the South or elsewhere. Their report, itself, admits "this is not a comprehensive survey . . . It describes only their angry, violent side." We ask them—Why? We think the South is due an explanation.

Hold On, Senator

SEN. PAUL DOUGLAS of Illinois has leveled a broadside against retired military officers who accept positions with industry. He said that when firms seeking defense contracts "hire former officers of high rank to negotiate with their former fellow officers—some of whom they have promoted—the potential and actual abuses are magnified."

But before we look at them, it will be useful to understand, if we can, the historical situation in which the issues have been posed.

Since the war which ended 15 years ago Franco-American relations have been based on a premise which was never openly avowed but has always been assumed both in Paris and in Washington. The premise has been that France, though it is counted among the victors, was in fact defeated, and that her colonial empire is in the process of dissolution, and that she is no longer a first class power. The chronic instability of the post-war governments in France, the budgetary and monetary disorders, supported this view.

LIPPMANN

Our government acquired a habit of not consulting France regularly and genuinely, and indeed of treating her with less intimacy and confidence not only than Great Britain but even West Germany. On two recent occasions which might have led to a war involving France—the landing in Lebanon and the affair at Quemoy—there was no full consultation with Paris.

THE ADVENT to power of Gen. de Gaulle was bound to mean, as it has meant, that France would not accept the lower position which she has occupied. She has been regarded not only as not so great a power as Russia and the United States, but not even as being in the second rank with Great Britain or even with Adenauer's Germany.

We must never forget that Gen. de Gaulle, to his everlasting honor, is the Frenchman who never surrendered and who never accepted defeat, and it is a kind of historic justice that he should be the man who now insists that France must not be treated as a defeated and inferior power.

In this context we may look at the issues. They were raised diplomatically last summer and then in a note addressed to President Eisenhower and Prime Minister Macmillan on Sept. 24, 1958. This note has never been published. But it is said to set up three French objectives.

UNFOUNDED ATTACK UPON GOOD NAME OF PEOPLE OF THE SOUTH

Mr. JOHNSON of Texas. Mr. President, I yield to the Senator from Georgia.

Mr. TALMADGE. Mr. President, last week three organizations dedicated to racial agitation resorted to an irresponsible, unfounded, and slanderous attack upon the good name of the people of the South. The American Friends Service Committee of High Point, N.C., the National Council of Churches of Christ in the United States of America of New York City, and the Southern Regional Council of Atlanta, Ga., joined in publishing a 30-page booklet entitled "Intimidation, Reprisal and Violence in the South's Racial Crisis," in which they sought by innuendo, distortion, association, and half-truth to conclude from a series of 530 unrelated so-called incidents spread over a 4-year period that law, order, and harmonious race relations no longer exist in the 11 States of the South.

RECEIVED JUN 29 1959 6/23/59

This studied effort to indict a whole region of our Nation is wholly one-sided and makes no pretense at comparison with other periods or regions, nor does it attempt in any way to report on the manner in which these so-called incidents have been dealt with under due process of law in the States and localities where they occurred. The hypocrisy which motivated so biased and inflammatory a publication is unspeakable and deserves the condemnation of all fairminded Americans, regardless of their place of residence.

Two of Georgia's outstanding newspapers—the Savannah Morning News and the Augusta Herald—have replied editorially to this attack with the indignation which it warrants. The Herald's editorial appeared in its issue of June 17, 1959, and was entitled "Unqualified Report on Crime in South Slanders Entire Southern Population." The Morning News' editorial appeared in its issue of June 22, 1959, and is entitled "The South Is Due an Apology." Mr. President, I endorse every word of these two editorials, and ask unanimous consent that they be printed herewith in the body of the RECORD.

There being no objection, the editorials were ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

[From the August Herald, June 17, 1959]

UNQUALIFIED REPORT ON CRIME IN SOUTH SLANDERS ENTIRE SOUTHERN POPULATION

Three all-seeing agenices have pointed sneeringly at the South as a hotbed of racial violence, reprisal and intimidation since the U.S. Supreme Court handed down its school integration decision in 1954.

The reports of these groups—the American Friends Service Committee, High Point, N.C.; the Department of Racial and Cultural Relations of the National Council of Churches of Christ, New York; and the Southern Regional Council, Atlanta—are a barefaced slander upon the South, not for what they told, but for what they did not tell.

Basing their study upon newspaper reports of crimes in the South from January 1, 1954, to January 1, 1959, they reported 530 killings, beatings, bombings and mob actions in the South as indications of widespread erosion of individual liberties.

These agencies, supposedly working for the betterment of race relations, have not taken the trouble to assess this average against the national figure for similar crimes.

They have not sought to determine, through the northern press, the number of racially motivated crimes in the North during the same period. In this they may, to a degree, be pardoned, since the northern press does not have the honesty to call a Negro a Negro or a race incident a race incident.

Instead, they have ferreted out a few instances of anti-Jewish acts in the South and magnified them by implication into a marked outbreak of anti-Semitism, without any reference to the same ugly cancer that gnaws perpetually at the vitals of the North.

Instead, they have sought to tie this average to 132 cases of race violence a year squarely to the Supreme Court decision, suggesting in the most cowardly manner possible that legislative and executive policies of evading and defying Federal court decisions may have set an example whose contagion is uncontrollable.

May we suggest that, conversely, these things may not have set any such example—that no part of this country can enter the arena of argument over racial discrimination with clean hands—and that what has happened in the South is but one part of what was happening long before the Court's decision, throughout the United States.

These reports are, we contend, examples of the most despicable sort of distortion. They are loaded statistics taken out of the national context and fed to a northern readership whose enormous gullibility is expected to give them currency.

This newspaper and its morning contemporary, the press of the South generally, and by far the vast majority of its population, abhor race violence in any form. They have said so in the past, and will do so in the future.

But they also abhor cowards. Cowards who, for lack of any better argument, resort to slander, half-truths and distortions of fact simply to vilify one-fourth of a nation and make plaster saints out of the other three-fourths.

[From the Savannah Morning News, Monday, June 22, 1959]

THE SOUTH IS DUE AN APOLOGY

Every resident of the 11 Southern States from Virginia to Texas is due a personal apology from three organizations which united to publish a slanderous and prejudicial document purporting to show that there has been a general breakdown of law and order in the South in the past 4 years.

The 30-page booklet, entitled "Intimidation, Reprisal and Violence in the South's Racial Crisis" was published jointly by (1) Southeastern Office, American Friends Service Committee of High Point, N.C.; (2) Department of Racial and Cultural Relations, National Council of Churches of Christ in the United States of America, of New York City; and (3) the Southern Regional Council in Atlanta.

The purpose of the tract, obviously, was to amass a box score of real or alleged incidents from newspaper clippings, and to present the total listing largely out of context without benefit of any statistical comparisons on which it could be properly judged or evaluated, in an effort to prove that the South is fairly wallowing in race riots and anarchy.

From the resulting conglomeration came a news release announcing widespread erosion of individual liberties in the 11 Southern States involved, attested to by a list of 530 specific cases of violence, reprisal, and intimidation in the 4-year period. The story made page 1 of New York papers last Monday. Editorials of condemnation followed. Declared the South-hating Washington Post and Times Herald: "There is little hope for the South to shake off this trend toward violent eruptions until its own basic thinking about adherence to the law as defined by the courts is straightened out."

Thus, the three groups responsible for the publication have, for reasons best known to themselves, contrived through a misleading document to fan fires of sectional animosity.

Let's take a look at the report itself, which covers the period from January 1, 1955, to January 1, 1959, during which 530 specific cases of violence, intimidation, or reprisal were cited. How many cases occurred in the 4 years from 1951 to 1955? This is not listed, but if twice as many occurred, it could be said that conditions in the 11 States are improving. More important, what would the box score show for the same period in 11 Eastern or Midwestern States, or any 11 chosen at random with the highest Negro-white ratios of population, if a similar count were made? Would the South show more cases—or would it show less?

Since no attempt was made to give such a comparison, the motive of the joint endeavor may be taken for granted—namely, to hold the South up to scorn and contempt.

Does a total of 530 incidents in 11 States over a 4-year period show a general breakdown of law and order? This would average out to about a dozen incidents per State per year.

Last year a congressional committee investigated more than 800 specific incidents of violence (not including intimidations and reprisals) during the same period of time in one labor dispute in Kohler, Wis. And this was by Walter Reuther's union—we don't even have to get into the statistics from the real bad boys such as Jimmy Hoffa. Does this indicate a widespread erosion of individual liberties in Wisconsin? And if so, why was this not included in the report?

On race incidents, what about Cicero, Ill., or Levittown, Pa., or Dearborn, Mich.? What about New York, Washington, Baltimore, Philadelphia, and Chicago? The box score, had one been kept, of similar incidents, would have shown a greater number in New York or Chicago during the 4-year period than the 530 total for 11 Southern States.

In fact, when we consider that the Southern States have the highest proportion of Negro population to white, we'll bet our last dollar that an honest survey would prove race relations in the South to be better and more amicable than any other area of the country where there is an appreciable Negro population.

The organizations responsible for this report have done an irresponsible thing that will not help the cause of better race relations in the South or elsewhere. Their report, itself, admits "this is not a comprehensive survey. * * * It describes only their angry, violent side." We ask them—Why? We think the South is due an explanation.

WINTER ON THE SEAWAY—LETTER

Mr. LANGER. Mr. President, I have just received a letter from the Honorable Lester P. Barlow, who is a very excellent engineer, inventor and one of the leading experts on explosives in the United States.

He writes me and states that he wrote a letter to Business Week some time ago after they had published a story about the Great Lakes and the St. Lawrence Seaway not being available for commercial shipping during the 5 months of winter. He noted that he was "kidding" Business Week about backing the "birds" to go to the moon to plant tomatoes, but forgetting that some of the brains should give attention to keeping our inland waterways open the year around.

Mr. President, on several occasions I have inserted remarks into the RECORD relating to the importance of the opening of the St. Lawrence Seaway and the impact that it will have on shipping in the Great Lakes area and land transportation west from the Great Lakes into Minnesota, the Dakotas, and points west. I have also brought to the attention of Congress a bill cosponsored by the Senators in the North Central States, asking the Office of Defense Mobilization to make a survey of transportation and industry in the areas contiguous to

TROTSKYITES BEHIND LUNCH COUNTER DEMONSTRATIONS

CORE Picketing Woolworth Five and Dime Store

The current sit down strikes and demonstrations being held throughout the South is no mere coincidence, but was planned by the Reds to influence "Civil Rights" legislation and to furnish the Kremlin with propaganda, thus aiding Russia in her cold war against the United States.

It is also no mere coincidence that Martin Luther King was picked to lead these demonstrations. When King attended Morehouse (negro) College he came under the influence and direction of Benjamin Mays, President of Morehouse. Mays saw potentialities in King, as he showed a radical tendency and was given special treatment and instructions to mold him into a rabble-rouser. King could not have had a more qualified teacher than Mays. His activities include Board of Directors, NAACP and he is connected with a number of Communist fronts and subversive organizations listed by the Attorney General. (Subversive organizations in bold type).

American Committee for Protection of Foreign Born; Civil Rights Congress; National Federation for Constitutional Liberties; United Negro and Allied Veterans of America. 23 Communist front citations.

Rev. Martin L. King, Jr., mugged and finger printed by Montgomery Alabama police

While studying at Crozier Theological Seminary, King came under the influence of Mordecai Johnson, President of Howard (negro) University, who interested King in the Mohandas K. Gandhi, passive resistance (a smoke screen to hide their real intent). Johnson has a record of Communist affiliations and Communist front citations.

National Federation for Constitutional Liberties; Southern Negro Youth Congress. 14 Communist front citations.

In 1956, King led the Montgomery, Alabama bus strike with Bayard Ruskin, negro, identified by The Daily Worker as King's secretary. Ruskin was arrested in San Diego, Calif., in 1953. He was charged with the violation of penal code section 288, a lewd vagrancy (homosexuality). Ruskin was sentenced to 60 days in jail when he pleaded guilty.

Ruskin serves on the Advisory Board of 'Congress' of Racial Equality (CORE); He served as a missionary for the American Friends Service Committee, a left-wing organization; College secretary of the Fellowship of Reconciliation, a Communist front; Served as secretary of the War Resisters League, whose slogan is "to unite men and women who have determined to give no support to any war, irrespective of the reason." The Daily Worker lists Bayard Ruskin as one who attended the 1957 convention of the Communist Party, U.S.A.

In 1957 King attended Highlander Folk School at Monteagle, Tennessee, known as a Communist training school. King attended all its workshops and addressed the assembly.

In 1958, King's name appeared in Fellowship, the official publication of the Fellowship of Reconciliation, he serves on the Advisory Board.

These "four horsemen" of racial agitation have brought tension, disturbance, strife and violence in their advancement of the Communist doctrine of "racial nationalism".

The Nashville Tennesseean, one of the South's leading newspapers on Oct. 15th, 1939, after a thorough investigation declared: "It is a center, if not the center for the spreading of Communist doctrine in 13 Southeastern States."

Picture above taken at Highlander Folk School Seminar

The largest left-wing pacifist group in the United States is the Fellwoship of Reconciliation. For years, A. J. Muste was the executive secretary of this organization.

In 1933, Muste deserted both the Church and pacifism for Trotskyist Communism.

The Fellowship of Reconciliation claims to have been the parent of many left-wing organizations which have worked to further the interests of the Communist conspiracy in the United States. In its official history, the Fellowship has the following to say about itself: "Out of its activities and the concerns of its members and committees have grown such diverse organizations as the National Conference of Christians and Jews, the American Civil Liberties Union, the Religion and Labor Foundation, the Workers Defense League, the Committee on Militarism in Education, the Congress of Racial Equality the National Council Against Conscription, the Society for Social Responsibility in Science, the Church Peace Mission, and most recently, the American Committee on Africa."

The Fellowship of Reconciliation is officially on record as urging its members to join "political movements which aim at the replacement of private capitalism by a system of collective ownership." This broad category is enough to include the Communist movement as well as the Socialist.

The current and official appartus of the Fellowship was well represented in the composition of the Cleveland Conference of the Red National Council of Churches. From the early years of the Federal Council of Churches, its personnel was extensively interlocked with that of the Fellowship of Reconciliation.

King was also made a member of the Advisory Board of the Congress of Racial Equality.

Fellowship of Reconciliation is the parent of Congress of Racial Equality. Some of its officers serve both CORE and Fellowship. According to their pamphlet, This Is CORE: "The Sit-In technique being used can be justifiably called the CORE technique because CORE was a pioneer in this method." (according to our files, this statement is true. They have been agitating and stirring up trouble for a number of years). Their aim, the pamphlet states, to integrate not only in hotels, but in swimming pools, barber shops, restaurants, and all other places of public accommodations. The pamphlet further states: "A Sit-In is CORE's oldest and most widely used technique. The CORE group, often divided into three units - one negro, one White, and one inter-racial - demonstrates at an eating place shortly before the busiest hour, sits down and waits to be served.

In its official publication, Core-Lator suggested reading: Martin L. King's book Stride Toward Freedom, subtly written to inflame negroes. Core-Lator is edited by the atheist Jim Peck. Peck was the editor of the Communist front Workers Defense League's News Service, he is a columnist for the left-wing Independent; a contributor to Liberation another left-wing publication and author of We Who Would Not Kill.

HAROLD J. GIBBONS

Harold J. Gibbons, special assistant to President James R. Hoffa, of the Teamsters Union, was responsible for bringing CORE to St. Louis and kept it alive by giving it large donations. As Gibbons goes, so goes CORE.

Up until 1956, their average income was a little over $5,000.00. Contributions were $5,000.00 in 1956, and listing no income for membership dues. In 1958, CORE lists contributions at $22,935.82 membership dues $90.98 with sale of literature total income $24,705.26. That same year Harold Gibbons was elected (?) to Vice President of the Teamsters, [illegible] large boost in salary. In 1959 CORE lists contributions at $64,925.57, total income $62,250.01, and the same year Gibbons was made special assistant to James R. Hoffa President of the Teamsters Union, with an increase in salary. How much of this is Teamsters money? As Gibbons goes, so goes CORE!

In April, 1959, King was one of the original signers of the call for a Student March on Washington, which was largely sponsored and directed by the Reds. (March exposed in the March, April issues of The White Sentinel, 1959).

King is also a singer and sponsor of a petition to the President to end Atomic Bomb Testing, one of the newer ideas of the Reds to weaken the United States.

In testimony given by Dr. J. B. Matthews, before the Florida Legislation Investigation Committee, 1958, Dr. Matthews testified: "It is of great significance that King is in close touch with such Communists and pro Communists as were assembled at the Highlander Folk School seminar. Leading Communists have been writing enthusiastically about King's Movement."

To quote from James P. Cannon's book, The First Ten Years of American Communism. (A word about the author, James P. Cannon writes with authority. He is a Communist deep within the Communism movement).

"The main discussion on the Negro question took place in Moscow, and the new approach to the problem was elaborated there. As early as the Second Congress of the Comintern in 1920, 'The Negroes in America' was a point on the agenda, and a preliminary discussion of the question took place. Historical research will prove conclusively that CP policy on the Negro question got its initial impulse from Moscow.

"Everything new and progressive on the Negro question came from Moscow, after the revolution of 1917, and as a result of the revolution - not only for the American communist who responded directly, but for all others concerned with the question.

"The Reverend Martin Luther King did remark, at the time of the Montgomery boycott battle, that their movement was part of the world-wide struggle of the colored peoples for independence and equality. He should have added that the colonial revolutions, which are indeed a powerful ally of the Negro movement in America, got their starting impulse from the Russian Revolution - and are stimulated and strengthened from day to day by the continuing existence of this revolution in the shape of the Soviet Union and the new China."

As of today, the Communist press throughout the nation is devoting much space to the counter demonstrations by CORE and the NAACP, led by King, plotted and timed by the Reds. These manufactured demonstrations, are designed to give Russia a propaganda tool to be used against the United States and to bring pressure on the Southern States. The Communist press admits the demonstrations aid the Communist Party and give it new opportunity to incite racial animosity, pit race against race and inject the class struggle.

The White Sentinel on numerous occasions have exposed and opposed CORE. In St. Louis members of the National Citizens Protection Association were the only effective organization opposing this group. As far back as 1951, The White Sentinel exposed their leadership and red front activities and pointed out, to give in to this group would give aid and comfort to the Communist cause and enable them to recruit more followers.

As a result of our campaign over a period of years, one very prominent and influential business man said: "Had it not been for your efforts, St. Louis would have been integrated years ago."

The organized opposition we en masse still continues to function effectively. Several months ago, Howard Johnson restaurant on Kingshighway in St. Louis was picketed by over a hundred Whites and blacks. CORE's record was exposed and the owner of the establishment was able to obtain an injunction prohibiting CORE's picket line.

There is something YOU can do to end these demonstrations. Write to your Congressman, and Senators and demand an investigation by the Un-American Activities Committee. You can buy extra copies of The White Sentinel so other people may be informed as to what is behind these demonstrations.

NEGRO BISHOP WARNS NAACP A DISSERVICE TO NEGRO RACE

From The Methodist Challenge
1801 S. Flower St., Los Angeles 15, California

Bishop Sherman L. Greene of Philadelphia, a Bishop in the African Methodist Church, has some "horse sense" and expresses it in this crazy hour of half-baked ideology. Here is what he is reported to have said to the Conference over which he was presiding:

"We can overdo this integration business. The greatest threat is that the Negro will produce a generation of children who believe that no Negro institution can be good and that no institution, school, church, business or profession can be worth while unless it is mixed racially. We must not promote the idea that Negro institutions for Negroes only are necessarily inferior."

Bishop Greene has said something in expressing this wholesome sentiment that certainly ought to be said. There is some thing wrong with a race that must be blended with some other race before it can be any good. The NAACP has done the African race a distinct disservice by promulgating the idea that the Negro race or any other race must be elevated by integration with the Caucasian race. As I have said over and over in these pages, the Negro race rises or falls on its own merit, its character, its quality. The very existence of the NAACP is a confession that something is wrong with the Negro race. Its very activities concede that the Negroes must be propped up. This is the one thing a respectable Negro, such as Bishop Greene is afraid of and desires to warn his fellows against.

The dark races of the world now outnumber the White races. If there must be any contest, to determine the superiority of the blacks or Whites, it must be on the basis of character. No longer will color determine superiority. The Caucasian race has won a high place in human history, not because of the color of men's skins, but because of moral and spiritual assets.

The Negroes have made tremendous advancement since slavery and certainly do not have to apologize. There is a possibility that the NAACP may become a millstone about the necks of the black races.

14 COLLEGES BACK STUDENT LOYALITY OATH

Sixteen college and university presidents, defying the Ivy League attitude of Harvard and Yale, have declared themselves solidly behind the Student Loyalty Oath.

All of them have called for the defeat of Senator John F. Kennedy's bill which would repeal the non-subversive affidavit requirement for students receiving loans under the National Defense Education Act.

Under the 1958 act, a college student who wants to borrow money from the Federal Government to defray the cost of his education must first swear allegiance to the United States and file an affidavit to the effect that he does not belong to any organization intent on overthrowing the U S Government.

One of the presidents, George S Benson from Harding College in Arkansas, stated simply, "...A normal young man or woman should be proud to declare loyalty to country." The President of Defiance College in Ohio, Dr. Kevin McCann, said: "Dr. A. Whitney Griswold (President of Yale) has raised a standard around which many will gladly rally. I cannot "

The 14 other educational institutions in which the presidents or chancellors rallied around the oath are: Norwich University (Vermont), St. Michael's College (Vermont), University of Vermont, Houghton College (N. Y.), Le Moyne College (N. Y.) Wheaton College (Ill.) Eastern Michigan College, St. Mary's College (Ind.), De Pauw University (Ind.), Alliance (Pa.), St. Joseph's College (Pa.), Temple University (Pa.) and Villanova University (Pa.).

All have taken the position that no loyal person should consider it an affront to attest his loyalty to his country and disavow any association with the Communist conspiracy. Senator Karl Mundt (Rep. S. D.) pointed out the loans were being given as a defense measure - and defense is not promoted by aiding students who advocate overthrowing the Government.

Further information about those favoring the retention of the Loyalty Oath can be obtained by writing the National Student Committee For the Loyalty Oath, 2405 37th Street, N. W. Washington 7, D. C. The group has been organized by David Franke, a junior at George Washington University and Douglas Caddy, a senior at Georgetown's school of foreign service.

-- PART ONE --

1) That Dr. Albert E. Barnett, a professor of New Textament at your Methodist school of theology at Emory University, is a national officer of the NAACP and has sixteen Communist affiliations.

2) That G. Bromley Oxnam, a bishop of the Methodist Church, is also a national officer of the NAACP with 36 Communist affiliations.

3) That E. Stanley, the famed Methodist missionary, is a member of the Advisory Committee of Martin Luther King's "Congress of Racial Equality."

4) That this same E. Stanley Jones said in his book "Christ's Alternative to Communism" that "When the Western World was floundering in an unjust and competitive order and the Church was bound up with it and was part of that order, God reached out and put his hand on the Russian Communists to produce a more just order..."

5) That in order to secure a teaching position at Wood Junior College a person must sign a statement agreeing to teach "any race, creed, or color" who might enroll there. (I have no tangible proof of this; only the word of a friend who taught there two years ago.)

6) That the Mississippi Methodist Advocate defended, in a sly, "round-about-way" the Castro regime in Cuba. (See the editorial page of the September 16, 1959, edition.)

7) That the Advocate refused to carry an announcement of the annual meeting of the Methodist Ministers and Laymen Association.

8) That the Methodist Church was one of the organizations which sent witnesses before Congressional Committees, urging more "Civil Rights" and anti-South legislation.

9) That the pastor of the First Methodist Church in Clarksdale said in a sermon (November 1956) that "segregation is a sin and those who believe in segregation are sinners." (I was present, and walked out in the middle of the sermon!)

10) That every Methodist Church in Mississippi has an item in its budget for the National Council of Churches. This is the organization whose president, Dr. Edwin T. Dahlberg, recently said that the time has come to eliminate such expressions as "The precious name of Jesus," "Saved by Grace," "Born of the Spirit," etc. (We in our Dublin Church have cut this item out of our budget.)

-- PART TWO --

1) That Bishop Marvin Franklin signed and approved the "Bishop's Address" of the 1956 General Conference of the Methodist Church, even though (or maybe because) it contained this statement: ". . .there is no place in The Methodist Church for racial discrimination or racial segregation. . .it is our business to free our world and our nation from these evils."

2) That in the July 20, 1958, edition of the Methodist Sunday School publication for youth entitled "Twelve-Fifteen," this statement appeared: "Prejudice indicates a lack of maturity, a weakness in the personality, fear and ignorance." (page 12) (Have you glanced through your child's church school literature lately? If you haven't, then you should.)

3) That of the 95 men who wrote the Revised Version of the Bible, 30 have numerous Communist or Communist-front affiliations.

4) That a number of Methodist preachers from Mississippi attended the Human Relations Conference at Southern Methodist University in Dallas, Texas, last September; Thurgood Marshall of the NAACP was one of the featured speakers at this conference! Rev. R. L. Long of Como and Rev. J. W. Chatham of Sardis went from the Sardis District, and both of these men refused to write an evaluation of the conference when asked to do so by the Methodist Ministers and Laymen Association.

5) That I have been told by a recent graduate of the Emory School of Theology that there are several theology professors there who do not believe in the physical resurrection of Christ.

6) That upon being informed by the congregation of the Dublin Methodist Church that it was cutting several objectionable items (including Millsaps) out of its budget, the District Superintendent roundly condemned the action and said that "When people can't support the church and its institutions, then it's time for some people to get out of the Methodist Church!" (This occurred just this past August. I was there.)

7) That Dr. Dudley Ward of the Board of Social and Economic Relations highly recommended in a sermon to the 1959 North Mississippi Annual Conference that a good book which all should read is "The Road to Brotherhood."

8) That Dr. Harry Denman made no secret about his feelings when he said in a sermon to the same North Miss. Annual Conference that "I am for integration!" (Every Methodist ought to try to attend a session of the Annual Conference; he might be shocked at some of the things said there!)

9) That this statement appeared in an editorial in the November 19, 1958, edition of the Mississippi Methodist Advocate: "We Southerners can afford to be more tolerant of people who do not look like us. . .We have made His World a shambles as far as human relationships are involved."

— PART THREE —

1) That Mrs. J. A. Burt, Administrative Assistant on the Mississippi Methodist Advocate staff was (and may still be) on the staff of the Mississippi Council on Human Relations. This council is affiliated with the Southern Regional Council, an organization which, according to the Communist Daily Worker (Dec. 1, 1954), was founded by a communist--James E. Jackson.

2) That the late Mrs. W. H. Ratliff, mother-in-law of President Ellis Finger of Millsaps, was the president of this Mississippi Council on Human Relations; and that Dr. H. G. Williamson, former Mississippi Methodist minister, was also on the Board of Directors.

3) That according to testimony presented before a Joint Legislative Committee of the Louisiana Legislature by ex-Communist Manning Johnson, the Communist-founded Southern Regional Council has its offices "in a little church office building (in Atlanta) presided over by Methodist Bishop Arthur Moore!"

4) That the book "Behind Soviet Power" by Jerome Davis was sent to 22,000 Methodist ministers by Bishop G. Bromley Oxnam, and these books were paid for with money from Methodist missionary funds. This in spite of the fact that Davis has 99 Communist and Communist-front affiliations!

5) That the Volunteer Civil Rights Commission, designed to urge Congress to pass civil rights legislation is headed by Methodist Bishop Oxnam.

6) That according to Bishop Marvin Franklin, speaking before the North Alabama Annual Conference meeting in Decatur, Alabama, on January 13, 1960, the Methodist Church lost 199,000 members last year and 1,000,000 since 1952. (I wonder why? Could it be that our church has become so liberal and steeped in preaching the "social gospel"--including integration--that people are finding spiritual guidance elsewhere?)

7) That at the National Conference of Methodist Youth meeting at Purdue University last August, the morning prayer service was conducted with a background of recorded jazz music.

8) That at this same Youth Conference Eleanor Roosevelt, Harold Stassen and others participated in a special panel discussion on world affairs.

9) That this statement appeared in the June 11, 1958, edition of the Mississippi Methodist Advocate: "When we (Southerners) claim to believe in democracy and are unwilling to share it with Jews, Mexicans, Orientals, and Negroes, we really do not believe in democracy. If we profess that every American is entitled to equal opportunity to develop, and do not work toward this end, can we say that we believe what we profess?"

DID YOU KNOW?

-- PART FOUR --

1) That this "modern" teen-age version of the Lord's Prayer appeared on the Forum page of a recent issue of Concern. This magazine, published by the National Conference of Methodist Youth in Nashville, is referred to as "the voice of Methodist youth" and is widely circulated among Methodists of college age.

> "Oh, Daddy O, Who are the most, Hurrah for your support. My personality integrate, All physiques develop. My nervous system calm, In body and mind. Prepare me new tempo, our daily jive, and Release us from parents And other repressed victims. Lead us into more self-expression And much less boredom. For you are the coolest, Gonest and hepest drive, From now on."

2) That the Sept. 27, 1957, issue of Concern carried a race relations report containing this statement: "We recommend students and youth join and take an active part in organizations that are working in the area of race relations such as: Southern Regional Council, Atlanta, Ga., Fellowship of Southern Churchmen, Crossville, Tenn., Anti-Defamation League, New York.

3) That while the Baptists of Mississippi were gaining in number by 257% during the past 50 years, Methodists increased by only one-third as much.

4) That a poll of 7,000 Methodists in the Washington, D. C. area last November showed that only 18.7% believed that all discrimination and enforced segregation should be abolished now. (This, mind you, in Mr. Eisenhower's model city", 5 years after the schools were desegregated. Evidently the leaders of the Methodist Church do not voice the sentiments of Methodist people, either North or South, when they advocate integration.)

5) That this statement appeared in an editorial in the February 17, 1960, edition of the Mississippi Methodist Advocate: ". . .they (all the members of the United Nations) had an overwhelming desire for peace, they had the same legal system high cultural attainment and many things in common." (How ridiculous! Who believes that Communist Russia has ever had an "overwhelming desire for peace"? And who would be so stupid as to say that the Communist countries had the same legal system as such great law-respecting nations as the United States and Great Britain? I wonder what warped mind wrote this Advocate editorial?)

6) That G. Bromley Oxnam, radical integrationist and pro-Communist Methodist bishop, was featured in the October 1959 issue of the MYF (Methodist Youth Fellowship) program book Roundtable, as being a man whose life should be an inspiration to young people. On page 29 Oxnam is quoted as saying: "It is not enough to prohibit segregation by legislation and judicial decision. The spirit that breeds segregation must be driven from the heart; the Church must undergo the cleansing of conversion."

7) That according to a news bulletin of the Federal Council of Churches (now called the National Council of Churches): ". . .some pioneer spirits should take advance steps in that direction (intermarriage). . .mixed marriages may be highly socially desirable." (And the Methodist churches of Mississippi support the National Council of Churches through the "Interdenominational Fund" Item in their budgets. WHAT FOOLS WE ARE TO SUPPORT SUCH AN OUTFIT!!)

THAT ALL OF THE FOLLOWING QUOTATIONS WERE TAKEN FROM METHODIST PUBLICATIONS !

1) "The Methodist Church is officially pioneering toward the blending of all its members into a body undivided by racial segregation. Perhaps your own church has such an environment that on its doorstep is a chance to make a fine move toward integration. If this is true, you would do well to remind your fellow churchmen of their responsibility as pioneers." (WESLEY QUARTERLY, Jan. 3, 1960, page 17)

2) "Every church should be for all people. . .to divide the church simply on the basis of color is completely artificial." (LESSONS FOR INTERMEDIATES, May 10, 1959, pages 22-23)

3) "The idea of white superiority in our own country leads us to try to justify prejudice and segregation and hence makes second-class citizens out of millions who have also committed themselves to the idea of freedom for all. It is this conflict of ideas which lies at the heart of the racial strife and difficulty evident everywhere in our country. . .Many people talk about freedom and yet try to make laws restricting the freedom of certain groups." (ROUNDTABLE, Sept, 1959, pages 24-28)

4) "That all feasible steps be taken toward abolishing racial discriminatory clauses in fraternities and sororities. We commend those fraternities and sororities which are earnestly seeking to eliminate discriminatory clauses in their Constitutions and By-Laws. . .That racial discrimination be abolished in entrance, participation, or employment practices in any Methodist institution, agency or project (for example, colleges, universities, hospitals, homes, camp and assembly grounds, etc.). (CONCERN, Sept. 27, 1957, page 15)

5) ". . .a step towards Communism," is the way the March issue of the monthly magazine of the Mississippi Methodist Youth Fellowship referred to the church bill recently passed by the state legislature. (I wonder who, and what, has been poisoning the minds of our Mississippi youth?)

6) "Strangers began moving into the neighborhood. They were a different kind of people. We wanted the church to be for 'our kind.' So, of course, we didn't welcome these other people. One day Janice shocked us by bringing the children of one of these 'different' families to Sunday church school. "I just couldn't help it," she explained. "They ought to be in church school and ours is near them." We liked these children. We invited their parents. Later others came. Now the church has changed. We have many of the new families among us. But we have changed in another way. We've learned what it means to be the children of God. We've learned how to be together in Christ." (You can easily guess the race to which these "strangers" belonged. (BIBLE LESSONS FOR YOUTH, Nov. 8, 1959, page 25)

-- PART SIX --

1) That I have been reliably informed that a professor at Millsaps refers to Christ and his Apostles as "J. C. and the boys", and to the Trinity as "Big G, Little Daddy G, and Sputnik".

2) That Dr. Harry Denman, executive secretary of the General Board of Evangelism of the Methodist Church, in a chapel speech to the students of Millsaps College on March 24, urged that all people be treated alike regardless of their color. He also went on to defend Fidel Castro as being a man who is "for the people", and "an idealistic young man."

3) John Mood, former Wesley Director at Ole Miss and now a resident of Oklahoma City, referred to his year spent in Mississippi as a "one-year sojourn be behind the Magnolia Curtain." (CONCERN, Nov. 14, 1958) Mood is still listed in the North Mississippi Conference Journal as being a member of this conference.

4) In spite of a Congressional report of July 7, 1953, which stated that Dr. Harry Ward, founder of the Methodist Federation for Social Action, is a socialist-Marxist clergyman, the Mississippi Methodist Advocate defended him in a recent editorial as a "fine old Christian gentleman". (Page 3, March 16, 1960, issue.)

5) CONCERN, published by the National Conference of Methodist Youth, in Nashville, came to the defense of the recently closed Communist-infiltrated and integrated Highlander Folk School in an editorial in the March 11, 1960, edition. (Highlander was closed by court order on February 16.)

6) The Board of Social and Economic Relations of the Methodist Church issued this statement on March 15: "We commend participating Negro students for the dignified, non-violent manner in which they have conducted themselves...(in sit-in demonstrations)...We regret that many citizens of our country are denied basic human rights."

7) That Miss Alice Cobb, teacher at Scarritt College (now on leave and on the staff of Highlander Folk School) said in an article appearing in THE SOUTHERN PATRIOT, official publication of the Southern Conference Educational Fund, that "If I had children I'd want them free to go home with other nice children, regardless of color, and bring these children to our house to play or stay all night or for supper. If my daughter wanted to marry a Negro (and if he wanted to marry her), I would want the right to hold her wedding in the church we belonged to and to have her fiancee's little sister as a member of the wedding."

8) That the publication CONTACT, which is sponsored by three World Service agencies of the Methodist Church, devoted four pages of its July 1, 1959, issue to the listing of the state advisory committee of the U. S. Civil Rights Commission.

FACTS ABOUT THE NATIONAL COUNCIL OF CHURCHES

1) "...719 of the officers whose names appear on the rolls of the National Council of Churches have records of Communist affiliation, many of them more than 100 times each in public support of pro-Communist or Communist projects, fronts, and publications." (American Mercury, January, 1960, page 66.)

2) On one occasion Sen. James O. Eastland said of those organizations supporting the war on segregation that they "run from the blood red of the Communist Party to the almost equally red of the National Council of Churches.

3) The present head of the NCC, Dr. Edwin T. Dahlberg, has been affiliated with eleven notorious Communist front organizations such as "Citizens Committee to Free Earl Browder" (Browder, a convicted Communist), and the "National Committee for Defense of Political Prisoners." Dahlberg also was a signer of an open letter to the late Pres. Franklin Roosevelt asking that a deportion order against Communist Harry Bridges be set aside.

4) This statement (one of many like it) appeared in a report issued by a Study Conference of the NCC (then called the Federal Council of Churches) which met in Detroit, Michigan, in February of 1950: "The Church must attack the atheism of orthodox communism...and also such practical atheism as is present in contemporary capitalism."

5) The official position of the NCC on segregation was set forth in a report written by its so-called "race relations expert," Dr. J. Oscar Lee, which was released on December 17, 1957. The release stated that, "The new race relations program of the 1954 World Council of Churches (big sister dominated and controlled by NCC) is that 'segregation is contrary to the Gospel and is incompatable with the Christian doctrine of man and with the nature of the Church of Christ."

6) The policy making body of the National Council of Churches, meeting in Hartford, Connecticut, in February of 1959, asked Congress to repeal the "loyalty oath" requirements for students applying for Federal scholarship aid as being a "useless" effort to "coerce loyalty" in a free society.

7) This same group urged in an eight-point resolution on non-segregated housing that Christians "sign and make public covenants which commit them to support open occupancy housing in their neighborhoods," regardless of race.

PROOF THAT THE NATIONAL COUNCIL OF CHURCHES IS WRONG IN SAYING COMMUNISTS HAVE NOT INFILTRATED OUR CHURCHES

"We will find our most fertile field for infiliration of Marxism within the field of religion, because religious people are the most gullible and will accept most anything if it is couched in religious terminology."

-- Nikolai Lenin

On March 26, 1947, the director of the Federal Bureau of Investigation, J. Edgar Hoover, appeared before the House Committee on Un-American Activities and gave testimony under oath regarding the communist infiltration into the various phases of our society. Here is a part of his testimony:

> "I would have no fears if more Americans possessed the zeal, the fervor, the persistence, and the industry to learn about this menace of Red facism. I do fear for the liberal and progressive who has been hoodwinked and duped into joining hands with the communists. I confess to a real apprehension so long as communists are able to secure ministers of the Gospel to promote their evil work and espouse a cause that is alien to the religion of Christ..."

Later, in the February, 1949, issue of Redbook magazine, Mr. Hoover made the following remarks in an article entitled "God or Chaos":

> "It is ghastly to see the monster atheism being nourished in the churches which it seeks t6 destroy. Many communist fronts have operated under the guise of some church commission or religious body. Church leaders can stop this infiltration by taking vigorous action in the boards and commissions under church supervision. Individual ministers and church members can avoid being hoodwinked if they will stay close to the fundamentals of their faith."

In July, 1953, issue of the American Mercury magazine a very startling revelation was made by Dr. J. B. Matthews--then a member of Senator McCarthy's Government Operations Committee. Dr. Matthews is an ordained Methodist minister, a graduate of two of Methodism's largest institutions, the holder of three degrees in theology and a returned missionary from the Far East. In this Mercury article he said: "The largest single group supporting the Communist apparatus in the United States today is composed of Protestant clergymen."

On July 6, 1953, speaking under oath before the House Committee on Un-American Activities, Herbert A. Philbrick, former undercover agent for the FBI within the Communist party, gave this testimony:

> "The Communist party has many levels of operation and many types of people who are members of the organization. I discovered many shocking facts during my nine years in the party, but I can say in all sincerity to this committee the most shocking discovery I made during the entire period of time was this particular aspect of Communist infiltration, the fact that they were indeed not infiltrating the Christian movement and using it, but were planting these hardened, disciplined communists who would not pose as ministers of the Gospel... the communist party is having a vast amount of success in using church people..."

In conclusion: Thus, when the hierarchy of the hierachy of the National Council of Churches in America attempts to repudiate charges that the communists have infiltrated our Protestant churches, please remember what you've read in this paper. All too often the "holy garb" only serves the same purpose as does the proverbial sheep's clothing on the back of the wolf.

Gentlemen:

I am currently under attack by some of my church members as being pro-communist because of my liberal views on race. They plan to link me with the reds by naming organizations I support etc.

It would help me to have all the facts to answer with. Could you take a minute to let me know whether the SRC has ever been cited as red, by whom, when, and for what stated reasons. Also, any rebuttal data you have on hand.

Naturally, I won't use any of this unless your group is specified in the attack. Would appreciate this at your earliest convenience.

Dear Mr. DeLamotte:

We are pleased to enclose materials which should help you effectively refute any arguments concerning the Southern Regional Council having any connection with Communism.

The Council has never been cited as being Communist. This fact could be verified by anyone who would care to write the Justice Department, the Attorney General, or any other source within the Federal government.

If this issue becomes an important one, we will be happy to supply you with additional material addressed to any particular argument raised.

Best wishes.

Dear Colleague:

Mississippi continues to be a focal point in the struggle for civil rights in the South. Consequently a large part of this letter will be devoted to recent developments in that State.

Freedom Riders. The Jackson, Mississippi Police Court continues to hand out sentences to whites and Negroes coming there to defy segregation in bus and railroad terminals. The arrests have now reached the figure of 177, of whom 170 have been convicted on breach-of-the-peace charges since late in May.

The continuation of this form of protest against clearly illegal segregation laws is understandable and, in my opinion, entirely commendable. Indeed, it was disappointing that the Southern Regional Council recently chose to issue a statement critical of the Freedom Riders on the ground that they were mostly "outsiders". The Council sought to differentiate on this ground between the Freedom Riders and Southern students who have provided the manpower for sit-in demonstrations at lunch counters.

To attempt to make such a distinction seems to me to be utterly unsound. The right which the Freedom Riders are seeking to vindicate is the right to travel in interstate commerce without discrimination or segregation. This right is one which belongs not only to those who live in Jackson, Mississippi or, indeed, in any of the Southern States, but also to every person in this country. If there were any logic in the criticism by the Council, one would suppose that the Council would refrain from accepting contributions from individuals and foundations located north of the Mason-Dixon Line, which provide a very substantial part of the funds necessary for the Council to carry on its work in the South.

It is also disappointing that none of the Freedom Riders appear to have appealed the convictions so as to secure a ruling by the United States Supreme Court. It would seem that at least some of those who have chosen to avoid prison by paying their fines would, instead, have posted bond and have taken such an appeal. It is understandable, therefore, that Thurgood Marshall, Chief NAACP Counsel, lamented in a recent address before the 18th Annual Race Relations Institute at Fisk University upon the lack of planning and coordination on the legal front in Jackson.

While no appeals appear to have been taken by the Freedom Riders, one of them did seek to obtain her release by way of a habeas corpus proceeding in the United States District Court. It was to be expected that United States District Judge Sidney Mize should dismiss the application. It is well settled that the validity of such a conviction cannot be tested in a collateral proceeding but must be attacked by direct appeal. Nevertheless, Judge Mize went out of his way in his decision on Monday to commend the use of the Mississippi breach of-the-peace statute as having prevented the occurrence of bloodshed. These observations on the part of Judge Mize were both unnecessary and unsound.

Parks Are For White People. The color line in Jackson is by no means limited to bus and railroad stations. On Wednesday four Negroes were arrested on charges of breach of the peace because they refused to obey police orders to move from a bench in the City park usually used by white persons. Those arrested were among a dozen Negroes who entered the area normally used by white persons as picnickers. Afterwards they strolled around the swimming pool area where they were turned away from the ticket booth. Apparently four of them went too far when they chose to sit down.

Negroes Cannot Vote. Yesterday the Department of Justice filed two suits in Mississippi charging that Negroes had been denied voting rights in two counties. In Forest County, a majority of the 22,000 eligible white persons are registered to vote but only 25 of the 7,495 Negroes. While a substantial majority of the 6,000 white persons of voting age in Clarke County are registered, not one of the Negro residents is registered. This situation, the Justice Department asserts, is a result of a "clear-cut pattern of discrimination", which takes the form of applying different and more stringent standards to Negro applicants, refusing to register Negroes with qualifications similar to those of registered whites and arbitrarily denying Negroes the chance to register.

Both suits were brought in the United States District Court for the Southern District of Mississippi and seek temporary and permanent injunctions against discrimination. August 7 has been set for a hearing. Gov. Ross Barnett, to the surprise of no one, immediately denounced the suits as "an invasion of local self-government". Similar suits, also brought under the Civil Rights Act of 1957 against voting registrars, are pending in Alabama, Georgia, Louisiana and Tennessee.

Welfare a la Newburgh. My last letter reported the promulgation of a plan by Newburgh, New York, to deny public assistance to needy children on the grounds of illegitimacy and/or because their homes are "unsuitable". It was noted that the majority of the children affected are Negro.

Yesterday a Subcommittee of the New York Social Welfare Board conducting a public hearing on the Newburgh Plan, found it to be violative both of the State's Aid to Dependent Children Program and the Federal Social Security Act. Under the latter legislation, Federal funds cover 47.6% of the cost and the Federal contribution, in 1960, amounted to $65,569,000. There is no doubt that the full Board will uphold the findings of the Subcommittee.

Newburgh officials have, however, indicated that they will defy the Board's ruling. Three alternatives have been suggested for dealing with such defiance.

Under the first proposal, the State would withhold its contribution of 50% of the cost of the local welfare program. Such action would, in my opinion, create a situation where the remedy would be worse than the disease. It would mean even greater deprivation to the children in Newburgh who need public assistance.

The second proposal is for the Board to seek court action to enjoin the Newburgh Plan now scheduled to go into effect on July 15. Unless a preliminary injunction were granted immediately, this course might well involve delay of days and even weeks while needy children were denied assistance.

A third suggestion has been proposed by Louise Wise Services upon my recommendation as its Counsel. Louise Wise Services is a social agency which for the past 45 years has provided not only child adoption services but also shelter care for hundreds of unmarried mothers each year. It has urged that Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller invoke his powers as the Chief Executive of the State and notify the public officials of Newburgh that their defiance of the decision of the Board will result in the removal of those officials from public office.

In its telegram to the Board and to the Governor, Louise Wise Services urged that the Newburgh Plan violates every precept of child welfare and denounced as utterly unsound the notion that the denial of aid to dependent children is a constructive way to deal with the social phenomenon of illegitimacy. This problem, Louise Wise Services pointed out, is by no means limited to any particular economic, social, religious or ethnic group in the population. That a very high proportion of those seeking public assistance in Newburgh are Negroes is, as noted in my last letter, a natural consequence of, among other things, the lower economic status of the Negro in the community.

Discrimination Against Muslims. Prisoners sentenced by the courts of the District of Columbia are sent to the United States Reformatory at Lorton, Virginia. Thirty-eight inmates are Negroes professing Islam and are known as Muslims. They brought suit in the United States District Court charging discriminations and deprivations because of their religion. They claimed, among other things, that they were deprived of institutional privileges, including medical attention, kept in isolation, required to sleep on concrete floors, provided with little to eat and "forbidden to wear medals symbolic of their faith, although that privilege is accorded to Catholics, Baptists, etc." In addition, their complaint charges that they were denied an opportunity to communicate with their religious advisers, recite their prayers, or receive desired publications without fear of being persecuted. Efforts to obtain redress from the Board of Commissioners of the District of Columbia, which has general supervision over the Superintendent of the Prison, were, they asserted, frustrated by the persistent refusal of the Superintendent and other prison officers to transmit any complaints.

The District Court granted the Government motion to dismiss the complaint on the ground that the judicial branch of the Government should not interfere with the executive function involved in the maintenance of discipline in the prison. Accordingly, the only question before the Court of Appeals for the Fourth Circuit, to which the case was appealed, was whether the complaint alleged facts which, if proved, required judicial intervention and whether, therefore, the complainants were entitled to a hearing. The Court of Appeals unanimously reversed in an opinion written by Chief Judge Simon Sobeloff. He pointed out that "It is beyond dispute that certain rights and privileges of citizenship are withdrawn from prisoners, but it has never been held that upon entering a prison one is entirely bereft of all of his civil rights and forfeits every protection of the law." In answer to the argument that if a hearing is ordered in this instance it will encourage a flood of such complaints, Judge Sobeloff said, "Our answer must be the same as that given by the Second Circuit: 'We must not play fast and loose with basic constitutional rights in the interest of administrative efficiency.'"

Movie Censorship in Chicago. Last January, the United States Supreme Court, in a 5-to-4 decision, upheld the constitutionality of the Chicago Censorship Ordinance, which makes it unlawful to show a movie without a permit from the Police Commissioner. In the Times Film case, the exhibitor paid a license fee but refused to submit the film "Don Juan" for examination. When the license was refused, the exhibitor sought an injunction on the ground that censorship constituted, in and of itself, an infringement of the freedom of expression protected by the Constitution.

Last month the United States Court of Appeals for the Seventh Circuit in the Zenith case had before it a situation in which the Police Commissioner and his Sergeant in charge of the Police Censor Board refused to license "The Lovers" unless the entire fifth reel was expunged. The exhibitor was simply told that this reel was immoral and obscene. As a matter of fact, the only group that saw the entire film was the Film Review Board, a group appointed by the Police Commissioner as his advisers.

The Court of Appeals reversed on the ground that the Times Film decision does not provide carte blanche authorization for unfair, arbitrary municipal licensing procedures. It ruled that, under the standards set down by the Supreme Court in the Roth case involving alleged pornographic literature, "It is as a whole that a work must be judged, not merely by plucking isolated scenes or passages from such work." The Court of Appeals also cited the Roth case as having "set the criterion for obscenity, not at an individual, subjective level, but at the benchmark of a general objective determination whether a work appeals to the pruriant interest of the community at large." Consequently, the Court ruled the action of the Police Commissioner was invalid because he, the only responsible official, had never seen the entire film and had not granted the exhibitor an opportunity at a formal hearing to offer evidence to show that the film did not offend against contemporary community standards.

It will be interesting to observe the results of the Zenith decision. Certainly it will be quite a novel experience to observe the Police Commissioner of the City of Chicago conducting his censorship activities in such a way to meet the requirements of due process of law. Nevertheless, it must be said that the entire notion that movies should be subject to censorship marks an irrational and indefensible exception to the freedoms granted by the First and Fourteenth Amendments.

Sincerely yours, Abe Fortas

Mr. Grover Hall, Jr., Editor
The Montgomery Advertiser
Montgomery, Alabama

Dear Mr. Hall:

This is to correct several errors in well-known facts which Advertiser Columnist W. J. Mahoney, Jr., has written in his column, "As I See It."

On May 21, Mr. Mahoney wondered "what is the Southern Regional Council on Mental Health Training and Research," for which the Alabama Legislature had appropriated "thousands of dollars annually?" This seems a curiously helpless question from a veteran newspaperman with ready access to the answer. (The Council on Mental Health Training and Research, as you are doubtless aware, is an agency of the Southern Regional Education Board, set up by the Southern Governors Conference.)

Mr. Mahoney's May 21 column proceeds to quote the American Legion's Firing Line to indicate connection between the Southern Regional Council and the SREB Council on Mental Health Training and Research and the Firing Line's erroneous statement that the Southern Regional Council emerged from the Southern Conference on Human Welfare. There was no organizational connection between the Council and the Conference.

On June 19, Mr. Mahoney quoted a wire from Governor Buford Ellington of Tennessee, chairman of SREB, that "there is absolutely no connection and never has been between this Board's Council on Mental Health Training and Research and the Southern Regional Council, a private race relations organization also located in Atlanta." We are somewhat bemused at the circumstances that Mr. Mahoney found it necessary to confirm this familiar fact with a wire from Governor Ellington.

On June 18, Mr. Mahoney wrote, with a similarly surprising innocence or disregard of fact, that "incorporators" of the Southern Regional Council have never "denied publicly" the Communist Daily Worker's claim that "the Worker's Negro editor" was a founder of the Council. This charge, also from the Firing Line, has been repeatedly denied and disproven, very publicly, indeed, in one instance by the Richmond Times-Dispatch in the attached editorial reprint.

It is a matter of considerable astonishment here that Mr. Mahoney regards the Daily Worker, a notoriously unreliable Communist paper, as a source of information.

We recognize Mr. Mahoney's right to entertain whatever opinions and weirdly dark implications he may draw from a similarity and confusion of names. We do, however, protest his flagrant misstatement of long-established, publicly repeated, and easily ascertained facts about our Council and the SREB's Mental Health agency.

Sincerely yours,

Dear Paul:

I thought you might be middly interested in the enclosed clippings. I talked on the telephone to Mr. Mahoney and quoted Mr. Virginius Dabney's correction of some statements that appeared in his own newspaper in 1958.

He made no comment on that but started lashing out in all directions and at Ralph McGill in particular and asked why he didn't set the record straight. He claimed that he would be willing to print a denial by Mr. McGill of the allegations. 2

Mr. Mahoney appears to be psychopathic and if somebody gave him the written facts he might distort them and do further harm. I hate to see him go unchallenged though. It's possible that a reproach might reach him through Grover Hall, the editor of the Advertiser. Mahoney's column appears daily in the Journal and on Sundays in the Advertiser-Journal.

Hope you are well. Sorry we couldn't come to New Orleans to hear you perform. There is a possibility that we may move to Washington, D.C. so we are rather "upheaved" right now. I was invited the other day to attend a meeting of people who call their group "Project Alert" to be held tomorrow. Navy officers appear to be the movers of the group. Firstly, an Admiral Goldthwaite (I think that's right) in Pensacola and a Captain (naval) McCluskey at Maxwell. It appears to be a part of this right-wing anti-Communist movement inspired by high-ranking officers. I don't think I have the stomach or the self-restraint needed to attend, although I might find out something.

You probably know about it. I thought I would mention it. I guess Mr. Shapiro already knows about it.

Hope to hear from you sometime.

Yours—

As I See It

By W. J. MAHONEY, JR.

What is the Southern Regional Council on Mental Health Training and Research?

It must be an important thing, for out of the hard-pressed tax moneys of the people of Alabama, the Legislature of the state of Alabama has been appropriating thousands of dollars a year for it. And Senate Bill 150 proposes "$8,000 annually" for the next two years "for the support of the Council."

Are we, through that, helping foot the bill for our own destruction? We'd better know.

Ten years before the Supreme Court's impudent school desegregation order of 1954, the "Southern Regional Council" was incorporated. The black Rufus E. Clement, president of Atlanta University, and the white Ralph McGill of the Atlanta Constitution were two of the five incorporators, while The Worker proudly proclaimed that its Negro editor, then youth director of the Communist Party, subsequently Moscow's propaganda czar in this country, "founded" the Southern Regional Council.

How Closely Akin?

The National Americanism Commission of the American Legion, through its bulletin, "Firing Line," declared the Southern Conference for Human Welfare, "exposed as a Communist front organization . . . began to wither and was finally dissolved," and linked it closely to the Southern Regional Council through such names as white Aubrey Williams, black Benjamin E. Mays (president of Morehouse), black H. Council Trenholm (president of Alabama State).

What is the Southern Regional Council on Mental Health Training and Research?

Within months after the school desegregation order, the Southern Regional Council issued a jubilant paperbound volume titled, "Answers For Action—Schools in the South," in which it boasted that "no citizen, fitted by character or intelligence" to sit on the U. S. Supreme Court could have voted any other way than for school desegregation.

As I See It

By W. J. MAHONEY, JR.

Sometimes you can't afford the name and stay in the game.

Two great American names of English origin are Benedict (meaning blessed) and Arnold (meaning ruler), but you'll never find them in combination, no matter how diligently you comb the nation's directories.

The adjective "Southern" is objectionable to some people, but in combination with "Regional" it has been anathema to loyal Southerners ever since a curious assortment of blacks and whites incorporated the "Southern Regional Council" seventeen years ago for the avowed purpose of speeding race integration in the South.

Early in the life of the current Legislature, Senate Bill 150 was introduced. It would appropriate financial support for the "Southern Regional Council on Mental Health and Research."

The name likeness is in escapable.

Born In Moscow?

Neither the black nor the white incorporators (among the latter being Ralph McGill, the Atlanta columnist who once said "there never has been in this country's history any such thing as states rights") have ever denied publicly the claim of the Communist newspaper mouthpiece in this country, The Worker, that they were a mere "front" for The Worker's Negro editor, Moscow's propaganda czar, who was the real "founder" of the Southern Regional Council.

Sometimes you can't afford the name and stay in the game.

Four weeks ago today, this column asked if there were any connection at all between the incorporated "Southern Regional Council" and the "Southern Regional Council for Mental Health and Research," sponsored by the Southern Governor's Conference.

There Isn't!

I asked Atty. Gen. MacDonald Gallion if there were any link, and he sent me an answering telegram from Tennessee's Gov. Buford Ellington, chairman of

S. Supreme Court could have voted any other way than for school desegregation.

Brags Of Efforts

The book then proceeded to brag of the preliminaries to integration by such "specialists" as Harry S. Ashmore, who can now put an "ex" before his title of Little Rock editor; to boast gleefully that there "are various 'souths,'" so that the opposition is without unity; to instruct the integration enthusiasts in the niceties of their program so they can influence P-TAs and teacher organizations, can form discussion groups, can work in churches, civil groups, service clubs, labor organizations and the like to "help foster a healthy climate of opinion."

"There is much truth," it declares, "in the saying that if school integration were left to the children there would be no problem."

Our national government is in the hands of irresponsible reformers.

So far as the South is concerned, we had as well be left to the tender ministering of the Thaddeus Stevenses, the Ben Wades and others who early showed their violent hatred and abyssmal ignorance of the South in their fight on Lincoln and his moderate reconstruction plans.

That Loyalty Oath

In the Senate it was Wade, in May, 1864, who led the unsuccessful demand to strike the word "white" from Lincoln's provision to enroll "all white male citizens" to take the loyalty oath.

If the South would survive under its present social structure, a gentlemanly and restrained resistance to the more obvious elements of abuse is not enough. "Moderation" will betray us as certainly as the kiss of Judas.

If the money our Legislature is asked to continue appropriating in Bill 150 is for "the support of the (Southern Regional) Council," then one wonders at the lengths to which we will go to compound our own destruction. It should be ample proof of the sound, narcotic sleep from which the South may never awaken.

Any Other Name?

Without exploring the possible dangers of any "mental health" program in the hands of an irresponsible national government, someone might wonder if there is any connection at all between the "Southern Regional Council" and the "Southern Regional Council on Mental Health Training and Research."

If not, then the latter's identity by any other name would smell much sweeter!

The bite of Africa's tsetse fly induces the dread sleeping sickness. The South suffers from a sleeping sickness at least as deadly. Somewhere there must be an antidote.

And the antidote won't be found in maudlin sympathy for boys nipped by the dogs they teased.

Neither the black nor the white incorporators (among the latter being Ralph McGill, the Atlanta columnist who once said "there never has been in this country's history any such thing as states rights") have ever denied publicly the claim of the Communist newspaper mouthpiece in this country, The Worker, that they were a mere "front" for The Worker's Negro editor, Moscow's propaganda czar, who was the real "founder" of the Southern Regional Council.

There Isn't!

I asked Atty. Gen. MacDonald Gallion if there were any link, and he sent me an answering telegram from Tennessee's Gov. Buford Ellington, chairman of the Southern Regional Education Board, which is the overseeing agency for the mental-health program.

"This is to inform you," said the telegram, "that there is absolutely no connection and never has been between this Board's Council on Mental Health Training and Research and the Southern Regional Council, a private race relations organization also located in Atlanta."

The Tennessee Governor goes on to say that the Southern Regional Education Board "is devoted to improving higher education in the South through interstate cooperation under an interstate compact ratified by 16 states. It is governed by an eighty-man board, including the Governor of each state.

Our Members

"In addition to Governor John Patterson, Alabama board members are Senator Dave Archer, Hon. Ralph Draughon (president of Auburn), Hon. Frank Rose (president of Alabama). The board supervises the work of the Mental Health Training and Research Council which is devoted to training more mental health personnel. Mr. Karl Harrison is Gov. Patterson's representative on the Mental Health Council.

"In light of these facts, I am sure you agree that this is an unfortunate confusion caused by the similarity in name. If you have further questions, please advise me."

A like letter, disclaiming any connection between the two organizations, came to me from Dr. Winfred L. Godwin, 130 Sixth Street, N.W., Atlanta, Southern Regional Education Board director.

Delete 'Regional'

On Wednesday, Nov. 21, 1934, a group of Governors of States of the Southeast met at Warm Springs, Ga. with President Franklin D. Roosevelt. In the group was Governor-elect Bibb Graves of Alabama. And it was there that the Southern Governors' Conference was born. To the original thirteen states subsequently were added, at their own request. Maryland and West Virginia 15 years ago, and Delaware (two of its three counties are located south of the Mason-Dixon line) in 1951.

Its original purpose, to combat Northern discriminatory freight rates, has been expanded into the broad program it has today.

The unfortunate use of the phrase, "Southern Regional Council," has jeopardized support of the 16-state program, and may quite conceivably be responsible for beclouding any mental-health objectives.

And so the Governor of Alabama, John Patterson, has advised me that he will move to eliminate the word "Regional" from every part of the program of the Southern Governors at their September Conference.

SOUTHERN REGIONAL COUNCIL CONFUSION

Editor, Alabama Journal:

With reference to: A letter from The Director of Information, Southern Regional Council, Inc., 5 Forsyth St., N. W., Atlanta, Ga.

Dear Editor, in response to Margaret Long's letter to the editor which appeared in the Montgomery Advertiser, Aug. 20, 1961, I would like to state that Mr. Mahoney was not the only person (I know of quite a number) who wanted to know, "What is the Southern Regional Council on Mental Health Training and Research for which the Alabama Legislature appropriated thousands of dollars annually?"

It is not unfair or unwise for Alabamians to want to know what our tax dollars are being used for. Margaret Long seems to think, by the tone of her letter, that everyone should know the simple answer to this question in Mr. Mahoney's May 21st article. However, I spent some time and made a nmuber of inquiries, including a call to the attorney general of Georgia before I could find that this so-called council (the one we give money to) is part of the Southern Regional Education Board. In fact, one of our own senators did not know the correct title of the SREB when I first inquired about the above mentioned Southern Regional Council. The appropriation bill does not mention SREB, only the Southern Regional Council.

To my knowledge, it hasn't been explained exactly what the functions of the Southern Regional Council on Mental Health Training and Research are or how the appropriated money is spent. Perhaps Margaret Long could inform the people who want to know.

The Southern Regional Council, as I know it, did emerge fom the Southern Conference on Human Welfare and as Governor Buford said in his wire (Mahoney's Column — June 19) the Southern Regional Council is a race relations organization. I believe, contrary to what Margaret Long says was disproven publicly by the Richmond Times-Dispatch, that a James Jackson, wanted by the F.B.I., did help organize this Council. (Mentioned in the foregoing paragraph). With James Jackson, others who contributed to or helped found this same organization were equally questionable.

Margaret Long expresses astonishment that the Daily Worker would be quoted as a news source. This does not warrant "astonishment" at all for the Daily Worker did at times tell more about the Communist than other newspapers if you know how to read it.

I suggest that the SREB discard the Southern Regional Council title and call their program the SREB Mental Health Training and Research Program. This would eliminate part of the widespread confusion.

They Predicted Violence But Jackson Upheld Law

By OLIVER EMMERICH

Violence should be accepted for what it really is. And the laws protecting people against violence must be applied rigidly.

There are reasons to believe that the South is growing less tolerant of violence and acts of intimidation. Leadership in the South is pushing harder toward the goal of tighter law enforcement.

When it can be said that the courts of the South, North, East or West prevail over violence and prejudice, the cause and the concepts of America are respected. This applies particularly in the realm of race—to the Orientals of California, the Mexicans of Arizona, the Portuguese of New York, the Indians of the West and as well to the Negroes of the South.

The Wall Street Journal recently reported instances to show that Southern people are becoming less tolerant of violence. While we find satisfaction in this recognized trend, we wonder why the Southern Regional Council quoted in the article, would single out Jackson, Mississippi, as the center of potential violence.

The Wall Street Journal says:

No one is willing to predict that the worst of such events is over, particularly with another round of school desegregation coming up and the tense situation in Jackson, Miss., resulting from "freedom rider" pressure. But an offiical of the Southern Regional Council in Atlanta says, "There has been real improvement in this and other areas of race relations." The council is a privately-supported group whose aim is to improve race relations in the South.

A basic reason for the current change is suggested by a Southerner who has watched it carefully. "You don't have mobs unless they are tacitly, or sometimes more than tacitly, supported by people in authority," he says. "There is lessened interest on the part of such people in employing violence. The proof is that no violence occurred in Jackson, Miss., when the freedom riders arrived. If there is anywhere in the country that you would expect violence to get out of control it would be Mississippi."

We seriously question the Southern Regional Council's observation: "If there is anywhere in the country that you would expect violence to get out of control it would be Mississippi."

Mississippi is the fourth ranking state in the Union as measured in obedience to law.

Our crime ratio is far below that of practically all of the states in the Union.

Why should the Southern Regional Council hold that greater odds for violence exist in Mississippi than in South Chicago where widespread violence is a nightly occurrence? It is unsafe for people to walk on the streets of Chicago after dark because of the danger of violence.

Why should it consider that violence has a greater ratio of expectancy in Mississippi than in New York where thousands of police are maintained around the clock to curb the threat of violence by murderous teenagers who often are beyond control?

Why should the Southern Regional Council center on Mississippi when just recently more than 3,000 youths got out of control along a California beach and attacked police, destroyed property and raped women promiscuously?

We editorially commend any effort to curb violence. The law of the claw and fang—the law of the jungle—must not prevail in any civilized society. But in its effort to oppose violence the Southern Regional Council should not join with provincial propogandists.

If violence was expected in Mississippi, then someone was grossly mistaken.

Jackson today, because of an invasion of freedom riders, is in the news headlines of the day. But law and order prevail in Jackson. The truth is that no city of considerable size in the United States can boast a better record for law and order. And as to violence—this city has a record for other cities to emulate.

As I See It

By W. J. MAHONEY, JR.

"If you can't convince 'em, confuse 'em," a present day Machiavelli admonished.

Last May 21st this column suggested that the startling similarity between the names, "Southern Regional Council" and "Southern Regional Council for Mental Health Training and Research," could not be ignored by Alabama's white Legislature.

It could not be ignored for the simple reason that the "Southern Regional Council" is a militant race-integration organization, incorporated by a mixed group of blacks and whites ten years prior to the U.S. Supreme Court's capitulation; and for the further simple reason that Alabama's pro-segregationist Legislature was asked to appropriate $8,000 a year to support the "Southern Regional Council for Mental Health Training and Research."

'A Sweeter Smell'

If there were no connection between the two, this column concluded, "then the latter's identity by any other name would smell much sweeter!"

Four weeks later, on June 18th, this column carried a telegram from the Governor of Tennessee, chairman of the Southern Regional Education Board, the division of the Southern Governors' Conference that directs the destinies of the Southern Regional Council for Mental Health Training and Research, disclaiming any link with the race-blending organization incorporated as the Southern Regional Council.

The same column quoted Alabama's Gov. John Patterson as saying he would "move to eliminate the word 'Regional' from every part of the program of the Southern Governors at their September Conference."

Phone Challenge

In the week after that column's publication a British-born Montgomery lady telephoned me to "challenge" some of the statements made in that column and in the earlier one, published four weeks before. Reduced to simple language, the challenge centered on a quotation from the official Communist organ, "The Worker," which claimed that the real "father" of the race-blending Southern Regional Council was its Negro editor, then youth director of the Communist party in the United States, subsequently Moscow's director of the Communist party in the United States, subsequently Moscow's propaganda czar in this country.

"The Richmond Times-Dispatch repudiated that false statement weeks ago," she informed me triumphantly.

"But what," I wondered aloud, "would Virginius Dabney, the editorial page editor of the Times-Dispatch know about it? His name appears nowhere among the incorporators of the Southrn Regional Council, although you will find the white Ralph McGill, of The Atlanta Constitution, and the black Rufus E. His name appears nowhere among the incorporators of the Southrn Regional Council, although you will find the white Ralph McGill, of The Atlanta Constitution, and the black Rufus E. Clement, president of Atlanta University, among the five."

By Horse's Mouth

Our conversation ended with my suggestion that a denial from either Mr. McGill or from Dr. Clement, that Communist Negro Editor Jackson had any part in founding the Southern Regional Council, would be more appropriate.

That was all until Sunday, Aug. 20th — another two months later.

Then a letter to the editor, captioned "Poor News Sources," undertook to "correct several errors in well-known facts" in the two columns, two months old and three months old respectively. The letter was signed by "Margaret Long, Director of Information, Southern Regional Council."

It smiled benignly on the confusion of names, inaccurately quoting this column about the Legislature appropriating "thousands of dollars annually."

Atlanta 'Confused'

The next paragraph, saying that this column quoted "the American Legion's Firing Line to indicate connection between the Southern Regional Council and the SREB Council on Mental Health Training and Rsearch," is flatly false. There is no such quotation. If the American Legion's Firing Line ever heard of the latter organization, it makes no mention of it.

Finally, as a clincher, Race Intergrationist Director of Information Margaret Long, of the Southern Regional Council, declares:

"It is a matter of considerable astonishment here that Mr. Mahoney regards the Daily Worker, a notoriously unreliable Communist paper, as a source of information."

The Communists and the Southern Regional Council have one common goal, the racial integration of public schools in the Deep South. We can congratulate them on an Atlanta victory, where they've gotten several black feet in the doors of the white schools. Atlanta has been confused for a long time.

Dear Mr. Connell:

The column "Politics on Parade" by Sid Williams which appeared in the Star on July 20 contains serious errors. The second paragraph of this column states: "Miss Long has become director of information for the Southern Regional Council, that subversive organization which has been cited time after time as following the Communist line. She fits right in with this radical crowd."

Mr. Williams has a right to hold any opinion he wishes about Miss Long or the Southern Regional Council. He has no right to spread libelous falsehoods. The Council is a group of responsible Southerners whose dedication to democracy and the United States Constitution is beyond question. Further, the Council has never been "cited" by any agency of the national government concerned with subversive organizations.

If there are specific questions or concerns which the Star or Mr. Williams have about the Southern Regional Council, we shall be happy to answer them. In the meantime, we call to your attention this extremely serious matter of labeling persons with whom you disagree as "subversive".

POLITICS ON PARADE

By Sid Williams

"Politics on Parade" congratulates the Atlanta Journal for finally seeing the light and getting rid of the radical Margaret Long as a columnist. But, as everybody knows, the Journal acts with a lot more common sense than its little brother, the Atlanta Constitution.

Miss Long has become director of information for the Southern Regional Council, that subversive organization which has been cited time after time as following the Communist line. She fits right in with this radical crowd.

Miss Long, incidentally, was quoted recently as saying that she is opposed to the House Un-American Activities Committee of the U. S. Congress. She thinks it ought to be abolished. In this, she follows the exact thinking of the Communist Party in America.

Miss Long's daughter, Margaret Leonard (that's Miss Long's married name) was among those arrested in Jackson, Miss., as a "freedom rider". Recently, she was freed on bond. A picture taken of this girl showed her in the midst of the "riders", several of whom are known Communists. Miss Long is very much upset because her daughter's picture has appeared in several newspapers, but she ought to have thought about such adverse publicity when she taught her to disregard the laws of the various states.

This girl, also, was among the radicals taking part in the demonstrations in New Orleans against parents who wanted to preserve segregation of the Louisiana schools.

Speaking recently to the Georgia Association of County Welfare Directors, Alan Kemper, the Director of the State Department of Public Welfare, "took the hide off" the Atlanta Constitution and its "hatchet man", reporter Jack Nelson. Judge Kemper said, in part: "I picked up the Atlanta Constitution this morning and on the first editorial page they were quarreling about the Welfare Department and on the second editorial page they were peddling whiskey. You and I know that many of the major problems of the Welfare Department are caused by people peddling whiskey to people who should not drink.

"They have a hatchet man at the Atlanta Constitution by the name of Jack Nelson. Jack Nelson has one of the most vivid imaginations of any person in Georgia. William Shakespeare, the great dramatist, and Edgar Allen Poe, the father of the modern short story, could have well utilized the imaginative talents of Jack Nelson. You have heard that there is a little bad in the best of us and a little good in the worst of us, but Jack Nelson can take a little of the bad in the best of you and make you look like the worst of us. . . .

"The Atlanta Constitution has taken out after me and my popularity has increased many-fold. If I can get Khrushchev and the Daily Worker to criticize me, along with the Atlanta Constitution, I will be one of the most popular individuals in Georgia."

Dear Mr. Dunbar:

I appreciated your letter in which you commented on the editorial reference to the statement in the Wall Street Journal. I would have written you earlier but I did not save the column from which I quoted.

At my first opportunity I plan to go to the Library and recheck the quotation. We certainly do not want to do you an injustice and accordingly I will follow up on this and recheck our comment and the statement to which I referred.

Dear Mr. Emmerich:

I have just had an opportunity to read your editorial in the State Times of August 27 in which you attribute to the Southern Regional Council the statement: "If there is anywhere in the country that you would expect violence to get out of control it would be Mississippi."

From my reading of the paragraphs of the Wall Street Journal article which you reproduced it appears that the remark was made by "a Southerner", unidentified.

I happen to have been the "official of the Southern Regional Council" who was quoted in the preceding paragraph as saying, "There has been real improvement in this and other areas of race relations." I am unaware of any official of the Council having given the statement about Mississippi which followed.

The Council has been particularly impressed, as, I think, all observers of the southern scene have been, with the public order which has prevailed in Mississippi during recent months.

Sincerely yours,

They Predicted Violence But Jackson Upheld Law

By OLIVER EMMERICH

Violence should be accepted for what it really is. And the laws protecting people against violence must be applied rigidly.

There are reasons to believe that the South is growing less tolerant of violence and acts of intimidation. Leadership in the South is pushing harder toward the goal of tighter law enforcement.

When it can be said that the courts of the South, North, East or West prevail over violence and prejudice, the cause and the concepts of America are respected. This applies particularly in the realm of race—to the Orientals of California, the Mexicans of Arizona, the Portuguese of New York, the Indians of the West and as well to the Negroes of the South.

The Wall Street Journal recently reported instances to show that Southern people are becoming less tolerant of violence. While we find satisfaction in this recognized trend, we wonder why the Southern Regional Council quoted in the article, would single out Jackson, Mississippi, as the center of potential violence.

The Wall Street Journal says:

No one is willing to predict that the worst of such events is over, particularly with another round of school desegregation coming up and the tense situation in Jackson, Miss., resulting from "freedom rider" pressure. But an offiical of the Southern Regional Council in Atlanta says, "There has been real improvement in this and other areas of race relations." The council is a privately-supported group whose aim is to improve race relations in the South.

A basic reason for the current change is suggested by a Southerner who has watched it carefully. "You don't have mobs unless they are tacitly, or sometimes more than tacitly, supported by people in authority," he says. "There is lessened interest on the part of such people in employing violence. The proof is that no violence occurred in Jackson, Miss., when the freedom riders arrived. If there is anywhere in the country that you would expect violence to get out of control it would be Mississippi."

We seriously question the Southern Regional Council's observation: "If there is anywhere in the country that you would expect violence to get out of control it would be Mississippi."

Mississippi is the fourth ranking state in the Union as measured in obedience to law.

Our crime ratio is far below that of practically all of the states in the Union.

Why should the Southern Regional Council hold that greater odds for violence exist in Mississippi than in South Chicago where widespread violence is a nightly occurrence? It is unsafe for people to walk on the streets of Chicago after dark because of the danger of violence.

Why should it consider that violence has a greater ratio of expectancy in Mississippi than in New York where thousands of police are maintained around the clock to curb the threat of violence by murderous teenagers who often are beyond control?

Why should the Southern Regional Council center on Mississippi when just recently more than 3,000 youths got out of control along a California beach and attacked police, destroyed property and raped women promiscuously?

We editorially commend any effort to curb violence. The law of the claw and fang—the law of the jungle—must not prevail in any civilized society. But in its effort to oppose violence the Southern Regional Council should not join with provincial propogandists.

If violence was expected in Mississippi, then someone was grossly mistaken.

Jackson today, because of an invasion of freedom riders, is in the news headlines of the day. But law and order prevail in Jackson. The truth is that no city of considerable size in the United States can boast a better record for law and order. And as to violence—this city has a record for other cities to emulate.

Dear Bishop Murray:

In response to your inquiry of September 8, we are pleased to enclose a complete list of the officers and members of the Southern Regional Council. You will note that Mr. Williams is not a member of the Council.

Mr. Williams was a member of the Council from 1945 to 1950. Since 1950 he has not been associated with the organization. This charge undoubtedly arises out of the confusion which sometimes exists between the Southern Regional Council and the Southern Conference Education Fund, an organization with offices in New Orleans, which is the successor to the now extinct Southern Conference on Human Welfare. Mr. Williams has been the president of SCEF for some years.

In stating these facts we do not imply criticism of Mr. Williams or of the Southern Conference Education Fund since the Council tries very hard to avoid passing judgment on individuals or organizations working in the field of race relations at this difficult time in the South.

Incidentally, neither the Council nor any of its members have at any time been listed as "subsersive" by any agency or bureau of the Federal government concerned with these matters.

Also enclosed are a brief statement on the origin and aims of SRC and an editorial from the Richmond Times Dispatch which you may find of interest.

We deeply appreciate your inquiry and the interest and concern which it indicates. Please call on us at any time that we may be of help.

With all good wishes,

Sincerely,

Dear Sirs:

As you know, there is a considerable rash of accusations being made in these days against organizations and individuals with whom the accusers disagree, particularly trying to link them with communist activity.

Today I ran into a new one. I was informed that the head of the Southern Regional Council is one Aubrey Williams, who used to be a newspaper editor in Montgomery until he was run out of town, and that he is on the Attorney General's list of subversives.

I was under the impression that Mr. Lester Dunbar was the Director of the Southern Regional Council.

I would appreciate it if you would let me know whether Mr. Aubrey Williams has any connection with the Southern Regional Council. I would also appreciate it if you would let me have a list of officers and directors of the Southern Regional Council if that is available - perhaps it is on some printed circular so that it could be used to show that Mr. Williams did not stand in a position of leadership there, unless it is true that he does.

I am anxious to defend the Southern Regional Council in this matter because our Episcopal Church does make an annual contribution to it.

Very best wishes always.

Sincerely,

George M. Murray

Federal Judges Taking Orders, Claims Perez

LAKE PROVIDENCE — Blasts against the Kennedy administration, federal judges, Negro leaders, and Communists were leveled Monday night by segregationist Leander Perez at a barbecue here celebrating his 71st birthday.

The East Carroll Parish Citizens Council sponsored the affair, which was attended by about 300 persons.

Federal judges are carrying out orders of the U.S. Justice Department, Perez said, and "are not masters of their own souls."

He predicted some North Louisiana parishes could be "overwhelmed by a black cloud" brought on by the administration's determination to register every Negro adult in the South and declared that "somebody, somewhere along the line will have to stand up and test the power of government by injunction."

Khrushchev knew what he was talking about, Perez said, when he predicted future American generations will live under communism. "We have virtually lost our country to the leftist and so called liberal organizations."

He said the most important groups in Washington today are the Urban League, the NAACP, and the Southern Regional Council.

THE NEW YORK TIMES, WEDNESDAY, DECEMBE

DEFENSE DATE SET IN RED-LINK CASE

Advance Youth Seeks to Bar Communist-Front Label

The Subversive Activities Control Board has directed the Advance Youth Organization to begin its defense here next Wednesday against being labeled a Communist front.

Mrs. Mary M. Kaufman, counsel for Advance, said yesterday she had been notified by Robert L. Irwin, the hearing examiner, that her motion to dismiss the case had been rejected.

Dismissal had been sought on the ground that Attorney General Robert F. Kennedy had improperly hurt the defense last week when he petitioned the board to require two officers of Advance to register as Communist party members. The two —Mike Stein, president, and Marvin Markman, vice president—are to be major defense witnesses in the Advance case.

The case is the first initiated by Attorney General Kennedy to have an organization declared a Communist front. The Attorney General charged last January that Advance, with headquarters at 80 Clinton Street, had been set up by the Communist party to promote its aims and prepare candidates for party membership.

Front Charge Denied

If the Government action succeeds, Advance will have to register its members and report its activities to the Attorney General.

Advance has denied that it is a Communist-front organization. Mr. Stein described it in October as a "Marxist-oriented" New York City group of 200 young people.

Its members have taken part in "Freedom Rides," conducted civil rights meetings, picketed the Department of Justice in Washington, and demonstrated in this city against the security treaty between the United States and Japan.

The Government presented its case against Advance at 19 hearings here between Sept. 30 and Oct. 31. Mr. Irwin took testimony from 19 witnesses, of whom 11 were paid informers for the Federal Bureau of Investigation who had infiltrated the youth organization. Several witnesses swore they had known Mr. Stein as a Communist.

The hearing was adjourned to Nov. 18, when it was postponed to Dec. 2. On Monday, Mr. Irwin postponed the hearing pending his decision on the motion to dismiss.

The defense hearings, in the Federal Office Building at 641 Washington Street, are to continue to Dec. 20. If they are not completed by then, the schedule calls for a recess with resumption of the open hearings on Jan. 6.

Washington, January 14 -- Syndicated columnists Robert Allen and Paul Scott, writing in Human Events, report that U.S. planes have been fired upon more than a dozen times in recent months by Red Chinese warships in Haiphong harbor. Although no U.S. planes have been lost as a result of these Red Chinese attacks, the columnists point out. Several aircraft have been damaged. Allen and Scott also make clear that "these unannounced Chinese Communist attacks have been one - sided. Under ironclad White House orders, U.S. pilots have not returned the fire from the Communists' ships."

McNamara's Miscalculations

Washington, January 13 -- Representative Otis G. Pike (D.-N.Y.) charges that the U.S. Navy and Air Force face a serious shortage of attack planes because Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara was "so afraid to make a mistake" that theDefense Department has delayed in buying needed planes, and has taken too long to procure them once it was decided to begin procurement. "We put our money into missiles," says Pike, "and our enemies recognized this and put their efforts into guerrilla warfare." The New York Democrat, a Marine dive bomber pilot in World War II, was chairman of a special armed services subcommittee that staged a series of closed hearings into tactical air power late lat year. He hopes to organize another subcommittee this year to probe aircraft shortages.

Red Air Bases Are Safe

Washington, January 13 -- General Earle G. Wheeler, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, declares that four major Communist air bases in North Vietnam are safe from U.S. bombing attacks in the foreseeable future. Just back from a week's inspection visit to Vietnam, Wheeler tells reporters: "We've managed to deal rather effectively with MIG's, I think. There may come a time when we will have to do something more about that, but it isn't now." U.S. officials have estimated that the North Vietnamese air force has nearly 100 Soviet MIG jets, most of which are based in the vicinity of Hanoi.

Interview By An Independent Reporter With Michael Lisanti Concerning Charges Made Against Judge Frank M. Johnson, Richmond Flowers, Joe Breck Gantt, And Others

BY J. P. BENJAMIN

When Mr. Lisanti filed a petition for a Writ of Error Coram Nobis in the Covington County Circuit Court regarding a recent courtroom litigation of his, he accused Judge Frank M. Johnson, Richmond Flowers, and Joe Breck Ganntt (Assistant Attorney General under Flowers) of numerous state and federal level crimes. This is the second of four parts of the interview which took place last month, in Florala, Ala. In last week's Last week Mr. Lisanti accused Gant and his father of peonage and Richmond Flowers of ciminal negligence. This week, Mr. Lisanti goes into the theft of $21,000 worth of government owned tung oil and shows the connection between the Commodity Credit Corporation (the government corporation with which Billy Sol Estes was able to work most of his "deals") and the current accusations made in the petition.

Q. Mr. Lisanti, what does Judge Johnson's, Hartwell Davis's, and Richmond Flowers' criminal negligence have to do with your petition?

A. Obviously, Judge Frank M. Johnson Jr., Hartwell Davis, and Richmond Flowers were guilty of criminal negilgence by failing to prosecute Gantt. Therefore, since these people were already guilty of a crime, they were not qualified to act on any of my court litigations.

Q. Your petition mentions the theft of $21,000 worth of government owned tung oil by Tom Stromsen. Who owned the oil where was it stored before its theft?

A. The oil was owned by the United States Department of Agriculture and stored by Alabama Tung Mills.

Q. Are Alabama Tung Mills still in operation?

A. No. The Alabama Tung Mills were sent into receivership by C. H. of the Commodity Credit Corporation.

Q. C.h. Moseley sounds familiar to me. Wasn't he involved in some sort of scandal a few years ago?

A. Yes, He was involved in the Billy Sol Estes case.

Q. Back to Alabama Tung Mills. You said they had been sent into receivership by Judge Johnson. Why?

A. The Alabama Tung Mills were short several hundred thousand dollars worth of Tung Oil owned by the US Department of Agriculture and under the personal supervision of the C. H. Moseley.

Q. Who was the receiver appointed by Judge Johnson?

A. His former law clerk, George Azar.

Q. You said in your petition that Tom Stromsen stole $21,000 worth of Tung oil. Was any legal action taken?

A. Yes. Stromsen was indicted for the theft by a Covington County Grand Jury and his trial is still pending.

Q. How were Judge Johnson, Richmond Flowers, George Azar, and Joe Breck Gantt involved in this matter?

A. They attempted to obstruct justice by preventing the matter from coming to court.

Q. How did that happen?

A. On August 19, 1963, I swore out a Warrant for the arrest of George Azar for receiving and selling the tung oil stolen by Stromsen.

Q. What happened after that?

A. On October 2, 1963, since Azar was a US District Court Official the case was transferred from a state court to Judge Johnson's Federal court

45 Communist Goals Revealed In Congress

The following list of current Communist goals appeared in the Congressional Record January 10, 1963.

1. U. S. acceptance of coexistence as the only alternative to atomic war.

2. U. S. willingness to capitulate in preference to engaging in atomic war.

3. Develop the illusion that total disarmament by the United States would be a demonstration of moral strength.

4. Permit ree trade between all nations regardless of Communist affiliations and regardless of whether or not items could be used for war.

5. Extension of long-term loans to Russia and Soviet satellites.

6. Provide American aid to all nations regardless of Communist domination.

7. Grant recognition of Red China. Admission of Red China to the U. N.

8. Set up East and West Germany as separate states in spite of Khrushchev's promise in 1955 to settle the German question by free elections under supervision of the U.N.

9. Prolong the conferences to ban atomic tests because the United States has agreed to suspend tests as long as negotiations are in progress.

10. Allow all Soviet satellites individual representation in the U. N.

11. Promote the U. N. as the only hope for mankind. If its charter is rewritten, demand that it be set up as a one-world government with its own independent armed forces.

12. Resist any attempt to outlaw the Communist Party.

13. Do away with all loyalty oaths.

Buchanan Hits "Wasteful" Contracts Policy Of Defense Dept.

Washington, D. C. -- Congressman John H. Buchanan, Jr. of Alabama's Sixth District today assailed the "wasteful" military contracts policy of the Defense Department and its Secretary, Robert McNamara.

The Congressman quoted from Congress by the General Accounting Office (GAO), which accused the Defense Department of "wide-spread failure" to comply with the so-called "truth-in-negotiations" act of 1962.

"Following a thorough Congressional investigation," said Congressman Buchanan, "the Defense Department was directed to follow logical, cost-reducing procedures in its dealings with military suppliers. However, the GAO report revealed that of 185 prime and sub-contracts issued in the last four years the required cost and pricing data had been supplied on only 20 of them.

Congressman Buchanan continued: "While the Report does not estimate how much this failure to comply has cost the American taxpayer, the contracts reviewed totalled $600 million.

"This wasteful conduct contrasts most peculiarly with the economies claimed by Mr. McNamara in closing down some 14 Army installations, including the IV U.S. Army Corps headquarters in Birmingham.

"I have requested the Secretary of the Army to give me the specific ecomonies involved in the closing down of the Birm-

Dear Paul:

Enclosed is a copy of a little flyer handed out a while back in Memphis about a notorious revolutionary organization with which I believe you have some familiarity.

EPOC appears to be a John Birch Society front which is distributing a large quantity of literature about civil rights leaders and organizations operating in the Memphis area.

I thought you would like this for your scrapbook.

WHAT AND WHO IS THE SOUTHERN REGIONAL COUNCIL ? and WHO is Baxton Bryant, Executive Director of the Tennessee Council on Human Relations?????

A. The following is testimony given under oath at Hearings of General Legislative Investigating Committee - State of Mississippi 1962 Regular Session. Manning Johnson and Dr. J. B. Matthews testifying on the Southern Regional Council.

TESTIMONY OF MANNING JOHNSON: 10 years in the Communist Conspiracy in the Southeast - rejected Communism and began testifying in behalf of the United States of America.

SENATOR RAINACH: The Chair orders that Exhibit WJ-3 be made a part of the record of this committee (see page 152)

MANNING JOHNSON: I would like also- to save a little time - to introduce that article from the Daily Worker of March 9,1955,pg.4, which contains the names of the leaders of the Southern Regional Council, and I would like to say that the Southern Regional Council was formed by this fellow Jackson who was a member of the Communist Party. I would like to say it wouldn't have been as successful as it was if it were not for the fact that the little church office building presided over by Bishop Arthur Moore of the Methodist Church allowed them to have headquarters there at 63 Auburn Avenue.

QUESTION: Did I understand you to say that Jackson was the founder of the Southern Regional Council?

ANSWER: That's correct, according to the Daily Worker.

QUESTION: And they have offices - where did you say?

ANSWER: In a little church office building presided over by Bishop Arthur Moore of the Methodist Church.

QUESTION: That's in Atlanta, Georgia. Is that correct?

ANSWER: That is correct.

Note: The above testimony can be found on page 73 - Hearings of General Legislative Committee - State of Mississippi, 1962 Regular Session.

Note: According to FBI file # 85-441A - James E. Jackson, Jr. Southern Regional Director Communist Party USA and wanted for Conspiracy to Advocate the Violent Overthrow of the Government.

B. TESTIMONY OF DR. J. B. MATTHEWS: (a foremost anti-Communist) page 18 Hearings of General Legislative Investigating Committee State of Mississippi 1962 Regular Session.

DR. MATTHEWS: Now, these three organizations which I have referred to, namely, the Southern Regional Council, the Southern Conference Educational Fund, the Southern Conference for Human Welfare were characterized by interlocking personnel. I will read you the names of the individuals who were in the top bracket among officials in the Southern Regional Council and have also been affiliated with the Southern Conference for Human Welfare and or the Southern Conference Educational Fund.

Now, you may ask yourselves the question, how do these individuals manage to get into all of these organizations? Will W. Alexander, Rufus Atwood, Mrs. Daisy Bates, Mr. F. Woods Beckman, President A.D.Beittel, Rabbi Stanley Brau, Charlotte Hawkins Brown, Mrs. Myra J. Bryant, Louis E. Burnham, Mr. Hodding Carter, Paul R. Christopher, Rufus E. Clement, James McBride Dabbs, Frank Daniels, A.W.Dent, Albert D'Orlando, T.H. Easom, J. M. Ellison, Clark Foreman, Charles Gomillion, S.L. Greene, C.H. Hamlin, Gordon B. Hancock, H. C. Trenholm, Don West, Aubrey W. Williams and Marion A. Wright.

I have named individuals who were on the Board of Directors at one time or another of the Southern Regional Council and also were affiliated with the Southern Conference for Human Welfare and/or the Southern Conference Educational Fund.

(end of Dr. Matthews testimony)

C. Southern Regional Council is the recipient of Ford, Fund for the Republic grants of $497,000.00 Fund for the Republic grants began with the Ford Motor Company. Southern Regional Council is the parent organization of 12 statewide Councils on Human Relations operated only in the Southern States. Southern Regional Council has been able to exploit the facilities of religion and education because of a quasi-religious status afforded by occupancy of space in a building owned by a huge church. The leadership of few units of the Communist apparatus have records of Communist affiliations which exceed those of present and past directors of Southern Regional Council.

Rockefeller-Backed Council Makes Trouble For Schools

SNIDE BARS

By BART ENDER

Rockefeller v. Bernard?

Reports are that the W. Rockefeller people are carrying on an extensive program of voting-procedure instruction in areas of substantial Negro population. It is said the registrants are being advised that in order to avoid confusion, they should simply put their "X" in the Rockefeller box on the ballot and forget all the rest of the candidates.

Such reports, if accurate, would indicate that the governor is something less than concerned about Republican Senatorial Candidate Bernard's efforts to unseat Bill Fulbright. Bernard's chances of victory would diminish to zero in the absence of extremely heavy support by Negro voters.

"Gazette Press Services"

Because they serve clients having many different kinds of axes to grind, the two big national wire services, Associated Press and United Press International, make an attempt to play so-called hard news down the middle without too much bias in any direction. That, however, apparently doesn't suit the purposes of "committed" newspapers such as the Arkansas Gazette.

Too small to be able, like a New York Times or Chicago Tribune, to field a team that would report national news in terms of its own editorial policy, the Gazette makes do with rewriting AP and UPI dispatches so that certain aspects of the news may be emphasized and others either given scant notice or ignored altogether.

Thus, above articles about national politics or racial matters, particularly those involving rioting and attacks on police, campus disorders and the like, Arkansas Gazette readers are likely to see this line of type: "From Gazette Press Services." That line indicates the ensuing article was prepared by a Gazette employee whose livelihood depends on his seeing things the way the editors of the newspaper want it to be seen.

'News'—Slanted, Seldom Straight

Public disclosure by the Federal Communications Commission that Chet Huntley, the NBC "news" broadcaster who has been sounding off against the new federal meat inspection law, had ranching and cattle feeding interests provides just one more small glimpse into the back-room management of news.

Millions of Americans are thoroughly disgusted with the brazenly slanted and tendentious manner in which television and newspaper reporters have used their media to blacken the image of police, certain public officials, selected candidates for office, corporations—in fact, anyone or anything smacking of "conservatism." Contrariwise, many have worked unceasingly to build up and promote rioters, demonstrators, subversives and their ilk. The public revulsion against this sort of thing alone is sufficient to explain the phenomenal growth of support for a politician such as George Wallace who gives expression to it

Warrant of Week

(Note: This is not intended as criticism in any sense; the purpose is to broaden the knowledge of taxpayers.)

It is costing the Governor's Office $100 per month to have the office cleaned up, warrants written against the maintenance appropriation show. The services of the Capitol's maids and clean-up corps operated from the office of Secretary of State Kelly Bryant were dispensed with and a North Little Rock firm, Peterson, Inc., hired the second week of July.

Warrant 32610 for $60 paid the July bill; No. 45584 paid $100 for August service.

About the same time A. E. Linzel and Son, Little Rock locksmiths, installed three locks, changed one combination, and supplied 20 keys. The bill, paid with warrant 32609, came to $57.20.

Also charged recently to the Governor's appropriation was $104.43 travel expense for Bob Scott (warrant 42615) to reimburse $93.63 spent "in conjunction with attendance at the 98th Annual Congress of Correction" at the San Francisco (Calif.) Hilton Hotel and $10.80 for mileage on two trips to Tucker Farm when "all state-owned vehicles were in use." Air-Land-Sea Travel Agency received warrant 42616 to pay the $208 air transportation cost.

$17,000 Used To Draw $76,000 Federal Money

The Governor's Contingency Fund was tapped again July 15 to set up another state agency with a $1,500 a month job for the head man.

This time the Governor's proclamation, noting the federal government was supplying $76,000 for the purpose, drew upon the Contingency Fund for an additional $17,062 of state funds, whereupon the Governor's Council on Early Childhood Development was in business.

Of the $17,062, $12,600 was earmarked for salaries. From July 1 to date the $1,500 a month for the new agency's director, Dr. Walter L. Hodges, plus $250 a month for one D. M. Dixon, have been the agency's only expenditures from state funds except for $276.65 paid I.B.M. Corporation for rental on a typewriter and a selectric composer, and two payments to the State Retirement Matching Fund to match deducts from the two employes' salaries.

Purpose of the Council as set forth in the proclamation:

"...will not only coordinate efforts of various public and private agencies and aid in the development of a continuity of services...but also will be charged with responsibility of advising Governor in such areas as identifying problems in meeting health, educational and social needs of the children of Arkansas..."

Dr. Luck Demands Retraction; Did WR's 'Outlook' Apologize?

OUR STATEMENT

In its September 13 issue, this newspaper published an article containing the following statement:

"Two years ago, Dr. H. D. Luck of Arkadelphia with his 'Democrats for Arkansas'—and with at least $10,000 from Winthrop Rockefeller—laid the ground work for the 'Democrats for Rockefeller' who spent lavishly to build up Rockefeller's big Pulaski County majority."

DR. LUCK'S RETORT

From Dr. Luck comes the following letter:

"In the September 13, 1968, issue of The Daily Record (Statewide Weekend Edition) you have made a very serious error which I insist must be clarified in the next issue of your newspaper.

"The offending material as printed on the front page of your paper is as follows: 'Two years ago, Dr. H. D. Luck of Arkadelphia with his 'Democrats for Arkansas'....and with at least $10,000 from Winthrop Rockefeller laid the ground work for the 'Democrats for Rockefeller' who spent lavishly to build up Rockefeller's big Pulaski County majority.' I think that such a statement can be politically injurious to me and my future in the Democratic Party. Rockefeller did not contribute $10,000 to Democrats for Arkansas, nor did he contribute through anybody else. The largest single contribution to DFA was $50.00, with most of the contributions being $25.00 or less. There is no record of any contribution from Winthrop Rockefeller. Not even a dollar.

"The statement in your newspaper is false and I must insist on a retraction published in a place of equal conspicuousness."

REPUBLICAN VERSION

In February 1966, the "Outlook," Mr. Rockefeller's Republican house organ stated;

"Mr. Rockefeller gave Dr. Luck $10,000 for the voter registration effort...Dr. Luck believed Mr. Rockefeller had the best interests of Arkansas at heart when he asked for help ..."

FREEDOM, INC. Seeks Members To Aid Schools

"The governed," scorned by the U. S. Supreme Court, ignored by a majority of the Congress and treated with contempt by the federal bureaucracy, are making themselves heard in this political year.

First there was the surge of rebellious Democrats, disillusioned Republicans and hopeful independents to the banner of George Wallace for President.

Then came the initial steps for a nationwide organization bearing the name FREEDOM, INC., dedicated to recovering and protecting for the people the control of their local schools.

In this organization rests the best, and perhaps last, hope for saving the public schools of many areas from the fate that has befallen those of Washington, D. C., and New York City.

FREEDOM, INC., must have the means for employing the best legal talent available to intervene in behalf of local school systems wherever they are attacked in the federal courts—and that's just about everywhere, directly or indirectly.

On page 6 is FREEDOM, Inc., policy statement.

Governor Adds $8,000 Yearly to Foundations' Aid

Behind the turmoil threatening orderly administration of public schools in this state is the Arkansas Council on Human Relations.

It is an organization with few members, money from tax-exempt foundation sources, a well-paid staff and virtually unlimited access to the news columns of the Arkansas Gazette and Arkansas Democrat.

Behind the Human Relations Council are the Rockefeller and Ford Foundations, which channel their grants through the Southern Regional Council of Atlanta, Ga.

Supplementing that financing is $8,000 a year from Gov. Winthrop Rockefeller which he allocates from the Rockefeller Brothers Fund. (This Fund should not be confused with the much-larger Rockefeller Foundation.)

The $8,000 annual gift attributable to the governor was revealed in a report to a subcommittee of the House Select Committee on Small Business.

From 1959 through 1966, Winthrop Rockefeller put $3,939,591 into the Rockefeller Brothers Fund, but only $1,108,300 came back to Arkansas as grants.

From 1961 through 1966, the gifts to the Human Relations Council totaled $48,000—averaging $8,000 a year. However, in 1964, year of WR's first campaign for governor, he let the Council have $10,000, but cut the 1966 grant to $6,000, thus maintaining the $8,000 average.

An Ashmore Creation

The Human Relations Council was incorporated late in 1954 and became active in 1955 under the guidance of Harry S. Ashmore, then the executive editor of the Arkansas Gazette and an agent of the Ford Foundation.

Through the ensuing years, the Council has conducted several membership drives, but recently let it be known that it has only 1,149 members, including 13 outside the state.

In Little Rock, with 426 members, of whom 155 are new, it is devising ways of applying pressure to the School Board, the City Board of Directors and the City Civil Service Commission in an effort to assure for Negroes, not equality but preferential treatment.

In North Little Rock, with 37 members, of whom 28 are new, the Council is imposing its will on the city administration in various ways.

During the period of Winthrop Rockefeller support, the Council has been instrumental in planning and executing many demonstrations, including the recent march on the courthouse.

It collaborated with the Student Nonviolent Coordinating Committee before that outfit's public commitment to outlawry made further open support inadvisable.

Turn to pages 4 & 5.

WE DON'T MIND TELLING...

Since we are soliciting subscriptions for the campaign period, it is only fair to state where we stand.

Our ballot shall be cast for Marion Crank and the entire Democratic ticket. There is no alternative to the Rockefeller rule which has:

(a) brought the state government to the brink of insolvency;

(b) used inherited wealth to overwhelm impressionable voters, and to corrupt many;

(c) created racial frictions where none existed before with resultant disorders and harassment of school boards and local government.

Like many others, we would have enjoyed voting for David Pryor for governor, but he did not run. If Ted Boswell had not sounded more and more like a Rockefeller disciple as the campaign progressed, we might have been in his camp.

However, since the immediate problem is to re-establish fiscal responsibility, Mr. Crank doubtless will be in position to serve the state more effectively than any who were mentioned as potential candidates.

As for the "old guard" label, it applies more to Rockefeller than to Crank. The former was a member of the Faubus administration—"machine"—for nine years. Crank was an elected representative, not a Faubus appointee, during that period.

Count 'em—84-1/2 inches of Propaganda in Wednesday's Gazette . . . . Inspired by WR's Arkansas Council on Human Relations. It has only 1,149 members in State . . 426 in Little Rock But it cracks Whip Over Governor, City Officials and School Boards

If you lacked time for a thorough brainwashing September 15 from WR's Human Relations Council and the Gazette, you'll find the whole treatment in the shaded area on these pages.

The patronizing attitude of the Council, its financial "angel" Winthrop R. and the Gazette relegates the Negro to "second class citizen" status. Many discerning members of that race resent it. For example, see the letter at the top right which was published in the Memphis Commercial Appeal.

Relations Council Reports Fewer Negro

By DOUG SMITH
Of the Gazette Staff

In most Arkansas school districts that have desegregated their faculties, the result has been fewer Negro teachers in the district, according to the Arkansas Council on Human Relations.

The Council has just completed a statewide study of faculty desegregation. The study says, in conclusion, "We suggest that there is a serious lack of professional leadership on the part of the state Department of Education, local school administrators, boards of trustees and others having to do with public education in the state of Arkansas. These people, as we see it, have not prepared and at present are not making any serious efforts to prepare the community to accept full desegregation of student bodies and faculties.

"If the present trend of faculty desegregation continues in the state, we are likely to, in the next 10 years, find ourselves fighting the same kind of desegregation fight as happened in the North before the 1954 Supreme Court decision when there were very few Negroes who taught in the public schools outside of the Northern ghetto," the Council said.

The Council said that although there had been a measurable degree of student desegregation in most districts in the state, "faculty desegregation through 1967 was almost nonexistent," in spite of guidelines issued by the federal Health, Education and Welfare Department. The Council said the 1965 guidelines called for integrated staff meetings in the first year of faculty desegregation and the 1966 guidelines required active desegregation of the school staff.

Small school districts have not yet fully complied with the 1965 guidelines, the Council said. "These districts, for the most part, hold one desegregated faculty meeting at the beginning of the year and nothing more is done that suggests any kind of faculty desegregation until the next year," the Council said.

Says Trends Followed, Not the Guidelines

As for the guidelines requiring actual staff desegregation, the Council said it appeared that most districts had followed trends that came out of the Fort Smith and Morrilton Districts.

"In 1966, when the Fort Smith School District desegregated the secondary schools, there were 21 teachers and the principal at the all-Negro junior-senior high school," the Council said. "Of this number, only seven have been retained as junior and senior high school instructors and the two teachers in the senior high school hold positions as librarian and counselor. Other teachers in the District were offered positions that were inconsistent with their training and experience. For example, the principal whose training and experience had been in school administration, was offered a position as a classroom teacher. As a result, the principal and 14 other teachers chose to leave the public school system in Fort Smith.

"This is similar to the situation that developed in the Jonesboro public schools, where the principal, despite his training in school administration, was offered a position as a classroom teacher," The Council said. "In Carthage, Arkansas, where the principal had more thn 15 years tenure and 10 or more of these as a school administrator, he too was offered a position as a classroom teacher and subsequently left the state to take an administrative position in the state of Oklahoma. These cases, we feel, represent a clear violation of the spirit and letter of the 1966 guidelines of the Office of Health, Education and Welfare."

The Council said that when the Morrilton schools were desegregated in 1966, there were seven Negro teachers and one principal in the predominantly Negro high school who were qualified to teach in Arkansas public schools by the Education Department. The Arkansas Teachers Association filed suit to seek retention of two of the teachers and the court held that the two teachers, with others who had not been awarded contracts, were entitled to contracts and to damages where they could be proven. Only one of the teachers chose to return, the Council said.

Assert 1954 Decision Also Affected Faculties

"We cite the Morrilton case because we believe that this decision should have suggested to other school boards that were to desegregate later that the intent of the 1954 Supreme Court decision did in fact mean faculty desegregation as well as student desegregation," the Council said.

However, that has not been

Resources Council Advises the Police On the Proper Way to Make an Arrest

Ozell Sutton, director of the Governor's Council on Human Resources, has sent two memoranda on the police and community relations to officials and leaders in principal Arkansas cities.

The first was addressed to "Mayors, City Managers, and Chiefs of Police" and gave recommendations for improving police-community relations, with special emphasis on minority groups. Included was a suggested "Code of Conduct" for the police.

Sutton said in the memorandum, "It is safe to say that most racial or ethnic conflicts during the past several years have been triggered by police action. This memorandum makes no effort to assess blame for these conflicts, but suggests some ways by which conflicts of a racial nature might be reduced in number and intensity. All Arkansans, I am sure, are aware of the need to improve the relationship between law enforcement officers and private citizens, especially minority citizens."

In the introduction to the "Code of Conduct" Sutton said, "The primary objective of law enforcement officers is to give substance to those guarantees which promise every person his right to pursue his lawful business and pleasure in an orderly and tranquil society. The lawful exercise of police power accomplishes this by respecting the dignity of the individual.

"A police officer must be moderate, tolerant, impersonal and exercise self-restraint in daily contact with the public. Verbal abuse is no less reprehensible than physical abuse. Profanity and or derogatory terms relating to a person's race, color, creed, or national origin have no place in police work and are forbidden," the memorandum continued.

"Policemen must act, speak, and conduct themselves in such a manner as to treat all persons with complete courtesy and with that respect due every person in recognition of his creation in the image of God," the memorandum said.

"Policemen are forbidden to use such derogatory terms as 'Wop,' 'Krout (sic),' 'Dago,' 'Kike,' 'Nigger,' 'Boy,' 'Girl,' 'Burrhead,' 'Jig,' 'Redneck,' 'Shine,' 'Spook,' 'Polock (Sic),' 'Chink,' and the like," the memorandum said.

"Policemen are instructed to refer to all women as Mrs. Lady, or Madam and all men as Mr. or Sir," the memorandum said.

Rules Outlined On Use of Force

Officers should use "only the amount of force needed" in making an arrest, the memorandum said. "Officers will remain calm and controlled under the provocation of verbal abuse."

"When force is used an officer must:

"1. Be acting officially within the bounds of the law.

"2. Have sufficient cause as would appear reasonable to a prudent man, to fear for his personal safety.

"3. Make certain that the force employed is not such as a prudent man would consider excessive, unreasonable, or unnecessary."

"4. Feel that there is no acceptable alternative."

The memorandum said, "There shall be no application of force once a person has submitted to arrest or complied with legal police orders * * *. The policeman's job is to prevent crime and to detect and apprehend offenders, not to punish. The policeman must remember that the impartial administration of justice is the foundation of liberty."

Right to Counsel Is Explained

The memorandum concluded by giving rules for informing suspects of the charge against them, their rights to communicate with and procure counsel, and their rights to request preliminary examination when charged with a felony. "A person arrested has, from the moment of arrest, a right to procure and confer with counsel and to use a phone or send a messenger for the purpose of communicating with relatives, friends, or counsel," the memorandum said. "An arrestee has the right to refuse to give any information other than name, address, etc."

"A complaint of brutality against an officer is a serious charge and should not be used lightly by the general public. Such charges, however, will be thoroughly checked. If the charge is substantiated by the evidence, the officer will be dealt with accordingly. In any case, the charges will be examined and a report given to those citizens lodging the charge, the "Code of Conduct" ended.

Second Deals With Minorities

The second memorandum was addressed to "Officials, Civic Leaders, and Concerned Persons" and Sutton said it had been sent to leaders in principal Arkansas cities, as well as some civic and fraternal groups and chambers of commerce in the cities. Its subject was "Communicating with Minorities."

The memorandum said that race relations were America's oldest unsolved problem, and that they were now at a stage of crisis. It said that better communications between racial groups could be a step to finding solutions to racial problems, and gave three recommendations to the leaders of ways of establishing better communications.

These included setting up a series of meetings of white and Negro leaders where critical problems might be discussed and solutions sought, inviting of concerned and articulate Negro leaders to speak before civic, community welfare, religious, and fraternal groups so whites could hear from Negroes how Negroes view the problems, and establishing of an official, properly constituted human relations commission to work towards identifying and solving problems that tend to cause racial tension and conflict.

The memorandum gave assurances that the staff of the Human Resources Council would be available to help communities in their efforts to achieve racial peace and equality.

Sutton said he sent the memoranda which he said were "simply suggestions," out on his own, and that the governor had not seen them. He said he had been engaged in research for the police "Code of Conduct" for some time, and had read several cities' codes before writing his own.

Parsons Says a Zoning Plan Is Only Way to Desegregate Unless More Funds Received

Superintendent Floyd W. Parsons said Tuesday night that unless the Little Rock School District received more money from its patrons, a plan of geographic attendance zones for each school was the only way that the District could meet federal requirements to achieve a racially unified school system.

Parsons made the statement at a meeting of the Little Rock Council on Human Relations at the Dunbar Community Center. William R. Meeks, a member of the School Board, also attended the meeting.

Federal Judge Gordon E. Young has given the School Board until November 15 to prepare a comprehensive plan for pupil and faculty desegregation that will abolish the "present dual biracial school system in Little Rock."

A member of the audience asked Parsons if there wasn't perhaps some alternative to zoning, which would likely be controversial on two counts: (1) It would require some white students to attend predominantly Negro schools and (2) some schools, such as Hall High, still would have practically no desegregation.

"Without money, we can't do anything but zoning," Parsons said. "Change always costs money."

"Little Rock has a choice to make," another member of the audience said, and Parsons quickly agreed. "Little Rock has a choice to make," he said, putting the emphasis on "Little Rock."

His Proposal Was Rejected

"We [the Board and administration] made a choice a year ago," Parsons said. "It was defeated three to one." He was referring to the Parsons Plan for school desegregation, which he prepared and which was rejected by the voters when it was put forward in the form of a millage increase to finance its proposals.

Parsons was asked what would happen if the federal court ordered a desegregation plan that would cost more money but the voters, who must approve all millage increases, still wouldn't go along. "We haven't found out yet," Parsons said.

Both Parsons and Meeks said, however, that it hadn't been decided yet whether a zoning plan or some other type of desegregation plan would be submitted to the Court. Meeks said several proposals had been made.

Meeks said he felt that the Board would want to achieve a faculty ratio of about 70 per cent white and 30 per cent Negro in each school this year, rather than doing it in some schools this year and some later. Judge Young said that if the Board didn't submit an acceptable faculty desegregation plan by November 15, he would order that the racial composition of each faculty be roughly equal to the ratio of white teachers and Negro teachers employed by the District. Parsons said he didn't think Judge Young meant that each school had to have that ratio next year, but he said the only fair way to do it was all at once. Meeks said the teacher reassignments necessary to achieve that ratio would be made by a committee, possibly consisting of representatives of the administration plus representatives of teachers' and pupils' organizations.

In answer to a question teacher reaction to the pe reassignments, Meeks sa thought there was some hension.

"When the DeWitt school de-gregated its high school, only e Negro teacher was chosen teach in the district and she s to teach in the elementary hool," the Council said. "The ackover School District total-desegregated more than 300 gro students while retaining ly 3 out of 13 Negro teachers. son, Arkansas, with a total of Negro teachers, retained only o Negro teachers. In the rthage District, where there re 10 Negro teachers and one incipal at the time the school ard desegregated its system, ere were only four Negro chers at the time of this dy. In the Kingsland District, ere there were two Negro chers, there are none now. In 7, when the Tuckerman hool District went to a unified hool system, there were seven ck teachers and one black incipal. At the present time, re is only one black teacher, o is now working in the li-ry."

The Council said that in 1963-(which it said was the last r the Education Department orted on the race of students), there were about 3,000 Negro students in the nine districts studied, with 128 black teachers and 9 black principals. In August of this year, there were fewer than 40 Negro teachers and no Negro principals, it said.

'Taken Over, Not Taken In'

The study also went into the attitudes of Negro students in the absence of Negro teachers. It said that of 300 Negro students and parents interviewed, most had the feeling that, as one student put it, "We've been taken over and not taken in."

Many students felt that although white teachers might have no outward racial prejudice, they still couldn't understand the problems of Negro students, the Council said. Some also feel that they are not considered for school activities such as dramatics and glee clubs, that they are not recognized for classroom participation and that they are ignored by the student body on the playground.

"In all these districts, what been traditionally considered school social functions have now been either deleted or held as private affairs," the Council said. "For example, most of the districts had heretofore held high school junior-senior proms; some have now reverted to junior-senior 'banquets' with no proms and others have no social functions."

State Colleges Also Criticized

The study also was critical of the state colleges and universities. It said that with the exception of Arkansas A M and N College at Pine Bluff, a Negro school, the Council was unable to find even "token" integration of the faculties and staffs of state-supported institutions of higher learning. "Possible exceptions might be one person at the University [of Arkansas] Medical Center who is primarily doing research with little teaching and a very low percentage who are teaching in the newly formed community colleges and vocational trade schools."

The Council concluded that both the public schools and the colleges and universities were using "the same old cliches that we have heard so long from private industry: 'We are willing to hire Negro teachers if we can find qualified ones.'" The Council said that in the case of the colleges and universities, a qualified Negro was one with a doctorate and several years of experience.

Elijah Coleman, executive director of the Council, said the study was made with a small grant from the Law Students Civil Rights Research Center, which he said was a private group that gave modest stipends to law students for doing civil rights research in the summer months.

'Teaching Needed For Young Blacks'

To The Commercial Appeal:

I would like to take issue with Prof. Trigg on an article written by H. A. Gilliam Jr. stating that black Americans place race before country (Sept. 2).

"Breathes there the man with soul so dead, who never to himself has said: This is my own my native land." I believe most black Americans pay their allegiance first to their God, then to their country, then to mankind, then to race or ethnic groups, then to self.

The failure of the young blacks to realize the degree of importance in values is the failure of teachings.

The young black is taught that it is more honorable to own a $6,000 automobile than to own a $12,000 white trimmed brick.

To own something is to love it. God owned the world and He loved it so, until He gave His son to die on the cross for it.

The young blacks are not being taught that this country was not built on what was spent nor what was earned, but that which was saved.

The young blacks are not being taught that a seed must be saved to insure reproduction. That the seed of an "industrial country" is nothing more than the dollar. That these dollars can be planted in machines and industry.

The young blacks are not being taught that if they save a few of these seeds or dollars, and plant them in industry, they will become owners of the industries or the production of this country. Thereby becoming a part owner of this country. To own something is to love it.

The young blacks are not being taught that the 1940 Security and Exchange Act of Congress provided a way for them to own a part of this country on small installments plan, the same as they buy a stereo or television set.

The young blacks are not being taught that at one time the ownership of real property was one requirement for the privilege to vote. That this could happen again.

The young blacks are not being taught that there are only two "real properties" in this country. Namely land and stock. That in the same manner land increases the productivity of a seed or grain of corn, so does the machine increase the productivity of the seed or dollar planted in it.

The irony of this teaching business is the fact that those of us who have had time to get some "economic security," have fallen for the old con game of the system, "come on and buy this or that," things which have no real value.

We find ourselves in debt up to our necks, having spent ourselves into semi-poverty. These are the examples we have set up for our young blacks to learn by.

Crank Willing—Rockefeller Won't Reveal Campaign Cost

SNIDE BARS

By BART ENDER

Never Never Land

Far-Out Dealer Joe Clark, the Demo senator from Pennsylvania, apparently thought that just before the elections would be about the right moment for him to get out his piccolo and play a Pied Piper tune about the Great Rock Candy Mountains where everybody will be rolling in dough 'neath skies never cloudy nor gray.

So Clark issues a hundred-page report by his "Subcommittee on Employment, Manpower and Poverty," which proposes to "banish forever" the scourge of poverty from this broad land, say in ten-twenty years. How he gonna do it? Easy, man, easy.

Fust thing, he gonna raise the minimum wage to $2 an hour and then he gonna create two and a half million new jobs within two years and then he gonna pour billions (or is it trillions?) of tax dollars into the pockets of old folks, and poor folks, and all kinds of folks that wants to "escape poverty."

According to the subcommittee, poverty is income of $3,335 a year for a city family of four, $2,345 for a farm family of four. It therefore figures that some 30 millions of Americans are poverty-stricken.

Old Joe Clark is a great thinker and he thunk a great thought here. Only thing is, he didn't go strong enough. Let's make that minimum wage $10 an hour and that will give almost everybody a good raise. Then let's put all who claim they can't find suitable work on the federal payroll at a Civil Service classification of G-15. Then, let's see, the remaining millions who either don't want to work or who are physically incapable of doing so—we'll just pay each and every one of them a nominal subsistence of $100 a week out of the federal Treasury.

That ought to do it. Shucks, eradicating poverty is no sweat.

The Wages of Subterfuge

Now it's Candidate Bill Wells who is having a bit of trouble explaining how come he had so many chilluns on the state payroll. Says he gave the money to other juveniles who served briefly from time to time as legislative pages. Well, er ah . . .

The Democrat aspirant to the office of lieutenant governor blamed "hired political assassins" for bringing up such an embarrassing matter and he indignantly intimated that no ethical person would have mentioned it, much less questioned him as to who got the loot. But surely Candidate Wells is familiar with the H. Truman dictum: "If you can't stand the heat, get out of the kitchen."

This has been a rough, tough campaign at both state and national levels, with no holds barred. Anyone with a hide less resistant to abrasion than that of an alligator ought to engage in some business other than politics—especially the Arkansas variety.

The fact is that both Gubernatorial Candidate Marion Crank and Wells were simply stringing along with the crowd in tapping the state till by the device of putting members of their families on the legislative payroll. Those who did it rationalized the practice by al-

South-Baiters Downcast Over Rejection of Federal Control

With so many Negroes demanding segregation on their own terms in universities and in business, it's not surprising that the rapidly pro-integrationist Southern Regional Council of Atlanta, Ga. is discouraged.

Its special report entitled "Lawlessness and Disorder, Fourteen Years of Failure in Southern School Desegregation," is a bitter acknowledgment of failure. (Can the Arkansas Gazette be far behind?)

The Council's writers' bitterness is directed at white Southerners, whom it holds responsible for the failure. The report is oblivious of the extent of desegregation failures in the North, although it is there, in New York and Chicago at this moment, that crises confront school authorities.

Chief fallacy in the SRC report is its assumption that the United States Supreme Court can manufacture "law of the land" out of sociological theory without the consent of the governed. It is that consent which is lacking. The Court failed in its obligation to interpret rather than make law when it knocked out state laws

Professor Max Milam of Fayetteville, whose "Administrative Reorganization in Arkansas" study, distributed earlier this month, proposed a grandiose plan for concentrating all administrative authority at the state Capitol in the governor's office, has now turned up as a "health planning" expert, too.

The governmental reorganization study purportedly was financed by a grant from the Rockefeller Brothers Fund, but when he was wearing his "health planner" hat, Professor Milam, who, incidentally is a political science associate pro-

Law's Limit On Candidate Cited In Council Action

Win or lose, Gov. Winthrop Rockefeller faces the prospect of eventually having to let the people of Arkansas know how much he has spent to influence their votes.

Senator Richard E. Griffin of Crossett, citing the law which limits a candidate's expenditures of his own funds to one year's salary, sponsored a resolution adopted by the Legislative Council Wednesday which requested candidates for all the state constitutional offices and for United States senator to make their campaign expense records available to the legislative auditor, Orvel Johnson.

Crank Willing

The word from the headquarters of Marion Crank, Rockefeller's Democratic challenger, was that he was willing to comply with the Griffin resolution.

Not so, Mr. Rockefeller. He was too busy, he told the press, to talk about such a petty matter as his political "investments." He did not say that later he would take the time; on the other hand he didn't say he would not.

But he has evaded queries as to his 1964 and 1966 expenses, so there's no reason to anticipate greater frankness on his part in the future.

State Tax-Take Up $9 Million In July-October

Arkansas taxpayers are a generous lot.

They keep shelling out more and more money for the operation of the state government, undeterred by the uses to which some of it is put. (See the Warrant of the Week.)

Revenue Department' October collections were nearly $4,000,000 more than in the same month of 1967; and for the first four months of this fiscal year, the increase is in excess of $9,000,000.

General Revenues, subject to allocation to schools, welfare, colleges and universities, cities and counties and other purposes not supported by Special Revenues, totaled $15,921,684 in October, compared with $13,979,776 the same month in 1967.

For the four months period, General Revenues reached $64,423,563, against $58,014,505 in 1967.

Special Revenues, mostly for the Highway Department, cities and counties, jumped to $7,852,706 in October, whereas October last year produced only $5,871,211.

The combined General and Special totals were $102,608,429 for four months this fiscal year and $93,432,361 in the corresponding period in 1967.

(Photographic Reproduction of Ford Foundation Announcement for "blacks" only)

If these corporate profits had been paid as taxes, government—federal, state, local—could not have restricted its expenditure to white students only. How then can the Foundation legally discriminate against white students in disbursing the same money?

DOCTORAL FELLOWSHIPS FOR BLACK STUDENTS

A NEW PROGRAM OF FINANCIAL AID FOR SELECTED BLACK AMERICAN MEN AND WOMEN WHO PLAN TO:

- enter graduate school for full-time study,
- major in the humanities, the social sciences, or the natural sciences,
- continue study through the Ph.D., and
- embark on a career of college teaching.

ANNOUNCEMENT FOR 1969-1970

Approximately 40 Fellows will be named by distinguished faculty selection committees. Decisions will be based upon the candidate's seriousness of purpose, his undergraduate academic record, his scores on the Graduate Record Examinations, and the recommendations of three members of the faculty at his college. The initial award will be for one year, but it will be renewed annually for up to four additional years if the Fellow maintains satisfactory progress toward the Ph.D.

The amount of the award will vary for each Fellow each year according to individual circumstances. Each year the award will cover (a) the full tuition and fees required by the graduate school the Fellow chooses to attend, (b) an annual allowance of $200 for books and supplies, and (c) a monthly stipend to help pay the Fellow's living costs.

The monthly stipend for 1969-1970 will be $250 for a Fellow who is single, $300 if married with no children, $325 if married with one child, and $350 if married with two or more children. Each annual award will be either for nine months (academic year only) or twelve months (includes summer session).

To be eligible for consideration, a candidate must have received his bachelor degree during 1967 or 1968, or he must expect to receive that degree on or before September 1969. A student is ineligible if he is already engaged in professional or graduate study.

Each candidate immediately should make his own arrangements to take the Graduate Record Examinations. (October 8th is the registration deadline for the October 26th administration of the GRE; November 19th is the deadline for the December 14th administration.) Each candidate also should make his own plans for securing admission to the graduate school he wishes to attend.

The deadline for returning completed applications for this fellowship is January 31, 1969.

The names of fellowship recipients will be announced on or about April 15, 1969.

Interested and eligible students should request an application form immediately by writing to threatened, but they were shocked at the speed with which he dissipated the Treasury reserves of about $40,000,000. Happenings in the Legislative Council in recent days indicate that the lawmakers have no intention of closing their eyes to the extravagance and mismanagement that is the distinguishing mark of the Rockefeller administration.

MORE SUBSIDIZED PROPAGANDA

Frequent reference has been made in this newspaper to the Southern Regional Council of Atlanta, Ga., the recipient of huge grants from Rockefeller and Ford Foundations that have been used to incite racial conflict and at times to foment demonstrations in many cities—including Little Rock and Pine Bluff.

In Arkansas, the SRC's affiliate is the Arkansas Council on Human Relations, a particular pet of Gov. Winthrop Rockefeller who has augmented allocations from the major foundations by directing that $8,000 per year be paid the Council by the Rockefeller Brothers Fund, which is small and operates separately from, if not independently of, the Rockefeller Foundation.

Last week, the Southern Regional Council released a report, which was the basis of a dispatch published in the Arkansas Gazette, in which it stated that integration as mapped by the federal courts and the U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare had been, and is, a "colossal failure."

What was not clear from the SRC report was whether it deemed desegregation a "failure" because federal interference in local affairs had not precipitated enough violence to satisfy the revolutionary urge, or because the majority of Negroes and whites are not sold on the various schemes enunciated by the courts, enacted into law by the Congress and guidelined by HEW.

The latest propaganda product of the SRC to come to our attention is a recently published book entitled "The American Negro Revolution," subtitled "From Nonviolence to Black Power 1963-67." The author is a Virginian, Benjamin Muse, a member of the Board of Directors of the Southern Regional Council. In a preface, he thanks the Rev. Aubrey N. Brown, president, Virginia Council on Human Relations; Lloyd J. Elliott, staff economist, Southern Regional Council, and Pat Watters, director of information, Southern Regional Council, for their assistance.

Obviously, it was a subsidized production, just as was Harry S. Ashmore's "The Negro and the Schools," which the Ford Foundation financed for publication in 1954. The Potomac Institute, of which the president is Harold C. Fleming, apparently was the medium through which foundation funds were provided for the Muse book. Fleming's foreword acknowledges that the Potomac Institute could "claim a share of the credit. . . for having made this book possible."

The Book is propaganda with a political purpose, and funds used for it should not be tax exempt. It professes to have Negroes' interest at heart, but it emphasizes, by examples it cites, that the SRC considers them so much election chattel, to be delivered in bloc to selected candidates. It boasts that it was Negro votes that enabled Lyndon Johnson to carry Arkansas in 1964.

It quotes a Voter Education Project (SRC) survey report of December 1966 which asserted that "the Negro vote clearly provided the margin for Winthrop Rockefeller's election as governor of Arkansas."

What is not brought out is that Rockefeller spent several million dollars, in obvious contravention of election laws, in the process of acquiring the Negro vote. In so doing, he displayed a contempt for Negroes which those with genuine pride and reason for self-respect must surely resent.

SNIDE BARS

hardly-drawn conclusions of mankind over a million-year span will still be there.

Political Accusations

On the subject of campaign charges and counter charges, a newsletter recalls the allegations once made by a Florida politician against his opponent, as follows:

"Are you aware that the candidate is known all over Washington as a shameless extrovert? Not only that but this man is reliably reported to have practiced nepotism with his sister-in-law and he has a sister who was once a thespian in wicked New York. He matriculated with co-eds at the university, and it is an established fact that before his marriage he habitually practiced celibacy."

That "Rusty Knife"

All those mush-brained dimwits who are lending support, vocal or written, to Communism's worldwide operations designed to force capitulation by the United States to North Vietnam should be held by the scruff of the neck while someone reads to them an article in the November issue of Reader's Digest entitled "The Blood-Red Hands of Ho Chi Minh."

The incredibly cruel atrocities committed by the Viet Cong and the North Vietnamese as a calculated instrument of terror against helpless villages of the South reveal only too plainly the nature of our enemy. Let no one be so dumb as to imagine that the same sort of fiendishness would not be visited on Americans living in the United States if and when the Communists' guerrilla warfare in this country should achieve sufficient force and momentum.

The pinheads of "liberalism" raised a great screeching over General LeMay's remark that if he had to die, he would rather be killed by a nuclear bomb than by a rusty knife. Well, who wouldn't? About the time these caterwaulers against LeMay had some of their parts severed by the rusty knife, they would change their tune in a hurry.

Miscellany

We've said it before, will say it again: The vicious campaigning against the Nixon and Wallace tickets by large elements of the press and national television networks is stirring a public resentment that could bring on a re-examination of just how far "freedom of the press" may be permitted to go. For the campaigning has not been confined to editorial comment; it has permeated the writing and presentation of so-called hard news reports in an unprecedented manner.

In the light of today's swift coverage of events, both visual and written, there is a public utility aspect of journalism that cannot be ignored. Most cities in the U. S. have only one newspaper and in many of those that have two, both are owned by the same company. There are only two national press associations, three national tv and radio networks. The daily news fare fed to Americans is being prepared by fewer and fewer cooks. Should their personal preferences and prejudices be permitted to influence decisively the formation of national attitudes?

Well, maybe the Hump's six waterfront lots were not a "gift," but at $200 for the half-dozen they might be termed a "steal."

Regardless of whether the Viet Nam war is brought to a halt for electioneering purposes, the cessation of hostilities is not likely to be other than temporary. Communist China has no intention of letting the U. S. get out of that morass except on terms of abject surrender and will use every means to keep the fighting going while haggling continues. At least that's the opinion of this internationally famous authority on geopolitik.

fessor at the University of Arkansas, was paid from tax funds—a grand total of $1,700 for 17 days "for consulting with the Arkansas Health Planning Program" between Aug. 1 and 23. Warrants 19504 for $200, 19506 for $500, 23806 for $500 and 32614 for $500 paid his consultation fees. He also drew $62.44 for travel expense to an orientation conference in Hot Springs Aug. 1 and 2, paid with warrant 54130.

The Health Planning Program is an agency operated out of the Governor's Office with federal funds and matching grants from the Governor's Contingency Fund. It has another consultant, Dr. D. Kent Rice of Fayetteville who has been drawing $375 semi-monthly from the same agency as a fee for "consultation in the development of an Information Referral System and Data Bank."

Campaign

While he was unwilling to reveal his over-all expenses, his campaign manager, John L. Ward, was ready with a quick answer as to what a Rockefeller advertisement in Life Magazine cost him. He said it went in the Arkansas distribution only, and only set the campaign back $795. The Saturday Evening Post also included a Rockefeller ad.

Circumvention?

Governor Rockefeller, though not pinned down to specifics, conceded that he had used considerable of his own money in the campaign, but seemed to think he might have circumvented the legal limitation by distributing it to various committees and other organizations.

That will be an interesting question for the Supreme Court, which has been called upon by the Repbulicans to rule on many technical questions relating to the election laws in recent months.

A key point in Senator Griffin's presentation to the Council was the evidence, supplied by the Rockefeller 44-page campaign magazine and by the New Orleans postmaster that Mr. Rockefeller himself had paid $19,263.68 to mail it from New Orleans where it was printed.

The indicia on the magazine states flatly:

BULK RATE
U. S. Postage PAID
Governor
Winthrop Rockefeller

Elsewhere on the same page, it is noted that the printing cost was paid by the Rockefeller Campaign Committee, John L. Ward, chairman. Now, though, Ward wants the credit, or blame, for paying the postage too.

Senator Griffin remarked, in laying his resolution before the Council, that too often violations of election laws are swept under the rug after the voting is over. The intimation was that he does not intend for this to happen this time.

Under the statute, a candidate spending more of his own money than one year's salary in the course of a campaign is disqualified, and could not legally serve as governor. This possibility had previously been cited by former Chancellor James Pilkinton of Hope.

The spotlight fell upon Rockefeller's tremendous campaign outlays—estimates range upward from $3,000,000 since the July 30 primaries—late in the campaign, but the development has placed the governor on the defensive.

"Thanks to Senator Griffin," one private citizen commented, "I was brought to the realization that to Mr. Rockefeller I and other Arkansas voters are just so much chattel to be bargained for and bought up in the market place."

Text of Senator Griffin's resolution:

"Government belongs to the people and they have, through their elected representatives undertaken to safeguard the integrity of the ballot and the candidates by having enacted into law Act No. 134 of 1913

Poll Points To Percentage Loss By WR in Pulaski

This newspaper's poll of nearly 200 persons living in various sections of Pulaski County gave George Wallace a plurality, with Richard Nixon second and Hubert Humphrey trailing far behind, in the presidential competition.

For United States senator, incumbent Bill Fulbright amassed a substantial majority.

For governor, incumbent Winthrop Rockefeller came out with 58 per cent of the total, not enough to withstand the majorities that will be turned in against him in most counties.

Two years ago, Rockefeller took 66 per cent of the Pulaski County votes, chiefly because so many Negroes preferred him to Jim Johnson, the Democratic nominee.

Johnson carried 40 counties in 1966, but was overwhelmed by the Rockefeller tide in Pulaski, Jefferson, Sebastian and Washington Counties. In all those counties, recent surveys indicate Crank pulling a much higher percentage than did Johnson.

A Rockefeller adherent confided that, while there had been defections, particularly among Negroes whose welfare checks were reduced, the governor's leaders are hoping that the heavily-financed drive to register more voters will benefit him along with Hubert Humphrey—which would shape up as an unusual combination, except in Arkansas, where the Republican Party bears only the faintest resemblance to the national GOP.

In WEEKEND EDITION'S poll, a substantial percentage of the participants were Negroes.

A Contradiction

Most significant aspect of the test vote was the large number of Wallace adherents who were for Rockefeller, despite the fact that the Rockefeller Foundation is one of the chief targets of Wallace's campaign attacks.

As Governor Wallace points out, the Rockefeller and Ford Foundations have nurtured racial troublemakers. But Mr. Crank has chosen not to raise any question as to the propriety or extent of Governor Rockefeller's involvement in the racial antagonisms that have driven many citizens into the Wallace camp.

For Convention

Surprising to this pollster was the majority which was counted for the proposed constitutional convention, which, if approved in the general election next Tuesday, will be composed of delegates to be chosen at the same time. Examination of the roster of delegate candidates shows that many represent special interests.

Other states that have spent hundreds of thousands of dollars in similar convention movements have had to write off the cost as a total loss when the people turned down the finished product. Recent instances include rejections in New York and Maryland.

Election Scandal Brewing After 2nd Late Count-In

Nixon Election Brightens Hope Of Curbing Racist Foundations

At the Southern Regional Council offices in Atlanta, Ga., you can be sure a dejected staff is wondering what lies in store for it and its affiliates such as the Arkansas Council on Human Relations, which in addition to its share of Rockefeller and Ford Foundation money has had an annual contribution of $8,000 for which it can thank Gov. Winthrop Rockefeller personally.

Last week, this newspaper published a part of the latest special report from the SRC, bemoaning the failure of its scheme for complete integration of Southern public schools in the 14 years that have elapsed since the U. S. Supreme Court brought forth the decision voiding all laws for racially separate schools.

A second installment will be found at the conclusion of this article.

The SRC's program—and the Supreme Court's—of enforced integration has led to disintegration of the political party structure in the nation. For the first time in history, Arkansas this year deserted the Democratic party, and consigned its electoral votes to George Wallace.

That completed the decimation of the party in the South, for only LBJ's home state of Texas was held in line. That must have taken a deal of doing, to save the President's "face."

Nixon Agent Busing

Richard Nixon, at the Republican convention, later in the campaign many times, and on TV interviews, stated that he is opposed to across-town busing of pupils, something that the Southern Regional Council has looked to for the achievement of its race-mixing goals.

Further, Nixon has declared he is opposed to the withholding of federal school aid except where a district deliberately establishes a segregation policy. This would seem to place him on the side of "freedom-of-choice," the hottest issue before the federal courts just now.

The incoming Congress, in all likelihood, will support "freedom of choice" and this may throw it into a feud with the Supreme Court. However, the Senate rejection of the Abe Fortas nomination for chief justice could cause some of the justices to have second thoughts on how far to go with the Court's dictation to school boards.

What has been lacking in the Court's actions, and in the SRC's propaganda, has been recognition of the fact that, in this country, "consent of the governed" is essential to enforcement of laws or court orders.

Nowhere in the SRC's review of the desegregation situation is there acknowledgment that "the governed" should have any voice whatever in school administration.

Continuing the SRC's commentary, with which this newspaper disagrees 100 per cent:

INSTALLMENT II

A federal district court in Alabama had issued an order (also in March, 1967) which would, in fact, result in a collision of the two branches of the federal government in the matter of school desegregation. Lee v. Marion County placed 99 of Alabama's 118 school districts under court order. These were districts that had formerly been operating under HEW guidelines. During the summer of 1967, HEW declared that the Lanett, Alabama, school system was not in compliance with the guidelines and was therefore ineligible for federal aid; Lanett school officials protested that they were now under a court approved plan, and in July the court held that it was the court's responsibility to determine whether school systems were in compliance with its order. Urging HEW to continue investigations and to report any failures to comply, the court warned, however, that HEW could only take action with its specific approval.

But meanwhile, all across the South during 1967 and the spring and summer of 1968 old school cases were reopened and new ones filed. Results were familiar to those old enough to remember Brown I and Brown II. District courts in numerous cases overthrew freedom-of-choice plans and ordered school boards to submit geographic zoning plans drawn so as to afford substantial desegregation.

In many respects the new judicial era was exactly like the old. It introduced an entirely new concept in equal education to southern whites. No less revolutionary than the Supreme Court's announcing in 1954 that separate educational facilities were inherently unequal was the idea that desegregation meant white children attending formerly "Negro" schools. Freedom-of-choice had been the interim separate but equal, not a transitional concept, but educational dogma. HEW's acceptance of gradualism was not nearly so damning as its acceptance of the southern solution. Freedom-of-choice meant Negroes, as many as could stand it, in white schools. Now, court ordered, the zone concept literally meant mixing the schools. Administrators (the South, they said, the people, simply weren't ready for it, no sir) reluctantly drew up the new plans. Through the late spring and early summer resistance grew. Just as in the first judicial era, it was mainly the cities of the South that were affected. And the resistance had a citified, sophisticated new look, not seen since the administrative experiment moved the issue to the rural South. Committees, organizations (Stand Together and Never Divide, etc.) of white parents formed (reformed, in many instances—a new generation of resisters) to fight for freedom-of-choice. Almost without exception they were victorious.

The new judicial era fell victim to many of the traps that had plagued the old one. Federal judges, admittedly not educators, were often forced to believe elaborate arguments by schoolmen that what the courts requested was simply not (immediately) possible. Redraw all school boundaries. . . 75,000 children involved. . . teachers already assigned. . . overcrowding . .undercrowding . . .BUSSING. . .You see, your honor, we would very much like to comply with the court order, and we will. . .but not now. (A federal district judge in Mississippi recently ruled that, since whites would pull out of a zone-desegregated school system, freedom-of-choice was constitutional. This bit of tortured judicial reasoning was engendered by a poll, conducted by whites, of whites in the district. The poll revealed that white parents would refuse to send their children to public schools; therefore, no desegregation would exist. So, freedom-of-choice would, at least in theory, allow more desegregation.)

Also, pressure by white parents in many locales had almost the same effect as threats by southern legislatures a decade before. These parents, through their organizations, said they would, and in some instances did, close the schools down rather than desegregate them. (In Chesterfield County, South Carolina, schools were closed for a week due to protests by white parents. They were reopened September 15, 1968, after the board reinstituted the freedom-of-choice plan.)

Mobile, Alabama, seemed to sum up the first year of the new judicial era: The Mobile case had been in court for many years. The system was operating under freedom-of-choice. In 1967 two per cent of Negro school children attended "white" schools. The Fifth Circuit Court of Appeals in March, 1968, instructed the school board to adopt a rigid (no provisions for transfers within the system to avoid attending a desegregated school) zone plan, which would have placed about 1,400 white children in formerly all-Negro schools. White parents organized (Stand Together, etc., and Whites Organized for Rights Keeping); the area's state senator filed a motion in federal court seeking to overturn the new ruling on grounds it would be unsafe for white children to attend all-Negro schools. After a summer of legal battling the federal district judge who had issued the initial order came up with a plan allowing senior high schools to operate under freedom-of-choice, requiring specified attendance zones for elementary and junior high schools, and permitting more liberal transfers within the attendance zones. When school opened in September, an estimated 3,500 Negroes were in formerly all-white schools; but very few whites were in formerly all-Negro ones.

Mississippi, as usual, was the epitome of frustration, confusion, and a certain hope. School cases in 50 of Mississippi's 148 districts are to be reopened in the fall. A spokesman for the NAACP Legal Defense and Educational Fund, Inc., the most active agency in the legal battle for school desegregation, was confident that in most of those districts freedom-of-choice would be discarded and zone or pairing plans required. The spokesman also stated that such action would result in whites pulling out of the public schools in several districts. "It depends on the district," he said. "Where whites are proud of the schools, where the schools are good, whites will stay. In the Delta, where schools are bad, whites will probably pull out." He cited Corinth, a relatively prosperous community in northern Mississippi, as an example of a good school system's holding whites in spite of a comprehensive zone plan that would result in substantial desegregation. Though Mississippi still has a tuition grant statute, which theoretically could support private schools, there is little chance of its indefinite survival. The Legal Defense Fund spokesman, wise in the ways of Mississippi, and still hopeful, said, "Whites will probably go through the full cycle of resistance and come back to reconciliation again—just as they did before." He felt that the South might yet solve the problem of desegregation before the North began, really, to grapple with it.

The Pattern of Failure

There was the chance, a slim one, that the courts might succeed, might assure justice at last to school children in the South. But all the foregoing history indicates failure, and the results of the first year of the second judicial era bear out this gloomy prophecy. Though no official figures were available in late September, 1968, the old pattern seemed to hold. A few more Negroes in school with whites in the cities; in some instances rural "Negro" schools closed and the entire student body absorbed by the "white" ones; a minuscule number of whites in formerly all-Negro schools. The second judicial era would, it seemed, encounter the same dilemma that doomed the first one: Governor Lurleen Wallace, paraphrasing another Southerner who flouted the law when it suited him to do, said of the Fifth Circuit ruling, "They have made their decision, now let them enforce it."

Why those who had lived through the first era, had watched the few children lifescarred for the privilege of entering a building, fanned the old hope again is probably irrelevant. But the results of fourteen long years of methodizing, legalizing, computerizing, analyzing, and finally, mortifying what is, after all, the basic right of every American child—the right to a good education, the right to enter any building to get that education—will long be felt in this nation.

We teach children, all children, that the United States of America is dedicated to law and order. We lie. We have shown a generation of American children, in the public institution closest to their lives, the schools, that this nation's fundamental law need not be obeyed; we have clearly demonstrated to them that what we expect is their conformity to lipservice to the shibboleth. What will be the awful effects of this lie upon children, black and white alike? What depths of disillusionment when they hear us say "law" and observe only "order?"

After a generation has beheld successful evasion, rationalized vaccillation, outright flaunting of the law, only a country absolutely wedded to the totalitarian concept of order without law could turn on the victims of lawlessness and accuse them of destroying the fabric of society.

How the South Fights Union Organization

PART I

If you were in any one of 6 counties in South Carolina and wanted to start a social club, veterans' group or neighborhood improvement association, you might have to obtain a license in writing from your county commissioners and supervisor. If you are in any of those counties and want to talk to people about organizing a union, you darn well better register with the authorities for a "solicitation permit."

Whether you get it or not is a different matter.

Scuttling union activities is the purpose behind 6 county-wide ordinances, passed as of July 1957 by the last session of South Carolina's general assembly, which require in identical wording, a "permit in writing . . . before any person shall solicit membership for any organization, union, or society of any sort which requires from its members the payment of membership fees, dues, or is entitled to make assessments . . ." A seventh ordinance, aimed at the NAACP, requires "the member of any organization . . . which has as its policy equal rights for members of any race, color or creed" to file his name and address with his county supervisor."

Throughout the South the free association of individuals for common purposes is under attack and the fundamental rights of expression are in jeopardy.

In March of 1954, Rose Staub, an organizer for the International Ladies' Garment Workers Union, was arrested, found guilty, fined $300 and sentenced to 30 days in jail by the local courts of a small Georgia town, Baxley. She had failed to comply with an ordinance passed by the city fathers immediately after the ILG came into the area to organize workers employed by the Hazelhurst Manufacturing Co. It stated: "Any organization, union or society in Baxley, Ga., that solicits members and requires a payment of a membership fee must take out a local license costing $2,000 annually and must also pay over to the town $500 for each member signed up."

To date, the ordinance has been used only against the union. The ILG, in a court case which is now before the United States Supreme Court, argues that it violates the free speech, assembly and press guarantees of the First Amendment, as well as the legal right of workers to organize.

A Spreading Disease

Similar antiunion ordinances have cropped up in nearby Mississippi, Alabama, Georgia, Florida, Tennessee, South Carolina and Virginia. Members of the Textile Workers Union were arrested last June by Lyman, S. C., police for violating an ordinance which prohibits the distribution of literature on public property. In Charlotte County, Va., last year, a union organizer was arrested for failing to take out a "solicitation permit." To get it, he would have been required to supply political and financial information about himself and his union.

In Dublin, Ga., the town ordinance requires union organizers and other representatives to be licensed by the city at $2,500 a head. Conditions: applicants must prove they have lived in Dublin at least 5 years and swear they are opposed to integration.

PART II
HITTING THE CONSTITUTION

In Florida recently, Miami Mayor Randell Christmas played Santa Claus to employers contemplating an exodus from North to South. He proposed that the State, which took the lead in passing a right to work law, establish an "internal security agency made up of ex-FBI men to screen union organizers and weed out the undesirables."

Local ordinances abridging constitutional rights of workers and their legal right to organize are mushrooming all over the South. The Osceola, Ark. ordinance put it this way; "Sec. 2. Said individual, organization or association, shall pay in the sum of One Thousand (1,000) dollars per day to the City of Osceola for the privilege of doing business within the city limits of said city."

Some of these ordinances, having been passed, are lying in wait without being publicized waiting to be sprung on the first union organizer who ventures within reach.

In a Carrolton, Ga., ordinance case that was recently fought and won by the International Union of Electrical Workers, one union leader observed that the stipulation of $1,000 registration for each organizer, and a $100 a day fee would have cost the union $37,000 a year—to keep one man in town. The U.S. Supreme Court must still determine the constitutionality of the ordinances. Their net results, meanwhile, are to delay organizing drives and set back the organizing efforts of unions for years.

Violence vs. Organizers

In many other Southern communities where organizing drives have been undertaken, orderly and peaceful union spokesmen are regularly beaten up, forcibly ejected, or made victims of planned mob terror. In addition, union members are frequently denied places in which to meet, offices to rent, and are effectively refused the right of free speech by dozens of tactics of intimidation, economic discrimination or plain brute force.

Throughout the South there have been many shocking denials to union representatives of freedom of access to the channels of communication. In Gastonia, N. C. recently, for instance, the newspaper refused to publish a union advertisement urging mill owners to raise wages. In Anderson, S. C. it is impossible for the union to obtain any kind of advertising in local papers. In Greeneville, Tennessee, IUE could not buy radio time or newspaper space.

In Piedmont, Alabama, where meeting facilities were repeatedly denied the Textile Workers Union of America during a winter organizing campaign, union meetings were finally held in a tent. In Elkin, N. C. during a drive to organize workers at the Chatham blanket mills, the union, frustrated for months in its efforts to obtain a meeting hall within a radius of 30 miles, scheduled the meeting to be held in the woods. Local police set up a road block on the way to the meeting place. Many of the workers, because of fear, assumed that the police were doing this for the company.

Elsewhere, local police have openly acted as agents of the employers. There are cases where city officials have directed campaigns of violence against union organizers, where police have kept union representatives under daily surveillance, following them to restaurants and to the homes of individual members. In the files of one of the regional offices of an AFL-CIO union there is an affidavit from a North Carolina sheriff who described how he had been called in during a strike and bluntly ordered to arrest half a dozen named employees. He was told to invent whatever charge was necessary since the purpose of the arrest was simply to break strikers' morale.

Back in 1950, a Sub-Committee on Labor-Management Relations of the Senate Committee on Labor and Public Welfare conducted an investigation into the Southern textile industry. What they found then holds true today for many of the unions which are trying to organize in the South:

"In stopping a union organizing campaign, the employer will use some or all of the following methods: surveillance of organizers and union adherents; propaganda through rumors, letters, news stories, advertisements, speeches to employees; denial of free speech and assembly to the union; organizing of the whole community for anti-union activity; labor espionage; discharges of union sympathizers; violence and gun play; injunctions; the closing or moving of the mill; endless litigation before the NLRB and the Courts, etc. After all these fail, the employer will stall in slow succession first the election, then the certification of the union and finally the renegotiations of a contract. Few organizing campaigns survive this type of onslaught."

PART III

RAISING THE RACE ISSUE

An increasing number of southern employers have capitalized recently on the segregation issue to thwart organizing drives. In a 9-page letter sent to employes of the Adams-Millis Corp., a hosiery mill at High Point, N. C., the company wrote: ". . . unions are working day and night and pouring out the money which they collect in dues in an effort to eliminate segregation and to bring about integration in the schools and elsewhere between the white people and the colored people as rapidly and completely as possible."

In another labor campaign in Wilmington, N. C., a company vice president wrote to his workers: ". . . You may have noticed in the newspapers that the AFL-CIO at its recent convention took $75,000 of the dues paid to it by the people who are its members and gave this money to the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, which is the organization aggressively working for the wiping out of all racial segregation, both in schools, manufacturing plants and elsewhere." (The grant to the NAACP was appropriated by the Philip Murray Fund from donations received from former CIO unions, not by a convention of the AFL-CIO.)

The man in the South who has probably had the most experience with this problem is Boyd E. Payton, southern director of the Textile Workers Union of America (formerly CIO). He stated recently: "In any organizing drive, you can be sure that the union efforts will be smeared by employer propaganda which identifies the union with subversive and Communist activities, as well as with the NAACP."

Aside from union activities, in other areas as well, there has been a smear attempt to link Communists with integrationists in the effort to deny liberal southerners their freedom of speech.

Phony 'Red' Scare

The school segregation camp has its followers as far north as Arlington, Va., who purposely tie in the Communist and integration issues. Recently, Miss Betty Thompson, a recent candidate for the Virginia House of Delegates, reading to the Arlington Democratic Club from which she said was a work published in 1912 by an English Communist, charged that "integration is a Communist Party dream (which) has become a stark reality just across the Potomac."

In Atlanta, Ga., Attorney General Eugene Cook, speaking before the Peace Officers Association, recently attacked the NAACP and other liberal southern groups as "part and parcel of the Communist conspiracy to overthrow the democratic governments of this nation and its sovereign states." Their activities he held can only result in "conflict, bloodshed and internal revolution, delivering this nation into the hands of internal Communism."

Smeared by Cook as a "front" organization was the outstanding and eminently respectable Southern Regional Council, the South's foremost interracial improvement agency. The SRC as well as the NAACP, Cook falsely charged, are dominated by individuals who have "long records of affinity for and participation in Communist, Communist-front and fellow-traveling left-wing and subversive organizations and activities."

Louisiana "Investigates"

While Mississippi's State Sovereignty Commission, headed up by Governor Coleman, voted to employ "secret investigators as an official arm of state government who would serve as the eyes and ears in the state's fight against integration," its neighboring state, Louisiana, last year undertook what one state senator described as "the first official investigation in the nation into Communist influences behind racial disturbances."

In the Louisiana hearings, the star witness was a paid informer, Manning Johnson from Washington, D. C., a professional ex-Communist well known to headlines some 3 or 4 years. Johnson was the prime denouncer in the loyalty investigations of United Nations Undersecretary Ralph Bunche. His accusations were discredited.

Maniacal Ravings

Flinging unbelievable, false charges throughout most of the 3-day hearing, Johnson (1) branded Howard University a "hotbed of Communism and its Negro president, Mordecai Johnson, an expounder of Communist doctrine; (2) claimed the NAACP is comprised of "liberals, philanthropists, Communists, fellow-travelers, egg-heads, idealists, socialists, Trotskyites and more" who have "one thing in common . . . their teachings are all the teachings of Marx." (NAACP units are plotting a "national Negro rebellion . . . extending from Maryland to Texas where they speak of setting up a black republic"), and (3) identified the Southern Regional Council and the Mississippi Council on Human Relations as being formed by Communists.

One of the persons named by Johnson as a board member of the Mississippi Council on Human Relations, founded in 1919 by eminent clergymen, was Mrs. D. S. Wheatley of Greenwood, Miss., the daughter, sister and sister-in-law of Episcopal ministers and herself past president of the Mississippi Episcopal Women's Organization.

Six days after Johnson's scurrilous attacks, a shot was fired into the Wheatley house late at night, piercing the dining room window, drilling through a dividing wall, and hitting the far wall of the living room. The Wheatleys, a conservative couple who have run a cotton business in Greenwood for many years, were reading, fortunately, in another room.

Rep. McMillan Impressed

However fantastic Johnson's charges, they made somewhat of an impression back in Washington. Congressman McMillan of South Carolina inserted them in the Congressional Record. "Firing Line," the bulletin of the American Legion, also publicized his accusations about the Southern Regional Council and other liberal southern groups.

A month following Johnson's testimony, Congressman Clyde Doyle (D., Calif.), member of the House Un-American Activities Committee, sent a letter to Attorney Bethuel

Webster, counsel for the Fund for the Republic. In his letter, Congressman Doyle stated that he had seen the charges against the SRC in "Firing Line" and raised the question: "What investigation does the Fund for the Republic make of the background or control of the personnel and policies of a proposed recipient of funds?" The Fund for the Republic had given the Southern Regional Council a grant to carry on its valuable community education activities.

AN EXCERPT FROM A TYPICAL LETTER BY A SOUTHERN EMPLOYER TO THE EMPLOYEES

With respect to the Union there is another matter which we want to discuss with you very frankly. All over the South today there is deep concern on the question of racial segregation versus integration. That is a matter on which each person is entitled to his or her own views. We do not consider that it is appropriate for us to try to influence you one way or another on this vital issue.

We do think, however, that you are entitled to know, and should know, what the Union's position is on this subject. The Unions are not neutral on this matter. Instead, the Unions are working day and night, and pouring out the money which they collect in dues, in an effort to eliminate segregation and to bring about integration in the schools and elsewhere between the white people and the colored people as rapidly and completely as possible.

In the case that was before the United States Supreme Court on this question the CIO filed an official document in which it stated emphatically and positively that the Union "supports the elimination of racial segregation . . . from every phase of American life." Further the Union urged that segregation should be ended "forthwith" rather than by "gradual adjustment." The document further states that where the "Unions have their way, there is likewise no segregation in the use of plant eating places, locker rooms, rest rooms, etc."

You may not have noticed in the newspaper that the AFL-CIO at is recent convention took $75,000.00 of the dues paid to it by the people who are its members and gave this money to the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, which is the organization aggressively working for the wiping out of all racial segregation, both in schools, plants and elsewhere.

PART IV

Race Issue in NLRB Vote

Forty hours before the 377 workers of the Bay Springs, Miss., Neco company plant were to vote to decide whether to form a union, their employer threw racist fear and hate full in their faces.

Until then, the Northern Electric Products Corp. (Neco) campaign against the International Union of Electrical Workers (AFL-CIO) was no more than typical of determined antiunionism in the deep South.

Neco owners Ed and Sam Russell, Chicagoans, had saved the race theme to spring in the final hours. Essentially this is a case history of how a northern employer tried to panic a southern community and used racial prejudice to maintain his feudal relationship with employes working at substandard conditions. Following this, the election, under auspices of the National Labor Relations Board, was anticlimactic. The union (IUE) lost out by a vote of 291 to 86.

The chief incitement of fear prior to the balloting was a speech by Ed Russell. It was arranged by calling the workers — most of whom are women—from their jobs into the plant lobby. With few preliminaries Russell began shouting that the union was "nigger-loving" and its president, James B. Carey, was a "nigger-lover." And for that matter, so was the IUE's Mississippi-born organizer, Joe Thornton.

Russell didn't dwell solely on race. He also managed to imply the union "outsiders" would foment violent strikes, shootings, killings and Communism.

He kept returning to race agitation, however, and waved the "evidence" in front of his captive audience. He brandished a full-sized copy of the June 4 issue of the Jackson, Miss., Daily News—months old but good as new—and pointed to a huge —column photograph centered at the top of page one. It showed IUE President James Carey dancing with a young Negro lady.

What He Didn't Tell

Russell didn't tell his listeners the photo had been taken in Geneva during an official party given by the Swiss government for delegates to an International Labor Organization conference in 1956. Russell didn't mention that Carey had been a U. S. delegate and the young lady was a Nigerian union representative's wife.

Perhaps it wouldn't have made any difference.

The Bay Springs situation is becoming increasingly typical. Numerous employers throughout the South are finding the race theme a handy and potent additional weapon against labor organization. Unions always have found the South difficult to organize, but the recent magnification of the race theme has added to their problems.

Before the 1954 Supreme Court decision outlawing compulsory race segregation in public schools, many unions were quietly and slowly doing away with segregation in meetings, at conferences and even on some of the jobs. After the court decision, the race issue took the headlines, arousing latent fears.

A Closer Look

Since Bay Springs illustrates this so blatantly it's worthwhile to study it more closely. The town has 1,800 inhabitants in agricultural Jasper County in southeast central Mississippi. The city fathers several years ago decided to induce industry to locate in Bay Springs. They offered incentives which attracted the Russell brothers.

The 2 "parent" Neco plants remain in Chicago with the sales headquarters; they have another small plant in Jamestown, Ky. Neco makes electric blankets, heating pads and the component parts for same. Wholesaling is done directly mainly to 2 national chain stores, Sears Roebuck and Rexall Drugs, each of which has its own brand name.

Through a series of negotiations which seemed to have the Bay Springers at a decided disadvantage, the Chicagoans were persuaded to open a Mississippi plant.

In return, Jasper County taxpayers gave them: (1) An arrangement which results in virtually a rent-free building; (2) exemption from all county taxes, and (3) inclusion of a newly-constructed $190,000 mansion as part of the corporation's tax-free property. Just how this is done, since the mansion is in nearby Jones County, makes for curious speculation. Ed Russell uses it when he is in Mississippi, paying $25 a month as rent.

Another incentive the Russells obtained was the existence of a low prevailing wage structure. When the plant began operating in 1951, the pay was at the 75-cent hourly minimum required by the federal

Wage and Hour Law. Last year Congress raised the minimum by 25 cents an hour. Since then, Neco added another 5 cents, possibly as another addition to its antiunion arsenal.

This summer a majority of Neco workers signed cards saying they were interested in forming an IUE local union. Signing such cards is customarily necessary under operations of the National Labor Relations Act. The IUE had sent native Mississippians quietly into the area to assist the Neco employes. One organizer had been born within 20 miles of the plant. They were hardly outsiders.

Pressure Builds Up

As the election date neared, the Russells became active. With cooperation from the local Chamber of Commerce, they mustered support of most town merchants to campaign against the union. Rumors were rife that the plant would shut down if the IUE came to town. There were antiunion leaflets, phone calls and even house calls by business people suggesting IUE adherents were not safe credit risks.

In rapid-fire succession, Ed Russell then sent 3 letters to each employe and gave his speeches linking the IUE insidiously to activities on behalf of equal opportunities for Negroes.

The envelopes contained photostats of union newspapers showing Negroes participating normally in IUE meetings and at conventions, and Carey's attendance at the Washington, D. C., Civil Rights Prayer Pilgrimage. There were quotations from a speech by Thurgood Marshall, counsel for the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People (NAACP), given at an IUE convention. The charge was made that the IUE was fronting for the NAACP and gave it sums of money.

Carey, in discussing this later, said "This man Russell was ready to put a torch to the community, to set the town of Bay Springs on fire with a self-consuming explosion of hate, violence and chaos."

Copies of the Jackson newspaper were displayed in such strategic spots as washrooms, with the accompanying bylined "news" story, part of which said: "Employes of the Vickers plant who favor whites and Negroes dancing cheek by jowl as 'Brother' Carey is doing, should of course vote to let the IUE take over control of the Vickers plant and thereby give approval of 'Brother' Carey and the company he keeps."

Doesn't Always Work

As will be noted in the wording of the story, the Bay Springs campaign was not the first time the Jackson newspaper display was used against the IUE.

The previous time was in Jackson itself, and it didn't work. A majority of the Vickers plant workers, possibly more blase about the attentions of a big city newspaper, voted for the IUE despite the fact that Carey had danced with a Nigerian girl.

The race issue, to re-emphasize, is not always decisive.

In Bay Springs and at least one other instance involving the IUE, however, the union feels racism was the fatal factor. The other time was a year earlier, in the fall of 1956. The IUE lost out at the Raleigh N. C., plant of Westinghouse Electric Corp. after a campaign which saw the plant manager telling white workers that Negroes would get their jobs if the union won.

PART V

The Assault on Freedom

Outstanding among the flagrant attacks on civil liberties are the legislative steps that have been taken in 8 southern states (in varying degrees) to outlaw the NAACP and all free discussion of the segregation issue. The umbrella measures in Alabama, Florida, Georgia, Louisiana, Mississippi, South Carolina,

Texas and Virginia, bar NAACP members from all public employment, prohibit the NAACP from practicing law or initiating lawsuits, require the listing of all NAACP members and contributors, making the names a matter of public record.

These patent attempts to destroy the constitutional rights of free speech and association have led to the economic boycott of NAACP members, loss of employment from nongovernment jobs, threats, intimidations, murders and bombings of the homes and churches of NAACP members. As Roy Wilkins, executive secretary of the NAACP said recently, "color-line legislation in the South has so restricted the basic freedoms of speech, assembly, petition and legal redress in the fury at the NAACP that it has endangered white Americans as well."

The Koinonia Story

A tiny Georgia community of deeply religious white and Negro ministers and farmers was so endangered through bombings, dynamitings and shootings that not even Lloyds of London will risk an insurance policy on its people or equipment. Koinonia, a cooperative farming venture 100 miles south of Atlanta, Ga., has also recently been falsely charged by a Sumter County, Ga., grand jury as a "behive of Communist activity."

The 60 men, women and children of Koinonia, the Greek word for communal brotherhood, have used only prayer, humor and a thin wire fence as their protection against a year of night-time violence. The community, started in 1942 on a 400-acre tract of eroded wasteland, now faces extinction from an economic boycott and the grand jury investigation. Led by Rev. Clarence Jordan, a pacifist, white, Baptist minister and a native of Georgia, the fellowship faces opposition to its principles from neighbors in the surrounding area who resent the fact of Negroes and whites living together in defiance of southern tradition. It is also opposed by public officials in the area, including the district solicitor, the local sheriff and Georgia Governor Griffin.

The grand jury investigation was led by Solicitor General Charles Burgamy of Sumter County, who is reported to have previously said at a states' rights meeting: ". . . what we need now is for the right kind of Klan to start up again and use a buggy whip on some of these race-mixers." In this spirit, the Sumter County Grand Jury falsely concluded that there is a "close kinship between the Communist Party and Koinonia Farm."

A further current illustration of the crude attempt to link the organizations and individuals working for integrated schools with Communism is the recommendation of the Thomson Committee that the Virginia General Assembly set up a committee which "should be given the authority to inquire into such matters as subversive activities generally, the more specifically as they relate to the question of segregation or integration in the public schools." As Benjamin Muse so aptly put it in his Washington Post column:

"It is indeed time to give frank and searching thought to the questions of who is loyal, and who is subversive, and what are the duties of a loyal citizen. The barrage of vilification and defiance of the U. S. Supreme Court with which Virginia has been bombarded in the past several years, and to which members of the Thomson Committee have contributed is certainly not loyalty—loyalty, that is, to the government of this nation. . . . The activities of the Byrds, the Faubuses and the Eastlands of the South have been far more subversive of the prestige of our government both at home and abroad than anything the puny Communist Party in this country has ever been able to accomplish. . . ."

Economic Pressures

Examples of individuals who have also found it "unwise" to support the cause of integration include an economics professor at Alabama Polytechnic Institute, Dr. Bud Hutchinson, who was fired from that school several months ago for praising the New York school integration program. Hutchinson wrote a letter to the college paper taking issue with an editorial criticizing the New York schools. "In the light of the tensions and emotions over this question," college President Dr. Ralph Draughton is reported in an Alabama paper as saying, "I felt Mr. Hutchinson could not expect to advance his career at this institution."

A curious twist occurred recently in New Orleans, when veteran music critic Ewing Poteet was fired from his job after 7 years on the liberal New Orleans newspaper, Item, for signing a petition asking the New Orleans city officials to integrate seating on the city's bus line. Poteet was discharged, with severance pay, the day after the Item's rival newspaper, the rabidly anti-integration Times-Picayune, published Poteet's name on a long list of petition signers.

Although 41 of the 125 signers were clergymen, the Picayune singled out for special notice the names of 2 signers who had been questioned by the Eastland Committee, allegedly investigating Communist activities. One of the 2 had invoked the Bill of Rights in refusing to answer Eastland Committee questions.

Poteet was handed a letter by Item editor George Chaplin, which stated: "It has come to our attention that you have associated for some time with persons whose patriotism has been questioned, under circumstances which may embarrass us in our determination, firmly fixed, to maintain an independent position with loyalty to the United States ever paramount."

Vigorously protesting the implication of disloyalty and any suspicion of his associates, Poteet said he signed the petition, presented to the New Orleans city officials by 4 clergymen, as a matter of his convictions and without reference to any of the other signers. The petition, a moderately worded one, calls for the solving of the problem of bus seating under "guidance of the highest type of moral principles."

The American Newspaper Guild local to which Poteet belongs is taking the case to court.

A Civil Liberties Fight

The NAACP's recently released annual report understated the situation when they said: "The South's attempts to resist desegregation and civil rights entered 'dangerously' into the field of civil liberties in 1956."

Unsubstantiated and wild charges of "subversion" and "Communism" have been added to the arsenal of the hate groups and others opposing school integration, unions, the NAACP and the Southern Regional Council and any other organization and individual who dares to disagree and speak out. Never has it been clearer that civil rights and civil liberties are interdependent parts of our democratic structure—one can't exist without the other.

"When some kinds of associations are prohibited and others allowed," de Tocqueville wrote in 1840, "it is difficult to distinguish the former from the latter beforehand. In this state of doubt, men will abstain from them altogether and a sort of public opinion passes current that tends to cause any association whatsoever to be regarded as bold and almost an illicit enterprise."

← AFL-CIO Policy In Practice

The Future Is In Their Hands

Conclusion

A study of the economic facts of life in the South will give us much of the answer as to why labor hasn't made more headway in organizing the South. As the 1956 chart, "Where Southern Workers Work," indicates, the heaviest concentration of workers is found in the old-type or "traditional" industries of textile, lumber, apparel and furniture.

Recent studies on southern industrialization show 4 out of 10 (or 44%) of the South's new post-war industrial plants in the traditional industries group, 3 out of 10 (or 28%) in the new type industries, and 3 out of 10 in the service industries. What it all adds up to is that 64.5% are in the nondurable and traditional industries group—and this group is the lowest paid, the most poorly organized and most difficult to organize, for in this group is concentrated the die-hard opposition to unionization in any form.

By contrast, we find in the "new-type industries" group such as electronics, chemicals, paper, electrical machinery, and aircraft, a much higher wage group and, comparatively speaking, a much more highly organized group. The contrast on all levels is so great that when speaking of unions in the South you have to think in terms of the 2 categories—the "traditional industries" and the "new-type industries."

Based on U. S. Census Figures.

News about union organizing efforts in the past few months dramatizes this contrast. The IUE (International Union of Electrical Workers) announced recently it had won major representation elections at 2 General Electric southern plants. Meanwhile the Textile Workers Union of America has had a series of NLRB election losses which have forced it to abandon most organizing drives.

The Instrument of Terror

Not the least of the many reasons for the difficulties encountered by the textile union (TWUA) were the concerted, determined, and in many cases terroristic methods used by employers to block the organizing efforts. In the rare instances when the union succeeds in overcoming these initial obstacles, it then often comes up against a refusal to engage in any real collective bargaining. Such all-out bpposition was dramatically demonstrated late last year by the Deering, Milliken textile chain, one of the largest in the South. It closed a profitable branch plant at Darlington, S. C., throwing almost 600 persons out of work, because its employes had voted to belong to the Textile Workers Union of America.

The closing of that plant did more to terrorize already fear-ridden southern mill workers than any other event in years. Such a situation explains much of the decline in the union's membership.

The obvious advantage of the difference in the average hourly earnings between North and South is another reason for the strong industry opposition to unions in the South. The recent average hourly earnings in the 11 southern states was $1.65, in contrast with the national average of $2.07. In cotton textile the average hourly rate is roughly $1.36.

The cost of living in a number of southern cities, instead of being lower, is actually higher than the national average. Where a southern industry is pretty well organized—such as steel and coal—the southern differential in earnings has been eliminated.

It's in the South, too, where the unions have faced at close range the blunderbuss effects of the Taft-Hartley law, and the "right-to-work" laws when put to full use by an employer determined to break the union. Ten southern states have enacted right-to-work laws.

Unions "Neutralized"

While it would be a mistake to overemphasize the race issue to the exclusion of other reasons for the union setbacks, there is no doubt, however, that the use of the race hate issue by southern employers, and agitation and interference by White Citizens Councils has had a marked effect on unions and their activities. The major impact of these hate groups has been the neutralizing effect they have had on many southern union bodies in regard to taking a stand in support of the national AFL-CIO position on civil rights.

In Arkansas, to give but one illustration, a number of the AFL-CIO unions had made quite a bit of progress, and the AFL-CIO Council officers had spoken up in favor of the gradual and peaceful desegregation of the schools in Little Rock. But since the violence and troop use in Little Rock, state AFL-CIO Council leaders haven't dared to say or do anything which would indicate any opposition to Governor Faubus. In essence, before the Supreme Court decision of 1954, many union councils were in the forefront in the South in speaking up on the civil rights issue, but now most of them keep quiet and hope not to stir up a hornet's nest.

On the more hopeful side there is the consistent position of the national AFL-CIO in maintaining its clear-cut and forthright support, in spite of pressures to the contrary, of full civil rights for all and opposition to White Citizens Councils and other hate groups.

It is also important to note that only a handful of unions have been lured out of the AFL-CIO in spite of the continuing efforts of the race hate groups.

The Future

In sum, unions will continue to find the going rough for some time to come. The growing unemployment and the backwash of the McClellan Committee hearings will make for additional headaches. None of this changes the fact that as it has been for many years, the South must continue to be the major organizing target of the AFL-CIO. Given a period with no major recession or depression, and given a greater proportion of the new type of industries, which are comparatively organizable, in the growing industrialization of the South, then union organization will grow and brighten an otherwise gloomy picture.

With the peculiar problems of the southern worker in mind, organized labor needs to do more education within the unions and on the community level, where a great body of anti-union feeling needs to be overcome. The urgent need of the day is for a more imaginative and intensified educational approach to this all-important task.

Dixie Antiorganizing Law Is Ruled Unconstitutional by Supreme Court

By Washington Staff Writer

WASHINGTON—The Supreme Court has ruled that an antiunion ordinance requiring organizers to pay a $2,000 licensing fee and $500 for each member enlisted is unconstitutional. The hight court ruled 7 to 2 that the Baxley, Georgia, ordinance violates freedom of speech, which is guaranteed by the First Amendment.

Rose Staub, organizer for the International Ladies Garment Workers Union, had been sentenced to 30 days in jail or a $300 fine under the ordinance, following a meeting at a worker's home. Backed by the union, she challenged the legality of the edict through the courts.

The Supreme Court's ruling will help labor unions to penetrate similar roadblocks erected by other southern towns.

Friend of Court Briefs

Two organizations filed friend of the court briefs in favor of the ILGWU. They are the Workers Defense League, a human rights agency, and the American Civil Liberties Union.

Before the high tribunal handed down its decision, Morris Glushein, ILGWU attorney, had thanked the Workers Defense League with this explanation, "Throughout the South there are many communities which have attempted to erect a Chinese Wall against organizers under the guise of licensing ordinances. If the Supreme Court strikes down the Baxley ordinance, as I confidently expect and hope it will, this will sweep away such obstructions to union organization."

Justices Frankfurter and Clark dissented from the high court decision on technical grounds, but did not disagree with the free speech ruling.

"ACT FOR GOD AND COUNTRY — HELP DEFEAT COMMUNISM"

COMMUNISM, a word describing the evil force which works day and night to destroy Christionity and Freedoms of the people. This group of athiest are not confined to Russia, but indeed are imbedded in many sections of our nation.

They range from the pick and shovel man in the ditch to the highest court in our land. These imps of satan are continually trying to take out the commands of God. Remember the 312 False-prophets who signed the manifesto, which urged you to integrate and mongrelize your future generations. By all means remember those commie stooges of duped physicians.

These false-prophets use the pulpits but have never read a verse from the Bible which tells us that God favors mixing the races. We shall set forth in the next paragraph several verses and chapters from the Bible, which demands that we keep segregation.

Read These Bible References

St. Matthew 25:32; Acts 17:26; Book of Ezra, chapter 9 and 10; Book of Joshua; 2 Cor. 6:17; Neh. 10:28-30; Neh. 13:23-27; Deut. 32:8; I Kings 8:53; I Kings 11:2; Gen. 6:18-20; Gen. 10:5-20; Gen. 11:8; Gen. 24:3; Gen. 28:1, 8, 9; Num. 6:2; Luke 6:22; Romans 8:35, 39. Then read Deut. 23:2, study this very seriously.

Think of how many generations it would take to remove all traces of the blood line from a half breed mongrel created by a nigger and white. This breed of outcasts are the "BASTARDS" referred to in the Bible. NO, a child born to unmarried white or black people, is referred to as "A child born out of wedlock." The "BASTARD" is the mixed-breed mongrel created by the immoral acts of lowest of human forms. Now you understand why they shall not enter the Kingdom of Heaven even unto the tenth generation. Do you now realize just how terrible is the sin because of any mixing of the races?

"Clean the House of The Lord"

What do you have in the pulpit of your church? Now is the time to make your preacher declare himself. Is he a preacher or a false-prophet? If he follows the communist line of integration, then remove his hand from the bread-basket of the church. If you fail to do this, then you become a part of the communist conspiracy.

We believe the word of God and fear the wrath of the creator of all things within and beyond the universe, therefore we believe in the teachings of Jesus Christ as our Saviour. The above Bible teachings among the many others are sufficient to lead Christians above and beyond the Devil's cesspool of integration.

Our God fearing white people have been trodden down as far as they can go. They are beginning to fight back and it is time they did so. They are tired of all the trouble-makers who are filled with communist ideas of integration, and who are now using funds from various Foundations (American Money) to mix you with the nigger.

"Know Your Enemies — Work Against Them

The Southern Regional Council (Ralph McGill's Baby) has received hundreds of thousands of dollars from the Ford Fund for the Republic. Why do you still buy the Constitution or Journal or the Fords? Then we have to be on guard against the H.O.P.E. organization.

Benjamin E. Mays, president of Atlanta's Morehouse College has (31) communist citations and a member of the NAACP; Ruby Hurley, formerly of Little Rock, now bedding down in Atlanta rat nest, is an NAACP member and noted race-agitator; Rufus E. Clement, in the top committee of 100 of the NAACP and has 27 commie citations for his work, he is a member of the Atlanta Board of Education. WHY? WHY? Who would be so ignorant as to think that the niggers holding positions in the education system of Georgia is not rubbing some of their communist ideas on to the students?

"This Is Your Fight"

Our loyal citizens of this nation must protest loud and long against these organizations and demand that they be put on the Subversive list. The NAACP; the Southern Regional Council; the Southern Conference Education Fund; the Georgia Committee on Interracial Co-operation. Don't forget the H.O.P.E. gang.

"Trouble and How to Correct It"

When niggers try to integrate with our white people and cause any school to close, it is time for action. The employment office throughout the South know of many white people who need jobs. Some time ago there was a plan adopted which has been spreading over the South. It is an easy operated plan which removes the niggers from every job. The white people know this is the solution of ending the Black Plague NO NIGGERS WORKING, MEANS NO NIGGERS IN TOWN? NONE IN TOWN, MEANS NONE IN OUR SCHOOLS.

It is this easy and is being done NOW, WHITE people have begun to trade with firms who hire all white people. This reduces the funds of the NAACP. Only a nigger-mixer will continue to hire or work a nigger. This covers filling stations and elsewhere.

"TAXES and HOW TO REDUCE THEM"

Do you know the Atlanta's population is one-third niggers? They are paying five per cent of the taxes and receive a strong margin of seventy-five per cent of the tax for their race. Also there was a total of 6,000 nigger babies born at your expense at Grady Hospital. Also that there was only 600 white children coming into the schools of Atlanta and a total of 8,000 niggers.

"SHALL YOU CONTINUE TO PAY FOR THEIR PLEASURE"

While they sit in the shade and spoon in the moon light, multiplying like rats, we continue to bleed ourselves with heavy taxes to carry the socialistic burden of feeding and clothing them. They do not remain as slaves and therefore are certainly not your wards.

This is our peaceful way to win our right and it is your chance to help. Those not with us are against us. Which means the most to you, the command of the Lord, or the traditions of men?

LABOR DAY WEEKEND, 1957

During Labor Day Weekend, 1957, there assembled at Highlander the leaders of every major race incident in the South, prior to that time since the Supreme Court decision. This meeting was directed by Reverend John B. Thompson, chaplain, University of Chicago. Reverend Thompson has a lengthy record of Communist affiliations which appears elsewhere in this folder. The direction of the entire school was under the leadership, as usual, of Myles Horton.

There were representative leaders of the TUSKEGEE, ALABAMA BOYCOTT, the TALLAHASSEE, FLORIDA BUS INCIDENT, the MONTGOMERY, ALABAMA BUS BOYCOTT, the SOUTH CAROLINA - NAACP SCHOOL TEACHERS INCIDENT, the KOINONIA INTER-RACIAL FARM - AMERICUS, GEORGIA, and CLINTON, TENNESSEE, SCHOOL INCIDENT among others.

They met at this workshop and discussed methods and tactics of precipitating racial strife and disturbance.

The meeting of such a large group of specialists in inter-racial strife under the auspices of a Communist Training School, and in the company of many known Communists is the typical method whereby leadership training and tactics are furnished to the agitators. This was a general workshop and would be the most common method of developing a long range program.

In specific emergency situations, leadership would be sent into the communities to assist.

Good examples of the infusion of leadership was the appearance of Bayard Rustin, who appeared in the Daily Worker, as secretary of Rev. Martin Luther King, The appearance of Don West, prominent Communist functionary, at Koinonia Farm disturbances and the preliminary surveys conducted by John Hope, II, preparatory to the Tallahassee Bus Incident.

THE FOUNDERS OF HIGHLANDER SCHOOL

HIGHLANDER FOLK SCHOOL was founded in 1932 by Myles Horton and Don West; James Dombrowski joined them shortly thereafter. Don West, presently operating in Georgia, was district director of the Communist Party of North Carolina.

Paul Crouch, the top Communist Party functionary in the South, testified before the Subcommittee of the Committee on Un-American Activities that Dombrowski "gave me the impression of being completely pro-Communist and anxious to collaborate with the Communist Party and follow its leadership without taking the risk of actual Party membership."

John Butler, another former Communist Party functionary testified before the Senate Subcommittee on Internal Security that Dombrowski at a meeting of Communist Party leaders in Dombrowski's room in the Thomas Jefferson Hotel in Birmingham, Alabama, was introduced to him by Alton Lawrence as a Communist Party member.

Myles Horton was identified before the Dies Committee on Un-American Activities as a person who "attended a secret convention in North Carolina, at which time plans were made for spreading the revolutionary theories throughout the South."

Paul Crouch testified before the Senate Subcommittee on Internal Security that "The Highlander Folk School is a school operated at Monteagle, Tennessee, ostensibly as an independent labor school, but actually working in close cooperation with the Communist Party."

HIGHLANDER EXECUTIVES

The following is a listing of the executives of Highlander Folk School as it appeared in their 24th annual report of October 30, 1956.

B. R. BRAZEAL, Dean, Morehouse College, Atlanta, Georgia.

SEPTIMA CLARK, Highlander Folk School, Monteagle, Tenn.

GRACE HAMILTON, Atlanta Urban League, Atlanta, Georgia.

G. R. HATHAWAY, Secy.-Treas., UPWA-CIO, Chicago, Ill.

JOHN HOPE, II, Industrial Relations Consultant, Fisk University, Nashville, Tenn.

MYLES HORTON, Director, Highlander Folk School, Monteagle, Tenn.

MYLES HORTON the director of Highlander Folk School, Monteagle, Tennessee, is shown speaking. Reverend John B. Thompson, chaplain University of Chicago directed the Labor Day Weekend 1957 Seminar. Both Horton and Thompson have long been regarded as useful aids to the Communist apparatus.

FRED ROUTH, a headquarters official of Southern Regional Council, 63 Auburn Ave., N. E., Atlanta, Georgia, is pictured above leading a workshop. In at least one of these sessions, the tactics of including women and children in racial demonstrations and incidents was propounded on the basis that police are reluctant to shoot women and children.

Southern Regional Council is the recipient of Ford, Fund for the Republic grants of $497,000.00. Fund for the Republic grants originated with the Ford Motor Company. Southern Regional Council is the parent organization of 12 statewide Councils on Human Relations operated only in the Southern States.

Southern Regional Council has been able to exploit the facilities of religion and education because of a quasi-religious status afforded by occupancy of space in a building owned by a huge church. The leadership of few units of the Communist apparatus have records of Communist affiliations which exceed those of present and past directors of Southern Regional Council.

The Daily Worker, official organ of the Communist Party, credits the foundation of Southern Regional Council to Jim Jackson, Negro Communist, presently head of Southern Affairs Commission of the Communist Party. Jackson is also credited with the establishment of Southern Conference Education Fund.; and Southern Conference for Human Welfare, both organizations are recognized parts of the Communist apparatus and have interlocking directorates with Southern Regional Council.

The American Legion Firing Line, May 15, 1957, referring to the incorporating papers says "This document, filed in the Superior Court of Fulton County, State of Georgia, listed the names of five incorporators of the Council as follows: Dr. Rufus E. Clement, Ralph McGill, and Bishop Arthur J. Moore, of Atlanta, Georgia; Dr. Charles S. Johnson, of Nashville, Tennessee (now deceased); and Dr. Howard W. Odum, Chapel Hill, North Carolina. AMERICAN COMMITTEE FOR PROTECTION OF FOREIGN BORN

"To defend the cases of Communist lawbreakers, fronts have been devised making special appeals in behalf of civil liberties and reaching out far beyond the confines of the Communist Party itself. Among these organizations are the . . . American Committee for Protection of Foreign Born. When the Communist Party itself is under fire these offer a bulwark of protection."

AMERICAN YOUTH CONGRESS

"It originated in 1934 and . . . has been controlled by Communists and manipulated by them to influence the thought of American youth."

CIVIL RIGHTS CONGRESS

Cited as an organization formed at a Congress on Civil Rights held in Detroit in April 1946 as a merger of two other Communist-front organizations (International Labor Defense and the National Federation for Constitutional Liberties); it was "dedicated not to the broader issues of civil liberties, but specifically to the defense of individual Communists and the Communist Party" and "controlled by individuals who are either members of the Communist Party or openly loyal to it."

COMMONWEALTH COLLEGE

A "Communist enterprise" cited as subversive by an investigating Committee of the Arkansas Legislature. It received money from the Garland Fund.

EMERGENCY PEACE MOBILIZATION

Cited as a Communist front which came forth, after Stalin signed his pact with Hitler, to oppose the national defense program, lend-lease, conscription, and other American "war-mongering" efforts. It immediately preceded the American Peace Mobilization in 1940.

LEAGUE OF STRUGGLE FOR NEGRO RIGHTS

"The Communist-front movement in the United States among Negroes is known as the National Negro Congress. Practically the same group of leaders directing this directed the League of Struggle for Negro Rights, which was, until 2 years ago, the name of the Communists front for Negroes. The name was later changed . . . in 1936 to the National Negro Congress."

METHODIST FEDERATION FOR SOCIAL ACTION

"With an eye to religious groups, the Communists have formed religious fronts such as the Methodist Federation for Social Action . . . "

NATIONAL COMMITTEE TO REPEAL THE McCARRAN ACT

"To defend the cases of Communist lawbreakers, fronts have been devised making special appeals in behalf of civil liberties and reaching out far beyond the confines of the Communist Party itself. Among these organizations are the . . . National Committee to Repeal the McCarran Act. When the Communist Party itself is under fire these offer a bulwark of protection."

NATIONAL NEGRO CONGRESS

"The Communist-front movement in the United States among Negroes is known as the National Negro Congress. . . . The officers of the National Negro Congress are outspoken Communist sympathisers, and a majority of those on the executive board are outright Communists."

NATIONAL NEGRO LABOR COUNCIL

"One of the Communist fronts currently active in seeking to deceive American Negroes into serving the Communist cause is the National Negro Labor Council . . . The organization was formally founded at a conference held in Cincinnati, Ohio, October 27 and 28, 1951, under the direction of leading Negro Communists in the United States, such as Abner Berry, Sam W. Parks, and Coleman A. Young. According to the latest available information, Young is the present National executive secretary of the organization, from which post he controls and directs NNLC activities . . . A study of the operation of the council shows that, rather than helping the Ne-

LISTED ELSEWHERE in this folder are the Communist related records of Reverend John B. Thompson (seated), chaplain University of Chicago and chairman of this four day seminar and Aubrey Williams, Montgomery, Alabama, president Southern Conference Education Fund, Inc. and puplisher, Southern Farm and Home Magazine.

Experts on Communism observe the record of Aubrey Williams to reflect anti-US foreign policy and anti-US domestic policy. As early as 1944 a report of the Committee of which Congressman Dies was chairman named Aubrey Williams as a member of the National Citizens Political Action Committee and cited that organization as "the supreme bid of the Communist Party for power in the United States through a front."

Few people if any have aided the Communist Party more in its conspiracy against peace between the races in the southern part of the United States than did Aubrey Williams.

It is incredible that any man with a record of Communist affiliation like that of John B. Thompson could long remain as chaplain or pastor to students in a non-Communist institution.

ALONZO G. MORON, President of Hampton Institute; Septima Clark, integration workshop director at Highlander Folk School; C. N. Parrish, Wilma D. Stokely, a writer of Newport, Tennessee, and Allen McSwain a leader of the Clinton, Tennessee, incident discuss the impact of integration.

ROSA PARKS, MARTIN LUTHER KING AND REVEREND ABERNATHY:
Three outstanding leadership people of the infamous Montgomery, Alabama, bus incident. The development, precipitation and financing of this inflammatory project called for behind the scenes planning and direction beyond the ability or capacity of local people. The relationship between Communist leadership and racial strife is evident from coast to coast and from the Gulf of Mexico to the Great Lakes.

SWIMMING
BOTH THE DAY AND NIGHT LIFE at Highlander Folk School Labor DayWeekend Seminar were integrated in all respects.

CONRAD BROWNE (with glasses), Koinonia Farm Leader, Americus, Georgia, Allen McSwain (extreme right), Clinton, Tennessee, and Reverend Maurice McCracken (2nd from right), Cincinnati, Ohio. Browne was a resident leader of Koinonia Farm during the violence, boycotts and other incidents arising at this socialistic interracial community. Don West, the identified Communist co-founder of Highlander Folk School was observed to be a frequent visitor to Koinonia. Koinonia and Highlander Folk School jointly operate an interracial "summer camp."

Allen McSwain is credited with precipitating the Clinton, Tennessee, public school incident.

Reverend Maurice McCracken long connected with racial unrest in Cincinnati, Ohio, is pastor of St. Barnabus Church and is connected with Neighborhood House, a community chest supported organization, 901 Findlay Street, Cincinnati, Ohio. 901 Findlay Street is also the address of Friends of Koinonia Farm.

PETE SEEGER is typical of the entertainer who gives his time and talent to the support of the Communist apparatus. He is a talented musician who is in attendance at many meetings such as this Communist Training School at Highlander.

The Daily Worker of February 22, 1949, lists Pete Seeger as a participant in the New York State Youth Board of the Communist Party.

C. N. PARRISH (on left) who was panel moderator on the question "What Is the Impact of Integration on the People?" is shown with Rosa Parks (3rd from left) and Maurice McCracken (4th from left).

Rosa Parks was one of the original leaders of the Montgomery Bus Boycott. This agitation has resulted in strife and violence in the Alabama capitol and continues to maintain tension and disquiet. Maurice McCracken is affiliated with Neighborhood House, 901 Findlay Street, Cincinnati, Ohio.

THIS PICTURE of a station wagon lettered FINDLAY STREET, NEIGHBORHOOD HOUSE, CINCINNATI, OHIO, is included for the purpose of illustrating how many units of the Communist apparatus are assisted by organizations purportedly charitable or religious in nature.

Reverend Maurice McCracken of Neighborhood House, Cincinnati, who is pictured elsewhere attended this Communist Training School. Apparently he used this station wagon as transportation. Neighborhood House is located at 901 Findlay Street, Cincinnati, Ohio, and is supported by the Community Chest. This same address is also the address of Friends of Koinonia Farms.

Community Chest. This same address is also the address of Friends of Koinonia Farms.

ROSA PARKS, who precipitated the Montgomery Alabama Bus Boycott, and Ralph Tefferteller of New York's Henry Street Settlement listen to group training under the watchful eye of Abner Berry of the Central Committee of the Communist Party.

Berry reported the meeting of this Communist Training School in his column in the Daily Worker of September 10, 1957.

PICTURED HERE are leaders of five recent scenes of racial disturbance and violence.

Septima Clark, presently director of Highlander integration workshop was associated with the South Carolina-NAACP School Teachers Incident.

Conrad Browne is a leader of inter-racial Koinonia Farms, Americus, Georgia, the scene of boycotts, disturbances and violence.

David H. Brooks was a leader of the Tallahassee Bus Boycott. This incident was commenced only after a psychological survey of the area had been made to determine the outcome.

Rosa Parks was the central figure in the agitation which resulted in the Montgomery Bus Boycott.

Charles Gomillion, Dean of Students at Tuskegee Institute, was the leader of the Tuskegee Boycott.

REVEREND MARTIN LUTHER KING addresses the assemblage. Reverend King, president of the Southern Christian Leadership Conference is best known for his activities in the Montgomery Boycott, Montgomery Improvement Association and the March on Washington which he conducted with Bayard Rustin. The Daily Worker lists Bayard Rustin as one who attended the 1957 convention of the Communist Party USA. Bayard Rustin is identified in the Daily Worker as secretary to Reverend Martin Luther King.

The activities of Reverend Martin Luther King represent the ultimate in "civil disobedience." It is doubtful that Reverend King could have carried on such a program without outside leadership and financing; Bayard Rustin is perhaps the leading expert on "civil disobedience" in this country.

The Southern Christian Leadership Conference is a new organization founded by Reverend King for region-wide agitation of racial violence and strife.

CHARLES GOMILLION, Dean of Students at Tuskegee Institute, was the leader of the Tuskegee, Alabama, Boycott; his agitation is in large part responsible for this disturbance.

Gomillion has been most vehement in his defense of Communists and the Communist Party. His principal areas of agitation and infiltration have been among educators, Negroes, and youth groups.

These "four horsemen" of racial agitation have brought tension, disturbance, strife and violence in their advancement of the Communist doctrine of "racial nationalism".

EDITORIAL COMMENT

On the preceding pages you have seen pictures of the leaders of every major race incident in the South from May 1954 until the time of this meeting, Labor Day, 1957 Weekend (August 30, 31 and September 1, 2). You have seen executives and leaders of many organizations active in the southeastern region of the United States. All of the pictures contained in this folder were taken during this one weekend at this Communist training school, Highlander Folk School, Monteagle, Tennessee.

Names of the national figures are easily identified with their pictures. Other names of lesser figures are those given to the photographer in introductions and self identifications.

It has been our purpose, as rapidly as possible, to identify the leaders and participants of this Communist training school and disseminate this information to the general public. This Commission would appreciate your furnishing to us any further identifications you can make.

It behooves each of us to learn more of Communist infiltration and the direction of Communist movements. Only through information and knowledge can we combat this alien menace to Constitutional government.

Abner Berry is a member of the Central Committee of the Communist Party and is a columnist for the Daily Worker. Berry is one of the top ranking Negro Communists in America. His presence at a meeting such as this seminar insures the Communist Party against deviations from the Party principles.

NAACP Approval, Support, Participation

Reverend Martin Luther King, Rosa Parks, Charles C. Gomillion, Reverend David Brooks, Allen McSwain, Conrad Browne and others who attended this session at Highlander Folk School provided major leadership in the following incidents of interracial strife: (1) the Montgomery Bus Boycott; (2) the Tuskegee Boycott; (3) the Tallahassee Bus Boycott; (4) the Clinton School Incident; (5) Kononia Farms Inter-racial Violence and the March on Washington.

Each of the above-listed persons and incidents has received the national acclaim and complete support of the National Association for Advancement of Colored People. In fact, these incidents and the operation of these individuals have provided a major portion of the active program of the NAACP.

Those who conducted this Labor Day session at Highlander interspersed their lectures and discussions with appeals to those present to secure new memberships for the NAACP and especially urged that teachers join and support the NAACP.

The unqualified support by the NAACP of the above-named individuals and incidents must be viewed in light of the fact that ten of the directors including Benjamin E. Mays, President, Morehouse College, Atlanta, Georgia, have amassed the surprising total of over 400 instances of Communist Front Affiliation; more than half the directors have public records of Communist Affiliation. The directors of the NAACP both present and past have continually demonstrated an amazing propensity for affiliating themselves with pro-Communist causes.

The Honorary Chairman of the Directors of the NAACP, W. E. B. DuBois has amassed a longer public record of Communist affiliations than any other person in the United States with the staggering total of literally hundreds of such affiliations.

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE
October 5, 1957

Statement from: Myles Horton, Director
Highlander Folk School
Monteagle, Tennessee

An undercover agent sent to Tennessee by Gov. Griffin of Georgia charges that the Daily Worker also infiltrated a Highlander Workshop. If so, the alleged infiltrators were unidentified by the School or by newspaper reporters who covered the speeches and discussions at Highlander's 25th Anniversary Celebration. Ed Friend paid the required registration fee like all other applicants to the event and voluntarily identified himself as an employee of the Water Pollution Department of the State of Georgia. Like 179 other participants, the undercover agent was free to attend all meetings and to take pictures of other participants, speakers, and activities such as swimming and square dancing. Sessions were covered by the press, and the Tennessee papers carried daily reports of all speeches and discussions. In the meantime, Gov. Griffin himself was giving aid and comfort to Gov. Faubus' efforts to use armed resistance to a court order for integration of a Little Rock high school.

Since 1953 hundreds of southern community leaders have openly and honestly taken part in scores of Highlander workshops on the subject of integration. In celebration of Highlander's 25th Anniversary, a distinguished group of courageous southern leaders were brought together over Labor Day week-end; and adults committed to democratic solutions to social problems were invited to enroll for a discussion of "The South Thinking Ahead". Highlander takes pride and assumes full responsibility of the speakers and discussion leaders selected and for the program itself. However, we had only such information of the participants as they themselves furnished us. For example, Friend, Gov. Griffin's undercover agent, said he was a freelance photographer and water pollution expert for the State of Georgia. He gave the name of an Atlanta college professor as a reference. There was no way of knowing that he was a White Citizens Council member or sympathizer and an official "infiltrator".

Georgia's undercover agent's report of participants includes along with the Rev. Martin Luther King, Aubrey Williams, and Mrs. Rosa Parks, the name of an alleged Daily Worker reporter. Since this charge has not been verified, we can only say that Highlander did not and does not welcome enrollment of anyone with a totalitarian philosophy whether from the extreme right or from the extreme left. In these troubled times, nothing but more trouble can come from the White Citizens Councils' and the Communist Party's infiltration into groups earnestly seeking a democratic solution to our problems. Both are morally bankrupt and have nothing to offer. We want only those at Highlander who do their own thinking.

The interest in Highlander of Georgia's segregationists dates from our inviting the Koinonia Farms of Americus, Georgia, to hold their children's camp here after the children were run out of Georgia.

Georgia lawmen ask—

Birmingham News 10/6/57

Is race strife Commie plan?

BY EDWIN STRICKLAND, News staff writer

IS THERE A MASTER PLAN, Soviet-inspired, behind the racial incidents so widespread in America today?

If the two are connected, how close is the association, and can it be revealed?

These were the two major questions put before the Georgia Commission on Education, when it was created by the Georgia Legislature in 1953 and given broad judicial powers.

First in a series

The committee has made its first major report based upon an investigation of The Highlander Folk School in Monteagle.

Why should Georgia investigative group fire its first guns at a Tennessee institution?

Because, said the committee's executive secretary, T. V. Williams Jr., the commission believes racial strife and tensions are part of a Communist plan to subvert America.

One of the organizers of the school in 1932, was, and is, a resident of Atlanta. He is Donald L. West. Three members of the school's present executive committee list Georgia addresses.

Alabama is represented on the school's executive body in the persons of Aubrey Williams, Montgomery publisher; Dr. Charles Johnson, dean of students, Tuskegee Institute; J. E. Pierce, of Alabama State College, Montgomery; Dr. Lewis Jones, Rural Life Council, Tuskegee, and Rosa Parks, one of the leaders of the Montgomery busy boycott.

THIS LIST was compiled by investigators for Alabama Atty. Gen. John Patterson who spent several days a tthe school. The list is not identical with one compiled by the Georgia Commission on Education. The latter group, however, listed the board members as it was on Oct. 30, 1956.

The earlier list carried only the names of Dr. Lewis Jones and Williams from Alabama.

THE GEORGIA GROUP has compiled records from many sources. From the weight of these, the commission unhesitatingly labaled the school as "part of the Communist apparatus in America."

Is race

BEFORE GOING FURTHER it might be well to examine the makeup of the Georgia Commission on Education which vows to make known what it calls the Communist conspiracy.

Heading the list is Gov. Marvin Griffin, chairman and Lt. Gov. Ernest S. Vandiver, vice chairman.

House Speaker Marvin E. Moore, State Auditor B. E. Thrasher Jr., and Atty. Gen. Eugene Cook, follow in that order.

The remainder of the board is:

Robert O. Arnold, chairman of the Board of Regents; George P. Whitman Jr., chairman, State Board of Education; M. D. Collins, state school superintendent; Harmon Caldwell, chancellor University System; B. D. Murphy, chairman of the Judicial Council; Joh nSammons Bell, of the Georgia B ar Assn.; Colbert Hawkins, general council, and each of the state's 10 U. S. congressmen.

These congressmen are George L. Smith II, Frank S. Twitt, Mrs. Charles R. Crisp, Harvey C. Cutts, Miss Ira Jarrell, Mark Smith, J. Battle Hall, Robert Sapp, John S. Wood and Roy V. Harris.

UNDERCOVER AGENTS for the commission were at the Monteagle school over the Labor Day holidays, when a three-day "integration workshop" was held there. They remained in contact with the school and on the scene until Thursday night of the past week.

The commission's report made Friday in Atlanta included scores of pictures purportedly taken during the integration workshop.

These pictures show in attendance practically every leader of racial incidents in the South since 1954.

They also show pictures of persons who have been identified by congressional investigating committees as Communist leaders, plus a number of persons with records of long association with various Communist "fronts."

THE COMMISSION compiled a consolidated listing of what it called "Communist affiliations" of various persons in attendance at Highlander Folk School during the Labor Day week-end seminar.

NOT ALL of the organizations or publications listed above have been officially declared to be Communistic or Communistic "fronts" by any congressional investigating body, although many of them have.

The Georgia Commission, in its own capacity, lumps them all under the heading of Communist affiliates.

Sympathizers are many—

Red strength in U. S. shouldn't be measured by card-carrying group

BY EDWIN STRICKLAND, News staff writer

Congressional committees investigating Communist activities in America have repeatedly found that while the number of card-carrying Communists in this country is small, the more numerous supporters of Red "fronts" offer the real problem.

Whether these supporters are innocent tools, used for purposes of communism, or whether they knowingly contribute their talents and efforts, seem of little moment.

Second of a series

These congressional findings have been supported from time to time by J. Edgar Hoover, director of the Federal Bureau of Investigation.

Hoover recently released the information that there are only 17,360 actual members of the Communist Party in the United States. That is a drop of nearly 15 per cent from a year earlier.

Hoover warned, however, that the party's strength should not be discounted on the basis of its decreasing membership.

FIVE WEEKS AGO there gathered at the Highlander Folk School, in Monteagle, Tenn., a most interesting array of persons from several states for what was announced as an integration workshop and seminar.

Included among those in attendance were some who have long been labeled as Communist Party members—or leaders—by competent congressional committees.

But no less interesting were some of the other delegates whose names have long been associated with ultra liberal movements and Communist "fronts" for many years.

The Georgia Commission on Education has just unleashed a blast at Highlander Folk School as a "Communist training school."

The commission, made up of 20 of the highest placed officials in the state, based its findings upon information obtained by undercover agents it employed to investigate the school.

SIMULTANEOUSLY with the Georgia investigation, Atty. Gen. John Patterson, of Alabama, had agents at the school.

Of prime interest to Alabama and to Patterson, were the several Alabama people who were either photographed at the workshop or are listed as holding official positions with the school.

Patterson's investigators list five persons from Alabama as being connected officially with the school on its executive board. They are Dr. Charles Gomillion, dean of students at Tuskegee Institute; Dr. Lewis Jones of the Rural Life Council, Tuskegee; J. E. Pierce, Alabama College at Montgomery; Rosa Parks, one of the leaders of the Montgomery bus boycott, and Aubrey Williams, a Montgomery publisher.

Williams is a white man, with an impressive list of associations with liberal groups, some of which have been officially declared to be Communist fronts.

Other Alabama people taking an active part in the Labor Day week-end workshop included Rev. Martin Luther King, Montgomery bus boycott leader, and Rev. Abernathy, also a Montgomery integration leader.

ACCORDING TO the findings of the Georgia Commission on Education, Rev. King, who has won worldwide recognition for direction of the Montgomery boycott, led a "march on Washington" to protest segregation. Bayard Rustin, according to the commission's findings, helped lead the march.

Bayard Rustin was listed by the Communist newspaper "Daily Worker" as having attended the 1957 convention of the Communist Party U. S. A. The Re publication also idenfied Rustin as secretary to . Martin Luther King.

Dr. Gomillion, who has led the Tuskegee boycott of merchants in protest over recent legislation considered by the Negro population in Tuskegee as restrictive, was photographed at the workshop.

The investigative group lists Dr. Gomillion as a signer of a protest statement against outlawing the Communist Party in America, and as being active in the Negro Youth Congress, which is listed as a Communist front by the "Guide to Subversive Organizations and Publications," published in 1957 by the un-American activities committee of the U. S. House of Representatives.

Dr. Gomillion, the Georgia commission charged, has lent his name and support to other similar groups.

Neither Dr. Jones nor Pierce was listed as present at the workshop, though they are listed as members of the school's executive board.

NOW LET'S TURN to the most interesting personality of them all. Aubrey Williams, publisher of a farm magazine in Montgomery, has denied before congressional committees that he is a Communist.

He was appointed by President Roosevelt as director of the National Youth Administration. He was also one of the early leaders of Highlander Folk School.

His associations, often in role of leadership, in Communist fronts, is a long one and extends over a period of 20 years.

The following is a list of organizations with which he has been connected, which are on the government's official list of Communist front organizations:

American Committee for Protection of Foreign Born, sponsor of conference, October, 1949.

American Youth Congress, speaker on two or more occasions.

Civil Rights Congress, speaker, 1947.

Committee For Peaceful Alternatives to the Atlantic Pact, member of executive board.

Southern Conference for Human Welfare, speaker, 1938, speaker, 1940, signer of petition, 1946, chairman of nominating committee, 1946, signer of manifesto, 1947, member of board of representatives, 1947.

WILLIAMS' association with other "front-type" groups include:

American Crusade to End Lyn ner of petition, 1946.

A Guard Civil Rig listed in "Daily Wor

Br l Curiae for the Com Party, signer, 1955.

S n Conference Education Fund, president 1948 until now.

Williams was also a sponsor of the W. E. B. DuBois Testimonial Committee, 1951. DuBois, an official of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, holds the record for the most associations with Communist front groups.

WILLIAMS' other activities since 1938 include:

Association of Internes and Medical Students, speaker, 1950.

Committee to End Sedition Laws, signer of statement, 1955.

Commonwealth College, contributor, 1938. (Massachusetts Investigation of Communists.)

Continuations Committee of the Conference on Peaceful Alternatives to the Atlantic Pact, signer of letter, 1940, (reported in "Daily Worker").

"Mainstream," sponsor, 1947.

Mid-Century Conference for Peace, sponsor, 1950.

Mother Bloor Celebration Committee, sponsor.

National Citizens Emergency Relief Committee to Aid Strikers Families, member of national board, 1946.

National Citizens Political Action Committee, member, 1944. Also chairman of dinner committee, 1946.

New York City Council of the American Youth Congress, speaker, 1938.

Petition to Reconsider Prosecutions Under the Smith Act, signer, 1955 (reported in "Daily Worker").

Progressive Citizens of America, board of directors, 1947 (story in "Daily Worker").

Protest Meeting for Howard Fast, sponsor, 1947 (reported in "New Masses," officially identified as Communist publication).

Washington Committee for Democratic Action, member, 1939.

Workers Alliance (paid tribute to).

Williams is also a former director of Southern Regional Council, Inc., organized in Atlanta and now operating interracial councils in 12 Southern States, including Alabama.

The group was identified in testimony before a Louisiana legislative committee this year as "a Southern Red front."

Nine of the current directors of the organization were formerly affiliated with the Southern Conference for Human Welfare.

OF THE SOUTHERN Conference Education Fund, which Williams has headed since its beginning, the Senate internal security subcommitte in 1955, said in part that it was "initially an adjunct of the Southern Conference for Human Welfare.

"After the exposure of the Southern Conference for Human Welfare as a Communist front, it began to wither and was finally dissolved, but the Southern Conference Educational Fund, Inc., continued."

The Senate committee also found that "The Southern Conference Education Fund, Inc., is operating with substantially the same leadership and purpose as its predecessor organization, the Southern Conference for Human Welfare."

DR. GOMILLION, of Tuskegee, has served with the Southern Conference Education Fund, and is one of eight current directors of the Southern Regional Council, Inc., who have been so affiliated with the Southern Conference Education Fund, according to "Firing Line," published by the National Americanism Commission, The American Legion.

Despite his protestations, Williams was named in testimony before the Senate Committee in 1954 as a member of the Communist Party.

The Highlander Folk School, current object of investigation by officials of both Alabama and Georgia, was brought into testimony before the Senate sub-committee on internal security in 1954, by Paul Crouch, admitted top Communist Party functionary in the South before renouncing the Reds.

Said Crouch:

"The Highlander Folk School is a school operated at Monteagle, Tenn., ostensibly as an independent labor school, but actually working in close cooperation with the Communist Party."

Workshop glows red— Birmingham News 10/8/57

Communist influence sharpens in race row

BY EDWIN STRICKLAND.
News staff writer

Is there any significance in the fact that four of the leaders in recent Alabama racial incidents were much in evidence at the Labor Day Weekend integration workshop at red-tinged Highlander Folk School?

In yesterday's article it was pointed out that Rev. Martin Luther King, Rosa Parks and Rev. Abernathy, all leaders in the Montgomery bus boycott, and Dr. Charles Gomillion, dean of students at Tuskegee Institute and leader of the Tuskegee boycott, all took part in the three-day program at Monteagle, Tenn.

Third in a series

Who were some of their associates at the workshop? Let's look at a few along with their past performances.

ABNER W. BERRY, a writer for the Communist "Daily Worker," and identified as a member of the Communist Central Committee. As such, he represents one of the powerful Negro Red leaders in the country.

Berry reported the racially integrated meeting in his column in "The Daily Worker" on Sept. 10.

In one photograph taken during the workshop by undercover agents for Alabama Atty. Gen. John Patterson and for the Georgia Commission on Education, Berry is shown in a study group with Rev. King, Aubrey Williams and Myles Horton, school director.

ANOTHER personality at the school was Pete Seeger, a New York musician and listed by "The Daily Worker" in 1949 as a participant in the New York State Youth Board of the Communist Party.

The mere presence at the seminar of two Communist personalities such as Berry and Seeger would inticate that it had the favor of the American brand Communists.

Before a congressional committee in 1955, Seeger took the Fifth Amendment when questioned about his Communist Party membership.

He has gotten probably as much mention in "The Daily Worker" as any of the country's second-string Commie leaders.

SINCE 1941, Seeger has had scores of associations and roles with the Communist appartus in America. Few have been more active in so many Communist "fronts" and in behalf of the Communist Party itself.

At the Highlander Folk School five weeks ago, Seeger was in his most familiar role as an entertainer.

The following is a selected list of his activities. The entire list of 55 known incidents would be too lengthy to report here. Almost all of his activities have been faithfully reported by "The Daily Worker."

ONCE DURING 1946, and three times during 1949, Seeger was listed as an entertainer and participant in activities of the Communist Party in New York:

American Committee for Protection of Foreign Born, 1949.

American Committee for Yugoslav Relief, 1946.

American Folksay Group, 1950.

American-Soviet Music Society, 1947.

American Youth Congress, 1941.

American Youth for Democracy, 1946.

FROM CHICAGO to attend the workshop was John B. Thompson, chaplain at the Rockfellow Chapel at the University of Chicago.

Thompson's affiliations over the past two decades read like an index of organizations identified as Communist fronts and other groups listing the same personnel in general as the Red fronts.

Thompson has always been found springing to the defense of the Communist Party and of Reds who run afoul of American laws. He has lent his name to petitions protesting the deportation of Harry Bridges, West Coast Communist in the longshoremen's union.

Thompson was also in the forefront of a welcoming committee in 1948 for the "Red Dean of Canterbury," when the latter visited Chicago.

AGAIN, IT WAS Thompson who spoke out against the conviction of 11 Communist leaders in 1949, and was quoted in the "Daily Worker."

He was a vice president of the deep crimson "South[illegible] Conference for Human Welfare."

Thompson joined in the effort to save the atomic spies, Julius and Ethel Rosenburg, from the death sentence imposed in 1952.

Other affiliations include dozens of organizations officially listed as Communist dominated.

The Georgia Commission on Education commented of Thompson that "it is incredible that any man with the record of Communist affiliations like that of John B. Thompson could long remain as chaplain or pastor to students in a non-Communist institution."

THE REV. Maurice McCracken, of The Neighborhood House, 901 Findley-st, Cincinnati, Ohio, attended the school. Pictured at the school was a station wagon bearing the inscription "Findley Street Neighborhood House."

An investigator from Cin-

Education last week, said the organization is supported by Community Chest funds.

The Georgia investigative group said it included the picture in the record of its hearings for the purpose of "illustrating how many units of Communist apparatus are assisted by organizations purportedly charitable or religious in nature."

Another organization, known as Friends of Koinonia Farms, lists its address as 901 Findley-st, Cincinnati, Ohio.

KOINONIA FARMS, located at Americus, Ga., has been the scene of recent violence and boycotts. It is operated on a socialized, integrated basis. Its leader, Conrad Browne, was in attendance at the Highlander workshop.

No report on Highlander Folk School would be complete without an introduction to Donald L. West of Atlanta, Ga., who was one of the school's organizers.

He was not reported present at the integration workshop, but a look at his background in light of his leadership of the school, might be in order.

THOUGH WEST has never acknowledged Communist Party membership, he was identified as a member of the party in a 1947 report of a committee of the U. S. House of Representatives which was investigating the Southern Conference for Human Welfare.

West has written articles for "The Pilot" a publication of the National Maritime Union. The publication is officially listed as being Communist controlled.

In the best tradition of all the known Southern Reds or "pinks," West was active in both the Southern Conference for Human Welfare, and the People's Institute of Applied Religion. Both have been identified as Red fronts.

HE IS LISTEDas a contributor to "New Masses," a Communist publication, and was a member of the National Wallace for President Committee.

Sharpens in race row

BY EDWIN STRICKLAND.
News staff writer

Is there any significance in the fact that four of the leaders in recent Alabama racial incidents were much in evidence at the Labor Day Weekend integration workshop at red-tinged Highlander Folk School?

In yesterday's article it was pointed out that Rev. Martin Luther King, Rosa Parks and Rev. Abernathy, all leaders in the Montgomery bus boycott, and Dr. Charles Gomillion, dean of students at Tuskegee Institute and leader of the Tuskegee boycott, all took part in the three-day program at Monteagle, Tenn.

Third in a series

Who were some of their associates at the workshop? Let's look at a few along with their past performances.

ABNER W. BERRY, a writer for the Communist "Daily Worker," and identified as a member of the Communist Central Committee. As such, he represents one of the powerful Negro Red leaders in the country.

Berry reported the racially integrated meeting in his column in "The Daily Worker" on Sept. 10.

In one photograph taken during the workshop by undercover agents for Alabama Atty. Gen. John Patterson and for the Georgia Commission on Education, Berry is shown in a study group with Rev. King, Aubrey Williams and Myles Horton, school director.

ANOTHER personality at the school was Pete Seeger, a New York musician and listed by "The Daily Worker" in 1949 as a participant in the New York State Youth Board of the Communist Party.

The mere presence at the seminar of two Communist personalities such as Berry and Seeger would inticate that it had the favor of the American brand Communists.

Before a congressional committee in 1955, Seeger took the Fifth Amendment when questioned about his Communist Party membership.

He has gotten probably as much mention in "The Daily Worker" as any of the country's second-string Commie leaders.

SINCE 1941, Seeger has had scores of associations and roles with the Communist appartus in America. Few have been more active in so many Communist "fronts" and in behalf of the Communist Party itself.

At the Highlander Folk School five weeks ago, Seeger was in his most familar role as an entertainer.

The following is a selected list of his activities. The entire list of 88 known incidents would be too lengthy to report here. Almost all of his activities have been faithfully reported by "The Daily Worker."

ONCE DURING 1946, and three times during 1949, Seeger was listed as an entertainer and participant in activities of the Communist Party in New York:

American Committee for Protection of Foreign Born, 1949.

American Committee for Yugoslav Relief, 1946.

Racial events i[illegible] South following Red pattern

8. Abolition of discriminatory practices in courts against jury service.

9. Abolition of the convict lease system and of the chain gang.

10. Abolition of all Jim Crow distinction in the Army, Navy and Civil Service.

11. Immediate removal of all restrictions in all trade unions against the membership of Negroes.

12. Equal opportunity for employment, wages, hours, and working conditions for Negro and white workers. Equal pay for equal work for Negro and white workers.

Many of these points have long since been realized with the full cooperation of the majority of Southern leaders. It's typical of the Communist Party that it includes in its aim[illegible] things on which almost eve[illegible] one can agree as just and e[illegible] table.

The purpose of this enumeration of Communist aims here is to show a parallel with the 25-year-old policy of The Highlander Folk School, in Monteagle, Tenn., and how it has worked toward these goals.

In the July, 1956 issue of "Highlander Reports," a pul[illegible] lication of the racially inte[illegible] mixed school, the exec[illegible] council said:

"The immediate and challenging task confronting those who desire a democratic South is integration."

The programming of the school's activities for 1957 was then announced:

Twelve integration workshops.

Twenty-four weeks of extension courses.

The announced purpose of these is to train integration leaders in the South.

[illegible] well the school has succeeded can be seen from a look at the leaders of all the major racial incidents. All have now, or in the past have had, training at the school.

As late as Feb. 20, 1957, the Commissioner of Internal Revenue, U. S. Treasury Department, Washington, D. C., took a look at the school's activities and at its tax-exempt status, and ruled that contributions to the school will not in the future be exempt from income tax.

THIS DECISION was based upon a finding that "your staff and students have participated in strikes at various places . . . it is shown . . . that your activities also include . . . promoting certain reforms through organized action programs and other means, as evidenced by the following, which was expressed in one of your annual reports:

"Our purpose is deliberately to use education for the realization of certain social and cultural values. We do not consider other education any less propaganda, because its teachers are ignorant of the fact that they are supporting an unethical STATUS QUO, than our approach which consciously seeks to bring about a more just social order. . . ."

Myles Horton, the school's present director and one of the founders, is now strong in advocating placid compliance in the South to the integration edict. But let us look at his actions prior to the 1954 decision of the U. S. Supreme Court, when the "separate equal" school doctrine was still the law of the land.

[illegible] In a seminar discussion on [illegible] gration problems held in [illegible] uary, 1957, the joint execu[illegible] ve council of the school, and [illegible] sultants, made it very clear [illegible] e work of the school [illegible] integration did not wait [illegible] Supreme Court deci-

[illegible] TIMA CLARK, Negro [illegible] er who was fired in South Carolina and is now on the Highlander staff, led off by talking about her part in Clinton, Tenn. She deplored the fact that one of the students who began the integration move there, had been taken [illegible] of school by her parents.

[illegible] hat meeting set the goal [illegible] the integration workshops [illegible] is year, with the announced [illegible] rpose of training 400 integra[illegible] leaders a month.

Writing in "The North Central Association Quarterly, in 1952, Horton, who was then listed as education director of the United Packinghouse Workers Union, expressed his feeling about labor's part in the race struggle.

"With organized labor and public education united in vision and in daily operations we would be in a position to make Democracy a reality.

"No longer would distinctions of classes, of race, and religion be tolerated. The schools could rise to the challenge of the day and help in the creation of an army of democracy rooted in the struggles and traditions of the American people, an army so vast and so determined that nothing undemocratic could stand in its path."

To get back to the most recent workshop, an announcement from the school, said "progress reports," will be made "from such key areas in the South as Clinton, Tenn., Koinonia Farm, an interracial Christian community at Americus, Ga.; Birmingham, Ala., and Tallahassee, Fla. Workshops will consider the implications of integration for church groups, educators, trade unions, business and industry and community and civic organizations."

THE ANNOUNCEMENT also featured talks by the Rev. Martin Luther King of Montgomery on "The Look to the Future," and by Aubrey Williams, Montgomery publisher, on " A New Dealer Looks at the Present."

Something apparently fell through on the Birmingham report. Undercover agents who attended the session reported they could not identify any known integration leader from Birmingham.

King later outlined in his talk what he said were the three major periods in the Negro's rise to what he called "complete integration."

Williams did not see complete integration. He lashed hard at Southern leaders who oppose complete compliance with integration orders, but noted that "the South seem[illegible] bent upon refusing to give a[illegible] ground whatsoever."

He said further that "moreover, we are moving steadily in the direction of more rigid and wider denials. We are going to new lengths in establishing the rigidity of separation."

Williams lashed at Southern senators, governors and other leaders for what he said was a stand "little short of insanity." He damned Atty. Gen. John Patterson for what he called "seizure of records of a citizens organization whose activities are limited to protesting a law which had wiped out their right to vote . . ."

He referred to Patterson's seizure of records of a Negro group at Tuskegee, led by Charles Gomillion, dean of students at Tuskegee Institute, which boycotted white merchants.

Williams concluded that the course being followed by the South could lead to rebellion," and pl[illegible] South again into war.

Complains of treatment—

Aubrey Williams wires reply to News article

In the Monday edition of The Birmingham News, there was an article by a News staff writer relating, among other things, to certain alleged activities of Aubrey Williams of Montgomery, Ala. The News is in receipt of a telegram from Mr. Williams complaining of the treatment accorded him. To present his version and complaint, The News is glad to print Mr. Williams' telegram in full:

"My attention has just been called to the front page story carried in today's Birmingham News entitled, 'Red strength in U. S. shouldn't be measured by card-carrying group.'

"I had hoped that smearing tactics of this type had passed from the American scene with the demise of Sen. McCarthy, and it is difficult for me to believe that a paper of the stature of The News would deliberately engage in them. Had the article directly accused me of being a Communist, I would at least have respected its courage, but by the roundabout process of inference, innuendo and association and the lifting of lies from the mouths of discredited, paid informers, told under congressional immunity, the article attempts to accuse me of being a Communist or a Communist tool, and at the same time avoids direct charge. It thus combines cowardice with [illegible].

"Having been in public life for many years, I have received my full share of criticism, some perhaps justified and much that was irresponsible. It has been my general inclination to disregard it. However, I cannot let charges and inferences such as those contained in your article go unchallenged.

"The innuendo contained in your article is clearly libelous. However, I prefer to rely upon your sense of fairness for at least a partial redress of the injury done to me by your paper, and I therefore ask that you retract the inference of the article that I am a Communist or a Communist tool by a further article of equal prominence in your paper."

Review of records shows R

BY EDWIN STRICKLAND
News staff writer

The race issue in America today is "top priority" for our home-grown Reds and their Soviet advisers.

The Negroes and whites caught in the destructive whirlpool of strife and emotions, are mere pawns in the Communist master plan which has been spelled out for us by the Communists themselves.

These conclusions are inescapable to one who takes the time and effort to look behind the scenes and see who is arranging the stage settings.

Last of a series

Also inescapable is a fact that may come as a shock to good Americans who have always been taught that Democracy is rule by the majority.

The shattering truth that has demonstrated itself time and time again is that the unorganized majority is voiceless and without the means of making its will felt. It is the highly organized, militant and often ruthless minorities which rule almost every facet of our national life today.

Chief among those militant minorities is the Communist Party, U. S. A., and the literally hundreds of "fronts" behind which it disguises itself.

Communism in America has many faces.

Responsible Southern leaders speak sincerely when they charge that behind Southern race incidents lurk the crimson shadow of International Communism.

Previous articles in this series have attempted to explore the basis for these charges. The findings are clear: The Communists and their fellow travelers have seized upon a situation of their own making to bring strife and divide the country's strength at a time when our national security hangs delicately in the balance.

Several states have undertaken to ferret out the Red fronts behind race incidents. Some fault has been laid directly at the door of the National Assn. for the Advancement of Colored People, which has been barred from activity in Alabama and several other states.

But the fault goes much deeper than the NAACP, the facts indicate.

SOME LEADERS say we have been protecting too many "sacred cows" disguised under patriotic and religious labels.

Fully half of the officially labeled Communist fronts go under names which begin with the word "American". A large percentage begin with the words "Christian" or Religious" or some other word indicating the group to be religious in character.

Congressional hearings and numerous official investigations have established the fact that the Communists seek anonymity in highly respected organizations, then work from within to change the character and purpose of those organizations to make them fit into Communist plans.

Labor unions, cooperatives, civic and patriotic groups, educational institutions, charitable organizations and even churches have been infiltrated by Red agents and their "yes men."

These facts are known to agents of the Federal Bureau of Investigation, and often by leaders of the infiltrated groups. Only the latter, and an informed membership, can stop such use of their organizations by the Reds.

How can you tell whether an organization to which you belong is Red-infested, or in danger of becoming so?

1. Look behind its high-sounding statement of purposes and see whether it is really working for American ideals.

2. Read the list of its sponsors, organizers, donars and board of directors. If you find there are names of persons known to have connections with "front groups" it would justify you to look further.

3. If the end result of the policies of the organization would be strife or disorder, or would give aid and comfort to the enemies of our society, you're striking pay dirt.

Gov. Marvin Griffin of Georgia charged that Communist are "preying upon members of both races" in creating discord. He has avowed to expose what he calls the entire Communist conspiracy behind the race issue.

ALABAMA'S attorney general, John Patterson, said his investigations have disclosed connections between race boycotts in Montgomery and Tuskegee, and The Highlander Folk School in Monteagle, Tenn., which has been called "a Communist training school" by the Georgia Commission on Education.

The school, through its own publications, stated that its field agents worked in almost every Southern city where race incidents have occurred.

The 23rd annual report of the school listed its "accomplishments" of the past 12 months. It listed 11 residential workshops, dealing with everything from labor union activity to the United Nations to "Public School Desegregation Workshop."

The report also stated that field agents of the school had worked in integration problems in Charleston, S. C., Columbia, S. C., Monks Corner, S. C., Tuskegee, Ala., Knoxville, Tenn., Oak Ridge, Tenn., Chattanooga and Nashville.

In Tuskegee, later the scene of a merchants boycott, the field agents "met with school teachers, clergymen, NAACP leaders, civic association representatives and Tuskegee students to analyze deadlock, between white and Negro communities and discuss possible solutions. . . ."

In almost every place, according to the field workers reports, they met with NAACP leaders.

At Johns Island, S. C., May 29, 1955, Highlander representatives participated in an all day panel discussion on the following subjects:

1. Why should Negroes be organized?

2. Some of the causes for other races to overlook Negroes.

3. Who is responsible for less than 30 per cent of colored citizens in South Carolina not being voting citizens?

4. Does the buying power of the Negro, when wisely used, help change this condition?

THE LAST SUBJECT would seem to suggest economic boycott, such as occurred in Tuskegee.

Other activities of the school's staff, said the report, included attending:

1. Testimonial dinner for Judge J. Waites Waring, Charleston, S. C.

2. Staff Conference, Campbell Folk School, Brasstown, S. C.

3. Tennessee Council of Human Relations, Nashville and Knoxville, Tenn.

4. Southern Conference Educational Fund, Atlanta, Ga.

5. Southern Sociological Conference, Nashville.

At least one of the above mentioned, the Southern Conference Educational Fund, has been listed as a Communistic front.

The report also note "meeting with Highlande raising committees on West Coast made it po for staff members to sp classes at the Univers California and the Univ of Washington.

"During visits to Ch and New York for s meetings staff members at the University of Ch Columbia University, Lawrence and New York versity."

It might be well to note that while funds for the s are raised nationwide, "s arships" are offered on people in Southern comm ties who wish to provide ership along the lines t at the school.

In July, 1956, the Highla Report headlined its sheet with:

"WE WILL EDUCATE INTEGRATION IN OUR IDENCE SESSIONS, IN OU FIELD PROGRAM, IN OUR COMMUNITY!"

It started off the report by saying:

"The immediate and challenging barrier to Democracy in the South is segregation.

"The immediate and challenging task confronting those who desire a democratic South is integration."

In other words, the school's chief aims in 1956, were identical to the stated aims of the Communist Party, U. S. A., in 1928.

The school likes to crow about what it calls accomplishments in areas where racial incidents have occurred. It publishes sheets called "The Story of John Island," and "The Montgomery Story," as examples.

THE MONTGOMERY story, as told by the publication, has Rosa Parks deciding her people "are not goin gto take it any more' 'and thus kicking off the bitter bus boycott.

It is interesting to note that almost every place that staff members of Highlander did field work in 1955, have become the scene of racial incidents.

In Tuskegee the issue is still unsettled. It is led there by Charles G. Gomillion, dean of students at Tuskegee. Gomillion is on the board of Highlander, as is Rosa Parks. Gomillion is also listed as a sponsor for the Southern Conference Educational Fund.

His other affiliations, most of them officially listed as Communist fronts, are as follows:

W. E. B. DuBois Testimonial Sponsoring Committee, sponsor, 1951. (DuBois, honorary head of NAACP, holds the distinction of having literally hundreds of Communist front associations — more than any other known American.)

First Line of Defense—signer of statement in defense of Communists. (Reported Aug. 29, 1948, "Daily Worker" page 6.)

Sotuhern Conference Educational Fund, member of board of directors, 1954.

Southern Negro Youth Congress, member of advisory board an dsecretary, 1947. (Officially liste d as Communist front.)

Are Negroes being victimized by their own organization, the NAACP, as part of a Red plan in America? Maybe so, maybe not.

The fact is, however, that 10 of the members of the NAACP's natiional board of directors, each have from 23 to 57 known associations with Communists fronts, including

The fund's own report for 1928-30, listed a gift of $100,000 to the NAACP, and another $5000 loan to that organization.

Significantly, perhaps, most of the other loans and gifts from this foundation were to:

1. Daily Worker, $6875.
2. American Civil Liberties Union (several grants).
3. International Labor Defense, $6875.
4. Max Eastman, for preparation and production of an historic film on the Russian Revolution.
5. Russian Reconstruction Farms, New York, $21,015.
6. Urban League, $15,000.

Those are only a representative part of the report, but clearly shows the makeup of the fund to be a deep red.

COMMUNISTS are not found on soap boxes or handing out leaflets. They operate from offices and respectable addresses. They are like termites which enter a timber, gut it to a shell and destroy its strength before being discovered. In many organizations today they entered just as unnoticed, work just as stealthily and in the end bring about the same ruin.

THE CHATTANOOGA TIMES: CHATTANO

HIGHLANDER RAPS INFILTRATOR ROLE

Folk School Director Says Georgia Undercover Man Given Free Range

Special to The Chattanooga Times

MONTEAGLE, Tenn., Oct. 6—Infiltration of White Citizens Council and Communist party representatives "into groups earnestly seeking a democratic solution to our problems can bring nothing but more trouble," Myles Horton, director of the controversial Highlander Folk School here, declared in a statement today.

His statement was in reply to charges by a Georgia undercover agent that a representative of the Daily Worker, New York Communist newspaper, attended the recent workshop at Highlander.

Horton said the White Citizens Councils and the Communist party are both "morally bankrupt and have nothing to offer," and added: "We want only those at Highlander who do their own thinking."

The prepared statement by Horton follows:

"An undercover agent sent to Tennessee by Gov. Griffin of Georgia charges that the Daily Worker also infiltrated a Highlander workshop. If so, the alleged infiltrators were unidentified by the school or by newspaper reporters who covered the speeches and discussions at Highlander's 25th anniversary celebration.

"Ed Friend paid the required registration fee like all other applicants to the event and voluntarily identified himself as an employe of the Water Pollution Department of the state of Georgia. Like 179 other participants, the undercover agent was free to attend all meetings and to take pictures of other participants, speakers, and activities such as swimming and square dancing.

"Sessions were covered by the press, and the Tennessee papers carried daily reports of all speeches and discussions. In the meantime, Gov. Griffin himself was giving aid and comfort to Gov. Faubus' efforts to use armed resistance to a court order for integration of Little Rock high school.

Totalitarian Philosophy Hit

"Since 1953, hundreds of Southern community leaders have openly and honestly taken part in scores of Highlander workshops on the subject of integration. In celebration of Highlander's 25th anniversary, a distinguished group of courageous Southern leaders were brought together over the Labor Day weekend. Adults committed to democratic solutions to social problems were invited to enroll for a discussion of 'The South Thinking Ahead.'

"Highlander takes pride and assumes full responsibility of the speakers and discussion leaders selected and for the program itself. However, we had only such as they themselves furnished us. For example, Friend, Gov. Griffin's undercover agent, said he was a freelance photographer and water pollution expert for the state of Georgia. He gave the name of an Atlanta college professor as a reference. There was no way of knowing that he was a White Citizens Council member or sympathizer and an official 'infiltrator.'

"The Georgia undercover agent's report of participants includes along with the Rev. Martin Luther King, Aubrey Williams, and Mrs. Rosa Parks, the name of an alleged Daily Worker reporter. Since this charge has not been verified, we can only say that Highlander did not and does not welcome enrollment of anyone with a totalitarian philosophy whether from the extreme right or from the extreme left. In these troubled times, nothing but more trouble can come from the White Citizens Councils' and the Communist party's infiltration into groups earnestly seeking a democratic solution to our problems. Both are morally bankrupt and have nothing to offer. We want only those at Highlander who do their own thinking.

"The interest in Highlander of Georgia's segregationists dates from our inviting the Koinonia Farms of Americus, Ga., to hold their children's camp here after the children were run out of Georgia."

Georgia Invades Ohio

OVER THE Labor Day week end a seminar on "The South Looking Ahead" was held at the Highlander Folk School in Monteagle, Tennessee. Attending were men and women prominent in the nonviolent struggle for Negro rights. They discussed means for resolving the racial issue in a peaceful way. All the meetings were open to all 179 participants and all sessions were covered by the press. Registration was open to all who applied and paid the registration fee, although, explained director Myles Horton, "Highlander did not and does not welcome enrollment of anyone with a totalitarian philosophy whether from the extreme right or from the extreme left. . . . Both [white citizens' councils and the Communist party] are morally bankrupt and have nothing to offer. We want only those at Highlander who do their own thinking." But see how twisted all this was when shadowed through the distorting prisms of some minds. Georgia's Governor Marvin Griffin presided over a meeting of the Georgia Education Commission established by the legislature in 1953 to find ways to prevent integration in the public schools. There it was reported that an "undercover agent made contact and infiltrated" the Highlander meeting called to discuss "methods and tactics of precipitating racial strife and disturbance." Talk Like This May Get T. V. Jr. in Trouble

By EUGENE PATTERSON

T. V. WILLIAMS JR. has gone and made a statement that might get him into some trouble. I certainly hope so.

He is executive secretary of the Georgia Education Commission, which represents many leading segregationists.

But regardless of your views on segregation, you can't help but leap a little sideways when you hear Mr. Williams quoted by United Press as saying this sort of thing:

FRONT MOVEMENT

"The Communist agitator has been most proficient in getting the Christian minister, and to a lesser extent our educators, to affiliate with front movements. The noble principles of these groups have made them easy prey for the Communists and other unscrupulous groups. . . . I'd like to see some sort of legislation enacted based on our investigations whereby subversive influences could be removed from our educational institutions."

Eugene Patterson is executive editor of The Atlanta Journal-Constitution.

Now, ordinarily when a solitary David squares off with a Goliath the size of Georgia's combined preachers and teachers, you'd give him A-plus for pep. But you can't say much for his firepower when he hasn't got a rock in his slingshot.

It'll take a lot of talking to convince Georgians that their teachers as a class aren't loyal and well-educated folks who generally do right, regardless of which fellow mistakes them for easy prey.

The chief danger I see in Mr. Williams' charge is that some teacher the size of the ones they used to grow in south Georgia will paddle him for talking smart.

THE BOOK

As for preachers, Mr. Williams is apt to get the Book thrown at him.

If the noble principles of Christianity make a man easy prey for the Communists, then the hoot owls of Georgia whistle bob-white and hogs hate watermelon.

To put it another way, my 4-year-old daughter has a game in which she locks the fingers of her hands together, with the two little forefingers sticking up, and then suddenly turns them over, saying:

"There's the church
"And there's the steeple.
"Open the church
"And there's the people."

Come on in the house, T. V.

Would-Be Wire Tappers Should Try Hearing Aid

10-31-57

So the secretary of the Georgia Education Commission would buy electronic equipment suitable for wire tapping?

Well, his requisition makes one important omission. He should have asked for a hearing aid.

In fact, without even an audio booster, he might learn that public opinion does not sustain Gestapo activities. Nor is the public enthusiastic about spending tax money for some of the far-fetched "educational" propaganda the Georgia Education Commission has been buying.

We don't believe the government and its efficient security agency, the FBI, would permit any "Communist meeting" at the Highlander Folk School in Tennessee as the commission's gum-shoe agents maintain.

According to reports, anyone who was willing to pay the registration fee could get in at the Highlander School, make photographs, or attend the dance. That isn't in the Commie pattern.

The Highlander School has long had a reputation as a haven for somewhat silly and extreme left-wingers and pseudo-liberals of the naive or stupid variety.

But if any Communist school was held, as the commission claims, it is a matter for the FBI and not for any amateur wire tappers or bush-league secret police.

Dear Art:

I am attaching another copy of the Southern States Industrial Council Bulletin, and with it a bulletin that is even more disturbing, so far as I am concerned, titled, "Firing Line", which is apparently published by the American Legion. Talk about reactionary outfits - the next thing I know they will claim that the Southern Regional Council is communistic! If it is, I have been fooled for the past ten years. It's true that I don't go to many meetings, but I read "The New South" like a hawk. As a lawyer, I have been trained to read carefully, though rapidly, and believe me - there is nothing communistic about "The New South". It represents a truly constitutional approach to civil rights and freedom, the whole reason for establishing the colonies and for establishing our nation. If the Southern Regional Council is communistic, I would definitely state that it is all on an underground basis!

I might add: if Ralph McGill is a communist, I will start eating your hat!

I will appreciate your comments, if any.

Sincerely,

CONFIDENTIAL

MEMORANDUM

FROM: John Constable

TO: Harold Fleming

RE: MEETING OF GEORGIA COMMISSION ON EDUCATION MEETING OF January 10, 1958.

I attended the meeting of the Georgia Commission on Education after ascertaining from T. V. Williams, Jr., over the telephone that the meeting was open to the press and to the public.

OFFICIAL ACTION OF COMMISSION

1. Passed a resolution asking the Georgia Legislature to repeal the state's compulsory school attendance law.

2. Authorized T. V. Williams, Jr., to mail copies of the Highlander Folk School publicity to all box-holders in Georgia.

3. Authorized T. V. Williams, Jr., to reprint and distribute if he can secure permission, the Atlanta Constitution series on Highlander Folk School written by Jack Nelson.

4. Authorized T. V. Williams, Jr., to print and distribute pictures taken at a recent meeting of the Georgia Council of Churches.

5. Authorized the Commission's investigating committee to set up hearings with subpoena powers included. According to T. V. Williams, Jr., the committee did not have power to actually set up hearings prior to this action.

6. Authorized T. V. Williams, Jr., to purchase addressograph equipment and automatic typewriter.

GENERAL DISCUSSION OF NOTE

WIRETAPPING

Gov. Griffin said that no wiretapping equipment had been purchased; but if he deemed it necessary to protect Georgia from "these people" then he would purchase such equipment. He absolved the Commission of any responsibility for such equipment should it be purchased. He said the Georgia Bureau of Investigation has borrowed such equipment on occasions.

HIGHLANDER FOLK SCHOOL

Highlander came in for little discussion except concerning distribution of the folder concerning the Labor Day meeting. Gov. Griffin did say, however, that Highlander was in Tennessee and so they would have little to do with it. He added that he knew of no Georgia teachers connected with the organization; but if he heard of one, he would speak out against him.

The group had high praise for Jack Nelson's series on Highlander. The one woman present said it was "worse" than the material the Commission had printed.

GEORGIA COUNCIL OF CHURCHES

Pictures taken at an interracial meeting of the Georgia Council of Churches were passed around for commission members and others to view. Roy Harris suggested that some of these be published. Mrs. Stewart Colley was mentioned and pointed out to the woman member of the Commission. Several remarks were made concerning Episcopalians since the meeting took place in an Episcopal Church. Ministers who are integrationists were discussed and the woman member asked the Governor if ministers with these sentiments were not in the minority. Governor Griffin said he was not so sure. Roy Harris: "But they won't stand up and be counted."

ED FRIEND

Governor Griffin said Ed Friend would be attending upcoming meetings of this type for the purpose of taking more pictures.

ATLANTA GENERAL ELECTION

Pictures were distributed which purportedly showed irregular voting procedure by Negroes. No purpose for these pictures were discussed except Gov. Griffin said he might save those for (Sen.) Paul Douglas. Roy Harris said Atlanta had gone to Hell anyway and the only thing to do was to protect the rest of the state.

ADVERTISEMENTS

Governor Griffin said the Commission had proposed placing advertisements concerning Georgia in other newspapers in Washington and the North. These were not to secure recruits but to let people know that the people of the Sovereign State of Georgia were determined to stand firm on the segregation matter. Some advertisements were prepared for Washington papers and submitted to the two Georgia senators for advice. When the two senators were doubtful as to the value of such advertisements during the civil rights debate, which had already passed the House of Representatives, the advertisements were abandoned.

DAVID BEN GURION AND JEWS

Governor Griffin read a statement given to him by a friend of Sen. James Eastland of Mississippi. The statement, purportedly by David Ben Gurion of Israel, was interpreted by the Governor as saying that the Jewish people only wanted to associate with each other and did not want anything to do with other peoples. Governor Griffin said it was originally planned to run an advertisement of this statement in the New York Times. The idea, according to the Governor, would be to tell the Jews, many of whom were pushing integration, that the Caucasian race in Georgia only wants the same right to associate with their own kind. The advertisement idea was dropped. He didn't say why, but he did disclaim any intention of disrespect to the Jewish people. Oddly enough, this was the only portion of the meeting completely off the record. Roy Harris said he would like to have this for the Augusta Courier. When a newsman asked him if he meant off the record, he replied, "No, on the record."

SOUTHERN LEADERSHIP CONFERENCE AND THE NAACP

These groups were NOT referred to by name, but Roy Harris said that a Negro friend of his sat in on recent Atlanta meeting of the "two largest groups" and came back and reported what went on at the meeting. Harris said the Negro told him that the Negroes in Georgia were not going to do anything because leaders at the two meeting had said that the Governor (meaning Griffin) was crazy and it was no telling what he would do.

Dear Dr. Moron:

Thank you for your very welcome letter of January 9 conveying your acceptance of re-election to the Council. I know the officers and other members will be as pleased as the staff is.

I was also glad to have the full text of your remarks on the disgraceful smear sheet circulated by the Georgia Education Commission and publicized by a number of newspapers. Your speech is an eloquent and forceful reply which we can use to good effect in our continuing efforts to counter the Commission's false propaganda.

HAMPTON INSTITUTE
HAMPTON, VIRGINIA

FOR RELEASE

Text of address by Dr. Alonzo G. Moron, President of Hampton Institute, Hampton, Virginia, delivered at the Sunday evening Vesper Service on the College campus, October 27, 1957.

When I arranged with Dr. Bodein several weeks ago to speak to you tonight, it was my intention to describe for you some of the things that I do as President of Hampton Institute while away from the campus. At the time I had no idea that one of these commissions would develop into a newspaper incident and a despicable attempt to connect me with Communists; and so instead of speaking to you tonight in general terms I would like to address myself to the questions raised by the headlines in the story carried in the Times Herald on October 24. It is altogether fitting that I make this reply from this platform and to the Hampton Institute community, because there would be no reason for the interest shown in my activities by the Georgia Commission on Education or by the Times Herald if I were not identified as the President of Hampton Institute. At this point I would like to express my deep gratitude and sincere thanks to those who have expressed their indignation at the publication of the story. To our Faculty I should like to say how heart-warming it was to read your statement in today's paper. I shall always strive to be worthy of your confidence and of your respect.

On January 12, 1957 I received an invitation from the Highlander Folk School to participate in a Twenty-Fifth Anniversary Seminar to be held over Labor Day weekend, designed to identify and analyze the major problems confronting the South today and to examine methods for dealing with these problems. The letter of invitation was signed by Myles Horton, Director of the Highlander Folk School, and by Septima P. Clark, Workshop Director. During the years I lived in Atlanta I had become familiar with the good work the Highlander Folk School had done to raise the standard of living of the white people of the Cumberland Mountains; I knew how they had helped those people to learn simple things like reading and writing, and to organize in unions to improve their working and living conditions. I knew also it was only recently that Negroes had been admitted to workshops and seminars at Monteagle and that, to an increasing extent, the School had become active in the area of Race Relations. I had never met Myles Horton before, but he had been spoken well of by people whom I respect and of whose loyalty to our Government I have no question. Miss Septima Clark, who also signed the invitation, is a graduate of Hampton Institute, and I was very pleased that she had joined Mr. Horton in extending the invitation. I saw this invitation as an opportunity to meet for the first time since the Supreme Court decision in the Deep South with men and women, Negroes and whites, who were concerned with improving conditions of life and living for all people in the South. I saw it as an opportunity to help guide more people towards a Christian and democratic solution of the problems that embarrass the United States in its attempt to fulfill adequately the task of world leadership to which it fell heir after World War II.

The Seminar itself was given wide publicity before it occurred, during the three days it was being held, and at its conclusion. The New York Times of Sunday, July 7, 1957, carried a story announcing the Seminar and listing my name among the persons scheduled to participate.

The remarks that I made at the Seminar were reported by the Associated Press and were published in the Memphis Commercial Appeal, the Nashville Banner, and the Chattanooga Times. Our clipping service did not provide us with the clippings from any Virginia paper, so I do not know whether or not a story was carried here in Virginia. It is most surprising then that nearly two months later the fact that this Seminar was held, and I was a participant becomes the subject of a controversy in our local press.

I read the Thursday story very carefully to see if the references to me were libelous, for I would consider any printed charge that I was a Communist as libelous and I stand ready to call into court any person who makes such an accusation, with full faith and confidence that no such charge can be substantiated. I was saddened, however, by the fact that although no such specific charge was made, a reputable paper, published in a community to which Hampton Institute has given so much, should become a party to disseminating information that implies guilt by association, and which on its face makes clear that the persons involved have had no opportunity to be informed of the accusation, much less to be confronted with the accuser. To date I have received no communication from the Georgia Commission on Education advising that I was the subject of their investigation and hearings held on October 4, 1957. I can think of nothing which resembles more directly the tactics of the Communist Party than this maligning of character and this disregard for due process, for elementary decency and fairness, as the shocking action of the Georgia Commission on Education. It is most disheartening that the publication of this poison could take place in the state that gave us the authors of the Bill of Rights which embellishes our Constitution and guarantees civil liberties to all citizens of the United States. It is almost inconceivable that in this same state that through the years has produced great newspaper men, including Virginius Dabney of the Richmond Times Dispatch and the distinguished president of the American Society of Newspaper Editors, that the responsibilities that undergird freedom of the press should be so lightly regarded.

I am reassured, however, by the many people who have indicated that they deplore this kind of character assassination that this is an aberration which will not be repeated. I am confident that there are enough people who have pride in

Virginia's potential for wise leadership that this attempt to impose upon Virginia the unethical practices and un-American standards of Georgia will be recognized and rejected out of hand. If this country is to be infected with the totalitarian poison that seems to be flowing into Arkansas, into Tennessee, and now into Virginia from the demagogues in Georgia, then we are in for a kind of democracy in which freedom to speak, freedom to think, and freedom to believe will have no place; and the difference between what exists in Russia today and what we now enjoy in the United States will be obliterated.

I believe in the democratic process. I believe in the vitality of the Christian religion. I believe in the dignity of man. These beliefs are inconsistent with the totalitarianism of Russia and Georgia and with the atheism of the Kremlin and the Georgia Commission on Education. During the eight years I lived in Georgia I spoke and acted against injustices, against discrimination, against segregation, against the use of political power to express personal prejudice. I intend to continue to do so wherever I am and as long as God gives me the strength and the courage to defend what I believe and what I think is right. I was not intimidated when I lived in Georgia by threats of loss of occupation, by threats of physical violence, or by threats of defamation of character. I don't intend to be intimidated now by any such threats, be they direct or indirect. As long as people are deprived of rights guaranteed to them by the Constitution of the United States—that deprivation which comes from politicians who thrive on fomenting racial strife, I will continue to lift my voice against such iniquitous and undemocratic practices.

I would like to close by saying to you what I said at Monteagle. I made three points. One was that recent evidence indicated that the conflict over integration was producing an exaggerated fear among the white people of the South and that in no period of our history have white people of liberal or even moderate views been subjected to more social and economic pressure to make them conform to the pattern set by those who would defy the law of the land, and those who have used social and economic boycotts illegally and even violence to quiet the voices of those who recognize that we can no longer live with our Constitution and not make it color blind. My second point was that at the same time this exaggerated fear--this intimidation--was spreading throughout the South, we were seeing expressions of new courage on the part of an increasing number of Negro men and women, of Negro boys and girls. I mentioned specifically Mrs. Rosa Parks and the courage she exhibited in Montgomery--the handful of public school teachers in South Carolina who like Septima Clark chose freedom instead of working as public school teachers in the state of South Carolina after they had been stripped of all human dignity by being forced to make a choice of renouncing their rights or holding on to their jobs. I mentioned the boys and girls in Clinton, Tennessee, who braved the mob to get an education worthy of its name; and I mentioned the courage, the fortitude, and the wise and Christian leadership of the Reverend Martin Luther King, who led the people of Montgomery, Negro and white, to a new pattern of Christian love and forbearance. And finally, I pointed out that the real basis of resistance to the implementation of the Supreme Court decision on public schools was not primarily the admission of a comparatively small number of Negroes to a handful of schools that used to be attended only by white students; nor that there was any honest belief, even by the most rabid segregationists, that coeducation of the races would lead to any significant increase in the crossing of racial strains, but that the real objection to public school integration was based on the realization that if discrimination and segregation were abolished in the public schools, all other forms of discrimination and segregation would come to be seen as even more ridiculous and unnecessary than they are now.

I closed my address at Monteagle with the hope that this period of stress and strain through which we are passing would hasten the day when we would live in the way that Christ would have us live as Children of God, made in His own image and obedient to His will.

Racial events in South following Red pattern

BY EDWIN STRICKLAND
News staff writer

In 1928 a self-avowed Communist spokesman wrote a pamphlet which he called "American Negro Problems."

The writer, John Pepper, with many aliases, drew a pattern of events today that are accurate to the point of being amazing.

Fourth of a series

After reading his pamphlet, one would be led to believe that he was either a man possessing clairvoyant powers, or that we have moved unerringly along the path long ago planned for the South by Lenin, Stalin and other leads.

In this pamphlet Pepper admitted, almost bitterly, that there was too much racial harmony in the South. He presented a blue print for ending this harmony.

PEPPER PRESENTED as a prelude to his pamphlet what he said were the principal demands for the oppressed Negro masses as embodied in the platform of the Workers (Communist) Party of America":

1. Abolition of the whole system of race discrimination. Full racial, political and social equality for the Negro race.

2. Abolition of laws which result in segregation of Negroes. Abolition of all Jim Crow laws. The law shall forbid all discrimination against Negroes in selling or renting houses.

3. Abolition of all laws which disfranchise the Negroes.

4. Abolition of all laws forbidding intermarriage of persons of different races.

5. Abolition of all laws and public administration measures which prohibit, or in practice prevent, Negro children or youth from attending general public schools or universities.

6. Full and equal admittance of Negroes to all railway station waiting rooms, restaurants, hotels and theaters.

7. Federal law against lynching and the protection of the Negro masses in their right of self-defense.

M. G. LOWMAN
To Be Interviewed on WCMW

Red Clergymen Authority Will Be on Air Here

One of the leading authorities on alleged Communist infiltration into American churches, M. G. Lowman, will be interviewed at 10:30 a.m. Thursday over WCMW by Ray W. Hambleton and I. G. Harman on the "Keep America Free" program.

Lowman, executive secretary of Curcuit Riders, Inc., an independent national group of Methodists, has appeared on radio forums and addressed service clubs, civic organizations, religious groups, college assemblies and patriotic societies in various sections of the United States.

While in Canton, he will meet with, consult and advise local Protestant laymen concerning the attempts of the Communists to infiltrate the churches, and will discuss with them effective methods of combating such designs.

Lowman asserts that no stigma is attached to the American clergy because of overt acts of a few, any more than a stigma was attached to the 11 disciples because Judas betrayed Jesus.

Lowman, a Cincinnatian, is active in his city's civic and public affairs including projects for the physically handicapped, religious organizations and college youth. He has collaborated with various security agencies and investigating committees of the government and earlier this month appeared as a witness before the Ohio State Un-American Activities Commission.

U.S. Bias Ban Just a Sham, Moscow Says

JUN 22 1954

POST

Moscow, June 23 (UP)—The Soviet government newspaper Izvestia charged today the United States Supreme Court decision against segregation in public schools was made "for purely propaganda purposes."

The comment labeled the decision a "demagogic gesture designed for export as well as for influing American public opinion." It ridiculed the term "historic victory of democracy" applied to the decision by "certain American bourgeois newspapers."

In a dispatch signed by S. Kondrashov, Izvestia attacked President Eisenhower for "replying negatively in his press conference to whether he could advise the Southern states how to react to the decision."

"Thus behind the [illegible] of non-interference, which itself is sufficiently illuminating, [illegible] to racial discrimination is concealed," the story said.

The newspaper did not mention that the Supreme Court decision was unanimous. It also omitted the May 17 date of the court's ruling and did not quote the opinion.

Evasion Forecast

Izvestia said "even if the Supreme Court decision to end racial segregation in public schools in the South is implemented, everything will stay the same old way.

". . . The powerful American circles will find thousands of loopholes, thousands of ways, starting with legislation and ending with direct terror, in order to preserve segregation inviolate," it added.

The newspaper said the "small practical value of the decision" is evident in "the reservations made by the Supreme Court," including postponement of action to carry out the decision.

"It finally should be noted that the Supreme Court decision will affect only a narrow sphere of Negro discrimination," Izvestia said.

"Discrimination against Negro children in private schools remains inviolable and the main thing is that discrimination against the adult Negro population in industry, agriculture, all kinds of transport, job-seeking and every day life continues."

Mr. Harold C. Fleming
Assistant Director
Southern Regional Council, Inc.
63 Auburn Avenue, N. E.
Atlanta 3, Ga.

Dear Harold:

Enclosed, find a photostat of the November 15 issue of the Firing Line, published by the Americanism Commission of the American Legion. I draw your attention to the last paragraph on page 125, in which mention is made of the forthcoming issue of the Firing Line which will deal with SRC.

I have made discreet inquiry and learn -- as I expected to learn -- that there is no possible way to change the Legion's mind in connection with this item, but if it is any consolation to you, you should know that the Firing Line (published bi-weekly) has a small circulation (perhaps 3,000), and is given even less attention. About a year ago, Antioch College was attacked bitterly by the Firing Line, and a month after the publication of that issue, the officials of the College had not yet heard of the attack nor had they felt any of its repercussions. I suspect (unless conditions in the South are different) that if I had not drawn your attention to this item, you might not have heard of its existence.

Therefore, may I suggest to you that you do nothing about counteracting it unless and until some use of the item is made in some harmful fashion.

My warm regards.

Cordially,

Ed

The Editor
New York Journal-American

New York, N. Y.

Dear Sir:

The story by your reporters Racht and Roche in the Journal-American of November 8 on the press conference held by The Fund for the Republic carried flagrant misquotations. I would appreciate a correction of the most flagrant of these reports.

Your reporter asked Mr. Hutchins what he would do if certain directors of the Southern Regional Council could be proved to be "pro-Communist." His story quoted Mr. Hutchins as saying that he would recommend to the Board of the Fund that "they turn over the entire balance of the Fund to them."

What was actually said was stated accurately in The New York Times. This was that if any person could prove these people were "pro-Communists," he would recommend that that person receive the balance of the Fund's money.

Under the circumstances I am compelled to believe that this remark was deliberately misquoted: (1) the Journal-American had not one but two reporters present during the entire conference; (2) the Times, with one reporter present, was able to state the answers accurately; (3) the statement was made directly to your reporter Racht, who had asked the question. About 30 people were present who would be able to verify the accuracy of The Times report and the inaccuracy of the Journal-American.

I am sending a copy of this letter to Fulton Lewis, Jr. who read this misquotation over the radio.

The Journal-American, in the interest of fair and accurate reporting, will of course want to publish this letter.

Yours very truly,

W. H. Ferry

Dear Mr. Berkson:

I fear that we will never be able to get together on a definition of "fair and accurate." You told me that the aim of the Journal-American under your guidance would be to see that the paper merited these adjectives. You said also you were taking particular care that the series on The Fund for the Republic would come up to these specifications.

What I take to be the opening story in this series, the one that dealt with the Southern Regional Council, cannot by any standard be considered either accurate or fair. The subsequent story on the Southern Regional Council similarly failed to present anything approaching an honest picture of this thoroughly reputable organization.

Of even more interest to you may be the attached memorandum. Following our conversation I caused this research to be done. The memorandum shows that, at least up to now, the Journal-American has not had the slightest interest in presenting news supplied by the Fund about its activities. The stories ignored by the Journal-American in many cases appeared on the front pages of other New York papers.

I enclose also a letter to the Editor of the Journal-American on a recent instance of inaccurate and unfair reporting.

The Fund, as you know, is dedicated to the preservation of the Bill of Rights. Our program will continue to be guided by a belief in these principles, and not by fear.

Sincerely,

W. H. Ferry

Dear MAW:

Just received yrs of 12th. I phoned the Amer. Civil liberties Union and talked with Alan Reitman. He remembered that the Journal-American had made an attack but did not think it was on front page. I gave him your address and he will send you direct the article. He says the Fulton Lewis matter will take longer -- probably a week. He has to communicate with the Washington office of ACLU and get them to ask for and send the script. So the wheels are turning. I have just seen the attack. I am disposed to take no notice of such. The Witch Hunters are looking for opportunities and if you defend it will call for another attack. Let sick dogs die.

Delighted that you were re-elected President.

Dear Mr. Wesley:

Thank you very much for sending us a copy of the statement that you gave to Bill Nunn of the Courrier and which was also carried in your own paper Thursday. We will appreciate your further comment in this weeks edition.

It is helpful to us here in the central office to know what is being said by our various board members and friends across the south. Harold Fleming, who is in charge of our Information Department, is handling the public relations aspect of the current attack on the Southern Regional Council. We had a very healthy Board Meeting at Tuskegee and were sorry that we were not benefited by your wisdom and counsel, but we understand how busy you are and that the meeting could not be made to fit in your schedule. Best personal regards.

I am making further comment for next week's edition and will ask my secretary to clip that comment out when the paper runs and send it to you.

My idea is that you should know what each of us is saying there in the home office, since the whole matter seems to revolve around the Southern Regional Council as much as it does the Fund for the Republic.

I, too, was sorry I could not get to Tuskegee, after I had figured and figured and planned on getting there, I found that I just could not make it fit in the schedule.

Please give my regards to all in the office who remember me.

Thanks for your memorandum of November 11, sending a copy of the article that appeared in the New York Journal-American of November 7. It was the first time I had seen a copy of what the paper and Fulton Lewis had said. I heard of it Thursday while I was in Dallas, by long distance from Bill Nunn of The Courier, and also from your Mr. Routh there.

I have sent a copy to the SRC office of what I published in response. I have no fear that they will prove any subversive relationships either on the Fund for the Republic or the Southern Regional Council. This is about the same type of attack that is being made on the NAACP and the Urban League.

Best wishes.

Mr. Frank Starzel, General Manager
The Associated Press
50 Rockefeller Plaza
New York, N. Y.

Dear Mr. Starzel:

We were astonished to find in the Chattanooga News Free Press of November 9 a story datelined AP, New York, and headlined "White Negro Study Unit Charged Pro-Red Taint; Southern Regional Council Officials Held with Past Commie Affiliations."

It is a matter of concern to us that so reputable a news service as the Associated Press would send out a story of this nature. We regret that AP did not offer us an opportunity to be quoted in answer to these scurrilous charges.

The original story in the Journal American, as you may know, was prompted by that newspaper's zeal to discredit the Fund for the Republic by attacking any and all recipients of Fund grants. Characteristically, this story was journalistically inexcusable and very probably libelous. Also characteristically, the Journal American's allegations were ignored by the responsible press -- with the startling exception of the AP story referred to.

This exception would be less notable if the Southern Regional Council were an obscure and disreputable organization. On the contrary, however, the Council is a well established and widely regarded agency. Its incorporators included Bishop Arthur J. Moore of The Methodist Church, Mr. Ralph McGill of the Atlanta Constitution, and the late Professor Howard W. Odum of the University of North Carolina. Its present and past board members include such prominent Southern editors as Hodding Carter, Alfred Wynders, Virginius Dabney, and Jonathan Daniels. It has had support and endorsement from major religious bodies in the region, Catholic, Protestant, and Jewish.

I might add that the Council has been, and is, a much-used source of authoritative information for the press-including AP, UP, the New York Times, Christian Science Monitor, Time, Newsweek, as well as Southern papers. On many occasions we have made our files and informational materials available to the Atlanta Bureau of AP and AP Newsfeatures writers.

The AP report did omit the names of the 21 individuals defamed. But this cautious procedure served only to becloud the reputations of all 80 members of the Council's board, and to withhold from the Public the prominence and reputability of those attacked. The Journal American, of course, listed only their names, carefully suppressing identification by position and place of residence. So that you may judge the significance of this omission, attached is a list of these board members including their principal identifications.

We are sure that it was not AP's intention to damage the reputations of a constructive organization and the outstanding Southerners who make up its board. This letter is written in the hope that it may help prevent similar errors in the future.

Sincerely yours,

George S. Mitchell,
Executive Director,

Dear Mr. Mitchell:

Please let me acknowledge receipt of yours of November 15 as Mr. Starzel and other executives here are attending the meeting of The Associated Press Managing Editors Association in Colorado Springs.

There is no lack of appreciation here of the purpose or the integrity of the Southern Regional Council, Inc. If you would permit me to state the specific circumstances of the subject at hand, perhaps it would cause you to take a different view of the part we had in the situation.

The dispatch was not distributed on the news wires of The Associated Press. It was sent individually by overhead telegraph to the associate editor of the Chattanooga News Free Press, at the specific request of that newspaper. The News Free Press requested the story from the New York Journal American and the dispatch that was sent quoted and attributed this story to the Journal American throughout. As you know, this type of special service is provided regularly to members of The Associated Press so desiring it at their expense.

The story included a statement by Mr. Hutchins, which upheld the Southern Regional Council. After providing this story in the form requested, it becomes a matter for the member to publish it locally in such form as it sees fit. If the dispatch had been carried in our general service, comment would have been sought from the Council.

Trusting this will be helpful in your understanding of what occurred, I am

Dear Mr. Epstein:

I greatly appreciated the time and consideration which you and Alex gave Tuesday to the question of attacks on SRC Board members by the Hearst Press.

Enclosed is biographical material on the persons named in the Hearst story. I had hoped to get it to you earlier, but my return to Atlanta was delayed by bad flying weather. In one or two cases, we have no biographical details immediately at hand, though we should have in a few days.

I am also enclosing a reproduction of the advertisement placed by the Segregation Group in Virginia and a good column by Alfred Mynders, Editor of the Chattanooga Times -- as you know, the sister paper of the New York Times. I might add that several of the large negro weeklies, including the Chicago Defender and the Afro-American, have run stories and editorials excoriating this attack on distinguished Negro leaders. As soon as we can get more copies, I will send them to you.

A word on the extent of Catholic participation in the SRC: One of the founders and a charter member of the SRC was the Most Rev. Gerald P. O'Hara, Archbishop of Savannah-Atlanta. Our Executive Committee has always included a Catholic clergyman, and does so now. Paul D. Williams of Richmond, Virginia, a noted Catholic layman, founder of the Catholic Committee of the South, and a Knight of St. Gregory, was president of the SRC from 1945 to 1951 and continues as a member of the board. George Mitchell received the 1953 Annual Award of the Catholic Committee of the South for his "fine contribution to the welfare of the South." The same awardk was conferred in previous years on Dr. Howard W. Odom, the first president of SRC, and Dr. Guy B. Johnson, Executive Director from 1944-1947.

I understand that the NAACP is planning to make some protest to the Hearst organization.

Anything which you and Alex may do to counter this New York Aid and comfort to the White Citizen's Councils will be greatly appreciated. George Mitchell joins me in kindest regards.

Dear Joe:

Enclosed is some biographical dope on the SRC Board members attacked by the Hearst Press. I am sorry that this is reaching you so late but my return from New York was delayed by bad flying conditions.

Also, a word about the extent of Catholic participation in the SRC: One of the founders and a charter member of the SRC was the Most Rev. Gerald P. O'Hara, Archbishop of Savannah-Atlanta. Our Executive Committee has always included a Catholic clergyman, and does so now. Paul D. Williams of Richmond, Virginia, a noted Catholic layman, founder of the Catholic Committee of the South, and a Knight of St. Gregory, was president of the SRC from 1945 to 1951 and continues as a member of the board. The negro Press is pretty gennerally blasting the Hearst story; there was a good editorial in the Chicago Defender just out. The NAACP is planning to protest to the Hearst organization.

Executive Director,
Southern Regional Council,
Room 432,
63 Auburn Ave. N.E.,
Atlanta 3, Georgia.

Dear George:

I have prepared a memorandum from a hasty summary of the legal authorities on the questions (1) Whether calling a man a "Communist" or a "Communist Sympathizer" is libelous per se, and (2) Whether a non-profit organization, such as Southern Regional Council, has a legal right to file suit for slander or libel.

You will observe from the memorandum that I gave an affirmative answer to both questions - the first positively, and the second dubitante.

Of course, I have not had time to make an exhaustive search of the authorities, but believe the attached memorandum gives a general summary of the prevailing opinions as reported in the appellate court decisions.

Sincerely yours,

Leonard Haas

Leonard Haas.

LH:LPM
ENC.

IT IS LIBELOUS PER SE TO CALL ANOTHER A "COMMUNIST" OR A "COMMUNIST SYMPATHIZER."

The cases generally hold it to be actionable per se, as subjecting the person charged to ridicule, contempt, shame and disgrace to publish or orally state that one believes in or follows certain political or sociological principles, practices, or views, which, in the main, are objectionable to the average person in the community.

33 Am. Jur. page 65.

Spanel v. Westbrook Pegler, 160 Fed. (2d) 619; 171 ALR 699

Similarly, it has been consistently held to be actionable per se in libel to charge a person with being a "pro-Nazi," a "pro-Jap," a "pro-Fascist," "un-American," etc.

Parmelee v. Hearst Publishing Co., 341 Ill. App. 399, 93 N.E. (2d) 512.

The decisions make it apparent that the difference, if any, between calling a man a "communist" and stating that he is agent for the "Party," or a "Red", or a "Pink," or a "fellow-traveler," seems to be one of degree only, since the basis for the reproach is a belief that such political affiliations constitute a threat to our institutions and those who fear such threat are not likely to believe that it is limited to party members.

Farm Bureau Federation v. Nat'l F.U.S. Corp., 198 Fed. (2d) 20; 33 ALR (2d) 1186.

Holding it libelous to term one a "Communist" or a "Communist Sympathizer," the Court, in Americans for Democratic Action v. Meade, 72 Pa. D&C 306, held also that the published statement that the A.D.A. was "flirting" with communism, together with the charge that the A.D.A. was "infiltrated" with "Communists," could be found by a jury to be capable of the meaning that the A.D.A. had "Communist" members, espoused "Communist" doctrines, and was influenced in its policies by "Communists" or "Communism," and that a jury could find that the statement had a defamatory meaning, as tending to harm the reputation of another, to lower him in the estimation of the community, or to deter third persons from associating or dealing with him.

In Spanel v. Pegler, 160 Fed. (2d) 619, 171 ALR 699 the Federal Circuit Court of Appeals for the Seventh Circuit held that in Illinois it is libelous per se to write of another that he is a "Communist" or a "Communist Sympathizer," since the label of "Communist" today, in the minds of many average respectable persons, places one beyond the pale of respectability, making him a symbol of public hatred.

In Grant v. Readers Digest Ass'n, 151 Fed. (2d) 733, the Federal Circuit Court of Appeals for the Second Circuit held it libelous to write of a lawyer that he acted as a legislative representative for the Communist Party. In the well-reasoned opinion by Judge Learned Hand it is stated that although the publication did not say that the Plaintiff was a member of the "Party," its implication was that he was in general sympathy with its objects and methods, or, in other words, a "fellow traveler," was none the less odious.

In Hays v. American Defense Society, 252 N.Y. 266, a political pamphlet charging that some of the Directors of the organizations to which the Plaintiff belonged were "reds" or "red radicals," and were using certain members as dupes to contribute to the general purpose of the Communists, the Court held this was not libelous as to the Plaintiff, whose name did not appear in the pamphlet except in a list entitled "Index to Directorates." It may be noted by implication that a different result might have been reached had it been found that the opprobruim was directed at the Plaintiff.

CAN A NON-PROFIT ORGANIZATION, SUCH AS SOUTHERN REGIONAL COUNCIL, FILE SUIT FOR SLANDER OR LIBEL?

A brief summary of the authorities indicates that there is no case in point where the exact question has been raised; in other words, in none of the cases that the writer has found has the point been raised that the Plaintiff was a non-profit organization.

In Farm Bureau Federation v. Nat'l F.U.S. Corp., 198 Fed. (2d) 20, 33 ALR (2d) 1186, where the Plaintiff was awarded $25,000.00 damages in the suit, the first headnote of the case reads as follows:

> "The general rule is that one who falsely, and without privilege to do so, publishes of a corporation for profit matter which tends to prejudice it in the conduct of its trade or business, or to deter third persons from dealing with it, is liable to the corporation."

Nothing is said in the case as to whether an action would lie by a non-profit organization as the point was not raised.

However, in the case of the Joint Anti-Fascist Refugee Committee v. McGrath, 341 U.S. 123, 71 Sup. Ct. 624, in which the plaintiff organization applied for relief against the Attorney General of the United States for having been classified as a "Communist" organization and placed by him on the list of subversive organizations (where the U. S. Supreme Court reversed the decision of three lower courts and held that the Attorney General was required to give these organizations a hearing before so listing them as subversive) Mr. Justice Burton, in announcing the judgment of the court, stated that the acts of the Attorney General had the effect of crippling the functioning and damaging the reputation of the organizations, in their respective communities and in the nation, and, hence, violated each organization's common law right to be free from defamation.

It is interesting to note that in the Petition of the Joint Anti-Fascist Refugee Committee it is alleged that the acts of the Attorney General "have caused many contributors, especially present and prospective civil servants, to reduce or discontinue their contributions to the organization; members and participants in its activities have been vilified and subjected to public shame, disgrace, ridicule and obloquy, thereby inflicting upon them economic injury and discouraging participation in its activities; it has been hampered in securing meeting places; and many people have refused to take part in its fund-raising activities," (equivalent allegations might be made in the event Southern Regional Council undertook to reimburse any of its officers for legal fees and expenses incurred in any libel suit brought by such officer or employee.)

This suit involved not only the Joint Anti-Fascist Refugee Committee but also the National Council of American-Soviet Friendship, Inc., and the International Workers Order, Inc., each of which were non-profit organizations.

We also find that the Americans for Democratic Action, a non-profit organization, was granted relief in a libel suit in its case hereinabove cited supra.

In view of the foregoing, while there is no case directly raising the point whether a non-profit organization may file suit for slander or libel, the writer is of the opinion that when the point is raised that the courts will decide that such an action will lie for the reason, as stated by Mr. Justice Burton in the Joint Anti-Fascist Refugee Committee case that each organization has a common law right to be free from defamation.

Respectfully submitted,

Dear George:

Thank you for your letter of the eighteenth.

I have confidence enough in the special committee which we appointed and the advice that the att orneys of the Fund for the Republic may give to go along with anything that is decided.

I would certainly appreciate your telling me what the conference on the Bill of Rights was. The only thing that I can recall is that there was a campaign against the Mundt-Nixon bill some seven or eight years ago. At that time, after reading the Bill, I felt that it was one of the best Fascist documents we had ever had, and was violently opposed to it, as was Senator Robertson of Virginia, with whom I had correspondence. I am still in favor of the Bill of Rights.

I am enclosing a copy of my biographical sketch; there doesn't seem to be anything unusual in it.

If at any time I am asked for a public statement, I shall certainly give you a copy of what I say. No one has asked me any questions, so I do not know whether much credence has been given to the type of publicity which you have forwarded to me.

I had a very good meeting with Jack Marion last Tuesday and we are having a meeting of the executive committee next Monday evening; and more than likely at that time a statement on the Gray Commission Report will be forthcoming. From the little study I have been able to give it, it would seem that the effort to give aid to private schools will run into a terrific snag, especially as it has tried to differentiate between religious and non-sectarian schools. Our Young Democrats, in a meeting in Richmond on Saturday, were not stampeded into rash actions by Mr. Tuck.

You can be sure that I will keep you posted on what goes on.

With kindest regards to you, I am

Faithfully yours,

Dear Mr. Beale:

It is rather strange to me that you can have information on a citizen of the United States which is available only to Members of Congress. What can I do about this? If my name is connected with some organization about which I know nothing, it is unfair to make that data available to a Congressman and not to the person involved. Especially is it unfair when Attorney General Cook of Georgia can have access to the data and use it to smear people. What right has a Congressman to have access to data when the person involved cannot have access to it?

Who gave the data to the Attorney General of Georgia to be used in a smear campaign against the Southern Regional Council? I would appreciate it if you would let me know if this is all that I can do about this. It looks pretty un-American to me to deal with a citizen in this way.

In my last conversation with Beth Webster on the subject, he seemed very dubious as to the prospects for successful legal action against the Hearst newspapers. This was just a cursory impression, he carefully pointed out.

I liked Alfred Mynders' column very much. He's a good man.

Atlanta 3, Georgia

Dear George:

Thank you for your letter of Nov. 18, and the various documents. I shall be interested in hearing the results of your legal exploration. However, I am not keen upon getting into litigation. While I believe that the headline of the Journal-American article and the generalizations in the lead are probably libel per se, the burden of proving damages might be very difficult indeed, except possibly to the organization as a whole.

In my individual case, the charge is a ridiculous smear. To the best of my recollection I had never even heard of "Mother Bloor". Out of curiosity I had her looked up in Readers' Guide and discovered that Time Magazine published a piece about her on the occasion of her death, in the issue of Aug. 20, 1951. She died at 88. Her real name was Ella Reeve Ware Cohen Omholt. She was described as an "old fashioned radical", and she got her nickname from days of investigation of Chicago stockyard conditions when she worked with a man named Richard Bloor. She was described as the patron saint of the U.S. Communist Party; had worked for 50 years in hobo jungles and union halls, participated in public crusades for suffrage, etc., had been arrested 36 times, was a perennial speaker, ran for office, had said "communism is good for the U.S.," and her birthday was always the occasion for celebration (apparently among the Commies). Newsweek also had an article about her.

The most probable hypothesis is that some other Herbert Davidson was the one who "sent greetings to Mother Bloor Celebration Committee."

Now there is one other thin possibility. In 1942, after my assignment had been completed, I resigned from the OWI, for whom I had worked for a year as a patriotic service, and took a job then open on the foreign desk of the newspaper PM, which I held for eight months before returning here. Among the staff were a few ardent "progressives" who may or may not have been Commies. It might have been--and this is pure hypothesis--that some one of these may have asked me to join in a congratulatory message to an old woman (then presumably 80) who had spent her life fighting for woman suffrage, more rights for labor, etc. In an unguarded moment I might have signed something of that sort without giving it proper thought. We were very busy at the time covering the campaigns in Europe and the Pacific, which was my major job as a rewrite and desk man.

Let me say, parenthetically that none of the leftish minority approached me as to my views on communism (which are strongly anti) or asked me to join the Party. They all knew of course that I was a capitalist newspaper proprietor! But in those war days, everybody was more tolerant and we were all in the war together.

Let me repeat, I am only discussing a possibility. Actually, I don't believe it ever happened.

The Journal-American and its two writers are certainly guilty of irresponsible reporting and of an unwarranted attack upon a fine association of men and women engaged upon a noble work. But I question the wisdom of a long drawn out, wearisome and expensive libel action, in which the smears would probably be compounded.

Sincerely,

Herbert M. Davidson/eb

Thank you for your letter of November 18, 1955 with its enclosures. I also am grateful for the memorandum from Harold C. Fleming mailed from your office under date of November 11, 1955. Both of these communications deal with matters raised by the American Journal and one Fulton Lewis Jr. I am advised that my name was printed by the American Journal and called by Mr. Lewis in these matters.

I would be happy to consider any proposals relative to the matters indicated in the above paragraph made to me by the special committee named by the Board Meeting of November 9, 1955.

Enclosed you will find a listing of biographical information which you requested.

I have made no statements to the Press or public officials regarding the matters indicated in the first paragraph of this letter, thus, I am unable to comply with your second request that copies of such statements be sent you.

Dear Dr. Mitchell:

Thank you for your letter of November 18 and for the additional material you sent concerning the story appearing in the Hearst Journal-American. I am herewith enclosing a copy of the biographical sketch, a part of which you may use as you see fit. I have not issued any public statement concerning the appearance of my name among the list of "21". It has been my policy in the past to refrain from commenting on the charges made against me. Just how much longer I can maintain that policy I do not know. Thus far, it does not seem necessary for me to attempt to defend my previous record. This does not mean that I have decided never to do this. Circumstances in the future might seem to make it necessary for me to issue a public statement.

I appreciate the work being done by the special committee and shall cooperate in whatever manner I can in order to see that justice is done in this case.

Dear Mr. Stratton:

This will acknowledge, with thanks, your letter to Dr. Mitchell of November 18.

We were glad to learn that the summary of the Journal-American story which appeared in the Chattanooga News Free Press was not distributed on the news wires of the Associated Press.

We recognize, of course, AP's obligation to provide a direct service requested by a member paper, though we were sorry to see the AP slug used to confer respectability on disreputable charges.

As Dr. Mitchell wrote, we have the greatest respect for the AP's standards of fairness and responsibility, and his letter was intended to call attention to what we thought was an unintentional lapse in those standards. We appreciate your giving us the background.

Sincerely,

Dear Mr. Lukas:

The points you raised in your letter to Harold Fleming were good; I think that the Southern Regional Council should make strenuous efforts to get its story told by the clergy. If action could be brought against the Hearst newspapers, it should be done. I will try to do something to interest magazines and TV in the possibility of stories about the Southern Regional Council.

Your suggestion for a coordinating body of national agencies working for integration is excellent. This principle has worked very effectively in New York City, where the Public Education Association has organized a coordinating committee of more than 30 major city-wide groups interested in the schools. The representatives of the member organizations meet regularly, exchange information, and on occasion take joint action on matters of importance. The committee has become an effective and respected spokesman as a result. There is no reason why this coordinating operation could not be applied in the way you suggest. I hope that Mr. Fleming will discuss this with you soon.

Sincerely yours,

Joseph P. Lyford

Dear Harold:

Thank you for sharing with me some samples of the manner in which "the other side" is using the Hearst story. The Chattanooga Times' editorial is, of course, fine -- but it is to be doubted that it is read by the same audience as the original smear.

I discussed the whole affair at some length with a few of my own colleagues, as well as with Ben Epstein of the Anti-Defamation League. As matters stand at the moment, I am prepared to make the following suggestions:

1. In our view no doubt exists that the Hearst pieces are libelous. A half a dozen suits for libel by the six most prominent and least vulnerable of those smeared, should undoubtedly be instituted. (The Journal American is, undoubtedly, squeamish about libel suits ever since the Westbrook Pegler verdict, $175,000, a whopping one in these days.) Naturally, the object would be to give the pendency of those suits the widest publicity. It would be a good idea, too, if the plaintiffs in those suits were represented by outstanding White law firms. It goes without saying that the suits should be instituted in the North, if possible, in the Federal courts.

2. Clergymen -- especially Catholics -- should be induced, without too much further delay, to sermonize on SRC and its work, with special reference to the attempt to smear it and its supporters with "pro-Communist" allegations. Copies of those sermons should be assembled for the widest kind of dissemination.

3. No time should be lost, in our view, in attempting to secure a favorable Look, or Life or Saturday Evening Post story on SRC, its rather dramatic past history, and its current program. The story should attempt to delineate in the clearest possible terms the specifics of SRC's activities in the field of implementing the desegregation decision.

4. TV and radio commentators should be furnished with such material as may be helpful in influencing their own attitudes toward SRC and its work, so that at appropriate times they might fashion their commentaries accordingly. Naturally, newspaper editors and publishers should be similarly enlightened.

The foregoing are the ideas that occur to us now, and the execution of which should be instituted without unnecessary delay. They are, as you see, short-range projects that will have impact in the immediate future. For the long-range, however, we would have to think a little differently. Frankly, I have often felt that the story of SRC and its role in the promotion of integration, has not been told as graphically as it might be. To be sure, there has been no burning necessity for doing so until recently, simply because its work was being carried on quietly and -- until recently -- under very severely limited budgets. We think the time has arrived for a more dramatic presentation of SRC's objects and methods; the public has to be drawn more intimately into a realization of SRC's existence, of its purposes, of its techniques and, perhaps most importantly, of the nature of its supporters among the leading citizens of the South. Among other things this would require the mobilization of the decent elements -- organized and unorganized -- who would spring to SRC's defense in the face of vigilante attacks, not only on the national, but on the local level as well. Serious consideration, therefore, should be given now to the plan that I had outlined to George Mitchell many months ago -- indeed, at the time of the Herald Tribune forum in 1954 -- namely, the coordination of the operations of large national agencies which have a deep interest in integration but, as yet, no well defined program in that field. I refer to church groups, organized labor, educational and kindred organizations. These groups could be of inestimable help, not alone in promoting the program of SRC, but in lending support to its resistance to attacks.

I trust the foregoing suggestions prove in some small measure to be helpful. Meanwhile, efforts will go forward to bring home to the top brass of the Hearst press the thoroughly destructive thing they have done, in the hope that the attack will end where it began, and will not be carried on in the future. Hopes of securing a "retraction" are, I believe, somewhat forlorn -- the Hearst press, except in the rarest instances, simply does not behave that way.

Let me hear from you when you are able to react to these proposals.

My warmest regards to you, to George and, of course, to Leonard Haas.

Sincerely,

Edwin J. Lukas

Dear Dr. Mitchell:

I have received several informative articles relative to the attack made upon us of the S. R. C. Along with the clippings from your office, several clippings came from the Pittsburgh Courier and the United Negro College Fund. The Pittsburgh Courier offered me the medium of that paper for any statement that I wished to make.

I did acknowledge the letter from the Courier somewhat as follows:

> I do not know the organization that I am charged of supporting. However, it is barely possible that I amy have replied to some correspondence--so much comes to one's desk--but I am entirely innocent of knowledge of any kind of subversiveness of the Arts, Sciences, and professional organizations. I do not affirm or deny that there may have been some such correspondence. But I know nothing of the organization, nor am I affiliated with it in any way.

I shall be glad to have information or suggestions as to how to meet these attacks.

Dear George:

This is by way of a report on my conversation with Paul Williams. Upon phoning him at Richmond, I found that he was leaving for Washington and hence arranged to meet him there.

I gave him all of the background as to the attacks against us and explained the role which we would like him to play. He was already familiar in a general way with the Journal-American situation.

As to members of the hierarchy, he was dubious about the New York prelate but was quite hopeful about Cardinal Stritch.

However he had two strong friends in the publishing field in Chicago. One was a man named Morse, a Catholic, and connected with the Sun-Times. The other was a Protestant of whose name and connections I am not sure. Paul felt that an interview with both of these men would develop the right approach to Hearst. That approach might be through some church dignitary, or it might be through some highly placed layman, such as James A. Farley.

Paul was to be in Chicago today (Friday) and would see both of his contacts there. He will then write me as to their suggestions and his own conclusions in the light of their advice. He will expect us to direct him as to his next move after we have considered his report.

If it seemed advantageous for Paul to go to New York for conference with any person or persons at that point, he is to be there shortly after Christmas and would make the necessary approach.

As I told you over the phone, he wanted certain material to strengthen his hand and this, I understand, you have already sent to him at Chicago.

As we both knew he would be, he was quite willing to do anything he could and created in me the rosy warmth of confidence which he always manages to generate.

Best regards.

Dear Harold:

Thanks for a copy of your recent Memorandum to "Appropriate Board Members" of the Southern Regional Council, Inc., concerning the attacks made upon certain SRC Board members by the Hearst press.

I have previously written to Dr. George Mitchell on this and have provided him with a brief bibliography. I still favor legal suit for libel, although it is recognized that it would be better to wait until I know all the ramifications such legal action would entail.

The Southern Regional Director of the Textile Workers Union of America, AFL-CIO, Mr. Boyd Peyton, told me last week in New York that one of the newspapers in Anderson, S. C. also carried a reprint of the New York Journal American article of November 7, but he did not know the date. This too was inserted as a paid advertisement by one of the White Citizens Council groups, according to Mr. Peyton.

If it is not asking too much and you have an extra copy available for gratis distribution I would like to have a copy of the statistical book, "Public Education in the South, Today and Tomorrow" by E. W. Swanson and John Griffin.

I am sorry it was necessary for me to miss the October meeting of the Board and the annual meeting in November. I still do not know if I shall be able to remain on the SRC Board, but will let you know later when I have been authoritatively informed.

Dear Dr. Mitchell:

I have been following with much interest the attacks on the Fund for the Republic, which have involved the gratuitous libeling of members of the Executive Board of the Southern Regional Council, including myself.

It always sounds ridiculous denying ridiculous charges, and I have appreciated all the more your suggestion of a biographical statement, providing my positive record of constructive effort within the framework of the American democracy.

I am somewhat amazed myself when I bring together all these organizations, but I think the list of these organizations speaks for itself.

It is certainly not expected that you would want to use all of this personal documentation, but under the circumstances, I have made it fairly comprehensive in order that you might select the activities that you feel would be most pertinent in the case at hand.

If there are any questions, I would be very glad to amplify these observations or clarify them.

RECEIVED DEC 23 1955

BIOGRAPHICAL SKETCH

Charles Spurgeon Johnson

Charles Spurgeon Johnson was born in Briston, Virginia on July 24, 1893, the son of a Baptist minister. His education was received at Wayland Academy and Virginia Union University in Union, Virginia, and at the University of Chicago, where he pursued graduate study in the field of sociology.

While at the University of Chicago, he assumed responsibility of Director of Research and Investigations for the Chicago Urban League, and in 1919 was appointed Associate Executive Secretary of Chicago's Commission on Race Relations created by the Governor of Illinois, following the race riots in that city. The volume, THE NEGRO IN CHICAGO (672 pages), published by the University of Chicago Press (1922), resulted from this work.

He served during World War I as Regimental Sergeant Major in the 803rd Pioneer Infantry, taking part in the Meuse-Argonne offensive. In 1921, he became Director of Research for the National Urban League, and founded the periodical, OPPORTUNITY, a Journal of Negro life, which he edited until 1928. In 1928, he became Head of the Department of Social Sciences at Fisk University and remained in this post until his election to the Presidency of this institution in 1946.

His Alma Mater, Virginia Union University, awarded him the honorary degree, Doctor of Letters in 1928; Howard University awarded him the degree of Doctor of Humane Letters in 1941; Columbia University awarded the degree of Doctor of Letters in 1947; Harvard University awarded the degree of Doctor of Laws in 1948; the University of Glasgow (Scotland) awarded the degree of Doctor of Laws in 1952; and Lincoln University (Pennsylvania) awarded the degree of Doctor of Laws in 1955.

In 1930, he was appointed by the State Department as American Member of the International Commission of the League of Nations to investigate slavery and enforced labor in Liberia, and the report of this Commission, written very largely by him, is among the State Department Archives and among the publications of the Government Printing House. In that same year, he received the William E. Harmon gold medal for distinguished achievement among Negroes in the field of science.

Among the major responsibilities might be included the secretaryship of the Commission on Negro Housing for President Hoover's Conference on Home Building and Home Ownership; authorship of the volume on Negro Housing; organizer of the Institute of Race Relations at Swarthmore College in 1933; membership on the President's Committee on Farm Tenancy under President Roosevelt; member of the White House Conference on Children in Democracy and consultant on minority problems for the Children's Bureau; member for the public on the Wage and Hours Committee of the Department of Labor for the Railroad Carrier Industry, and the Cigarette and Tobacco Industry; member of the American mission of twenty educators sent to Japan in 1946 at the request of General MacArthur to advise on the reorganization of the educational system of that country following the war; appointed by President Truman in 1946 as one of the ten U.S. delegates to the first session of the United Nations Educational, Scientific and Cultural Organization in Paris and in 1947 to the second session in Mexico City; member of the Executive Committee of the United States National Committee for UNESCO; appointed in 1947 as member of the President's Board of Foreign Scholarships under the Fulbright Act, where he served until May, 1954; member of the President's Commission on the Health Needs of the Nation in 1952.

He was director of the Race Relations Division of the American Missionary Association of the Congregational and Christian Churches of America from 1944 to 1950, and Co-Director of the Race Relations Program of the Julius Rosenwald Fund from 1943 to 1948, and at the same time was a member of the Board of the Julius Rosenwald Fund. He is past president (1945) of the Southern Sociological Society; member of the Executive Committee of the American Sociological Society; chairman of the Executive Committee of the Southern Regional Council; honorary vice president of the American Social Hygiene Association; delegate to the Assembly of the World Council of Churches in Amsterdam, Holland in 1948.

(See attached list of organizations on which he has held membership.)

In 1946, he was elected President of Fisk University and between 1946 and 1955 has doubled the educational budget, added five major buildings to the physical plant and over a million dollars to the endowment, and piloted the institution into a condition of acceptance for a Chapter of the American Association of University Women, the Association of Schools of Music and Phi Beta Kappa.

Following is a list of publications for which he is responsible as author or co-author. (See attached printed bibliography.)

In the Fall of 1955, he was invited by the Social Science Section of UNESCO to participate in a Conference of experts on race and race relations in the world, and was provided full security clearance by the United States Department for International Service, and was elected President of this Conference. Following this, on invitation of the American-Scandinavian Foundation and the Universities of Stockholm, Oslo and Copenhagen, he made a lecture tour of the Scandinavian Countries.

Three of the citations received by him in recent years are quoted:

(1) On the awarding of the honorary degree of Doctor of Laws from Harvard University in 1948, the following citation was made:

> "CHARLES SPURGEON JOHNSON, DOCTOR OF LAWS -- Educator, author and social statesman; wise in his unremitting efforts to move America forward towards our historic goals of real equality and justice."

(2) On the occasion of the awarding of the Social Action Churchmanship Award in 1948, the following citation was made:

> "As sociologist and educator, servant of the United States and United Nations, we cite you for a Social Action Churchmanship Award because you are a prophet of the new day ascending in the culture of our times. With a well directed passion for humanity, you have competently contributed to our understanding of ourselves and others, and helped to lay the foundation for an enduring society."

(3) On the occasion of the awarding of the honorary degree of Doctor of Laws from the University of Glasgow in 1952, the following citation was made:

> "Time marches on. Today we smile to re-read the declaration of the South Carolina Legislature in 1835 that Negroes had no soul and therefore no vote. It was a tenuous logic at best that would connect the two, and a daring in a nation dedicated but two generations earlier to the proposition that all men are created equal. But those propositions are few in politics whose implementing comes with their enunciation. Some men, the satirist has reminded us, are more equal than others. And among the more heartening features of the American scene in the past half century has been the way in which the Negro has himself translated theory into reality, not by demanding equality but by demonstrating it. What the politician said the educationalist has proved, until now the scientist has no option but to confirm. We do but honour therefore our common humanity, in this century of the common man, by conferring distinction on one already so distinguished as Charles Spurgeon Johnson. Outstanding as a sociologist, prominent in every movement for the advancement of his race

(and not only in the United States: it is now close on a quarter of century since he served on a League of Nations Commission to Liberia), author of a dozen works on this great humanitarian cause, the latest of them under the significant title INTO THE MAIN STREAM, President since 1946 of Fisk University, Tennessee, has shown with what fulness of title he may claim that main stream as his and his people's by his membership of the United States Educational Mission to Japan in 1946, of the Executive Committee of the United States Commission for UNESCO, of the Fulbright Board for Foreign Scholarships, and by other like activities numerous beyond mention.

Booker T. Washington, first in the great line of Negro educators in the United States, left France after a visit to Europe fifty years ago with the enigmatic statement that the more he saw of French society the more confident he felt of the future of his own race in America. We would not wish President Johnson to leave Scotland with the same reasons for increase of faith, were such increase indeed possible. But in token that his cause commands our fullest sympathy, and the greatness of his contribution to it all our respect, I would ask now, Mr. Chancellor, to admit him to the company of our honorary Doctor of Laws."

He holds a certificate for his work in the field of race relations from the CIO; a citation for meritorious public service from his Alma Mater, the University of Chicago; the Russwurm Award for Public Service from the Negro Newspaper Publishers Association; a certificate of recognition from the National Urban League; certificate of merit from the Chicago Defender, and was selected by the Newspaper Radio Guild as "Man of the Year" in Nashville in 1954.

Dear Dr. Mitchell:

In Congressman Hays' absence I wish to acknowledge receipt of your letter of December 14 with reference to Roy Harris' column in the Augusta Courier.

You may or may not know that Congressman Hays' mother passed away last week and he went directly from New York to Arkansas where he will remain until after the holidays. His address there is 126 East Fifth Street, Russellville, Arkansas.

I am placing your letter on Mr. Hays' desk for personal attention upon his return.

This is to let you know that, at Dr. Mitchell's behest, Mr. Morris Abram is going to New York on December 29 to confer with experienced libel lawyers there. Mr. Abram, as you know an able Atlanta lawyer, will seek to determine the availability of good counsel on a contingent fee basis for those interested in legal action against the New York Journal-American.

We will advise you of the results.

Dear Mr. Fleming:

Thank you for passing on Mr. Wright's New Year letter. We also received the additional copies and have sent them out to members of our Board. Since we got from you only about twenty-five copies of the letter and we have about forty members of the Board, I would appreciate it if you could send us about sixteen additional copies if you have any left.

Ever since the Journal-American attack on the Southern Regional Council we have been expecting that some group in Virginia would echo its charges and try to palm them off on the people as factually sound. Last Sunday the American Legion did this in a release put out under the name of the state commander, Mr. Anderson Renick of Roanoke. The attack made the same old charges, and they will doubtless serve to confuse the minds of a sizable group who regard the Legion as one hundred per cent patriotic and infallible. As you will see by the enclosed clipping from Monday's Times-Dispatch, the reporter gave me a chance to reply to Mr. Renick's charges Sunday afternoon. The release was given out around noon Sunday, and I have an idea that New Year's Day was carefully selected as the date in hopes that I might be off somewhere and unable to reply. It so happened I was in the office part of the afternoon and went over to the newspaper office and tried to set the record straight shortly before the paper's early deadline around six o'clock.

We are having a Board meeting this week and I am preparing a somewhat fuller statement which I hope our Executive Committee and the Board will release to the public later this week. Several other important facts need to be brought out more clearly than I was able to do the other day. We shall keep in touch with all of you in the central office about the developments.

The big debate waxes warmer and warmer as our referendum date draws closer, and it is hard to say just how big a vote the anti-amendment group will be able to pile up on Monday. Many of us are hoping for a big protest vote, although the chances for defeating the proposal outright seem pretty slim. A lawyer friend told me the other day that he understands that plans are afoot for an attack on all Virginia preachers who have come out in favor of integration or in opposition to the amendment. He says he understands that some groups will attempt to brand them as subversive or unwittingly pro-communist. If this is done it may indirectly help the Southern Regional Council and our Council since it should make clearer to all reasonable people that political desperation may be one prime motive of the attacks upon us.

Best wishes for the New Year.

Cordially yours,

John H. Marion

P.S. The random clippings in addition to last Sunday's Legion story will indicate something of the temper and extent of the debate over the referendum. As usual, I'd like to have them back (keep the Legion story) when you finish with them. The Virginian-Pilot is doing a really swell job. J.M.

P.S. I might add that we've been leaning over backward to avoid any sort of activity, as an organization, that might be termed certainly political.

Enclosed you will find my expense account for the trip to Atlanta yesterday.

It seems that the staff now has the gist of the thinking of some of us; and I want you to know that I am ready to go through with this if you feel that you need me. As I said yesterday, I am not particularly anxious to get into it but I think there is a larger principle involved in the whole country.

It was good to see you and the members of the staff.

By ALFRED MYNDERS

THE SOUTHERN Regional Council has been attacked in the Hearst press as having had pro-Communist taints. The council is the outgrowth of the old Southern Interracial Commission and the council was formed at the call of distinguished people including Bishop Arthur J. Moore, of the Methodist Church; Bishop Gerald P. O'Hara, of the Catholic Church; Bishop John Moore Walker, of the Protestant Episcopal Church; the Rev. M. Ashby Jones, famous Baptist minister; Rabbi David Marx of Atlanta and others.

Now that the cold war is more than ever a battle of ideas and ideologies instead of a potential atomic shooting war, the position of religious leaders on communism should be understood. An address by the Rt. Rev. Edmund P. Dandridge of Sewanee, retired bishop of the Tennessee Diocese of the Protestant Episcopal Church, which was delivered at St. Paul's Church here several years ago, seems more potent now that when it was made.

BISHOP DANDRIDGE said that in the Book of Common Prayer and the constitution and canons of the Episcopal church the word "Communism" is not mentioned. But he asserted that there is abundant mention and condemnation of some of the things which Marxian Communism teaches and does. "The church teaches belief in God; Marxian Communism is atheistic. The church teaches that man is a spiritual being made in the image of God; Marxian Communism teaches that man is of this earth and this life only. The church teaches that human personality is of supreme value; Marxian Communism teaches that the state or the class is of supreme value and man is a puppet. The church teaches that truth, justice and righteousness have universal validity as expressions of the eternal will of God; Marxian Communism teaches that there are no universally valid moral principles, but the supreme law is what the state deems expedient."

Bishop Dandridge quoted two resolutions adopted by the Lambeth conference, composed of bishops of the Angelican communion the world over. In 1948, the Lambeth conference resolved: "The conference, while recognizing that in many lands there are Communists who are practicing Christians, nevertheless declares that Marxian Communism is contrary to the Christian faith and practice, for it denies the existence of God, revelation and a future life, it treats the individual man as a means and not an end; it encourages class warfare. * * * The conference holds that while a state must take the precaution it regards as necessary to protect good order and peace from subversive movements, it is the special duty of the church to oppose the challenge of the Marxian theory of communism by sound teaching and the example of a better way, and that the church, at all times and in all places, should be a fearless witness against political, social and economic injustice."

————*

THE second Lambeth conference resolution quoted by Bishop Dandridge said: "The conference believes that communism is presenting a challenge to Christian people to study and understand its theory and practice so that they may be well instructed as to which elements in it are in conflict with the church's view of man and must therefore be resisted, and which elements are a true judgment on the existing social and economic order."

Bishop Dandridge pointed out that in the confusion, honest, earnest and devoted people who are intent on

Bishop Dandridge pointed out that in the confusion, honest, earnest and devoted people who are intent on needed reforms become easy victims of the clever, fanatical and unscrupulous men in the Kremlin. "The totalitarian tyrants use the honest liberals as allies until they achieve power, and then crush them."

Bishop Dandridge said the resolutions quoted from the Lambeth conference show that the church leaders recognize the right of the state to take the precautions it regards as necessary to protect good order and peace from the subversive movements.

"But," the bishop declared, "in seeking to discover and destroy subversive movements, we ought not only as Christians, but as honest and intelligent people, to beware of being swept away by a wave of hysteria, and to refuse to take part in or condone baseless charges, false accusations which assassinate character and rob honest and patriotic Americans of their peace and reputation. There has been a shocking amount of this lately, and it seems to me to be especially cowardly when it is done under the protection of congressional immunity."

THE Lambeth resolutions "recognize the special duty of the church to oppose the challenge of the Marxian theory of communism by sound teaching and the example of a better way," said Bishop Dandridge. "We are awakening to the realization that Soviet imperialism must be met by force, and that our institutions must be guarded against subversives at home.

"But Soviet Communism is not only a mighty military machine; it is also a fanatical, intolerant, materialistic faith. You cannot bomb an idea. Only a faith can conquer a faith. Only the true faith can overcome the false.

"Therefore the church—and that means you and me as Christians—has a special responsibility to meet the challenge on the intellectual and spiritual levels, to teach the Christian faith and Christian ethics and morals with renewed devotion, earnestness and clarity, both at home and abroad."

In concluding, Bishop Dandridge told the Laymen's League of St. Paul's: "The church's stand on communism is not and cannot be a blind championing of our present social and economic and political system against all change. It must be and is Kingdom of God, seeking to preserve all in the present civilization that is in harmony and to resist all that would destroy those values and at the same time pushing on to bring our way of life a little closer to that Kingdom which is strength and peace and joy in the Holy Ghost. Marxian Communism was born in despair and hatred; it must ultimately be overcome by faith and hope and love."

Dear Dr. Clement:

As you will recall, Mr. Morris Abram was to go to New York, at the behest of Dr. Mitchell, personally, to explore the legal possibilities of libel action against the Hearst newspapers. Mr. Abram has completed the trip and is prepared to advise interested board members on what may be done.

Can you attend a meeting in the offices of the Southern Regional Council at 3:30 p. m., Tuesday, January 17? Mr. Abram will be present and we hope at that time to discuss the situation in detail. The Council will bear travel expenses.

Please let me know as promptly as possible whether or not you will be able to attend.

With best regards.

Dear Harold:

I can't get away to attend that Jan. 17 meeting. But you may, if you like, express to the Board my opinion that the libel action would not be worth while. While I believe a cause of action exists, I believe it would be difficult to prove damages and that the trial of the case would be exhausting and perhaps embarrassing to all concerned. Mr. Loescher tells me, moreover, that he understands that Hearst management realizes that the writers went too far and that it is unlikely such an offense will be repeated. Has any effort been made to take up the matter with Seymour Berkson, publisher of the N.Y. Journal-American?

I guess I am just not litigious.

As ever,

Dear Mr. Fleming:

Thanks for your letter of January 9. I am always running into impossible situations with the SRC. The Publishers have a Workshop meeting beginning there on the 19th, (January) running through the 21st. I can't see how I can get there for Tuesday, the 17th, and stay through. Neither would I like to come there on Tuesday and double back again for the 19th.

So I'll have to abide by the decision of the group that meets with Mr. Abram on the 17th, expressing now my willingness to go along, if there is a possibility of a suit's being effective.

Dear Harold:

By now George Mitchell probably has already given you the answer to the question posed in your letter of January 9th. He was by the office last Monday, when my secretary informed him I was confined to the hospital.

I would dearly love to be in Atlanta for the meeting with Morris Abram on January 17th. However, my doctor says I will not be released from the hospital before next Monday, January 16th at the very earliest, and the latest word from him is that I should be prepared not to be disappointed if my stay is continued for at least one more week beyond January 16th.

I believe you know how I feel about this matter, and you can tell Morris Abram and others who attend the meeting that I am ready to be a party to the suit and will do my share. I would also appreciate a report of some kind on the decision arrived at, and what is expected of me in the way of my share and contribution.

With best wishes, I am

Sincerely yours,

IN RE: Your Memorandum of January 23

Dear Mr. Fleming:

I herewith acknowledge receipt of your special memorandum of January 23 as an up-to-date indication of the status of the "libel case". I have been in receipt of your previous communication on this item for which I have maintained a special file.

In response to your request for an indication of my personal reaction I wish to advise that at the present time I would choose to be identified with the small group of those who have indicated to you that they do not prefer to share in a suit. I am both aware and appreciative of the several aspects of this matter. However, it is my considered judgment that I would prefer at this time not to anticipate participation in the considered suit.

Pleased to have shared the conference yesterday with Dr. Mitchell and hoping possibly that you may have on your schedule the annual meeting of the Alabama Council on Saturday, February 11, I am

Dear Mr. Atwood:

Thank you for your letter concerning the matter of a possible libel suit.

I am glad to have your thinking on the question.

I am also glad to know that the Hearst charges have had no repercussions in Kentucky. They have been picked up by the American Legion and various prosegregation groups in other areas and are being used with some vigor to embarrass the work of the Council and the individuals so defamed.

We will not continue to circularize you about the on-going developments with respect to this question, but if at any time you wish to be brought up to date let me know and I shall be glad to comply.

Dear Mr. Fleming:

This will acknowledge receipt of your memorandum of January 23 to appropriate board members.

I have not had opportunity to discuss the matter with anyone. However, little or no attention has been paid to the matter in this area. My present thinking is that a suit will simply stir it up and give honor to a matter apparently dying or dead.

I am, therefore, inclined to leave it alone, at least, for the present.

Dear Mr. Fleming:

I have your mimeographed statement concerning the matter of a possible suit for libel, on the part of members of the Board of the Southern Regional Council.

I was emotionally disturbed by the irresponsible and libelous publication of the Hearst papers, and wanted immediate correction of equal volume and outreach. I am still of the opinion that the irresponsible press should be held to account for its slanders, and will join with any others who wish to pursue a course of legal action.

In spite of the libel and slander, it has seemed to me that the Hearst Press has been more seriously condemned for its irresponsibility than I have been injured by its inaccuracies. Of course, I may find, at some unexpected point, that these printed statements may carry a critical weight too late to correct through the normal channels. This, I assume, is the really important reason for a formal challenge now.

There is such obvious ridiculousness about the article carried and the individuals castigated, the case to be brought would be one that was against irresponsible journalism than any issue involving politics or beliefs, per se.

I am, of course, very much less interested in any punitive damages that might come out of this than public correction of false statements and interpretations. Is there such a thing as having the same group of lawyers representing the libeled individuals, require first a full and definitive repudiation through the same press, to be followed by legal action if this is denied.

The time, trouble and annoyance of legal procedure, unless one is seriously damaged professionally or financially, might well be recognized in this kind of a situation. However, as a general matter of the public welfare and the protection of individuals from the indiscriminate and irresponsible calumny of financially strong agencies of public news and communications, I would be quite willing to join other responsible associates in carrying forward such legal action.

Sincerely yours,

Charles S. Johnson

Dear George:

Thanks for the copy of your letters to the individuals concerned in the possible litigation.

I don't see where there is a possible chance of my raising a thousand dollars. In the first place, I don't have it; and I am very poor as a money-raiser. I will do what I can, however, in exploring the possibility.

You will be glad to know that the first experiment with the state councils last Saturday was a great success. We had about fifteen members of our Board present; and Fred Routh and Dr. Parrish, along with Mr. Hope and his consultants did a grand job. I Was especially impressed with the ability of Mr. Hope to lead a group. More than likely they will find ways in which they can enlarge upon their work as they move southward to the other states. It was the unanimous feeling that this was a splendid move on the part of the Southern Regional Council.

With every good wish for you, I am

Dear Dr. Mitchell:

In answer to yours of February 14, I don't have $1000 lying around loose, either. But if enough of the other people libelled in this SRC deal will put up $1000 to satisfy the lawyers, I will undertake to find the $1000 by the time it has to be paid. I want to emphasize that I won't put up $1000 in any pot less than the minimum that the lawyers will accept as sufficient for their research, so that they will have the possibility of frittering it away in research then telling us later that they don't have enough and can't carry on the suit. If $10,000 is the minimum that they will accept for the research, then I mean that my $1000 will be one of the $10,000 committed, and on condition that there is such firm commitment.

I am not questioning the selection of lawyers or their plans, or anything else, I am leaving these things to you and your associates, whom I'll trust. As you notice, I am merely trying to make sure that there will be no abortive attempt to get ready and then dropping of the case.

Very truly yours,

Richmond, Va.
Feb. 5, 1956

Dear George,

I spent Thursday and Friday in New York re our trouble with the N. Y. Journal - American. Thursday morning and lunch was occupied with Monsignor McCarthy, Chancellor of the Military Ordinariate (Catholic Chaplains in the Armed Services) and Monsignor Walsh, Director of the Confraternity of Christian Doctrine. They listened to our story with sympathy and strong through their connections to get me an appointment first with Jack Herbert, a Catholic, publisher of the Journal-American and then with Frank Conniff who was close to Mr Hearst senior. Neither was available so we had to settle with a conference with John Clements, Director of Public Relations (see attached card). Both McCarthy and Walsh thought my best bet at the moment was to make a contact, give my impressions of the SRC and ask for a later appointment for a full dress presentation with officials of the SRC present with representatives of the J - A.

My visit with Clements though cordial was entirely too brief. He had to interrupt our session and go to another meeting. He did agree to a meeting with SRC officials at an early date mutually agreeable when the case could be aired in detail. He mentioned that he would ask a Mr. Matthews to sit in on the proposed meeting. This was somewhat disturbing because Matthews is the person who wrote the articles charging, quite unfairly I believe, that one-third of the Protestant ministers in the U.S. have been tinged with Communism.

But at least Clements is agreeable to reviewing the case and to hearing our side of the story. Clements is a hard hitting individual and, I judged, not one to be easily convinced that writers of the J-A. have erred. I left with Clements the blow-up article from the Va-Pilot, Mynders' editorial defending the SRC and our folder "SRC Towards the So. of the Future". He asked for some literature and I didn't desire to give him too much at this time.

Thursday night I saw Fr. LaFarge and George Hunton of the Catholic Interracial Council. They suggested that I see Judge John F. X. McGohey of the U.S. District Court. This I did the next day. McGohey, you will recall, prosecuted the 11 Communists in the celebrated 9 month's trial, which led to their conviction. Soon after he was named Judge. I gave an overall picture to the Judge and he seemed much impressed. He expressed his willingness to review all materials which we might send him and to sit in with SRC officials

Mentzer, Bush

a day in advance of the meeting with Clements when this is set. I think with some persuasion the Judge could be induced to join you and the SRC groups as an advisor when you meet with Clements – if the meeting were "off the record". At least the Judge will meet a day in advance and advise you.

The Judge is plenty keen, he is willing to fight when justice is at stake and he has a tendency to sympathize with the under dog. I liked him immediately. The Judge is a Catholic and is not afraid of the J-A crowd who respect the Judge very much.

The Judge also suggested that Gerard Carroll counsel of the Grace Lines (Steamship) be invited to the meeting ahead of the appointment you make with Clements. Carroll is Chairman of the Board of Directors of the Catholic Interracial Council. I know Carroll is a fine gentleman and an exponent of fair play. Both Carroll and the Judge are highly respected around NYC and they have the ear of Cardinal Spellman if ~~they~~ there is any chance, which presently

I doubt, of bringing the Cardinal into the picture.

The Judge suggests that you prepare a strong fact sheet to support your argument and to send him a set of your materials. Or, you can send them to me and I'll send them to the Judge. I expect to be home all week.

I suggest that you write Clements for an early date for meeting with him. Set up the meeting with the Judge and perhaps Carroll and also George Hunter a day ahead, if possible, of the J-A. meeting. Of course it is important that Marion Wright be present with you - I am assuming that. It might be a good idea to have Dr. Rufus Clement at the meeting. Or Leonard Haas, or Hal Fleming.

This is not as good a report as I should like to send you but, under the circumstances, the best that I could accomplish. If the date you decide on is one I can make, and you want me, I'll be glad to join you in N.Y. But I cannot make it this coming week beginning tomorrow: perhaps the following week - early part say Tuesday and Wednesday. But my presence is not essential and the earliest date you can settle the better it will be.

I will send no expense sheet for my trips to N.Y. but I will charge off my expenses as a donation to SRC - for tax purposes.

Please explain to Marion why I am sending this to you. I trust you will send him a transcript.

Best regards always

Sincerely
Paul

I have lately fetched over forty odd more copies and send them out again.

Dear Dr. Mitchell:

Mr. Ivor A. Trapolin, a local attorney and a lecturer at Loyola University, is interested in defending organizations such as the SRC, NAACP, etc. against false accusations by such groups as the American Legion.

As I told you this past Friday, I had sent some information to him about the SRC and the LCHR. He called again this morning to find out if the National American Legion had accused the SRC along with the Fund for the Republic of subversive activities. I told him that I wasn't sure of the statement about the National American Legion, however, I would give him your address so that he may write to you directly.

Another matter; Father Raymond Bernard, S.J. of Saint Louis University, and the Managing Editor of a Jesuit's publication, SOCIAL ORDER, had visited me in New Orleans about a month ago and is desirous of a write-up about the SRC and the LCHR besides the recent rebuttal to the attacks on the SRC and the Georgia Committee on Interracial Cooperation.

Do you have a sketch or an outline of the history and achievements of the SRC? This would provide him with some basis background information.

I would appreciate it very much if such an outline or sketch is available that you would send a copy to me at your earliest convenience.

Sincerely yours,

Milton

Memo . . . FROM THE DESK OF
. . . . HAROLD C. FLEMING . . . .

Hearst File

For Mr. William Fowlkes, Pittsburgh Courier:

In their efforts to discredit the Fund for the Republic, the Hearst newspapers have made a wholly unjustified attack on the reputations of various board members of the Southern Regional Council, a recipient of Fund for the Republic aid. Included in this unprincipled attack were some of the most distinguished Negro Americans -- Charles Johnson, Rufus Clement, Benjamin Mays, and the like.

It is noteworthy that the Hearst story has been reprinted in a Southern paper by the Virginia equivalent of the White Citizens Council. Doubtless the other white supremacy organizations in the South will make use of this material from a New York newspaper to besmirch the good name of organizations and individuals who advocate compliance with the Supreme Court's desegregation rulings.

MEMORANDUM

FROM: HAROLD C. FLEMING

TO: Appropriate Board Members

SUBJECT: Attacks by the Hearst Press

As you know, The New York Journal American and other Hearst-owned newspapers on November 7 carried a story impugning the patriotism of 21 members of the SRC Board. Our concern over this slanderous article was increased by its use in Virginia and Tennessee to discredit SRC affiliates in those states. On November 15 and 16, I conferred with the staff of the Fund for the Republic and other agencies friendly to SRC, in New York. Subsequently, Dr. Mitchell, Mr. Wright, and Mr. Haas have discussed the situation. This memorandum summarizes what we know, at the moment, of the legal and public relations aspects of the matter.

Legal

Pending detailed legal study, it is the consensus that the 21 persons attacked may have legal grounds for a libel action. The Fund for the Republic has undertaken, through its counsel, to study the question in terms of jurisdiction and precedents in New York. The resultant findings will be purely advisory. Whatever they may be, the final decision will rest, individually, with the persons named in the newspaper story. However, should two or more persons decide to sue, the possibilities of a concerted action should be considered. The SRC, as an organization, would apparently have no basis for becoming a party to any legal action in this instance.

Mr. Leonard Haas, SRC's Counsel, has also done some preliminary study which reveals successful libel actions by persons who were falsely called"communists," "communist sympathizers," and "fellow-travelers"; the two latter terms, obviously, are closely analogous to the term "pro-red," which was that used by the Journal American headline.

As soon as the preliminary legal findings are available, we will pass them on to you. Meanwhile, we recognize that many extra-legal considerations are involved in contemplating libel actions; these may lead to differing individual decisions. We will, at any rate, summarize and circulate the most important extra-legal factors once the legal situation is clarified.

Public Relations

The Hearst papers are vulnerable to some extent, in terms of both circulation and public opinion, to the charge that they have defamed some of the nation's most prominent Negro citizens, as well as an organization which is working effectively for compliance with the Supreme Court's rulings in the South. Some of the steps in process are:

(1) The facts just mentioned are being brought to the attention of principals in the Hearst organization by such agencies as ADL and AJC, which are widely known and respected in New York.

(2) The NAACP either has protested, or will shortly, to the Hearst papers.

(3) The Negro press has strongly criticized the Hearst story; the use being made of it by white supremacy elements in the South has been called to the attention of the Negro press and may prompt further criticism.

(4) There is a possibility of direct protest to the Hearst papers from influential Catholic sources.

(5) We will undertake to get the positive story of the SRC and its work told by a national magazine of mass circulation, a network television program, or both.

(6) We will reproduce and distribute, through the Atlanta office and the state affiliates, favorable matter on SRC published by newspapers or magazines. (A case in point was the recent column by Mr. Alfred Mynders in the Chattanooga Times.)

(7) The Atlanta office will work closely with the various state organizations in maintaining and strengthening the SRC's reputation throughout the South, as well as in meeting direct attacks.

Saturday

Dear Harold:

The laundry man found your letter yesterday--apparently, it had blown away when I got out of the car. So, just ignore my plea of Friday.

That's a masterful letter to Starzel and we're glad you marked Bem in on the second chapter. Please keep us posted on the next developments.

Margaret

Friday

Dear Harold:

Please solve a Price mystery: did you write to us this week? Yesterday afternoon I picked up the mail in our box and carried it in the house, along with assorted packages, papers, etc. I was sure I spotted a letter from you to Bem and told him so when I picked him up at the bus line last night. Then the search began, but no letter from you could be found.

Now I'm wondering: did I see one in the first place? It's a little like a Hitchcock movie, with someone bent on proving the heroine mad by a series of just such incidents. In brief, if you did write, will you please repeat?

I'm sure Bem somehow tossed it somewhere by mistake and he's positive I did the same or that I didn't see such a letter in the first place. Meanwhile, the house got a thorough going over and a little incidental dusting along the way, so all was not in vain.

Of course, in any event, we're both hoping to hear from you, as a follow up to the phone call last week-end. The whole situation is awful and I certainly hope those involved won't take this quietly. Please keep us posted, because we're both vitally interested.

Give me love to Jane and Gary and tell them I'll write soon.

THE ATTACK ON

THE SOUTHERN REGIONAL COUNCIL

THE ATTACK ON FREE OPINION

Last March the Southern Regional Council declared:

"There is presently a concerted attempt by official leadership (in the deep South) to stamp out independent thought and stifle all dissent with respect to school segregation...."

In recent months, the attempt to intimidate and silence those who believe in an enlightened, law-abiding approach to race relations has gone into high gear.

The object of this attack on constructive Southern organizations is to frighten off the thousands of religious, civic, labor, and business leaders who have joined together to work positively at the South's most urgent problem. It is revealing that, although the work of these organizations goes back 35 years, only now have Southern politicians chosen to strike at them.

Most recently, the Hearst press -- in order to strike at the Fund for the Republic -- libelled some of the most distinguished members of the Southern Regional Council's board.

This, in brief form, is the story of the Southern Regional Council. Many Southerners may disagree with the Council's point of view. But no fair-minded person, in full possession of the facts will doubt that it is an honest and patriotic organization, responsible in both its methods and its aims.

HOW THE SRC BEGAN:

The Southern Regional Council and its predecessor, the Commission on Interracial Cooperation, have a history of 35 years of constructive activity. The Commission was founded in 1919 by a group of the South's leading church men and women. Among them were Dr. M. Ashby Jones, prominent Baptist minister, Mr. John J. Eagen, businessman and philanthropist, Dr. Plato Durham, dean of the Emory University Theology School, and Dr. Will W. Alexander, the Commission's director. Its work in behalf of sound race relations was acclaimed by the South's leading newspapers, religious leaders, and by many public officials. It provided a meeting ground where the best people of both races could work together to dispel prejudice, tensions, and violence. It made possible, through persuasion and education, much of the interracial progress of which Southerners today can be justly proud.

Early in the 1940s, leaders in the Southern interracial movement joined together to revitalize their efforts. As a result, the Commission on Interracial Cooperation merged in 1944 with the newly formed Southern Regional Council. The organizing meeting of the Council was held in response to a "call" issued by some of the South's finest leadership, including:

G.H. Gillman, Georgia Director, C.I.O.
George L. Googe, Southern Director, A.F.L.
M. Ashby Jones, Baptist minister
Ryland Knight, Baptist minister
Rabbi David Marx, The Temple, Atlanta
Bishop Arthur J. Moore, The Methodist Church
Ralph McGill, editor, The Atlanta Constitution
Stuart R. Oglesby, Presbyterian minister
Most Rev. Gerald P. O'Hara, Bishop of Savannah-Atlanta
Dean S. Paden, President, King Hardware Company
J. McDowell Richards, President, Columbia Theological Seminary
Bishop John Moore Walker, The Protestant Episcopal Church
Goodrich C. White, President, Emory University.

Following the deliberations of this group and a subsequent conference with Southern Negro leaders, the SRC was chartered early in 1944. The incorporators were Bishop Arthur J. Moore, Ralph McGill, Dr. Rufus E. Clement, president of Atlanta University, Dr. Charles S. Johnson, president of Fisk University, and Dr. Howard W. Odum, professor of sociology at the University of North Carolina.

Since this auspicious beginning, the Council's membership has included distinguished Southerners, white and Negro, in all walks of life. Dr. Odum was the first president of the organization. He was succeeded by Paul D. Williams, of Richmond, Va., a prominent Catholic layman and co-founder of the Catholic Committee of the South. Mr. Williams served as president for six years -- from 1945 until 1951. He was succeeded by Mr. Marion A. Wright, widely known as a South Carolina attorney active in civic and educational affairs, now living in Linville Falls, N. C.

The Council's present and past board members number well over 150. The quality of its leadership may be measured by the list of members of the Executive Committee over the past 12 years, attached.

HOW SRC WORKS

The Southern Regional Council consists of a board of some 90 Southerners representing the major religious faiths, both races, and the 13 states of the region. The members, list attached, are respected residents of their states and their communities. These people are the Southern Regional Council. They make the policies and review all activities at an annual meeting. They elect an Executive Committee which meets at least every three months to give closer direction to the organization. And full reports of all activities are sent to the members quarterly. The Council is non-profit, non-political, and non-denominational.

WHAT SRC HAS DONE

The Council works through the sound methods of education, fact-finding, and persuasion. It seeks no legislation, it carries on no court action, and it uses no "pressure group" tactics. It collects the facts about racial problems and progress in the South and makes these available to private citizens and public officials. NEW SOUTH, the Council's monthly publication, has built an unchallenged reputation for reliability and accuracy. Following are some of the areas with which the SRC's educational program has been concerned:

* Employment of Negro policemen in Southern communities.

* Newspaper handling of racial news.

* Community self-surveys, in which local people study their problems as a basis for achieving local solutions.

* Conferences of leading white and Negro Southerners with common concerns and a common desire to further democratic practices in their areas of interest -- health, housing, education, etc.

* Voluntary decisions to open professional associations, private colleges, public libraries, and the like to all qualified persons without respect to race.

* Impartial enforcement of the law and administration of justice in the South.

* Orderly adjustment at the community level to the recent decisions of the Supreme Court holding public school segregation unconstitutional.

AFFILIATED STATE ORGANIZATIONS

With the aid of a grant from the Fund for the Republic, the Southern Regional Council is assisting interracial organizations in 12 Southern states. Each of these organizations has its own membership, officers, and staff. In each case, people of the state involved make their own decisions as to policy and program. Affiliation with the Southern Regional Council is voluntary, and the purpose of the short-term financial aid from SRC is to help the state groups become strong, self-sustaining bodies.

CHURCH SUPPORT

Church people have always been the moving force in the Southern interracial movement. This is as true today as it was 35 years ago. All of the major religious groups represented in the South have taken their stand in favor of the principle embodied in the Supreme Court's segregation ruling. The court ruling was endorsed by the Southern Baptist Convention, many of the Southern conferences of The Methodist Church, the General Assembly of the Southern Presbyterian Church, the Province of Sewanee (Southeastern) of the Protestant Episcopal Church, the Catholic Bishops of the South, the various Jewish religious and fraternal groups, and virtually all of the other denominations found in the South. It is only natural that many religious Southerners should seek to put the principles of their faith into everyday practice.

The Southern Regional Council and the affiliated state groups have enjoyed both financial and moral support from religious bodies representing the three major faiths.

Dr. George S. Mitchell, executive director of the Council, received the 1953 Annual Award of the Catholic Committee of the South "for his significant contribution to the welfare of the South."

COMMUNISM AND RACE RELATIONS

Those who seek, for political or other reasons, to fan the fires of racial prejudice have set out to brand interracial progress as "communist-inspired." By this means they hope to confuse the public and discredit the growing number of individuals and organizations who believe in equal citizenship for all.

Not only is this phony "anti-communism" vicious; it offends the intelligence of every thinking person. The international communist movement has one, and only one, interest in our racial problems -- that is, to exploit them throughout the world. Some two-thirds of the people of the earth are dark-skinned, and the communists are trying desperately to win them with the claim that our kind of democracy is available only to white persons. If there were no racial discrimination or segregation in this country, the communist movement in Asia and Africa would lack its most effective weapon.

A perfect example of this fact is the reaction of Soviet Russian officialdom to the Supreme Court decision. For days, the government-controlled Russian press made no mention whatever of the decision. When at last they could ignore it no longer, they announced defensively that the decision meant nothing -- that it would never be implemented. This is precisely the argument that the demagogues make so noisily. Unwittingly perhaps, but undeniably, they do a great service to the cause of communism every time they raise their voices on behalf of "white supremacy".

Individuals and organizations that work responsibly and conscientiously for the growth of democracy in the South and the Nation are the opponents that the communists really fear. Yet it is precisely these individuals and organizations that irresponsible elements seek to defame and discredit. What could please the communists more than to get the credit for every effort to make our American ideal a working, living reality? What could please them more than a campaign to arouse suspicion and hatred of those citizens who work intelligently for a more just, democratic, and Christian society? How they must delight in the irony of such Americans being stigmatized as servants and dupes of the communist cause!

No informed person believes that the communists want to see Negroes accorded equal rights and dignity or that they want to see our racial problems solved through the orderly processes of the law and constructive community action. The communists want to see us hopelessly bogged down in our prejudices and our fears. They want to see us defying the law of the land, whipping up racial hatred for political purposes. In this respect, they have a common purpose with the white supremacists.

TO KEEP OPINION FREE

The Southern Regional Council is a realistic organization. It was organized by Southerners and is run by Southerners who have lived with the problems of our region and know them well. Therefore, the Council recognizes the difficulties inherent in the changes now required of the South. But the people who make up the Council believe that we can and will -- as, indeed, we must -- make the transition to a society in which citizenship is not qualified by race.

The issue here is not whether everyone can agree with this point of view -- obviously many do not. The issue is whether or not citizens can voice this and other legitimate opinions without suffering abuse at the hands of officials and newspapers.

The answer must be "yes" if we are not to have thought-control in the South. The power of state officials is great, and if misused it is dangerous to all. If any citizens can be penalized for legitimate opinions honestly held, then all citizens can be penalized at the pleasure of a few.

IT IS LIBELOUS PER SE TO CALL ANOTHER A "COMMUNIST" OR A "COMMUNIST SYMPATHIZER".

The cases generally hold it to be actionable per se, as subjecting the person charged to ridicule, contempt, shame and disgrace to publish or orally state that one believes in or follows certain political or sociological principles, practices, or views, which, in the main, are objectionable to the average person in the community.

33 Am. Jur. page 65.

Spanel v. Westbrook Pegler, 160 Fed. (2d) 619; 171 ALR 699.

Similarly, it has been consistently held to be actionable per se in libel to charge a person with being a "pro-Nazi," a "pro-Jap," a "Pro-Fascist," "un-American," etc.

Parmelee v. Hearst Publishing Co., 341 Ill. App. 399, 93 N.E. (2d.) 512.

The decisions make it apparent that the difference, if any, between calling a man a "communist" and stating that he is agent for the "Party", or a "Red", or a "Pink", or a "fellow-traveler", seems to be one of degree only, since the basis for the reproach is a belief that such political affiliations constitute a threat to our institutions and those who fear such threat are not likely to believe that it is limited to party members.

Farm Bureau Federation v. Nat'l P.U.S. Corp, 198, Fed. (2d) 20; 33 ALR (2d) 1186.

Holding it libelous to term one a "Communist" or a "Communist Sympathizer", the Court, in Americans for Democratic Action v. Meade, 72 Pa. DAC 306, held also that the published statement that the A. D. A. was "flirting" with communism, together with the charge that the A. D. A. was "infiltrated" with "Communists", could be found by a jury to be capable of the meaning that the A. D. A. had "Communist" members, espoused "Communist" doctrines, and was influenced in its policies by "Communists" or "Communism", and that a jury could find that the statement had a defamatory meaning, as tending to harm the reputation of another, to lower him in the estimation of the community, or to deter third persons from associating or dealing with him.

In Spanel v. Pegler, 160 Fed. (2d) 619, 171 ALR 699 the Federal Circuit Court for Appeals for the Seventh Circuit held that in Illinois it is libelous per se to write of another that he is a "Communist" or a "Communist Sympathizer", since the label of "Communist" to-day, in the minds of many average respectable persons, places one beyond the pale of respectability, making him a symbol of public hatred.

In Grant v. Readers Digest Ass'n, 151 Fed. (2d) 733, the Federal Circuit Court of Appeals for the Second Circuit held it libelous to write of a lawyer that he acted as a legislative representative for the Communist Party. In the well-reasoned opinion by Judge Learned Hand it is stated that although the publication did not say that the Plaintiff was a member of the "Party," its implication was that he was in general sympathy with its objects and methods, or, in other words, a "fellow traveler", was none the less odious.

In Hays v. American Defense Society, 252 N.Y. 266, a political pamphlet charging that some of the Directors of the organizations to which the Plaintiff belonged were "reds" or "red radicals", and were using certain members as dupes to contribute to the general purpose of the Communists, the Court held this was not libelous as to the Plaintiff, whose name did not appear in the pamphlet except in a list entitled "Index to Directorates." It may be noted by implication that a different result might have been reached had it been found that the opprobrium was directed at the Plaintiff.

CAN A NON-PROFIT ORGANIZATION, SUCH AS SOUTHERN REGIONAL COUNCIL, FILE SUIT FOR SLANDER OR LIBEL?

A brief summary of the authorities indicates that there is no case in point where the exact question has been raised; in other words, in none of the cases that the writer has found has the point been raised that the Plaintiff was a non-profit organization.

In Farm Bureau Federation v. Nat'l F.U.S. Corp., 198 Fed. (2d) 20 33 ALR (2d) 1186, where the Plaintiff was awarded $25,000.00 damages in the suit, the first headnote of the case reads as follows:

"The general rule is that one who falsely, and without privilege to do so, publishes of a corporation for profit matter which tends to prejudice it in the conduct of its trade or business, or to deter third persons from dealing with it, is liable to the corporation".

Nothing is said in the case as to whether an action would lie by a non-profit organization as the point was not raised.

However, in the case of the JOINT ANTI-FASCIST REFUGEE COMMITTEE v. McGrath, 341 U.S. 123, 71 Sup. Ct. 624, in which the plaintiff organization applied for relief against the Attorney General of the United States for having been classified as a "Communist" organization and placed by him on the list of subversive organizations (where the U.S. Supreme Court reversed the decision of three lower courts and held that the Attorney General was required to give these organizations a hearing before so listing them as subversive) Mr. Justice Burton, in announcing the judgment of the court, stated that the acts of the Attorney General had the effect of crippling the functioning and damaging the reputation of the organizations, in their respective communities and in the nation, and, hence, violated each organization's common law right to be free from defamation.

It is interesting to note that in the Petition of the Joint Anti-Fascist Refugee Committee it is alleged that the acts of the Attorney-General "have caused many contributors, especially present and prospective civil servants, to reduce or discontinue their contributions to the organization; members and participants in its activities have been vilified and subjected to public shame, disgrace, ridicule and obloquy, thereby inflicting upon them economic injury and discouraging participation in its activities; it has been hampered in securing meeting places; and many people have refused to take part in its fund-raising activities," (equivalent allegations might be made in the event Southern Regional Council undertook to reimburse any of its officers for legal fees and expenses incurred in any libel suit brought by such officer or employee.)

This suit involved not only the Joint Anti-Fascist Refugee Committee but also the National Council of American-Soviet Friendship, Inc., and the International Workers Order, Inc., each of which were non-profit organizations.

We also find that the Americans for Democratic Action, a non-profit organization, was granted relief in a libel suit in its case hereinabove cited supra.

In view of the foregoing, while there is no case directly raising the point whether a non-profit organization may file suit for slander or libel, the writer is of the opinion that when the point is raised that the courts will decide that such anaction will lie for the reason, as stated by Mr. Justice Burton, in the Joint Anti-Fascist Refugee Committee case that each organization has a common law right to be free from defamation.

Respectfully submitted.

The Southern Conference for Human Welfare is an organization which seeks to attract southern liberals on the basis of its seeming interest in the problems of the South. In the early history of the organization, some well-intentioned persons were misled into joining. Many of them have since severed their connections on learning its true character.

Careful examination of its official publication and its activities will disclose that the conference actually is being used in devious ways to further basic Soviet and Communist policy. Decisive and key posts are in most instances controlled by persons whose record is faithful to the line of the Communist Party and the Soviet Union.

Origin

In reporting to its constituents, the conference is extraordinarily vague as to the exact origin of the organization. "It was born in the hearts and minds of a large group of devoted southerners known as the Southern Policy Committee." No names are given. This nondescript group met several times early in 1938 in Birmingham, Ala. "Several other persons were asked to attend a meeting on July 21, and the idea of a Southern Conference was presented to them." The report does not say who presented the idea or who was present. "The persons present voted themselves in as sponsors and members of the arrangements committee" and subsequently a permanent organization meeting was called at Birmingham on September 6, 1938. (Report of the Proceedings of the Southern Conference for Human Welfare, November 22, 23, 1938, pp. 3 and 4.) Its claim to represent any significant proportion of southern opinion is, therefore, entirely self-assumed.

While the conference has succeeded in confusing certain elements in the North by its pretensions, representative southerners harbor no illusions as to its real character. The Democratic Women's Club, of Alabama, an organization of long standing in the South, publicly demanded the disclosure of the names of the initiators of the conference, who provided the necessary finances and who appointed the delegates. They charged that the conference was of "questionable origin and purpose" (Birmingham News, November 25, 1938).

In their own inner circles the Communists were not nearly so reticent in claiming responsibility for the Southern Conference for Human Welfare. In his article in the Communist of January 1939, official monthly organ of the Communist Party, Robert Fowler Hall, then secretary of the Communist Party, of Alabama, and speaker at the April 1940 session of the conference, reveals the moves behind the scenes. Referring to an earlier speech of Earl Browder, at that time general secretary of the Communist Party, Mr. Hall wrote:

> Comrade Browder's remarks thus anticipated the Southern Conference for Human Welfare, held in Birmingham, November 20–23 * * *. Let us estimate the Southern Conference in the light of Comrade Browder's remarks at the tenth convention of the Communist Party * * *. In this sense, we can say that the Southern Conference was a brilliant confirmation of the line of the democratic front advanced by Comrade Browder at the tenth convention * * *. Our comrades * * * naturally watched the conference preparations closely and helped wherever possible * * *. Southern State organizations of the Communist Party were represented at the conference by five southern Communist delegates. Our party contributed in a modest but constructive manner to the success of the conference * * *. In strengthening this movement, our party has before it a great task. On this basis, our party can and must proceed to recruit from the progressive ranks many hundreds of members (pp. 57, 60, 61, and 65).

In other words, the Communists were using the conference as a specific application of the so-called popular-front policy in the South. This line had been adopted by the Communist International at its seventh congress in Moscow in 1935 and was being applied by the Communist Parties throughout the world prior to the signing of the Stalin-Hitler pact. The honest liberals drawn into the conference were merely the most convenient guinea pigs.

While the Communist Party as such boasted of few delegates, it must be remembered that the bulk of the Communist supporters came from front organizations under their control, which participated in the conference. This was ultimately proven by test votes on various controversial issues.

Communist Party writers made every effort to emphasize the significance of the Conference for Human Welfare. Robert F. Hall, who today is Washington correspondent for the Daily Worker, called it a "representative of the new forces" in the South, working for the "development of a powerful movement of the southern masses for peace, democratic rights, and security" (Communist, August 1940, pp. 690 to 702). Thus the conference supplemented the activity of the American League for Peace and Democracy, the chief Communist front during this period.

James W. Ford, Negro Communist candidate for Vice President, speaking of the Southern Conference for Human Welfare and the Southern Negro Youth Conference, declared, with considerable pride that—

> The Communists, through their pioneering work in the South, may justly claim to have laid the foundation for these great social movements (Communist, September 1938, p. 828).

In a radio address delivered on November 27, 1938, over Station WOL, Earl Browder expressed the opinion that the Southern Conference for Human Welfare was one of the signs of the awakening of the American people. In a public hearing before the Special Committee on Un-American Activities he identified it as one of his party's "transmission belts."

Evidence before our committee indicates that the central committee of the Communist Party was intimately concerned with the affairs of the conference from its very inception. William Weiner, former treasurer of the Communist Party, testified that a subsidy of $2,000 had been paid to the Communist Party of Alabama in 1938, when the Southern Conference for Human Welfare was founded, that this conference had been discussed with Robert F. Hall, when he was in New York, and that it had also been discussed by the central committee of the Communist Party. Mr. Browder publicly admitted that the Communist Party had "suffered great hardships to maintain the growing southern movement."

COMMUNIST MANIPULATION

Not only do the Communists claim the conference as their own product, but they even disclose how they pulled the strings. Mr.

Hall, apparently the chief moving spirit, points out that the main work of the conference was carried out through sections or panels and that resolutions adopted in the panels were usually adopted by the conference as a whole (Communist, January 1939, p. 58). Here is how this plan actually operated.

A resolution on education was presented by Paul Crouch for the Communist Party of Alabama and unanimously adopted (Daily Worker, November 22, 1938, p. 6). Crouch was a member of the editorial staff of the Southern Worker, official organ of the Communist Party in the South. Associated with him on this board were Robert F. Hall and Ted Wellman, Communist Party State secretary for Tennessee. Crouch was convicted for treasonable activities within the armed forces of the United States in Hawaii on June 8, 1925. He subsequently made a pilgrimage to Moscow where he paraded in a Red Army uniform (Daily Worker, May 1, 1928, p. 5).

Members of the resolutions committee of the November 20-23, 1938, conference were:

Chairman, Clyde M. Mills, Georgia
Prentiss M. Terry, Alabama
William Mitch, Alabama
George Googe, Georgia
R. R. Moore, Alabama
Lucy Randolph Mason, Virginia
Father Rambouts, Louisiana
Donald Comer, Alabama
Stanton E. Smith, Tennessee
Virginia Henry Mayfield, Alabama
Dr. Arthur Raper, Georgia
Myles Horton, Tennessee
Roy Lawrence, North Carolina
Julia F. Allen, Kentucky
Barry Bingham, Kentucky
Elizabeth Hawes, South Carolina
W. C. Kelley, Florida
Edwin A. Elliott, Texas
F. D. Patterson, Alabama
Leonard Logan, Oklahoma
Mrs. D. D. Terry, Arkansas
George McLean, Mississippi

There is no record in the proceedings or elsewhere of their opposition to the activities within the conference of such outstanding Communists as Paul Crouch, Robert F. Hall, Ted Wellman, John P. Davis, and Edward E. Strong. The committee adopted the following Communist Party line resolutions: Demand for the release of the Scottsboro boys, endorsement of the Communist-dominated Congress of Mexican and Spanish-American Peoples, and condemnation of the Dies Committee.

Joseph Gelders was active in the conference's committee on plans for a permanent organization. Representing the Southern Conference for Human Welfare, Gelders was also the secretary of the strategy committee in the campaign for the Geyer anti-poll-tax bill. He was formerly secretary of the National Committee for Defense of Political Prisoners, which has been cited as subversive by Attorney General Biddle. Gelders personally accompanied Earl Browder on a visit to the Scottsboro boys (convicted of rape in Alabama) (Daily Worker, September 15, 1936, p. 3). He raised his voice in protest against the arrest of Communists in Chattanooga (Daily Worker, April 6, 1938, p. 3). He was also leader of a lobby for the American Peace Mobilization which conducted a picket line about the White House and denounced President Roosevelt as a "war-monger" (Sunday Worker, September 8, 1940, p. 3).

John P. Davis, identified as a leading member of the Communist Party by testimony before our committee and former secretary of the National Negro Congress, cited as a subversive organization by the Attorney General, was a leading speaker in the panel on constitutional rights of the first conference in 1938 and the 500 delegates applauded his report. He was also vice president of the conference (Daily Worker, November 22, 1938, p. 6; April 17, 1940, p. 4).

Yelverton Cowherd, signer of a resolution against the Dies committee in 1939, who appeared before the La Follette committee in 1937 to defend the case of Joseph Gelders, was a member of the nominating committee at the first conference, according to its official proceedings.

Edward E. Strong, described by James W. Ford, Communist Vice Presidential candidate, as "a coming leader of the Negro people," present secretary of the National Negro Congress, contributor to the Communist youth magazine, The Champion, and signer of a statement in March 1941 defending the Communist Party, was a prominent speaker in the panel on youth problems in the 1938 conference, together with Howard Lee, attorney for Oscar Wheeler, Communist candidate for Governor of West Virginia. Strong was elected a member of the executive committee of the Council of Young Southerners, described on its letterhead as having "its origin at the Youth Commission of the Southern Conference for Human Welfare." He has been cited as a member of the "special branch" of the Young Communist League.

Dr. Herman C. Nixon was elected executive secretary of the Southern Conference for Human Welfare in 1938. He had been forced out of Tulane University for his social views. He had been cochairman of the Citizens Committee to Investigate Vigilantism in Gadsden, Ala., an offshoot of the International Labor Defense, and a member of the National Committee for People's Rights and the provisional committee of the National Conference on Constitutional Liberties. The International Labor Defense, as well as the last two committees named, have been cited as subversive by the Attorney General. Nixon's book Forty Acres and Steel Mules, has been highly praised by Robert F. Hall, then Communist secretary for Alabama, in the New South of February 1939 (p. 10).

Two known Communist Party members who have supported the conference in recent years are Don West, poet and professor; Langston Hughes, writer. Paul Robeson, who has frequently defended the Communist Party and attended its meetings, voiced an appeal for the release of Earl Browder at the conference's meeting in 1942. His appeal was echoed by Frank P. Graham in a statement sent to the President.

JAMES DOMBROWSKI

At the April 1942 sessions of the Southern Conference for Human Welfare, James Dombrowski was elected executive secretary. He was the signer of a statement defending the Communist Party in March 1941 and a speaker for the National Conference for Constitutional Liberties in 1940. The latter organization has been cited as subversive by the Attorney General.

Dombrowski, together with Myles Horton, a member of the present board of representatives of the conference, helped launch a joint Socialist-Communist united-front movement in the South in 1935. As Socialist Party leaders in Tennessee, the two men endorsed a united-front plan of action which included campaigns against the AAA and for a "rank and file" movement in the American Federation of Labor (Chattanooga Times, January 28, 1935, p. 5). They have both been charged with operating as stooges for the Communist Party within Socialist circles.

A clue to Dombrowski's political views is given in his book, The Early Days of Christian Socialism in America (1936). Dombrowski asserts that the Rev. George D. Herron, whom he considers "by far the most able man" in the early days of the Christian Socialist movement, pointed out in the last decade of the nineteenth century:

> . . . that class lines were becoming more sharply defined, that the logic of the inherent contradictions within capitalism was leading inevitably to more and more concentration of wealth, to the enrichment of the few at the expense of the masses (p. 30).

Dombrowski goes on to defend Herron's views on violence. Herron, he says:

> . . . did not think that violence was inimical to a religious approach to social change. Peace at the expense of justice was not a religious solution to social problems. And resorting to his social interpretation of the cross, according to which all moral progress is made at the expense of suffering and sacrifice, he looked upon a revolution by violence, provided it promised a more just society, as a possible technique for social change worthy of the sanction of religion (p. 193).
> In his acceptance of the fact of the class struggle went the implicit recognition of the necessity for coercion (p. 192).

Frank P. Graham, head of the University of North Carolina, was the first chairman of the Southern Conference for Human Welfare and today remains as its honorary president. He is not a Communist and no doubt on occasion has had some differences with the Communist Party. He is, however, one of those liberals who show a predilection for affiliation to various Communist-inspired front organizations.

Graham urged freedom for Earl Browder and served as sponsor for a dinner which the publication, Soviet Russia Today, held to celebrate the 25th anniversary of the Red Army. He also was associated with the International Labor Defense, legal arm of the Communist Party; American League for Peace and Democracy; American Committee for Protection of Foreign Born; American Committee for Democracy and Intellectual Freedom; American Friends of Spanish Democracy; China Aid Council; China Aid Council of the American League for Peace and Democracy; Committee for Boycott Against Japanese Aggression; Conference to Lift the Embargo; Coordinating Committee to Lift the Embargo; Medical Bureau; and North American Committee to Aid Spanish Democracy.

OTHER OFFICERS

The roster of conference officers for 1947–48 shows that pro-Communists and fellow travelers still hold the reins of the organization. James Dombrowski continues to occupy his same key position under the new title of administrator. Serving as his associate and also as editor of the conference organ, the Southern Patriot, is Frank C. Bancroft, who has a lengthy record of Communist Party front activity.

Bancroft defended the Communist Party on March 5, 1941, and April 26, 1947, and also defended Sam Darcy, a Communist Party candidate for Governor of California, who was convicted of perjury. Bancroft signed an open letter calling for closer cooperation with the Soviet Union and held the responsible post of managing editor with Social Work Today, a publication which promulgated Communist propaganda among social workers.

His other Communist front associations include the American Peace Mobilization, which picketed the White House during the Stalin-Hitler pact; the National Federation for Constitutional Liberties, which defended Communist cases; the American Committee for Democracy and Intellectual Freedom, which defended Communist teachers; People's Institute of Applied Religion, headed by Claude C. Williams, a Communist Party member; and the Social Workers Committee for Russian War Relief.

Rounding out the administrative staff of the conference is Mrs. Edmonia Grant, also an associate to Dombrowski. A member of the conference since its inception, she defended the Communist Party on April 26, 1947, and supported the front organization, National Negro Congress.

CLARK HOWELL FOREMAN

Clark Howell Foreman, president of the Southern Conference for Human Welfare, has no open affiliation with the Communist Party. He has frequently denied any such affiliations or connections. He has been most successful in confusing the people as to the Communist-front character of the Southern Conference for Human Welfare.

Foreman has written a book entitled "The New Internationalism" in which his understanding of the international Communist movement and his sympathies with it are reflected on almost every page. The book displays marked contempt for European democratic Socialists and reformists, who are equivalent in this country to liberals who prefer democratic rather than revolutionary methods. Foreman does not hesitate, however, to exploit and deceive such liberals to the limit in the Southern Conference for Human Welfare. And although he ventures certain mild criticisms of Soviet policy, he has not recently expressed any such strictures toward either the Soviet Government or the American Communists.

We cite certain passages from Foreman's book to illustrate his views:

> Karl Marx arose as the great philosopher for the laboring man (p. 26).
> Lenin correctly described the Russian bourgeoisie as the weakest link in the capitalist chain (p. 44).

After showing the break-down of capitalist internationalism, Foreman quotes G. M. Stekloff, well-known Russian Communist writer, as follows:

> But whereas the internationalism of the bourgeoisie is continually frustrated by the mutual competition of national capitalism, the internationalism of the proletariat is nourished and strengthened by the active solidarity of the interests of all the workers, regardless of their dwelling place or nationality (p. 74).
> * * * The Paris Commune stands next to the Russian revolution as an achievement of the Socialist theory (p. 77).

Criticizing the reformist Socialist leaders, Foreman quotes J. Lenz, a leading Communist writer:

> The overwhelming majority of the party and trade-union leaders drew from the experiences of the Russian revolution the opposite conclusion—that of retreat from decisive conflicts with the class enemy, of avoiding struggles which demanded sacrifice as the struggles in Russia had done, of adaptation to the bourgeois order of society, of limiting the movement to parliamentary methods of struggle (p. 79).

In an appeal to the Socialists of all countries, the Petrograd Soviet said: "This war is a monstrous crime on the part of the imperialists of all countries who, by their lust for annexations, by their mad race for armaments, have prepared and made inevitable the world conflagration" (p. 83).

The militant leaders of the Marxian bolsheviks, under the cry of "Peace, Bread, and Land," appealed to the popular desires of the masses (p. 84).

To all the colonial and semicolonial peoples, however, Russia's successful break from the capitalist system was a great inspiration (p. 88).

* * * the more powerful Stalin had banished Trotsky and his friends and had eloquently announced to the world his Five-Year Plan of industrialization (p. 90).

Internally, the Russians, despite their liberality to the minorities in the U. S. S. R., were almost inevitably bound to consider their success in nationalist terms (p. 90).

With such a set-up it is patent that the U. S. S. R. is potentially capable of being both self-sufficient in case of war and prosperous in times of peace (p. 139).

Foreman is associated with the Progressive Citizens of America, an allegedly liberal organization which believes in cooperating with Communists. He has also been affiliated with the following Communist-front groups: The Win-the-Peace Conference; the Washington Committee for Democratic Action, which defended Communist cases before the United States Civil Service Commission; and the National Citizens Political Action Committee.

Foreign Policy

The most conclusive proof of the Communist domination of the Southern Conference for Human Welfare is to be found in the organization's strict and unvarying conformance to the line of the Communist Party in the field of foreign policy. It is also a clear indication of the fact that the real purpose of the organization was not "human welfare" in the South, but rather to serve as a convenient vehicle in support of the current Communist Party line.

In 1938, when the Communist Party was advocating collective security of the democracies against the Fascist aggressors, a letter of greeting from President Roosevelt brought 2,000 conference delegates to their feet cheering (Daily Worker, November 22, 1938, p. 1). The conference voted to endorse—

* * * an American peace policy, such as proposed by President Roosevelt and Secretary of State Hull, to promote the national security of our country, to curb aggression and assist the democratic peoples of the world to preserve peace, liberty, and freedom.

The change of the Communist line resulting from the signing of the Stalin-Hitler pact invoked a bitter struggle in the Southern Conference for Human Welfare at its meeting in April 1940. Robert F. Hall, secretary of the Communist Party of Alabama, acting as the Communist whip, presented an eight-point program which demanded "an uncompromising peace policy." The liberals led by Frank P. Graham and W. R. Couch, of the University of North Carolina, supported the policy of the Roosevelt administration. At one stage in the battle there was a threat of fisticuffs. But the liberals were no match for the Communist steam roller, which castigated them with the high crime of being "anti-Soviet." The thousand delegates denounced war and "pro-Allied propaganda," as threatening America with war. They declared themselves "unalterably opposed to loans to the Allies and other belligerents" and denounced war appropriations "at the expense of the welfare of the American people at home." The only consolation which the liberals salvaged from the fracas was a mild resolution condemning aggression by "Nazis, Communists, or imperialists." The Communists could grant their opponents this convenient sop since in their eyes the Soviet invasion of Finland and Poland was not aggression but liberation (Daily Worker, April 17, 1940, p. 4).

The rift between the Communists and the liberals was quickly healed as soon as Hitler invaded the Soviet fatherland and the Communists suddenly relinquished their "unalterable" opposition to the war. Wholehearted agreement marked the sessions of the conference held on April 19, 20, 21, 1942 devoted to "the South's part in winning the war for democracy." The convention demanded that all "join in a great offensive now, to work, to produce, to sacrifice, to win" (Daily Worker, April 23, 1942, p. 3).

With the end of World War II, the attitude of the conference on foreign policy veered once more in line with the new policy of the Communist Party. A resolution supported by the Southern Conference for Human Welfare and several other organizations, in April 1947, declared:

> Monopoly corporations' profits are draining dry the Nation's purchasing power; and this lust for profits is not only threatening our Nation with early economic disaster but is leading, behind the smoke screen of the false issue of communism, to imperialist adventures and more profit hunting abroad, and may yet pile a war on our heads as well as an economic depression (Daily Worker, May 6, 1947, p. 5).

Eugene Dennis, general secretary of the Communist Party in America, voiced exactly the same idea in his pamphlet, What America Faces, March 1946 (p. 14):

> * * * we are witnessing how the monopolists and their reactionary congressional coalition, aided by the administration, are reconverting. Theirs is a reconversion * * * as they hope, to union busting and the open shop, to soaring profits and prices and sinking wages and living standards, to aggression upon the democratic rights of the people here and upon the democracies abroad; theirs is a reconversion which, if they are permitted to pursue their course, is the road to the Hoover years of the great crisis, and to a new world war as the "way out" of capitalist crisis.

The new Communist Party doctrine is critical of any American "interference" in foreign politics but entirely favorable toward Russian expansionism. The conference organ, the Southern Patriot, clings closely to this line in its April 1946 issue. It quotes a leading conference spokesman as saying:

> * * * It was easy to gang up on the Russians * * * while the Czars were fighting the people of the country with their perfidious policies and police. It was easy to gang up on the Russians during the days of the Russian revolution. It has been easy for the rest of us to gang up ever since. I do not want to be a party to such a process (p. 3).
> * * * It comes with ill grace from certain world powers whose troops are stationed in every nation from Egypt to Singapore to make a world conflagration out of the movement of a few troops a few miles into a neighboring territory to resist an oil monopoly which they enjoy. And if American foreign policy is made the scapegoat for such imperialism it is more stupid than I thought it possible for it to be * * * (p. 5).
> * * * Before us then is the choice, war or peace, poverty or plenty, hopelessness or hope. If this decision were left to a free choice of the people of America, to the people of the Big Three, to the Russians whose faces are wreathed in smiles and friendship when one said "Amerikanski" to them, I know what the decision would be (p. 5).

The Southern Patriot editor suggested that readers could get full copies of this "strong and brilliant" appeal from the National Council for American-Soviet Friendship and went on to recommend the council's biweekly propaganda sheet, Reporter on American Soviet Relations, as presenting "many facts not often available in the daily press."

President Truman's foreign policy in Greece and Turkey came in for abuse at the annual meeting of the conference's Washington committee in Washington, D. C., on April 7, 1947.

J. Raymond Walsh, a "frank apologist for the Communist line" according to Prof. John H. Childs of Columbia University, speaking for the Southern Conference in Washington, flayed President Truman's foreign policy in Greece and Turkey.

Insisting that America is a "radical nation," Walsh called upon the members to "defy fear and defy the forces who made the empty tables here tonight." "Some were afraid to come," he admitted.

Entertainer at the Washington meeting was Susan Reed, employed by Cafe Society, a night club owned by Barney Josephson, brother of Leon Josephson, leading Communist, Soviet Secret Service operative, charged with passport frauds. Mrs. Leon Josephson also owns an interest in this enterprise. Barney Josephson has been a supporter of the New York branch of the Southern Conference.

Conference President Clark Foreman, as toastmaster at the Washington meeting, denied that "anyone is afraid of communism."

The Washington committee of the conference obtained Henry Wallace, foremost critic of President Truman's foreign policy, for a public speech in the Nation's Capital, June 16, 1947. The committee scheduled on the same program, Zero Mostel, a favorite entertainer at Communist affairs and member of the American Youth for Democracy, formerly the Young Communist League.

The Washington committee's executive secretary is Robert Ware Straus, information director for the Office of Emergency Management who tried to get an OEM job for Ruth McKenney, well-known writer for the Communist publications, the Daily Worker and New Masses. Sponsors of the Washington group include Morris and Samuel Rodman, brothers associated with the pro-Communist Metropolitan Broadcasting Co.; and Mrs. Gifford Pinchot, a delegate to the Communist-controlled Women's International Democratic Federation in Paris in 1945.

At the South-wide fourth biennial convention of the Southern Conference for Human Welfare, held in New Orleans, November 28–30, 1946, the chief speaker devoted most of his talk to a defense of Russia as a "misunderstood" government which will continue to remain at peace with the United States (Washington Daily News, November 29, 1946, p. 3, and New York Daily Worker, November 30, 1946, p. 4).

In January of that year, the Southern Patriot listed a Senator who calls for a strong Germany as one of the "representatives of the South in Congress, whose abandonment of the program the people voted for in 1944 should be remembered by their constituents when they come up for reelection" (p. 7). This position is in line with the discredited Morgenthau plan which has received enthusiastic Communist support.

The stand of the Southern Conference for Human Welfare on various other issues in which the Communist Party has been primarily concerned, serves to clinch the charge that the organization is merely a pliable instrument in the hands of pro-Communist wirepullers behind the scenes.

Public record fails to reveal that the conference has ever officially denounced communism or opposed Soviet policies.

The chairman of the committee for Virginia, Mr. Henry H. Fowler,[8] after seeing the preliminary press announcement of the committee's report, requested the committee to include by any mention of his name in the report, a notation that he had resigned from all affiliations with the southern conference as of April 15, 1947, after a membership of 1 year. His letter of resignation was duly acknowledged on April 28, 1947, by James A. Dombrowski, administrator. The reason he assigned for his resignation was stated in his letter as follows:

> The decisive factor in my present decision is the absence in the southern conference of any clear and positive stand against communism and the inclusion of Communists in the working organization and the unwillingness of my own State committee to initiate steps which would require a facing of this issue.

Elsewhere in his letter of resignation it appears that the State committee had rejected a resolution proposed by Mr. Fowler which expressed opposition to totalitarianism, be it Fascist or Communist, and would require each applicant for membership to assert by written pledge that he or she was—> not a member of the Communist Party, or the Ku Klux Klan, or any other group or organization which to his knowledge, is opposed to the purposes and ideals of the organization as stated in this pledge.

Joint Activity With Communist Fronts

The Southern Conference for Human Welfare has further revealed itself as a Communist front organization by its cooperation with other Communist-dominated front groups.

Among these groups following the lead of the Communist Party in support of the Southern Conference for Human Welfare are the University of Virginia Chapter of the American Student Union (Student Almanac, p. 44), International Labor Defense (Yearbook 1939–41, p. 25), New South (October 1938, p. 15), Workers Alliance (Daily Worker, November 21, 1938, p. 1), Labor Research Association (pamphlet, Southern Labor in Wartime, p. 22) and the American Federation of Teachers at that time under Communist control (American Teacher, December 1938, p. 7).

In recent years, cooperation has also come from these Communist-controlled organizations: National Federation for Constitutional Liberties (April 4, 1946); United Office and Professional Workers of America, CIO (April 4, 1946); International Workers Order (February 1, 1947); League of Women Shoppers (September 8, 1946); United Public Workers of America, CIO (February 1, 1947); United Negro and Allied Veterans (September 8, 1946).

Samuel Neuburger, attorney for the Communist Party and for Leon Josephson, Soviet Secret Service operative charged with passport frauds, was one of the chief speakers at a mass meeting sponsored in Washington, D. C., April 4, 1946, by the local organizations of the Southern Conference, National Federation for Constitutional Liberties, and United Office and Professional Workers of America.

The president of the Southern Conference for Human Welfare (Clark H. Foreman) was a member of the initiating committee of the [8] Referred to on p. 1.

Congress on Civil Rights, which met in Detroit, April 27–28, 1946, and which is now defending Gerhart Eisler, Comintern agent.

When the New York committee of the Southern Conference for Human Welfare held a 3-day street collection called Lend a Hand to Dixie Land September 19–21, 1946, the Communist-controlled American Labor Party of New York announced that its Bronx County clubs would hold street rallies in support of the drive. (Daily Worker, September 21, 1946, p. 5.)

The Daily Worker of May 27, 1947, publicized with approval the stand taken on southern issues by the Southern Conference for Human Welfare, the New Jersey State secretariat of the Communist Party, Civil Rights Congress, and the Progressive Citizens of America. Activities of the Southern Conference are generally featured prominently in the Daily Worker.

It is also interesting that funds totaling $1,500 were received by the conference in 1942 from the Robert Marshall Foundation—an organization which has donated heavily to the support of Communist front groups.

The Southern Patriot gives publicity to activities of such other front organizations as the Southern Negro Youth Congress and the National Committee to Abolish the Poll Tax.

In June 1947 the conference organ also urged readers to demand local radio station outlets for a new weekly union radio broadcast, sponsored by the Communist-controlled United Electrical, Radio, and Machine Workers of America, CIO (p. 7).

Other publications recommended to Southern Patriot readers significantly include Facts and Fascism, by George Seldes, who edits the pro-Communist gossip and scandal sheet known as In Fact. Seldes' views have received high commendation from the Soviet press.

The Southern Patriot editor also has offered as reading suggestions: We Have Seen America, a collection of addresses by three Soviet journalists who toured America and bitterly criticized it, appropriately published by the National Council of American-Soviet Friendship; The Races of Mankind, a eulogy of Russia's treatment of minority groups that was condemned by the War Department; All Brave Sailors, a eulogy of the leftist National Maritime Union, written by John Beecher; and How Is Your Health? published by the Physicians Forum, a Communist front.

The conference publication in addition has defended the book, Our Good Neighbors in Soviet Russia, which was taken off the Texas school textbook list because of its pro-Soviet bias. The Southern Patriot has printed quotations from War Department orientation fact sheet No. 64—a fact sheet so suited to the Communist cause that the International Labor Defense, legal arm of the Communist Party, had it reprinted. The War Department subsequently withdrew this pamphlet from circulation.

Negroes

In allying themselves with the Communists and in permitting the Communists to control policy and strategic positions, the non-Communists in the Southern Conference for Human Welfare are wittingly or unwittingly promoting the following fundamental principles of the Communist Party in dealing with the Negro question:

1. The Communists are not interested in the long-range welfare of the Negro. They are interested rather in using the issue as explosive and revolutionary tinder in destroying American democracy.

2. They have placed themselves on record as favoring an independent Negro Soviet Republic in the southern Black Belt which in essence is a call to civil war in which the Negro population would be the unhappy victims and in which all their social gains made in recent years would be sacrificed.

Denounced by Southerners

The pro-Communist bias of the Southern Conference for Human Welfare has been publicly attacked on several occasions. This committee formally cited the organization as a Communist front on March 29, 1944.

CIO leaders in April 1946 renounced the aid of the Southern Conference for Human Welfare in the union's southern organizational campaign, declaring: "No crowd, whether Communist, Socialists, or anybody else, is going to mix up in this organizing drive" (Baltimore Sun, April 19, 1946, p. 17).

The Daily Worker quickly sprang to the defense of the conference and denounced the CIO for a "red baiting" attack (Daily Worker, April 20, 1946, p. 5).

The Young Men's Business Club of New Orleans adopted the following resolution on November 14, 1946:

> Be it resolved, That the Young Men's Business Club of New Orleans go on record as being opposed to the activities of the organization known as the Southern Conference for Human Welfare, that the press and city officials be notified that many of the national officers of this group have definite communistic tendencies * * *.

Interlocking With Communist Causes

One could reasonably conceive of a group of individuals motivated by a desire to form an organization to promote human welfare in the South and with no trace of Communist sympathy or affiliation. One could even conceive of a group of well-intentioned but non-Communist individuals being enticed by camouflaged Communists into an enterprise strictly limited to this humanitarian cause. In the light of the fact that a significant number of the leading lights of the Southern Conference for Human Welfare are associated with organizations or campaigns for the defense of the Communist Party or individual Communists, or with organizations defending the Soviet Union, or its policies—issues which have nothing to do with the South—one is forced to the conclusion that, by and large, the common bond among its supporters is a certain degree of sympathy for the Soviet Union and/or the Communist Party, rather than any primary interest in human welfare in the South. One is further forced to conclude that the professed interest in southern welfare is simply an expedient for larger aims serving the Soviet Union and its subservient Communist Party in the United States.

Conclusion

The Southern Conference for Human Welfare is perhaps the most deviously camouflaged Communist-front organization. When put to the following acid test it reveals its true character:

1. It shows unswerving loyalty to the basic principles of Soviet foreign policy.
2. It has consistently refused to take sharp issue with the activities and policies of either the Communist Party, USA, or the Soviet Union.
3. It has maintained in decisive posts persons who have the confidence of the Communist press.
4. It has displayed consistent anti-American bias and pro-Soviet bias, despite professions, in generalities, of love for America.

NEW YORK, Oct. 26 (AP) —Arthur H. Dean, former United States ambassador to Korea, said today he has resigned as a director of the Fund for the Republic for "policy reasons."

Asked if this meant he was quitting because of the organization's policies, Dean said, "yes." He declined to go into details.

The fund, an independent foundation set up to promote the principles of the Constitution, Bill of Rights and Declaration of Independence, has been accused by some groups of left-wing activities.

Dean, a corporation lawyer and head of the United Nations truce team that negotiated the peace terms in Korea, said he resigned September 27 as a member of the fund's 16-member board of directors.

Disclosure of the Southern Regional Council's heavily pro-Communist tinge is the latest blow at leftwing activities of the Fund for the Republic.

Earlier, the Fund came under strong anti-Communist attack for its allegedly slanted bibliography on communism in the United States; its employment of Earl Browder, former secretary of the American Communist Party, as a "paid informant"; and employment of Amos Landman as publicity man, three weeks after he took the 5th Amendment when asked if he ever was a Communist.

Do-Gooders Stirring Bloodshed

In the 1850s, before the Civil War, Northern do-gooders gave money to stir racial strife in the South. John Brown's murderous raid at Harper's Ferry, Va., for example, was financed by supposedly responsible people. Among the notable contributors was Gov. Salmon P. Chase of Ohio. Later he was chief justice of the United States.

Brown bought guns and pikes to arm a slave rebellion. His men seized a federal arsenal. The bewildered Negroes didn't rebel. But Brown's fanatics did some shooting anyway. Their first victim was a free Negro. He failed to halt on orders and stopped a bullet.

Wendell Phillips, New England orator, declared the State of Virginia a pirate and called John Brown a lord high admiral commissioned to sink every pirate. Ralph Waldo Emerson, the poet and philosopher, compared the "glorious" scaffold on which John Brown was hanged to the cross at Calvary. The governor of Virginia announced that any further invasions from other states would be met with armed reprisals. Meanwhile—it was 1859—federal troops kept order in "Bloody Kansas."

Today Northern do-gooders again are pouring money into organizations to goad the South. One of these is the Fund for the Republic. It has just donated an additional $150,000 to the Southern Regional Council, which is dedicated to break down separation of the races in the South. It is time that donors of money take responsibility for their beneficiaries. Money is power.

While slavery and secession no longer are issues, violence can take many forms. Already such incidents as the kidnaping of the Till boy in Mississippi are being blown up to inflame the public.

In Chicago a Negro policeman last week beat a 72-year-old man to death on the street. In Brooklyn, a judge sentenced three Negro members of a teenage gang to prison when they pleaded guilty to killing a rival youth. Meanwhile, another juvenile gang death was reported in the neighborhood as the toll of violence mounts.

Usually the race angle is omitted in the Northern press on crime news in its own backyards. Race is played up whenever a victim is a Negro in the South. Both white and colored Southerners know the tension is reduced and peace promoted by separation of the races. An unbiased review of the facts, both past and present, proves this contention.

My dear Mr. Walter:

A broadsheet lately issued by the Sumter County Citizens' Council, P. O. Drawer 429, Sumter, South Carolina, and issued over the printed names of F. E. Gibson, Chairman, Policy Committee and T. D. Keels, Chairman, Sumter County Citizens' Council, dated August 14, 1956, complains of a bi-racial meeting proposed to have been held in Sumter at some date in July. The broadsheet runs on: "This group styled themselves a 'Bi-racial' group, and appears to be connected with the South Carolina Council on Human Relations, which receives annual grants of approximately $12,000.00 from the Southern Regional Council. This morning I had a visit at 10:00 from one W. Jackson Jones, an investigator for the House UnAmerican Activities Committee.

Mr. Jones turned out to be a resident of Conyers, Georgia, whose father had been a County Rural Rehabilitation Supervisor for the Farm Security Administration in the New Deal days, (about Washington Georgia, Lincolnton), and who got through the University of Georgia in the study of law and took a job in 1949 with the House Committee on unAmerican Activities. Duly exhibited his credentials.

Said he was down here on another matter; that he was aware of the fact that there had been charges and counter charges anent the Southern Regional Council; and thought he would take this opportunity to come to the Council and learn more about it. Said we were not in any sense under investigation; that I, Mitchell, was not in any sense under investigation; that he was merely satisfying his curiosity and building up his general knowledge.

I explained to him the history of the Interracial Commission; Dr. Alexander; the efforts against lynching; the comparative complacency as to segregation; and the origin of the Southern Regional Council in 1942, 1943 and 1944; said it was chartered in Georgia; mentioned some of those who chartered it; spoke of our statement against segregation in 1951.

Two specific questions were as to when the Council was set up and as to where we got the money? Both were answered in reasonable detail.

He made reference to the memo which I, Mitchell, had filed with his Committee a year or so ago disclaiming any connection with an asserted George Mitchell by the House Committee on unAmerican Activities to have been an elector for the Communist Party for the State of Illinois in the year something or other; I forgot. And that he had concluded from the directness of my statements in that memo that he could converse with me freely as to the Southern Regional Council.

Said I would recognize a communist if I saw one. He said that he was anxious to ascertain if there had been any evidence in recent months of communist climbing aboard. I instanced the only two Board members we had ever had as to whom any accusations of communist affiliation had been leveled. Spoke of two plain members, Alice Burke and Charlie Smolikoff, who may have been communists and whose memberships lapsed when they ceased to renew their dues. Spoke of two wandering journalists who interviewed me a couple of months ago and subsequently wrote in that they were representing the Daily Worker. I told them that the Southern Regional Council had been set up by an entirely different stripe of people than those that had established the Southern Conference for Human Welfare; that it was established by those who did not like the Southern Conference for Human Welfare; but that frankly everybody thoughtful in the Southern states had been linked with the Southern Conference for Human Welfare in its early years, and it is only natural that some of them should have been on the Board of the Southern Regional Council.

Mr. Jones expressed himself as opposed to the too-ardent pressure of some groups in the present controversy. I judged that he was referring to the NAACP, and gave him a two-minute lecture on the utter Americanism of the NAACP. Whereupon at 11:20 Mr. Jones excused himself proposing, I believe, to visit Mr. McGill.

Mr . Jones subscribed to New South and bought for 50¢ a copy of Changing Patterns.

SUBJECT: Washington Book Shop

The public records, files and publications of this Committee contain the following information concerning the subject organization. This report should not be construed as representing the results of an investigation by or findings of this Committee. It should be noted that the organization is not necessarily Communist or Communist-front, nor should any individuals who may be mentioned herein be considered Communists, Communist Sympathizers, or fellow-travelers, unless otherwise indicated.

The Washington Book Shop, also known as the Washington Cooperative Book Shop and the Washington Book Shop Association, was first cited by the Attorney General of the United States as follows:

"The Washington Cooperative Book Shop, under the name, The Book Shop Association, was incorporated in the District of Columbia in 1938....It maintains a book shop and art gallery at 916 Seventeenth Street, N. W., Washington, D. C., where literature is sold and meetings and lectures held.

"Evidence of Communist penetration or control is reflected in the following: Among its stock the establishment has offered prominently for sale books and literature identified with the Communist Party and certain of its affiliates and front organizations....certain of the officers and employees of the book shop, including its manager and executive secretary, have been in close contact with local officials of the Communist Party of the District of Columbia." (Congressional Record, September 24, 1942, page 7688.)

The Washington Book Shop has also been cited as a Communist-front organization by the Special Committee on Un-American Activities in a report dated March 29, 1944 (page 150). It was again cited by the Attorney General in 1947 and 1948 as subversive and Communist (press releases of December 4, 1947 and September 21, 1948; redesignated April 27, 1953).

The most recent testimony concerning the Washington Book Shop is contained in the enclosed copy of this committee's Hearings Regarding Communism In the District of Columbia - Part 1 (June and July, 1949 - pages 717-732, 763 and 768).

On February 28, 1950, the Board of Trustees of the subject organization issued a printed letter which stated in part: "The Bookshop membership, present at a special meeting on February 22, unanimously approved a resolution presented by the Board of Trustees to close the Washington Cooperative Bookshop. This decisive measure was taken by the Board after months of discussion and deliberation. Financial difficulties made maintenance of the shop impossible. .....We are convinced that the need for such an organization remains -- and that the principles and the spirit upon which the Bookshop was founded will not dies."

A Statement Concerning the President's Recommendations on Immigration

EXTENSION OF REMARKS

OF

HON. FRANCIS E. WALTER

OF PENNSYLVANIA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Monday, February 4, 1957

Mr. WALTER. Mr. Speaker, if the President's recommendations were enacted into law, this country would admit over 200,000 people annually in excess of the number of immigrants which we receive at this time. Here is the breakdown of this figure:

The President wishes to admit escapees selected by the Secretary of State, the number of whom "should not exceed in any 1 year the average number of aliens who over the past 8 years have been permitted to enter the United States by special acts of Congress outside the basic immigration system."

Under 3 such laws, enacted in 1948, 1950, and 1953, respectively, this country has admitted outside the basic immigration quotas approximately 400,000 displaced persons and 200,000 refugees. This total of 600,000 represents an annual average of 75,000, which, under the President's recommendations, could be admitted each year as escapees over and above the present quota system.

Under another of the President's recommendations, an additional 65,000 quota immigrants would be admitted and, under still another of his recommendations, unused quota numbers would be available to countries which consistently fill their immigration quotas. Based on official statistical figures for fiscal years from 1952 to 1956, inclusive, this recommendation will produce an additional 60,000 immigrants annually.

Further, the canceling of the so-called "mortgage" on quotas would have the effect of admitting 8,000 immigrants annually. Thus, the total effect of the President's recommendations would be to increase the number of quota immigrants—75,000 plus 65,000 plus 60,000 plus 8,000—by 208,000 each year.

It is necessary to remember that our regular annual intake of immigrants now exceeds 200,000. Should the President's recommendations be enacted into law, our annual intake of immigrants would undoubtedly average well in excess of 500,000.

In view of the fact that 4 million Americans are brought into the world each year, I do not believe that this country's housing and educational facilities, institutions of health and welfare, and employment opportunities are sufficient to accommodate the additional number of those that would have to be integrated into our economy.

It is also important to remember that the President does not recommend any change in the system of our nonquota admission of immigrants. This means that the continuous influx of immigrants from Mexico—60,000 last year and 80,000 in the current year, approximately—would not be curtailed.

Regarding the President's recommendation under which the Attorney General, and not the Congress, would provide relief in immigration cases where the law does not offer solution in individual cases, my personal opinion is that the Congress should exercise its constitutional prerogative to redress grievances and that it is much more equitable to have the Congress weigh the merits involved in each individual case on a completely impartial basis than to have a politically appointed officer of the administration exercise the authority to grant or deny relief to individuals.

Many of the technical amendments to our immigration laws that the President recommends are already embodied in the bill, H. R. 4008, which I have introduced earlier this week.

As to the problem of Hungarian refugees, I do not wish to make any comment at this time, since my subcommittee is right now engaged in an extensive investigation of this matter. I expect it will be terminated shortly, permitting us to explore the matter fully in public hearings.

I am taking the liberty of sending to you, in your capacity of Chairman of the House Committee on Un-American Activities, the enclosed copy of a letter to State Senator W. M. Rainach of Louisiana.

It is our understanding that on occasion the House Committee on Un-American Activities incorporates into its files material developed by state legislative committees concerned with these matters. We thought that it would be both proper and desirable, therefore, for you to be alerted to the demonstrably false and irresponsible testimony discussed in the attached letter.

If this testimony or similar charges should at any time come within the purview of your Committee, we respectfully urge that you make your own determination of the facts. In this way, responsible and patriotic citizens will be spared needless injury, and your Committee will safeguard itself against victimization by an uninformed and unscrupulous accuser.

The Southern Regional Council will be glad at any time to cooperate in sober efforts to establish the truth of its origin, history, and activities.

Sincerely,

M. A. Wright
President

INFORMATION FROM THE FILES OF THE COMMITTEE ON UN-AMERICAN ACTIVITIES
U. S. HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

DATE: May 3, 1957

FOR: Honorable James C. Davis, M. C.

SUBJECT: B. R. Brazeal, Educator, Morehouse College, Atlanta, Georgia

The public records, files and publications of this Committee contain the following information concerning the subject individual. This report should not be construed as representing the results of an investigation by or findings of this Committee. It should be noted that the individual is not necessarily a Communist, a Communist sympathizer, or a fellow-traveler unless otherwise indicated.

Blailsford R. Brazeal, Chairman, Department of Economics, Morehouse College, Atlanta, Georgia, signed the January 1943 Message of the National Federation for Constitutional Liberties, addressed to the U. S. House of Representatives, as shown on a leaflet attached to an undated letterhead of the organization. Dr. B. R. Brazeal, Chairman, Economics Department, Morehouse College, Atlanta, Georgia, signed a statement of the National Federation . . ., supporting the War Department's order granting commissions to members of the armed forces who have been members of or sympathetic to the views of the Communist Party (undated leaflet entitled ". . . the only sound policy FOR A DEMOCRACY . . ."; also the Daily Worker of March 18, 1945).

The Attorney General of the United States cited the National Federation for Constitutional Liberties as an organization "by which Communists attempt to create sympathizers and supporters of their program"; and as subversive and Communist. (Congressional Record, September 24, 1942, page 7687; and press releases of December 4, 1947 and September 21, 1948; also included on consolidated list of April 1, 1954.) The Special Committee on Un-American Activities cited the National Federation . . . as "one of the viciously subversive organizations of the Communist Party" (Report of March 29, 1944; also cited in reports of June 25, 1942 and January 2, 1943). The Committee on Un-American Activities also cited the National Federation . . . as "actually intended to protect Communist subversion from any penalties under the law" (Report 1115 of September 2, 1947).

The Daily People's World of October 28, 1947 (page 4) named Brailsford R. Brazeal, Morehouse College, as one of the sponsors of the National Conference of the Civil Rights Congress which was held in Chicago November 21-23, 1947.

The Civil Rights Congress was cited as an organization formed in April 1946 as a merger of two other Communist-front organizations, the International Labor Defense and the National Federation for Constitutional Liberties; it is dedicated "specifically to the defense of Communists and the Communist Party" and "controlled by individuals who are either members of the Communist Party or openly loyal to it" (Report 1115 of the Committee on Un-American Activities dated September 2, 1947). The Attorney General cited the Congress as subversive and Communist (press releases of December 4, 1947 and September 21, 1948; also included on consolidated list released April 1, 1954).

Attorney General's list released in 1947.

Paul R. Christopher was one of those who signed the January 1943 message of the National Federation of Constitutional Liberties (C-1942; A-1947) to the House of Representatives, opposing renewal of the Dies Committee, according to a leaflet attached to an undated letterhead of that organization on file with this Committee.

An undated leaflet, "The South Is Closer Than You Think", published by the New York Office of the Southern Conference for Human Welfare (C-1944) and received by this Committee about February 1947 listed Paul R. Christopher as Vice President of the organization. A letterhead of the Southern Conference dated June 4, 1947 listed Paul R. Christopher as Vice President and a member of the National Committee of the group. Walter Steele testified in public hearings of this Committee, July 21, 1947, p. 139, that Paul R. Christopher was a member of the Board of representatives of the Southern Conference for Human Welfare. An official report of the group listed him as a consultant to the panel on Youth and Training: Civilian and Military.

The public records, files and publications of this Committee contain the following information concerning the subject individual. This report should not be construed as representing the results of an investigation by or findings of this Committee. It should be noted that the individual is not necessarily a Communist, a Communist sympathizer, or a fellow-traveler unless otherwise indicated.

Albert W. Dent, President, Omega Psi Phi Fraternity and Director, Flint Goodrich Hospital, "joined in calling" the Fourth All-Southern Negro Youth Conference of the Southern Negro Youth Congress which was held in New Orleans, April 18-21, 1940 ("Daily Worker," March 1, 1940).

The Southern Negro Youth Congress was cited as subversive and "among the affiliates and committees of the Communist Party, U.S.A., which seeks to alter the form of government of the United States by unconstitutional means" by the Attorney General of the United States in a letter to the Loyalty Review Board, released December 4, 1947. The organization was redesignated by the Attorney General April 27, 1953, pursuant to Executive Order No. 10450, and included on the April 1, 1954 consolidated list of organizations previously designated. The Special Committee on Un-American Activities, in its report of January 3, 1940 (p. 9), cited the Southern Negro Youth Congress as a Communist front organization. The Committee on Un-American Activities, in its report of April 17, 1947 (p. 14), cited the group as "surreptitiously controlled" by the Young Communist League.

A. W. Dent, Business Manager, Flint Goodrich Hospital, spoke before the Health Section of the conference held in Birmingham, Alabama, November 20-23, 1938, by the Southern Conference for Human Welfare, as shown on the printed program of that conference; the same source identified him as a member of the Southern Council of the Southern Conference for Human Welfare, from Louisiana. A. W. Dent, Business Manager, Flint Goodrich Hospital, New Orleans, Louisiana, was one of the sponsors of the Second Southern Conference for Human Welfare which was held in Chattanooga, Tennessee, April 14-16, 1940, as shown on the call to that conference. Identified as President, Dillard University, New Orleans, Louisiana, he was named by the "Daily Worker" of May 20, 1947 (p. 5) as having signed a statement of the Southern Conference . . . . An undated report of the same organization named him as a consultant on Panel III, Youth and Training, Civilian and Military, of a conference held by the group in Nashville, Tennessee; he was identified in this source as President, Dillard University, New Orleans, Louisiana.

The Special Committee on Un-American Activities, in its report of March 29, 1944 (p. 147), cited the Southern Conference for Human Welfare as a Communist front which received money from the Robert Marshall Foundation, one of the principal sources of funds by which many Communist fronts operate. The Committee on Un-American Activities, in its report of June 12, 1947, cited the Southern Conference . . . as a Communist-front organization "which seeks to attract southern liberals on the basis of its seeming interest in the problems of the South" although its "professed interest in southern welfare is simply an expedient for larger aims serving the Soviet Union and its subservient Communist Party in the United States."

One Charles G. Gomillion was secretary of the Advisory Board of the Southern Negro Youth Congress (C-1940; A-1947), as shown on their letterhead of June 12, 1947, and a page from the organization's leaflet, used as Exhibit 46 by Mr. Walter S. A letterhead of the organization, dated August 11, 1947, contained his name in a list of members of the Advisory Board.

The Daily Worker of August 23, 1948, p. 11, reported that Charles G. Gomillion, Tuskegee Institute, Alabama, signed a statement attacking the arrest of Communist Party leaders; he signed a "Statement by Negro Americans" on behalf of the Communist leaders who were arrested (The Worker, August 29, 1948, p. 11, in which source he was identified as being from Alabama). He also signed a statement on behalf of Eugene Dennis, one of the Communist leaders who were arrested (Daily Worker, November 22, 1948, p. 7, which source identified him with Tuskegee Institute in Alabama).

My dear Henry:

With further reference to your letter of April 22, I promptly requested the House Committee on un-American Activities to furnish me such information as the Committee has in its files regarding the persons comprising the Board of Directors of the Southern Regional Council, Inc.

Mr. Richard Arens, Director, has furnished me reports from the Committee files on 23 of the persons whose names are contained on this list. I enclose you herewith letters from Mr. Arens dated May 3 and May 9, forwarding these reports.

If I can be of further service to you, I will be pleased to have you call upon me.

With personal regards and all good wishes, I am

Sincerely yours,

Dear Candler:

In accordance with our telephone conversation, I am sending you the correspondence that I received from James C. Davis, together with the enclosures. In my opinion, we should discontinue renting to the Southern Regional Council, Inc.

An examination of the material sent indicates that so many of the persons on the Board were now or formerly have been connected with so many organizations which, though not Communist, are serving as fronts for Communist activities, that the Methodist Church can ill afford to have any connection with the organization officially.

Although I know that renting to them does not indicate endorsement of their program, nevertheless we would not rent to a liquor store. I am not judging the Southern Regional Council, but I am stating that in my opinion, based on this information, it is of such a controversial nature, that the Church can ill afford to be connected with it.

Please cast my vote to that effect at the meeting Monday and express my regrets at my inability to be present.

Yours with personal regards,

The Honorable Francis E. Walter
House Committee on Un-American Activities
House of Representatives
Washington, D. C.

My dear Mr. Walter:

This is a further note on the matter about which Mr. M. A. Wright, then president of this Council, wrote you on March 14, 1957. Mr. Wright called to your attention our protest of certain unfounded charges against the Council made during the hearings of the Louisiana legislative committee headed by State Senator William Rainach.

Recently these same charges have been revived and publicized in a newspaper series. Since this material has probably come routinely to the attention of the staff of the House Committee on Un-American Activities, we should like to reiterate its baselessness and to send the enclosure for your files. This editorial from the Richmond Times-Dispatch represents the informed conclusions of a conservative Southern newspaper which differs fundamentally from the Council's racial views but is at pains to distinguish fact from injurious fancy.

We shall appreciate your making this editorial a part of the Committee's files. And

I should like to repeat Mr. Wright's earlier assurance that we will gladly cooperate with the Committee in any effort to establish the facts about the Southern Regional Council's origin, history, or activities.

With appreciation for your attention to this matter, I am

Sincerely yours,

Harold C. Fleming
Executive Director

Dear Mr Dunbar:

The time has now come when it would be most helpful to have a supporting sponsoring group to the National Committee to Abolish the House Un-American Activities Committee (HUAC).

We are enclosing a list of 200 distinguished Americans who have already signified their desire to become sponsors.

We ask you to add your name to this list.

The National Committee to Abolish HUAC has been increasingly effective in its work. Our progress stems from the emphasis we have placed on building Congressional District Committees to mobilize citizen educational and political action.

In addition, we have encouraged informational work among students at colleges in all parts of the country regarding HUAC's anti-civil liberties record.

A score of courageous Congressmen, reflecting the mounting public opposition to HUAC, voted this year to cut off further appropriations for the Committee, - and several times their number have voiced criticism of HUAC.

Despite these expressions of popular and Congressional disapproval, in recent weeks we have again witnessed the discredited files of HUAC being dredged up in an effort to frighten and divide our fellow countrymen in this crucial period of civil rights debate.

On July 29th last, segregationist Congressman E. C. Gathings of West Memphis, Arkansas, introduced into the Congressional Record no less than 30 pages of HUAC's so-called dossiers on alleged "Communist" associations of scores of leading figures within the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People.

We feel we should make it clear that those who have joined together with the National Committee to Abolish HUAC have adhered strictly to the First Amendment of the Bill of Rights and have not applied any political test for participation in its work.

Kindly sign the enclosed card and return the same to us. We would appreciate your prompt reply as we wish to publicize this list shortly to make known the high national character of support this movement has now garnered.

Yours sincerely,

Aubrey W. Williams

A Race Agency and the Facts

Inaccurate statements as to its origins of the Southern Regional Council of Atlanta appeared recently in THE TIMES-DISPATCH, and should be corrected. They appeared — inadvertently, we are sure—in one of the series of articles by EDWARD B. SIMMONS of the New Bedford, Mass., Standard-Times concerning Communist efforts to incite racial strife in the United States.

MR. SIMMONS stated in the article appearing in our paper on August 5 that the Southern Regional Council, established in Atlanta in 1944, was an "offshoot of the old Southern Conference for Human Welfare, which was dissolved in 1948 after twice being described by the Federal Government as 'Communist front.'" He also said: "'The Communist Daily Worker openly boasted that JAMES E. JACKSON, chief of the Southern branch of the U. S. Communist party, was a co-founder of the Regional Council."

Taking these two charges in order, the Southern Regional Council was not an offshoot of the Southern Conference for Human Welfare. It was established in response to an appeal from respected Southern Negro leaders, who met at Durham, N. C., in October, 1942, on the call of DR. GORDON B. HANCOCK, of the Virginia Union faculty here, and DR. P. B. YOUNG, of Norfolk, publisher of the Norfolk Journal and Guide. These Negro leaders did not ask for the elimination of segregation in the schools or anywhere else; they asked that "separate but equal" be made a reality.

Responding to their appeal, a group of white leaders met in Atlanta in the spring of 1943, and expressed a desire to cooperate. Out of this grew the Southern Regional Council. The Council was the successor to the Commission on Interracial Cooperation, founded in 1919 by leading churchmen. To repeat, it not only was no "offshoot" of the Southern Conference for Human Welfare; it was criticized in some quarters because it was more conservative than that organization and suspected of being in competition with it.

We must remember, too, that when the Southern Conference for Human Welfare was established in 1938, it was not suspected of having any Communist connections, and many well-intentioned and patriotic Southerners participated in its early meetings. A number of these later joined the Southern Regional Council when they discovered the true purposes of the Conference for Human Welfare.

As to the allegation of the Communist Daily Worker that JAMES E. JACKSON, chief of the Southern branch of the U. S. Communist party, was a "co-founder of the Southern Regional Council," there is nothing to support this.

A JAMES E. JACKSON is listed as having attended the Durham meeting of Negro leaders in October, 1942, but is not mentioned by the Norfolk Journal and Guide as having been on the committee which drew up the statement then issued. JACKSON did not participate in the meetings of white and Negro leaders in 1943 and 1944 which led to the establishment of the Southern Regional Council, and he was not at any time an officer, director, or member of that agency. The Daily Worker's statement that he was a "founder" is as unreliable and inaccurate as nearly everything else in that Communist sheet.

The late DR. HOWARD W. ODUM, noted and respected member of the University of North Carolina faculty, was the first president of the Council. He was succeeded in 1945 by PAUL D. WILLIAMS, prominent Catholic layman of Richmond and co-founder of the Catholic Committee of the South, who served until 1951. MR. WILLIAMS was succeeded in that year by MARION A. WRIGHT, South Carolina attorney, former chairman of the South Carolina Library Board and past president of the University of South Carolina Alumni Association.

It should be emphasized that SRC worked within the framework of "separate but equal" for seven years, and did not announce for integration until 1951.

While we disagree strongly and completely with its present position on this issue, we feel obligated to point out, in fairness, that it was in no sense Communist in its origins. The Southern Regional Council was established because of a sincere desire on the part of white and Negro leaders in the South to eliminate many of the disabilities and discriminations from which Negroes were suffering.

It was hoped that if these could be substantially lessened, the colored South would not look to the colored North for leadership. Insufficient progress was made, unfortunately, and the NAACP moved in and launched its drive for the complete elimination of segregation — sooner than it probably would have done if SRC's accomplishments had been larger.

That is where we stand today.

TOWARDS BETTER UNDERSTANDING—Four religious leaders offered suggestions toward a clearer understanding of the problems of human relations in a workshop today at First Presbyterian Church. From left are Dr. Fred Routh, Atlanta; the Rev. C. Thomas Bakers Jr., the Rev. J. Metz Rollins, both of Nashville, and the Rev. John H. Marion, Richmond, Va.

Ministers Offer Solutions

U.S. Suicide Seen in School Closings

Closing public schools during a time of of the scientific race with Russia is an invitation to national suicide, in the opinion of Dr. Fred Routh, Atlanta.

Dr. Routh, of the Southern Regional Council, spoke at the workshop on human relations of the Knoxville Ministerial Association today at First Presbyterian Church. He said to "it is inconceivable that responsible, thinking Americans would close their schools (because of integration problems) at such a time."

Dr. Routh was one of four out-of-town speakers who expressed views on the theme "Toward a Clearer Understanding of What Confronts Us in Human Relations." Other speakers were the Rev. John Marion, Richmond, Va., associate executive of the United Presbyterian Church U.S.A. department of social education and action; his colleague, the Rev. J. Metz Rollins, Nashville, and the Rev. C. Thomas Baker Jr., Nashville, executive secretary of the Tennessee Council of Churches.

Must Obey Laws

"The solution to the human relations problems which confront us must be worked out within the framework of the law," Dr. Routh said.

He saw one solution in "working with people and not just for them," and added that "this calls for recognition of each man's dignity as a child of God and as a human being, and points up our need to establish mutual respect among the various races and among those who hold differing opinions."

Dr. Routh, a native of Lynchburg, congratulated the people of Virginia "for their peaceful acceptance of the inevitable" in Norfolk and Arlington school integration and said "they're disgusted with mass resistance."

Solution Seen

Mr. Rollins sees a solution in somehow "getting people to know and understand each other."

"The people who have a desire to see the gap between groups closed must also have the courage and the insight to make the effort toward creative contact between groups and races regardless of the price they may have to pay," he said.

"Practice what most of us already know about democracy and brotherhood as one of the best ways to clearer understanding about race relationships," advised Mr. Marion. "Scholars tell us we learn by doing—this is true in race relations. Too many of us have tried to reach a clearer understanding of the problem by studying in the abtract."

A World Problem

Following desegregation of schools in many communities, people have seen that they can live together in good will and co-operation, he said.

Mr. Baker has found "the matter of living together in the midst of individual differences perhaps the greatest problem in the world today."

"Our inability to live together results in broken marriages, competitive churches, and warring nations," he said.

He declared the only solution "is to recognize the God-given differences, to remove the man-made artificial differences, and to live together graciously."

City and county law enforcement heads, school superintendents, and heads of school boards were to discuss "A Clearer Understanding of Our School and Law Situation" later in the program.

Won't Allow Integration, Bowles Says

The city and county law enforcement heads expressed themselves on integration at the human relations workshop at First Presbyterian Church today.

"It's all Communist-inspired and not a good proposition. You can depend on E. B. Bowles, as long as he's sheriff, not to let it (integration) happen," declared Sheriff Bowles.

"My duty is to maintain peace and order and I intend to perform that duty," said City Safety Director David Garrison. "I have little or no information of any racial pressures here. We are not closing our eyes to the possibility of some rash act, but we do not anticipate it. We think we are capable of maintaining law and order and are optimistic enough to think we will not have to meet any emergency."

One Youth Freed in Fireworks Case

One of three youths charged with possessing fireworks early on New Year's Day has drawn a $25 suspended fine, another forfeited cash bond, and the third was acquired.

Police said the three were throwing firecrackers from a moving car on Gay Street at 2 a. m. Jan. 1.

Paul Yates, Martin Mill Pike, drew a $25 suspended fine in City Court, Charles A. Callihan, Chapman Highway, forfeited his bond, and Hugh Jarnigan, Route 1, Mascot, was freed.

DEAR PLAYBOY:

You've stated your case clearly, even to answering your own question. Destination? Emptiness and loneliness.

Excitement alone spoils. It glitters awhile and then turns a man bitter. Like spice too generously sprinkled, it ruins the flavor.

The security and stability she finds in you is a sham, as the excitement you find in her is probably shame.

Start Integration in Churches, Not Schools, Burkhart Advises

Dr. John H. Burkhart, president of City Board of Education, says he thinks public schools should not be first to have racial integration. "I think the church should be first," he said.

His remark came at a Workshop on Human Relations held yesterday at First Presbyterian Church by the Knoxville Ministerial Association.

Replying to a question by KMA President W. Burney Overton, Dr. Burkhart said he believes "integration is inevitable by the laws of God," but that it is an "evolutionary process and needs time for adjustment."

Seeks 'Least Tensions'

"This thing has to start down where the people can see it at work," he said. "I do not think the schools should be the first to integrate—I think the churches should be first."

Dr. Burkhart was a panelist in a discussion on "A Clearer Understanding of Our School and Law Situation." He said the Board of Education plans to "go on with the best education for every child in a way that will create the least tensions and get the best results."

He spoke after statements by Sheriff E. B. Bowles to the effect that integration in the schools is "all Communist-inspired and not a good proposition" and a promise that, as long as he is sheriff, he "would not let it happen," and assurance by Safety Director David Garrison that he had "little or no information of racial pressures here" and the promise that law and order would be maintaned.

Puts Education First

City Schools Supt. T. N. Johnson said that his chief interest is "in helping every child in the city schools achieve his greatest capacity and get the best education possible."

"I will not be a party to any plan that will disturb the orderly process of giving each child a good education," he said. "I hope we do not have a great deal of emotional upset and disturb the educational process. I will work for the best educational program for each child regardless of race.

'Better in Many Cases'

"I am amazed that since 1896 three generations have grown up with acceptance of the plan for separate but equal facilities as right—why did these ideas suddenly become wrong in 1954? If it wasn't wrong 62 years ago, why is it wrong now? Why haven't we preached against it before? Orderly processes can't be changed overnight without disturbance."

Roland McKeehan, director of instruction in the county schools, took the place of Supt. Mildred Doyle. Hop Bailey Sr., sixth invited member of the panel, did not appear. Mr. Bailey is chairman of the County Board of Education.

In describing facilities at eight county Negro elementary schools Mr. McKeehan said that "in many cases they are better than in comparable white schools."

The recommendations were passed: That the Knoxville Ministerial Association offer further opportunities for further meetings with secular leaders of the community; that KMA take the initiative in preparing a model program of education and sponsor discussions in local churches; that KMA co-sponsor an institute on human relations already planned by the Knoxville Area Council on Human Relations for Feb. 23 at Lawson McGee Library; and that a list of projects growing out of the human relations workshop be developed.

Knox County Commission yesterday approved by a unanimous vote and without a dissenting voice rezoning of a tract of land at Asheville Highway and Holston Drive for construction of a new Holiday Inn at a cost of about $850,000.

Gene Monday, Knoxville real estate investor, who leased the 266,000 square foot tract to Holiday Inns of America Inc. with general offices at Memphis, said construction will start on the 108-room motel in about a month.

Holiday Inns' own crews will build the inn, and they expect to complete it late this year.

Two Rezoning Pleas Deferred

County Commission yesterday deferred action on two rezoning requests to which opposition was voiced.

One of the requests, by Triangle Terminal of Chattanooga, was for rezoning from agricultural to industrial property on the south side of Middlebrook Pike at Knott Road for an office building and gasoline storage tanks. A lawyer for the firm said it is essential for the company to build there to tie into a pipeline.

The other request was from Mathis Bush, asking rezoning from Residential B to Residential A property on Valley View Drive for a 39-home subdivision.

The commission approved requests of:

Fonde-Brown Inc., rezoning from agricultural to residential B property west of Gallaher View Road and north of Kingston Pike for development of a subdivision.

NASHVILLE, Feb. 3 (AP) — A resolution calling for an investigation of the Highlander Folk School, revised to meet Gov. Buford Ellington's objections to an earlier one, was introduced in the House today.

Letters To The Journal

Author Explains Stand In Highlander Talk

In September, 1957, I spoke at Highlander Folk School—As I have spoken to many Southern universities, clubs, civic, religious and social groups over a period of years—reading, on this occasion, a chapter from a recent book by my husband and myself, Neither Black Nor White. This book is concerned with the conservation and upbuilding of all our Southern natural and human resources. The book is available at book stores, and anyone interested in what I said at Highlander will find it in these pages. Anyone who says or suggests that I was present for any other purpose is either woefully misguided or wilfully malicious.

It should be pointed out that the photograph taken at the time I was there was freely permitted by all concerned, as at any meeting open to the public. Eventual circulation of it and other pictures on a smear-sheet put out by a Georgia group whose director has since been discredited and resigned, was considered of so little moment by the Federal Government that it thereafter reestablished the school's tax-exempt status. This literature was a blatant effort to stir up trouble in an adjoining state in much the same manner Arkansas citizens now say Georgia emissaries helped stir up the tragic Little Rock troubles in their state.

Those who seek to intimidate ministers, school officials, law enforcement officials, and concerned citizens of good will in a community or state by insinuations of communism or other epithet, are too late. Events in Virginia have already shown that the only sane path is one of moderation, and that those leaders who meet together in a community for conciliation and understanding are the true peacemakers who "shall be called the children of God." I am sure that this was the spirit in which the Knoxville ministers and their panel of civic leaders met Tuesday night. It is the spirit which will save our South and our nation for unborn generations.

Cheap Teacher Pay Has Own Consequences

Tennessee pays its teachers half as much as some states and takes the consequences. The consequences should cause many a Tennessean to lie awake at night.

It's cheaper, it's true, to hire someone with a Fifth Grade education to herd elementary children through the day than it is to pay a teacher with a degree who can teach them something—cheaper in dollars and cents, that is, but that cheapness shows right on through to that final exam before graduation, believe you me. And it shows every day of those pupils lives. For a cheap education is like cheap jewelry, it soon rubs off and blackens.

Tennessee's excuse for not paying a proper salary for holding qualified teachers is cheaper still. How long would any industrial organization last if its management said to its workers, as do the governor of Tennessee and his RUBBER STAMP BOYS OF THE LEGISLATURE, "To raise salaries would call for higher taxes, and we had to promise somebody we wouldn't raise taxes in order to get elected." It wouldn't last until Friday night. You know that.

What kind of public is it that makes these demands on its officials? It's made up of people, evidently, who look at education in Tennessee through rose-tinted glasses. For no public that sees the situation as it really is could sensibly make such demands on its representatives. For the real situation, as it concerns education in Tennessee, is enough to make a strong man shake.

Dear Sir:

It was with incredulity that I read the article in your February 4th issue supposedly reporting the workshop on human relations sponsored by the Knoxville Ministerial Association.

Your choice of headlines, "Ministers Hear Highlander Leader" is completely misleading. It would be equally valid (or misleading) when next I speak to be identified as a "Knoxville Ministerial Association Leader."

For the record -- and I trust that in fairness you will print this letter -- let me set straight several of the more damaging untruths in your article:

(1) You state flatly in the first paragraph of the article that I am "an official of an organization founded by a Communist." Later you cite as your authority the Daily Worker. This is utterly false and is refuted by an August 21, 1958 editorial in the conservative Richmond Times-Dispatch, a copy of which is enclosed:

> "...Jackson did not participate in the meetings of white and Negro leaders in 1943 and 1944 which led to the establishment of the Southern Regional Council, and he was not at any time an officer, director, or member of that agency. The Daily Worker's statement that he was a 'founder' is as unreliable and inaccurate as nearly everything else in that Communist sheet."

"...While we disagree strongly and completely with (SRC's) present position on this issue, we feel obligated to point out, in fairness, that it was in no sense Communist in its origins."

(2) I was not, as you claimed, confronted with the "facts" you list. Your reporter showed me a telegram saying I had been at Highlander and asked if this were true. I told her that I had participated in a workshop there as a discussion leader. I have never to my knowledge been accused of being a Communist and I categorically deny having made the remarks attributed to me.

Reader Wonders If Heckling At Workshop Was Intentional

It was with great interest that I read the reviews in both Knoxville papers of the meeting, "Human Relations Workshop," held in the basement of First Presbyterian Church, Feb. 3. The Journal is to be praised for its stand in exposing left wing speakers or associates, particularly some who have been invited to speak in churches in Knoxville recently. ie; Ann Braden (wife of Carl Braden) spoke at Mt. Zion Baptist Church a few months ago, then this week, Dr. Fred Routh of Southern Regional Council invited to the First Presbyterian Church by the Knoxville Ministerial Association.

Ministers of what Gospel would heed advice of such a man?

During the one and one-half hours I attended this meeting the question was battered around pro and con on bringing lawsuits to obtain integration in the schools. Words were spoken as to the harmony enjoyed between the races over these past years and a Negro stood and asked if a lawsuit were brought by his race should they expect the feeling between the races to be the same! Dr. Fred Routh quickly stood and stated in effect, "We hope not, in fact we don't want it to be the same, etc." Was this or was it not an advocate of violence?

Statements by Dr. Burkhart of City Board of Education appeared to be very well received, particularly when he stated in effect, that it is contrary to God's will for people not to integrate, therefore we must evolve into one race! Yes, Dr. Burkhart seemed to speak the language of these minister-wolves in sheep's clothing—not so with Mr. Bowles who upon advising these men to preach the Bible and less politics was treated very impolitely. Perhaps Mr. Bowles could have brought out several enlightening facts had not a tactic of Communism (unintentional (intentional) been used, ie, the hollering noise made by a man or men seated in the rear of the room. Was this noise made by ministers? How long will you sleep, people of Knoxville, awake read and obey the Bible before these false teachings lead you into a darkness there is no turning away from?

Assembly Appears Ready To Jam Truck Bill Down Public's Throat Despite All Reasons Against It

The Tennessee trucking industry is not coming before the legislature to ask for new weight, length, and height limits with clean hands. That is another reason, aside from the matters of increasing highway traffic difficulties and destroying roadbeds, that the present trucking bill should be rejected.

We base this conclusion on the fact that the trucking industry has not seen fit to obey the laws which the legislature has already placed on the statute books for their regulation and control.

To name a few items, take first the matter of obeying the speed laws. Tennessee law limits trucks to 50 miles per hour, yet every motorist knows that this limit is exceeded constantly. The motorist frequently has a first-hand knowledge of this because he may find his own speedometer climbing to 80 miles an hour in order to pass a truck on the highway. Nor can management disclaim responsibility for this speeding because it makes the schedules on which the individual trucks run.

Another item is the frequent practice of one big truck's running behind another bumper to tail gate. The law calls for 300 feet to be maintained between trucks on the highway, but how often does the motorist see this regulation obeyed? It is not an uncommon thing to see three big trucks going up a grade with only a few yards between them, increasing by three times the hazard of any private vehicle's effort to pass.

Again, it appears to be common knowledge that overloading to the full extent of the weight increase it is now proposed to incorporate into law is common practice. One high state official has been quoted as saying that he would prefer to increase the weight limit on trucks and then to enforce it than to continue permitting the "tolerance" which now extends on overloading. But any citizen with a grain of common sense knows that if and when the legal weight is raised by the new law, the next step will be to overload on the new limit.

Finally, while the proposed bill provides for increases in height, length, and weight, nobody has said anything about an increase in taxation to be paid by the truckers for the additional use they want to make of the rights-of-way the public builds for them. Strangely, no member of the legislature has sought to amend the new bill with the idea of increasing the state's revenue by higher taxation.

All of these things, which are as well known to members of the legislature as they are to the rest of the state's citizenship, apparently constitute no obstacle in the way of the proposed legislation. The committee of that body on Thursday declined to hold public hearings on the bill, declined to give an opportunity to any citizen or organization to protest.

One legislator, in objecting to such hearings, was quoted as saying: "There has been a bill before the legislature every term on this subject. There is as little to be determined from a hearing on this thing as there would be on a coon-training bill."

It will occur to a good many citizens that members of the legislature apparently ready to jam this new trucking bill down the public's throat are acting a good deal like trained coons themselves.

Editor's Note: While Mr. Routh objects to The Journal headlines which refer to him as "Highlander Leader", he refers to himself in Para. 2 as a "discussion leader" at the Highlander school. He also describes his connection with Highlander in the same phraseology in the published interview which he criticizes.

Mr. Routh asserts the claim of the Communist Daily Worker that a Communist Human Welfare. It was established in response to an appeal from respected Southern Negro leaders, who met at Durham, N. C., in October, 1942, on the call of Dr. Gordon B. Hancock, of the Virginia Union faculty here, and Dr. P. B. Young, of Norfolk, publisher of the Norfolk Journal and Guide. These Negro leaders did not ask for the elimination of segregation in the schools or anywhere else; they asked that " separate but equal" be made a reality.

Responding to their appeal, a group of white leaders met in Atlanta in the spring of 1943, and expressed a desire to cooperate. Out of this grew the Southern Regional Council. The Council was the successor to the Commission on Interracial Cooperation, founded in 1919 by leading churchmen. To repeat, it not only was no "offshoot" of the Southern Conference for Human Welfare; it was criticized in some quarters because it was more conservative than that organization and suspected of being in competition with it.

We must remember, too, that when the Southern Conference for Human Welfare was established in 1938, it was not suspected of having any Communist connections, and many well-intentioned and patriotic Southerners participated in its early meetings. A number of these later joined the Southern Regional Council when they discovered the true purposes of the Conference for Human Welfare.

As to the allegation of the Communist Daily Worker that James E. Jackson, chief of the Southern branch of the US Communist party, as a "co-founder of the Southern Regional Council," there is nothing to support this.

A James E. Jackson is listed as having attended the Durham meeting of Negro leaders in October, 1942, but is not mentioned by the Norfolk Journal and Guide as having been on the committee which drew up the statement then issued. Jackson did not participate in the meetings of white and Negro leaders in 1943 and 1944 which led to the establishment of the Southern Regional Council, and he was not at any time an officer, director, or member of that agency. The Daily Worker's statement that he was a "founder" is an unreliable and inaccurate as nearly everything else in that Communist sheet.

The late Dr. Howard W. Odum, noted and respected member of the University of North Carolina faculty, was the first president of the Council. He was succeeded in 1945 by Paul D. Williams, prominent Catholic layman of Richmond and co-founder of the Catholic Committee of the South, who served until 1951. Mr. Williams was succeeded in that year by Marion A. Wright, South Carolina attorney, former chairman of the South Carolina Library Board and past president of the University of South Carolina Alumni Association.

It should be emphasized that SRC worked within the framework of "separate but equal" for seven years, and management disclaim responsibility for this speeding because it makes the schedules on which the individual trucks run.

Another item is the frequent practice of one big truck's running behind another bumper to tail gate. The law calls for 300 feet to be maintained between trucks on the highway, but how often does the motorist see this regulation obeyed? It is not an uncommon thing to see three big trucks going up a grade with only a few yards between them, increasing by three times the hazard of any private vehicle's effort to pass.

Acceptance Of Bid For Knoxville Bowling Event Would Aid Area

Knoxville can reap nation-wide publicity that goes with a national championship event, plus millions of dollars in tourist trade, if the American Bowling Congress accepts an invitation to stage its tournament in the new city auditorium either in 1961 or 1962.

An invitation was issued by Mayor Jack Dance, for Knoxville, and Gov. Buford Ellington, for Tennessee, to the American Bowling Congress yesterday, as recounted on our front page.

If the invitation is accepted the city will receive an early dividend on the auditorium approved in referendum as it is estimated that some 35,000 bowlers from every state in the union will participate. It is estimated that these bowlers would spend a minimum of $2,000,000 during their stay in Knoxville.

Nothing could be finer than to dedicate the new auditorium with a championship athletic event, especially one that would bring weeks of nation-wide publicity and a flow of tourist business in the off-season of February and March.

Knoxville will be bidding against Detroit for the 1961 tournament, which means real competition. If, however, the tourist attractions with which we are surrounded here are taken into consideration we may have a good chance to get the tournament.

Cleanest Teeth Subject To Decay

William Brady, M. D.

HEALTH SERVICE

Vilhjalmur Stefansson, author of The Fat of the Land (The Macmillan Company, 1959, $5), says:

"I brought about 100 skulls of Eskimos, who had died before Europeans came in, to the American Museum of Natural History, New York. These have been examined by many students, but no sign of tooth decay has yet been discovered. . . .

"The Eskimo record of pre-European date is therefore clean to date. Not a sign of tooth decay has yet been discovered among that one of all peoples which most completely avoids the foods, the precepts and the practices favored for dental health by . . . the average dentist, the toothbrush drillmaster of the schools, and the dentifrice publicists . . ."

Far be it from the conductor of this column to say any more about this now —or maybe ever!—except that if you haven't read Stefansson's books — The Fat of the Land, Not by Bread Alone, The Friendly Arctic—you have a lot to learn about how to keep well.

One eminent authority, Dr. Ales Hrdlicka, curator of Physical Anthropology in the Smithsonian Institution, did not know of a single decayed tooth in any skeleton of a man who had lived chiefly or exclusively by hunting (all meat diet) and who had died before European foods were introduced.

Henry B. Collins, senior ethnologist of the Bureau of American Ethnology of the Smithsonian, referred to the idea that chewing hard, tough or coarse foods will keep the teeth sound as "an old wives' tale." And Stefansson points out that Eskimos, South Sea Islanders and other peoples, who on the native diet have had the greatest immunity from tooth decay have generally done less chewing than Europeans and Americans do. "It would be difficult to find a New Yorker or a Parisian who does not chew more, and use coarser food than the South Sea Islanders did," he says.

From these and other hard facts convincingly presented by Dr. Stefansson, I gather that there are so many old wives in the ranks that the dental profession still cherishes that stupid slogan: "A clean tooth never decays." The most scrupulous toothbrushers in the world—the American and English peoples—have the worst teeth in the world. But they can't ask how come—they can only keep on brushing. It would be too embarrassing—work it out for yourself: A clean tooth never decays. Your teeth are decayed. Therefore?

Before we sailed for the Loneliest Isle, Tristan da Cunha, in the south Atlantic, the inhabitants sent a message saying that any gifts of clothing, books, magazines, candles, matches, toys would be welcome, but please, don't bring such useless thing as tooth brushes, liver pills and dentrifices. Considering that the plea came from people who, up to the late forties, had the best teeth in the civilized world, this was interesting, don't you think?

—Horse Feathers—

Our four babies are Brady babies. We have raised them on your teachings. but I must say some of your language is shocking . . . for instance you characterized one popular belief as "horse feathers." That doesn't seem quite . . . (Mrs. H.W.A.)

Q. Will my baby be bigger if I eat more during pregnancy?

A. No—but you will.

Q. Is it safe for a man to marry a girl who really does not attract him physically?

A. Do other girls attract him physically? If none does, then I'd want to go fully into his background, history, early training, and see whether he needs reeducation. If every girl attracts him physically except the one he thinks of marrying, he'd better stop in his tracks! Write me with stamped, self-addressed envelope for FREE reading list on sex education.

Q. Is a baby likely to be weak or defective if his parents were in poor health at the time of conception?

A. No. The state of health (or state of mind) of parents at the time of conception has no definite effect on the offspring.

Q. Should a father investigate the background of a young man who wants to marry his daughter?

A. Of course—or better still, the girl should do so. If the man is the right kind, he'll give a full account of himself. A private detective agency in Mexico City some years ago advertised: "Fathers of families: before accepting any man as the fiance of your daughter, have us investigate his antecedents and conduct. Better be safe than sorry!" Practical advice!

Q. My wife complains because she doesn't have an allowance; yet I give her money without question, whenever she asks for it.

A. If you tried to run a shop or factory in such an unbusinesslike way, you'd soon be bankrupt. Every wife is entitled to an allowance. Write me, with stamped, self-addressed envelope, for FREE leaflet, "The Battle of the Budget." It will tell you how to manage your affairs successfully.

Q. Can't a man show his appreciation of his wife by actions rather than words?

A. NO! Not so far as she is concerned. She needs, and is entitled to, a great deal of each.

Q. Why should any husband have the legal right to decide where he wants to live, and the family be forced to go along with him? Is that equality?

A. If not, it's expediency. The law makes the husband responsible for the support of his family, and he must therefore be allowed to judge where he needs to live in order to earn a living to the best advantage.

Q. How long before birth is a baby alive?

A. The old legal notion called the baby alive after the quickening—when the mother could first feel movement. To a biologist—or any other intelligent person—the baby is just as much alive at the moment of conception, as at any other time.

Q. Having children lowers a family's level of living—we found that out. Has anyone figured just how much?

A. Dr. Thomas J. Woofter Jr., published very careful calculations some years ago. With the same total family income, a childless couple could maintain twice as high a level of living as they could if they had three children, he reported. Many people have argued that this inequality should be removed. Write me with stamped, self-addressed envelope for FREE reprint, "Should Bachelors and Fathers Get the Same Pay?"

My Answer

By BILLY GRAHAM

QUESTION: I am a teenager, and if you know anything about teenagers you know that we are what many people think of us—mixed-up kids. My problem is that my mind is always full of evil thoughts. Even though I am somewhat active in church and believe like you do concerning Jesus Christ, yet I don't seem to be able to overcome this one great problem.

E. W. R.

ANSWER: It is not necessarily true that all teenagers are "mixed-up kids," even though some of them are. In fact, some adults are still mixed up. The problem you have, however, is one that is shared by many other people, both young and old; and we must turn to the Bible itself to get the answer to this problem. The answer is given in Philippians 4:4-8.

There are several things here that the Christian is told to do. First, we are to rejoice. To do that, you need only to think of the great things God has done for you. Second, we are told not to be anxious, but in our prayers to make our requests known to God. In your biggest problems, you have One that you can go to; and before Him you can pour out your heart with the assurance that He will not leave you without an answer to that great problem.

Finally, we are to fill our minds with those things that are good. They are mentioned in the Scriptures as being things that are true, honorable, just, pure, lovely, of good report, and of virtue. It is upon these things that we are to think. You can only do this if you follow the admonition found in Colossians 3:16 where the Word of God says, "Let the word of Christ dwell in you richly in all wisdom, teaching and admonishing one another in Psalms and hymns and spiritual songs; singing with grace in your hearts unto God." The answer to your question, then, is to live positively, not negatively. Once you learn that secret, God will have given you the victory.

Editor's Note: While Mr. Routh objects to The Journal headlines which refer to him as "Highlander Leader", he refers to himself in Para. 2 as a "discussion leader" at the Highlander school. He also describes his connection with Highlander in the same phraseology in the published interview which he criticizes.

Mr. Routh asserts the claim of the Communist Daily Worker that a Communist started the Southern Regional Conference is refuted by the Richmond Times-Dispatch. Scrutiny of the editorial in the Times-Dispatch referred to reveals that the Richmond newspaper relied on accounts of the organization meeting published by the Norfolk Journal and Guide, which reported a James E. Jackson attended a preliminary meeting in 1942 but reported no such individual at the 1943 and 1944 meetings "which led to the establishment of the Southern Regional Council". A James E. Jackson was a main functionary of the Communist Party in the South during these years.

Assuming that the Daily Worker lied about the part which the Jackson referred to played in the final formation of the Council—the Reds always are willing to magnify their influence in the telling—one could easily believe that the Jackson present at the 1942 meeting was the Communist leader. If that was not the case, then what was reported constituted a remarkable coincidence.

Both the Daily Worker and Norfolk Journal and Guide reports leave unanswered the question of what, if any, Communist activity was involved in the formation of the Council. Established Communist method calls for the hidden hand technique, and thus the fact that the succession of officers and board members were strictly non-Communist would not guarantee that no Red influence was about. The announced purposes of the Southern Regional Council, even in 1943, were such as to guarantee a considerable amount of controversy, something that serves as a mighty magnet where any Communist organization is concerned.

As a matter of extending to Mr. Routh a full exposition of his, and the Southern Regional Council's, position, we are reprinting below in full the editorial from the Richmond Times-Dispatch to which he refers, even though this was not requested by him.

In Paragraph 2 of the letter above, Mr. Routh "categorically denies" making the statements attributed to him. Our reporter says the quotes were accurate. Take your choice.

In Paragraph 4 the blanket charge is made that we have sought to "revive" guilt by association. Presumably he refers to the association of his name with that of the leftwing Highlander School at Monteagle. We would point out that any association between Mr. Routh and the institution in question was his own doing, the association he complains of was his, not ours.

Here is the editorial from Richmond Times-Dispatch under date of Aug. 21, 1958, referred to in Mr. Routh's letter and our comment above:

A RACE AGENCY AND THE FACTS

Inaccurate statements as to its origins of the Southern Regional Council of Atlanta appeared recently in The Times-Dispatch, and should be corrected. They appeared—inadvertently, we are sure—in one of the series of articles by Edward B. Simmons of the New Bedford, Mass., Standard-Times concerning Communist efforts to incite racial strife in the United States.

Mr. Simmons stated in the article appearing in our paper on August 5 that the Southern Regional Council, established in Atlanta in 1944, was an "offshoot of the old Southern Conference for Human Welfare, which was dissolved in 1948 after twice being described by the Federal Government as 'Communist front.'" He also said: "The Communist Daily Worker openly boasted that James E. Jackson chief of the Southern branch of the US Communist party, was a co-founder of the Regional Council.

Taking these two charges in order, the Southern Regional Council was not an offshoot of the Southern Conference for the Southern Regional Council, there is nothing to support this.

A James E. Jackson is listed as having attended the Durham meeting of Negro leaders in October, 1942, but is not mentioned by the Norfolk Journal and Guide as having been on the committee which drew up the statement then issued. Jackson did not participate in the meetings of white and Negro leaders in 1943 and 1944 which led to the establishment of the Southern Regional Council, and he was not at any time an officer, director, or member of that agency. The Daily Worker's statement that he was a "founder" is an unreliable and inaccurate as nearly everything else in that Communist sheet.

The late Dr. Howard W. Odum, noted and respected member of the University of North Carolina faculty, was the first president of the Council. He was succeeded in 1945 by Paul D. Williams, prominent Catholic layman of Richmond and co-founder of the Catholic Committee of the South, who served until 1951. Mr. Williams was succeeded in that year by Marion A. Wright, South Carolina attorney, former chairman of the South Carolina Library Board and past president of the University of South Carolina Alumni Association.

It should be emphasized that SRC worked within the framework of "separate but equal" for seven years, and did not announce for integration until 1951.

While we disagree strongly and completely with its present position on this issue, we feel obligated to point out, in fairness, that it was in no sense Communist in its origins. The Southern Regional Council was established because of a sincere desire on the part of white and Negro leaders in the South to eliminate many of the disabilities and discriminations from which Negroes were suffering.

It was hoped that if these could be substantially lessened the colored South would not look to the colored North for leadership. Insufficient progress was made, unfortunately, and the NAACP moved in and launched its drive for the complete elimination of segregation—sooner than it probably would have done if SRC'S accomplishments had been larger.

That is where we stand today.

Damascus Police Chief Praises Sheriff Cloyd

I would like to express my opinion in behalf of Washington County, Tenn., Sheriff John Cloyd.

It appears to me that the citizens of Washington County, Tenn., are indeed fortunate in making a wise and intelligent selection for Sheriff. They should not only consider themselves lucky but privileged to have a man of this caliber for the office.

In these modern times it appears that too many offices are being filled by demagogues or salary-seeking politicans who become prejudiced, indifferent, and lack initiative to fulfill their respective obligations. It is apparent from the number of raids, the type of men and places raided, the 5000 pints of whisky, that Sheriff Cloyd is not becoming one of these.

The mere fact that this man has selected the "no fence straddling attitude" is a virtue for which he should be commended and praised by all.

In my opinion, "fence straddling" or "pets", as they are sometimes called, is a weakness that will lead to corruption, thereby debasing the entire organization, thus depriving it of the dignity and integrity that it commands. The absurd theory of countless so-called reputable citizens being immune from the law should be completely abolished. Those who cry the loudest are those whose toes are being stepped on the hardest. Why would any man conducting a legitimate business complain of being ruined financially. This complaint seems to be an excuse, not a reason, and is far beyond my comprehension. No individual living within the law has anything to fear. After all, law is only a matter of self-preservation, with protection for the innocent, and punishment for the guilty.

For the poppy-cock idea of playing cowboy and indians, it appears to me that this is an absurd statement, possessing a thought equal to that of a small child. Too often it happens that when law-enforcement officials perform their duty and sworn obligations, they are criticized by many and praised by few.

The criticism given to the deputies in overalls is synonymous to that of traffic violators crying entrapment by radar. Here I would like to quote one of my friends for whom I have much respect: "You have to get to the dens and pits of snakes and rats in order to catch them." Very often we find the federal agents joining various rackets and organizations in order to obtain information for prosecution.

The fact that Sheriff Cloyd does not like liquor is an easy one for a law-enforcement agent to understand. Too often have I seen the misery, hunger, neglect and degeneration of mind, as a result of misuse of this drink.

Sincerely yours,
John K. Henderson

Fountain Citian Says Answer To Routh's Charges 'Unfair'

The semi-editorial retort to Mr. Routh's letter you published in Feb. 14's paper was unfair. In reply to Mr. Routh's charge against your paper of having used innuendo, distortion and guilt by association against him you replied: "Presumably he refers to the association of his name with that of the leftwing Highlander School."

My dear sir, one finds it hard to believe you didn't realize just which guilt-by-association and innuendo Mr. Routh meant. He was too obviously referring to the statement in your paper that he was "an official in an organization FOUNDED BY A COMMUNIST," a statement which IMPLIES, even if it does not directly say so, that Mr. Routh is associated with Communism. This is innuendo on its face.

It is true that Mr. Routh also claimed a foul over your sinister implication that he was a "leader" (which implied he was an official) at the "leftwing Highlander School —as well he might complain, since his connection with Highlander School appears to have been no closer than his having at one time been the visiting speaker and leader at a discussion workshop there, just as he was the visiting speaker and leader at a discussion workshop recently here with that most un-leftwing group, the Knoxville Ministerial Association. But did you really think Mr. Routh wasn't also and mainly complaining about your misleading and untrue implied linking and association of him with Communism?

Inasmuch as it turns out that the organization you say was "founded by a Communist" was founded by no such person but by a group of respected Negro and white leaders (as related by the Richmond Times-Dispatch editorial you re-printed with Mr. Routh's letter), it would seem your article involved not only innuendo but also distortion and untruth.

But not only did you not apologize for or even admit your innuendo and distortion, you also further made Mr. Routh's letter the occasion for re-stating your distortions and implications in an editorial note.

Sir, distortion and misrepresentation are most serious matters, especially when used to ruin the reputation of a man. The question I am raising is, however, really not so much a matter of the truth or untruth of Mr. Routh's association or non-association with leftwing causes as it is a matter of the principles and ethics of your newspaper. I am referring to principles of carefulness for truth and fairness, if your paper is interested in such old-fashioned virtues.

I think the Journal owes an apology not only to Mr. Routh, the victim of your villification by innuendo and misrepresentation, but also to subscribers of the paper for allowing so misleading an article to be printed.

Sincerely,

Mr. J. W. Hatfield

Dear Mr. Hatfield:

I was more than pleasantly surprised to read your letter to the editor of the Knoxville Journal, reprimanding him for irresponsibility, unfairness, and McCarthyism. The Journal has long had the reputation for being somewhat to the right of the late William McKinley; and, while Adlai Stevenson probably never met the gentleman, I am certain that Mr. Smith was "dragged kicking and screaming into the 20th Century."

You state well the case for ethics and principles in responsible journalism -- old fashioned but timeless virtues, all too often neglected. I am concerned about the role of a free press in a democratic society; responsibility, integrity, and the carefulness for truth are the essential ingredients of a truly free press. I worry over the newspaperman who is quick to come to the defense of freedom of the press but who, through villification and distortion, uses the press to stifle freedom of speech. It should be obvious, to all but the hypocritical, that freedom is an inseparable commodity; that an attack on one phase of it, jeopardizes all.

My sins, in the eyes of the die-hard segregationists, are threefold: 1) My loyalty to my country and her Constitution before my allegiance to my region or my state; I am an American. 2) My firm conviction that no democratic society can have second-class citizens; that we are equal before the law. 3) My belief in recognizing the equal human dignity of all our people as children of God and citizens of the United States. To these charges I plead guilty.

Again, my thanks for recognizing calumny and even more for having the courage to speak out against it for a stranger.

Sincerely,

Dear Dr. Routh:

The Knoxville Ministerial Association at its luncheon this noon instructed me to write to you a letter of appreciation for the services you performed for us at the KMA Workshop on Human Relations on February 3rd, and to express therein the membership's regret for the unsavory publicity you were subjected to as a consequence of it.

The Knoxville Ministerial Association expressed through its vote full confidence in you as a Christian gentleman and a loyal American.

Also, know that we appreciate the Southern Regional Council as a patriotic organization which is making a great contribution to the South.

Dear Lea:

Many thanks for your letter of March 3. It was heartening indeed to receive the information that the Knoxville Ministerial Association expressed full confidence in my integrity.

I am enclosing a copy of a letter I wrote Mr. Hatfield who, bless his heart, rose to challenge the irresponsibility and untruthfulness of the Journal's account of the Workshop.

I have received a nice letter from Burney Overton in which he enclosed the KMA Newsletter for March, 1959.

My best regards to you and to the Association.

Dear Burney:

Many thanks for your letter of March 3, enclosing the KMA Newsletter for March, 1959. I am pleased that you explained to the ministers the cheap and sorid attempts of the Knoxville Journal to cast aspersion on the good name of the Southern Regional Council and upon my reputation. I have followed with some interest the subsequent correspondence from Mr. Hatfield and others.

I have received a letter from Lea Acuff as ~~chairman~~ secretary of the Knoxville Ministerial Association, for which I am deeply thankful. I note that he sent you a copy of it.

I note on top of page two of the Newsletter that you say Mr. Smith is "deeply concerned about the preservation of our nation and the high ideals of it..." I seriously question that Mr. Smith is interested in the preservation of high ideals of this nation. I suspect that those who deal in guilt by association, in innuendo, in false accusations against their neighbors have no ideals and care less about the high ideals of the nation. He certainly could not be accused of being a responsible journalist.

I regret that the Journal embarrassed members of the Knoxville Ministerial Association by this distorted coverage of the Workshop. I am proud of the sensibility and stability of the Association which made them reject these canards.

Sincerely,

Dear Fred:

As you know, there was some rather unfortunate news coverage of the Knoxville Ministerial Association Workshop on Human Relations in the local morning newspaper. This coverage created some rather strong reaction among those who felt it, in justice, so deeply. Therefore, I proceeded to take such steps as seemed wise to correct the situation, at least in part. I am therefore enclosing for your information a report which I have sent to all of the members of the Ministerial Association concerning this matter.

May I express my personal appreciation to you, even at this late date, for your participation in that Workshop, and your part in making it the success that it was.

Dear Community Leader:

It is inevitable that the public schools of Knoxville will be racially integrated, pursuant to court order or by voluntary action of the school board.

Almost daily, our newspapers tell the unhappy and embarrassing stories of people in communities where adequate preparation was not made to deal with like school situations; in light of their experience, we believe the citizens of Knoxville are too sensible to ignore the need for a harmonious solution.

Therefore, the Knoxville Ministerial Association and the Knoxville Area Human Relations Council are inviting members of several community organizations, including churches, to meet and consider how best our task can be accomplished.

This meeting will be held on Monday night, March 16th at 8 o'clock, in the Auditorium of the Lawson-McGhee Library.

Be sure to come, or have at least one person present from your organization. Without a doubt, your participation will be a real contribution toward resolving this situation which confronts our community.

PRESIDENTIAL REPORT

In order that there may be clarity of information and understanding concerning the Clinic on Integration and the newspaper publicity given to it by The Knoxville Journal, I would like to make the following report to you.

As you know, on Wednesday, Feb. 4, The Knoxville Journal carried a rather "broadside" article concerning one of our guest leaders, Mr. Fred Routh, and the Southern Regional Council, in which, by implication, he and the Council were accused of Communist connections and leanings. The article carried nothing concerning the Clinic, except a brief reference to the statement of Mr. Garrison and Mr. Bowles that they were not properly contacted for the guest appearances at the Clinic. (As you know, this statement on their part was incorrect.)

There was some rather widespread reaction, some expressed directly to The Knoxville Journal through letters. Mr. Routh replied himself with some factual information concerning himself and the Southern Regional Council. At the time his letter was published, Mr. Guy Smith, the Editor-in-Chief of The Knoxville Journal replied in the same column in a lengthy explanation of the previous article, and a recognition of the fact that, historically, his information concerning the Southern Regional Council had been in correct. However, he did not withdraw the implication concerning Mr. Routh.

As soon as I could gether adequate information concerning the Southern Regional Council, I made an appointment with Mr. Smith to discuss the matter with him, feeling that this was the better way of dealing with it. Accordingly on Wednesday, Feb. 18, I had that meeting with Mr. Smith.

The result in brief, was that I found Mr. Smith very gracious, but nevertheless, quite definite in his point of view, and seeing no particular reason for changing it. He is, as you know, an ardent Republican in the conservative group. He is, from that point of view, deeply concerned about the preservation of our nation and the high ideals of it, and he feels that Communism is among the most serious threats to our nation. Therefore, he feels that it is his duty and responsibility as a citizen, and in his position as Editor, to point out, or to "expose", all persons whom he believes, on the basis of information available to him, to be identified in anyway with the Communist infiltration movement. He considers his information concerning Mr. Routh sufficient on the basis of the assumption that the Highlander Folk School is not only liberal, but actually has Communist associations, and that anyone who is invited by the School to appear on any of its programs is at least sympathetic to its position. I could not discuss this particular point with him because I knew nothing basically of the Highlander School or its policies and program. But I did point out to him that Mr. Routh came to us with the highest recommendations of the United Presbyterian Church in the U.S.A., and of the National Council of Churches, and noted the implied recommendations of his connection with The Methodist Church, the Episcopal Church, and the status of the Southern Regional Council among the groups active in the field of integration.

Mr. Smith stated to me that he felt that it was unfortunate that the article was a bit too "broadside" in its attack, and that it had omitted the references to the Clinic, the purpose of the Knoxville Ministerial Association, or what was accomplished in connection with the Clinic.

On the strength of this statement, he proposed that the article which appeared in The Knoxville Journal, Saturday, February 21, be prepared and published. In view of all that was involved, I felt that this was a wise solution to the problems in relationship and communication that had appeared and was happy to accept his suggestion.

As I was leaving the interview, Mr. Smith was most cordial in inviting me to call upon him at any time. He pointed out, I presume somewhat facetiously, that the politicians had no hesitation in calling on him, or in coming in to see him and presenting their requests and demands, and that, therefore, we should feel free to be in contact with him and to express our points of view.

I feel personally that it was most unfortunate that the article attacking Mr. Routh appeared, that it was so "broadside", that facts were not more carefully checked, and that it did not, at that time, include information concerning the Clinic itself. I think that it is fair to know that this matter was handled through Mr. Smith's office, and the City Editor's desk, and not by the religious news editor, Mrs. Pat B. Fields.

If any of you would like to have further information concerning this matter, please call me at your convenience.

National Lawyers Guild Issues Stand On Politics

ATL WORLD 1-27-54

WASHINGTON —(ANP)— The National Lawyers Guild has recently released 35,000 copies of a 19-page pamphlet called an "Appeal to Reason" for national distribution. The booklet provides information requisite for "informed" discussion of "the implications for the democratic process and the Bar of the proposal of the attorney general to list the National Lawyers Guild as 'subversive.'"

The pamphlet declares, "When a public official claims and seeks to employ the power to prescribe and in effect, to destroy a national bar association because he disapproves of its views and activities which trangress no law, an event has occurred which commands the attention and concern of all Americans and especially of all members and associations of the Bar."

It further asserts, "The Executive Order No. 10845 under which the Attorney General proposes to act to list the National Lawyers Guild as 'subversive' is, on its face and as applied, utterly repugnant to the constitution.

"The 'standards' which are the sole limitation on the attorney general's discretion under the executive order are so vague as to deny due process.

"That the procedures employed by the attorney general deny due process.

"If due process requires nothing else, it requires a conclusion after a fair hearing, not confirmation of a judgment previously made and announced. Here, in two speeches at large public meetings, widely publicized in the press, the attorney general announced his conclusions as to what 'the evidence shows' in advance of notice to the Guild. Yet, the attorney general is the sole prosecutor, sole judge, sole jury and the maker of the rules in this extraordinary proceedings.

"We have the decision first and the trial afterwards as in Alice in Wonderland. No lawyer can have any doubt that a judge who made a public speech before trial stated 'what the evidence shows' and his conclusions would be disqualified."

CLERGY, TEACHERS 'MOSTLY LOYAL'

Few Communists in Ranks, Probers Say In Giving Religion, Education Clean Bill

WASHINGTON, Feb. 6 (AP)—The House Un-American Activities Committee Saturday night gave a clean bill of health to the overhelming majority of American clergymen and teachers, while deploring that "a few" are Communists.

In its annual report to Congress, the committee also declared that it has not conducted, and does not intend to conduct, any "investigation of subversive infiltration of the clergy or religion." Similarly, it said, it has never probed into "the curricular of any school" or "into classroom procedures or the teaching methods of an educator."

HOWEVER, it said that any individual who is a Communist "enjoys no immunity from investigation, regardless of his rank of calling." It said that where it has determined than an individual clergyman is a Communist it "has proceeded exactly as it would in the case of any other person so identified."

Last year, Rep. Velde (R-Ill), chairman of the committee, drew some sharp criticism when he said it was "entirely possible" the committee might probe for Communists among the nation's clergymen. Later he disavowed any intention of such a hunt, although he said individual clergymen might be investigated.

Last month Velde and some other committee members met with a group of Protestant, Catholic and Jewish leaders to receive what Velde termed "constructive criticisms and suggestions."

In its report Saturday, the committee said "a minute number of case-hardened Communists and Communist sympathizers have actually infiltrated themselves into the ranks of the loyal clergy."

Other clergymen, it said, have allowed their names to be used by Communist groups because of "lack of careful study" or humanitarian motives. The committee said it does not feel "such association should be taken lightly or passed off without correction."

As for the field of education, it said there is "danger inherent in the presence of even a few Communist Party members in teaching capacities."

The committee served notice that it does not intend to limit its investigations to Communists but will seek to expose "various and sundry 'hate' groups . . . spreading dissension, discord, bigotry and intolerance."

THESE GROUPS, it said, are led by persons who make their activities "under the guise of patriotism and devotion to the republican form of government" and often use "ultrapatriotic names and devices to conceal their true and dangerous purposes.

"The subjects of the 'hate' attacks are individuals or groups of religious and racial minorities among American citizens.

"There are no degrees to subversion," the committee commented. "It is not sufficient to be simply anti-Communist if one is anti-American at the same time . . . subversion cannot be corrected by subversion, no matter if the most patriotic of titles cloaks it."

The report reviewed the committee's work during the past year and repeated its previously published recommendations.

Southern Educational Fund Leaders Cite Objectives in Government Probe

ATLANTA, Feb. 7 (AP)—The Southern Conference Educational Fund, Inc., today denied it has ever engaged in Communist activities and invited investigation of its record.

Directors of the group issued a statement in reply to a report by the Senate internal security subcommittee Jan. 27 that the organization is among those being investigated for "Communist activities."

The statement said the group's objectives are committed to "the soundest Democratic and American ideals. They are no more subversive than the Bill of Rights in the American Constitution nor those amendments to the Constitution abolishing the institution of slavery and extending the franchise to American women."

The fund was organized about 10 years ago, the statement added, and in execution of its objections "our program has centered about the effort to guarantee to all Americans, without regard to race, color, or religious affiliation, the rights and privileges taken for granted by the majority of our people.

Against Segregation

"Specifically, we have undertaken by educational measures to show the un-American character of the institution of segregation and to bring about its elimination from our common life, whether in public education, hospitalization, employment, transportation, or the exercise of the franchise."

The statement declared that "Americans of many faiths" engaged in the organization's activities.

"To treat them as prima facie evidence of 'Communist activities' gives undue credit to the advocates of communism," the statement added.

Aubrey W. Williams of Montgomery, Ala., is president of the group, and James A. Dombrowski of New Orleans is director.

Members of the board of directors attending today's meeting, in addition to Williams and Dombrowski, were:

Mrs. Andrew W. Simkins, SCEF vice president, Columbia, S.C.; Albert E. Barnett, professor in Emory University's Candler School of Theology, Atlanta; Howard L. Parsons, associate professor of philosophy and psychology, University of Tennessee, Knoxville; James P. Brawley, president, Clark College, Atlanta; John Wesley Dobbs, grand master, Prince Hall Masons of Georgia, Atlanta; Charles G. Gomillion, dean, Tuskegee Institute, Tuskegee, Ala.; Benjamin E. Mays, president, Morehouse College, Atlanta, and Dr. William Obrinsky, New Orleans physician.

Enact Death Penalty for Communists, Gov. Shivers To Ask Texas Legislature

ARK CONST 2-12-54

ST. LOUIS, Feb. 11 (INS) — Gov. Allen Shivers of Texas said today he will ask the State Legislature to provide the death penalty for anyone convicted of membership in the Communist Party.

"American adherents to the international Communist conspiracy are traitors — period," Shivers told the Illinois Bankers Assn., meeting in St. Louis.

"In politics, we often speak of bipartisan issues. I can think of nothing that should be more bipartisan than catching a Communist. There can be no valid issue between Americans over communism. Americans are either pro-Communist or anti-Communist.

Shivers said the nation "must stop letting part of the Constitution give so much aid and comfort to the enemies of this country if we are to fulfill and preserve the Constitution itself."

Tuttle Report Draws Threat From Solon

Special to The Atlanta Constitution

WASHINGTON, Feb. 15—Rep. Sieminski has threatened to kill anyone who suggests his loyalty might be questionable because his stepdaughter was for seven years behind the Iron Curtain until she broke out on Christmas Day, 1953.

The dramatic story was disclosed in part today in published

WASHINGTON, Feb. 15 (UP). Agriculture Secretary Benson has told Congress at least one active Communist was among the 2,200 federal workers reported fired under the Eisenhower administration's new security program.

Benson's Feb. 3 testimony was made public today by a House appropriations subcommittee. Benson did not identify the employe.

hearings on the House Appropriations Subcommittee dealing with a Treasury Department bill. How she escaped will never be told, Sieminski said.

Sieminski (D-NJ), who was elected to Congress while on active duty in Korea, charged that President Eisenhower's current security order is "vicious, totalitarian, un-American."

The dispute came as Elbert P. Tuttle of Georgia, Treasury Department general counsel, reported on security check dismissals.

The Treasury Department spokesman said that out of 130 "security" dismissals or forced resignations in the department during 1943, four were found to be "disloyal persons" under standards which have since been scrapped.

Tuttle said there is no way of comparing security dismissals under the Eisenhower administration with those under the Truman administration because "the

Miami Asks Contractors' Non-RedOath

MIAMI, Fla., Feb. 17 (INS)—The Miami city commission today passed a law providing that people who apply for city contracts take a non-Communist oath.

The emergency law came on the heels of disclosures that a recent bidder on several city building contracts had placed advertisements congratulating communist newspapers in the United States and abroad.

Mayor Abe Aronovitz also suggested that the federal government follow the example set by the Miami commission.

whole basis of approach is different."

Under the Truman security standards, he said, disloyalty was the only grounds for dismissal.

IRON CURTAIN

Tuttle said one reason for separating a man from the government service as a "security risk" might be the fact that he had relatives abroad, behind the Iron Curtain, upon whom pressure might be brought.

"A man may be a rugged individual and never intend to give in, but he may have a mother behind the Iron Curtain and it would be a terrible thing to say that person is a security risk because of a subversive contact," Tuttle explained to the committee. "That is why we do not break these down as to subversives and others, although in such a case it is a subversive contact that may ultimately make him dangerous."

Tuttle little knew what he was walking into as he explained this to a committee of which Sieminski was a member.

AM I DISLOYAL?

"For the last seven years I had a stepdaughter behind the Iron Curtain," the New Jersey Representative explained. "She broke out this Christmas. Am I to understand by this executive order that I have been disloyal to the United States? . . .

"This order, as is, should be wiped off the books of the United States. I think it is vicious, totalitarian, un-American. It shoots from the hip, puts a man out of government service, classifies him disloyal for nothing over which he has control, puts others in judgment of his heart, conscience and oath. That's un-American.

"I defy anyone to say I was disloyal because my stepdaughter was behind the Iron Curtain or that any squeeze play worked or could have worked against me by the Reds."

Tuttle interjected that the executive order said nothing like Sieminski had just stated.

"IMPLICATIONS THERE"

"The implications are there," Sieminski continued, "and I am telling you if anybody says that because I had a stepdaughter behind the Iron Curtain I was a disloyal congressman, that I was a traitor, I challenge him to make that charge and expect to get out of this room alive.

"Liberty is life, and no man is going to make that charge against me and leave here on his feet. If anybody makes that charge against me and expects to live after he makes it, he had better have the cops here. I say that for the record."

Tuttle said hastily that, of course, he had not suggested anything of the sort about Sieminski.

CITES VAN FLEET

Sieminski insisted that the presidential order, if carried to extreme, also would have barred Gen. James A. Van Fleet from continued command of the 8th Army after his aviator son had crashed behind enemy lines, in North Korea. The son now is presumed dead, but for a long time it was believed he might be a Communist prisoner.

"Do you think Gen. Van Fleet, when his boy was lost behind the Iron Curtain in North Korea, would stop fighting for the Red, White and Blue because of torture possibilities to his son?" he asked. "When he heard the news, he wiped his eyes and said, 'That's the way the kid wanted it, let's go.' "

Sieminski, a 44-year-old Princeton graduate, explained to reporters later that he met his wife in Vienna after World War II while serving on occupation duty in Austria.

She had been married previously, and had one child, Isabella, in Poland and a second, Christine, in England. After their marriage, they were able to bring Christine to the United States, but they were unable until Christmas last year to get Isabella out of Poland.

Abolish the 5th Amendment?

When people become afraid they often turn against old friends — the Fifth Amendment, for example.

Much of the criticism of it today would indicate that some of our more vigilante-minded persons, who didn't quite trust themselves, believe it was somehow slipped into the Constitution of the United States by Communists or subversives.

It has been in there for a long, long time—since 1791, to be exact. And that happens to be 163 years ago. Today there is a heavy demand that it be somehow bypassed. That's because a number of suspected Communists have used it as a shield to avoid questioning. Even so, let's not be in a hurry. It's an important amendment to a free people who want to remain free. So let's think about it long and carefully, lest we undo in haste much that is basic to our freedom.

Guarantee

Let's look into the contents of the Fifth Amendment.

Without going into the legal language of it, the Fifth Amendment provided four basic guarantees:

1—No person may be held to answer for a capital or otherwise infamous crime, unless on presentment or indictment by a grand jury.

2—No person may be tried twice for the same crime.

3—No person shall be compelled in any criminal case to be a witness against himself, nor be deprived of life, liberty or property without due process of law.

4—Private property may not be taken for public use without just

It's an important amendment to a free people who want to remain free. So let's think about it long and carefully, lest we undo in haste much that is basic to our freedom.

Guarantee

Let's look into the contents of the Fifth Amendment.

Without going into the legal language of it, the Fifth Amendment provided four basic guarantees:

1—No person may be held to answer for a capital or otherwise infamous crime, unless on presentment or indictment by a grand jury.

2—No person may be tried twice for the same crime.

3—No person shall be compelled in any criminal case to be a witness against himself, nor be deprived of life, liberty or property without due process of law.

4—Private property may not be taken for public use without just compensation.

Those are four rather important items in a free society. They have been guaranteed to us for a long, long span of years. Whether we should, at this time, be willing to circumvent or nullify one of the provisions is an issue before us. A great many persons, some of them sincere and others afraid and vigilante-minded, want to make it so a man or woman may be compelled to testify against oneself—by providing an escape hatch of "no prosecution."

But let us have a care before we throw away something which the Founding Fathers put in out of bitter experience. If we do circumvent this one provision of the Fifth Amendment out of fear of a few slimy Communists, we will make every citizen the prey of vindictive political machines which can control grand juries and judges. We will give every solicitor general a club. Every business and each citizen will become vulnerable to corruption and to political vendettas.

Why?

Why do we have a Fifth Amendment?

It has a long and honorable history. It was not too long ago that men and women were tortured to make them confess. In fact, it was only a few months ago the Chinese and North Koreans were doing that to war prisoners.

But all history is filled with the torture of civilians—on trial charged with a crime. The Spanish Inquisition tortured men and women and put them to death with revolting cruelty when they refused to confess themselves guilty of heresy. In our own country, at Salem, Mass., men and women were tortured to try to exact from them confessions of witchcraft.

We brought the amendment over from English common law. As late as 1647 in England the "Star Chamber" sessions could compel persons to testify against themselves. In that year a man named Lillburn, accused of a crime, refused to testify. He was whipped and pilloried. He still would not confess. He managed to get his case before Parliament. He obtained a ruling sustaining him. Said Parliament: "It is contrary to the laws of God, nature and the kingdom that a man be made to give information which would help convict him."

Now there are those who say, "We will change it to say you must testify against yourself, but we won't send you to jail for doing so."

That is an awesome weapon to give to political corruption whether in a grand jury room, in a solicitor's office or in a court room.

Let's think a long, long time about this. There must be some better way to nail down Communists.

JENNER WILL QUIZ 2 HIGHLANDER MEN

Dombrowski, Horton, Other Fund Officials Get New Orleans Subpoenas

WASHINGTON, March 9 — The Senate Internal Security subcommittee will hold two days of hearings in New Orleans next week on the Southern Conference Educational Fund and will call as witnesses two men long associated with the Highlander Folk School at Monteagle, James Bombrowski and Miles Horton.

The subcommittee, headed by Sen. William Jenner (R-Ind), will call a total of about 12 witnesses, including Aubrey Williams of Montgomery, Ala., the president of the fund and director of the National Youth Administration during the Roosevelt administration. Another witness whose identity has been made known is Mrs. Virginia Durr of Montgomery.

A committee clerk declined to name the other witnesses, but said that Dumbrowski and Horton were the only two well known in the Chattanooga area.

Denies Red Backing

Dombrowski, the executive director of the fund, declared today that a number of witnesses connected with the fund have been subpoenaed, but he denied that the fund is a Communist-front organization.

WASHINGTON, March 9 (AP) —A subcommittee spokesman said today "the majority of the leadership" in the Southern Conference Educational Fund once were officials of the now defunct Southern Conference for Human Welfare, which was cited by the attorney general as a Communist-front organization.

Also summoned to appear at a hearing March 15-17 is Alva W. Taylor, Nashville, secretary-treasurer of the fund.

The subcommittee spokesman said subpoenas have been issued to all officers of the organization except Benjamin E. Mays of Morehouse College, Atlanta, vice president.

Mrs. Durr, wife of a former member of the Federal Communications Commission, said at Montgomery she resigned from the fund in 1950 only becaue the Durrs moved to Denver.

"I haven't given up my principles," she added.

Williams, publisher of the Southern Farmer, charged last week that the Jenner investigation is an attempt to "smear" the Roosevelt administration.

Reasons Given

Williams also hinted the subpoena resulted from his fight against racial discrimination and from criticism of Sen. McCarthy.

The spokesman for the Jenner committee said the Southern Conference Educational Fund has been under investigation for about three months.

Dombrowski, in Montgomery last night to confer with Williams, said the fund was organized in 1946 to fight racial discrimination in public libraries, schools and hospitals.

Investigation Called Attack On US Negroes

ATL WORLD 3-17-54

BY JACK WILLIAMS

NEW ORLEANS — (INS) — Southern Negro leaders Tuesday struck at a scheduled three-day Senate Internal Security sub-committee probe of the Southern Conference Educational Fund as "an attack upon the Negroes of this nation."

At the same time, Sen. James O. Eastland, (D), of Mississippi, a member of the committee, denied he was guilty of any prejudice or prejudgment of issues to be explored in hearings which get underway today at New Orleans.

Thirty-one Negro leaders charged in a letter to Sen. William Jenner, chairman of the sub-committee, that "it is ridiculous to impute disloyalty to the Southern Conference Educational Fund."

The organization is scheduled to get a thorough investigation during the three days of hearings.

Eastland said:

"I do not want to try anything before the actual hearings, I have prejudged nothing. We only want the facts."

SEGREGATION "REAL ISSUE"

Fund director James A. Dombrowski had declared earlier that Sen. Eastland had prejudged the case. He said that racial segregation "is the real issue" of the hearings. He added that he thought it was a "shame" the committee "doesn't have the nerve" to debate that issue.

Two committee investigators, Frank Schroeder and Edward R. Duffy, are in New Orleans, but are

Don't Crucify McCarthy, Harris Warns

Roy Harris, Augusta political figure, has warned that if Americans "crucify Joe McCarthy like they did Martin Dies," then the "ghost of Communism will rise to haunt Eisenhower and all these peanut officials in Washington who are joining up with the howling mob today."

Writing in his political paper, the Augusta Courier, Harris charged that "General Motors" leaders in the Army and Defense Department—to be popular with radical liberal writers, newspapers, magazines, and fellow travelers—are willing to join forces to "destroy the greatest enemy that communism has in this country."

"Now when they made the issue, which side do you want to be on?" Harris asked. "Would you rather be with Joe McCarthy whose language isn't too polite and whose method of cross-examination isn't too refined or do you prefer to be fighting on the side of Communists."

Harris urged Americans to stand together against communism, rather than let the Reds maneuver Americans into fighting each other.

Harris said the Communists helped defeat Rep. Martin Dies, who was fighting communism when he was head of the House un-American Activities Committee.

EJECTED WITNESS DENIES HE IS A RED

Never Was, Horton Asserts—Says Removal by Eastland Prevented Testimony

Myles Horton, who was ejected from a hearing of the Senate Internal Security subcommittee in New Orleans on Saturday, asserted yesterday that he had never been a Communist and that he had been prevented from making a statement emphasizing that he did not intend to invoke the Fifth Amendment.

Mr. Horton is director of the Highlander Folk School at Monteagle, Tenn., near Chattanooga. In a telegram to The New York Times, he also said he had sought to tell Senator James O. Eastland, Mississippi Democrat, with whom he clashed at the hearing:

"The hysteria spread by your committee, and the McCarthy committee, has substantially contributed to the fiction that the only dynamic force in the world is communism. This I deny. Communism has never tempted me because I believe in democracy. You know, if you have made an effort to find out, that I have never been a member of the Communist party.

"I suppose in the eyes of the chairman of this committee opposition to segregation in the South is subversive. But as an American I am unwilling to assume that a legislative group bearing the authority of my Government represents a dark and dismal outlook that justifies slavery and which today equates the fight for full democratic rights for all men, including Negroes, with communism."

Eastland Declares He Hasn't Prejudged Case—Subject Says Race Issue Factor

NEW ORLEANS, March 16 (AP) Sen. Eastland (D-Miss), a member of the Senate Internal Security subcommittee that begins a three-day hearing in New Orleans Thursday, said he has not prejudged the case.

Officials of the Southern Conference Education Fund, Inc., subject of the probe, contended yesterday they were singled out because of their stand on segregation.

The organization issued a statement saying, "Sen. Eastland is the man who declared in 1945:

" 'The Negro soldier was a dismal and utter failure. He was a disgrace to the flag of his country . . . he will not fight. He will not work.' "

The fund statement termed it "a shame" the committee will no have the nerve to debate the segregation issue.

Warning Issued

Sen. Eastland told the Times-Picayune by telephone from Washington that he didn't "want to try anything in the newspapers. I've prejudged nothing. We only want the facts."

State Police Supt. Francis Grevemberg warned charges would be filed against Louisianians "definitely identified" as Communists or members of Communist-front organizations.

Grevemberg said a 1952 state law requires registration of all Communists or members of Communist-front organizations. He said no one had registered.

An admitted former Communist, 50-year-old Paul Crouch, will be a key witness at the hearings. Crouch said Sunday night there are some 10 0Communists in Louisiana who further the party cause as circumstances permit but do not disclose their party affiliations.

Crouch, an active Communist for more than 15 years, confined most of his work to the South.

Horton Calls Self Vocal Liberal; Neighbors Doubt Red Affiliations

CHATT TIMES 3/28/54

By MOUZON PETERS
Times Circuit Writer.

MONTEAGLE, Tenn., March 27—Whatever you may think of Myles Horton, director and founder of Highlander Folk School, however much you may disagree with his liberalism, regardless of your opinion about his views on organized labor or race discrimination, you must admit that he sounded plausible on one point made during his report at the meeting here a few nights ago.

A person who is conspicuously identified in the public mind with such causes as those with which Horton makes no secret of his affiliation could never be used as an espionage agent by an unfriendly power, said the Folk School director.

"Sen. Eastland in hearings like those conducted recently in New Orleans does not accuse me of being a Communist," Horton pointed out. "He simply tries to brand me and others by innuendo and other means as tools of the Reds, tries to leave the impression with the public that I am not to be trusted. It's purely a smear effort."

Horton continued, "If I were a Red or a tool of the Reds, I certainly wouldn't live the open-book life that I have lived ever since I've been old enough to have personal convictions. I have been openly and vocally active for years in labor organizing and in labor union educational work, I have had strong convictions against racial segregation and have not hesitated to express them. You may disagree with me—you have that right—but you can't say that I have tried to conceal my position. My sympathies for years have been with the underprivileged.

"Now, if I were a Communist or even a person sympathetic with Communism, I would try to keep the public from knowing about such convictions. I might be vocally as anti-Communist as Joe McCarthy. Now, there's a man who would be in a position to do the most for the real Reds. Don't you see, he has built himself up in the public mind so that he would be the last to be suspected of Red collaborations?

"Isn't that exactly the kind of operation a real top Communist would employ? He wouldn't be one whose liberal beliefs are well known, he wouldn't be one who lives his convictions day by day."

I'm giving you no opinions on Myles Horton. Just letting you see how he feels personally about things. He was thrown out of the New Orleans hearings of the Senate Internal Security Committee, you recall, for declining to answer a question about James Dombrowski. It was a question to which the committee already had the answer.

No opinions, I said. But I can give you some facts. I've known Myles Horton for 25 years, since he was running daily vacation Bible schools for the Presbyterian Church in the mountains of East Tennessee, since he was organizing Hi-Y Clubs in high schools here and elsewhere for the Young Men's Christian Association, since he went to Union Theological Seminary as a ministerial student. He believes in organized labor. He opposes segregation of races if it means discrimination against one group and denial of opportunity. He holds to ideas and ideals which many consider liberal and he lives his convictions openly. Perhaps he is too liberal and too vocal—that would be opinion and, in this field, to each his own.

One veteran Grundy Countian, though, pretty well expressed the views of the majority who gathered at Highlander the other night. He rose slowly to his feet and hesitated as if gathering words for a lengthy talk. Then he said:

"We neighbors of Myles Horton don't think he is a Communist. There was a time, though, when if you made 20 cents an hour and you wanted 25 cents, you could mighty easy get tagged as a Communist. I guess it wouldn't be too hard for a lot of us to conclude that some people still have about the same formula for saying who's a Red."

Texas House Votes To Ban Red Party

AUSTIN, Tex., April 8 (UP)—The Texas House of Representatives today passed a Senate-approved bill outlawing the Communist Party in Texas and providing a maximum 20-year prison term for membership.

Members of the House debated the measure two days. Vote on final passage was 130 to 4.

State Rep. Maury Maverick Jr. of San Antonio, son of former Texas Democratic congressman Maury Maverick, spoke on personal privilege against the bill, calling it a "storm-trooper, goose-stepping gesture."

"Why fight communism if we are going to impose gradually on ourselves an equally vicious form of totalitarianism?" he asked.

But the House heeded Rep. Fred Meredith of Terrell, Tex., sponsor of the Communist Control Act, who said:

"There is just as much of a Communist influence in Texas today as there was a Japanese influence at Pearl Harbor on Dec. 7, 1941."

New York Enacts Law For 'Fair Play' in Probes

ATL JNL-CONST 4-4-54

ALBANY, N.Y., April 3 (AP)—New York Saturday became a pioneer in legislation to prevent smearing of witnesses at state investigations.

Gov. Thomas E. Dewey signed an administration measure establishing a code of fair procedure that he said would protect witnesses and still preserve the government's right to "rout out rascality or subversion."

The new law prohibits one-man investigations, except by single-member agencies, and allows persons whose reputations are attacked in testimony at public hearings to answer by taking the stand or filing a sworn statement for the record.

IN A MEMORANDUM, the governor said the code was the first of its kind in the nation, and embodied in law "fundamental requisites for fairness" in the conduct of legislative and executive probes.

Other main provisions of the fair play code:

1. REQUIRE that persons subpoenaed to a hearing must be given notice of the subject of the investigation.

* * *

2. PROVIDE specifically that witnesses may have counsel at private and public hearings.

* * *

3. ALLOW COUNSEL for a witness to propose to the investigating agency questions it might ask the witness relevant to the matters on which the latter has been interrogated.

* * *

4. GIVE EACH witness the right to file, for incorporation in the hearing record, a sworn statement relevant to his testimony.

* * *

5. REQUIRE investigative agencies to keep an accurate record of testimony and make available to witnesses copies of their testimony.

* * *

6. PROHIBIT disclosure of evidence given at a private hearing unless a majority of the members of the committee or commission agrees. Dissenters may file a minority report, however.

Miami Attorney's Disbarment Sought in 'Loyalty Test' Suit

Leo Sheiner, New Orleans Figure, Named in Precedent-Setting Action

By CHARLES HESSER
Staff Writer, The Miami Daily News
Special to The Atlanta Journal-Constitution

ATL JNL CONST 4-18-54

MIAMI, Fla., April 17—Disbarment proceedings have been started against a Miami attorney who refused to answer questions on Communist activity before a Senate Internal Security subcommittee.

The attorney, Leo Scheiner, was ejected bodily from the hearing recently in New Orleans after invoking the Fifith Amendment.

The case will be tried in Dade County (Miami) Circuit Court but it isn't expected to end there.

It is being watched closely with great interest by Congress and the legal profession throughout the nation. Court experts point out the case could make legal history by setting a precedent. They believe it will wind up before the U.S. Supreme Court.

The case is believed the first of its kind in the U.S. involving disbarment proceedings against a lawyer who invoked his constitutional rights.

Basically, the Scheiner case involves the question of whether an officer of the court can invoke the Fifth Amendment on questions of loyalty and subversive activities.

List of Charges Filed

Formal charges against Scheiner were drawn up by another Miami attorney, Ellis Rubin, spokesman on un-American activities for the Miami American Legion, acting as a friend of the court.

Scheiner is charged with:

Unprofessional acts that unfit him for association with members of the Florida Bar.

Deceit and misconduct in his office as attorney.

Violation of the code of ethics of the legal profession in that he is or has been a member of organizations listed as subversive.

The organizations specified in the petition were the Communist Party of the United States, Civil Rights Congress, the Southern Conference for Human Welfare, the Southern Negro Youth Congress, the Southern Conference Education Fund and the National Lawyers Guild.

At the New Orleans hearing Scheiner was confronted with an accuser, a former member of the Communist Party, who charged him with membership in the party. The attorney refused to either confirm or deny the charge at that time.

But, when Scheiner returned to Miami, he issued a public statement denying the charges. Rubin's petition declares this action was in conflict with Scheiner's refusal to deny the charge under oath before the committee, raising the issue of possible self-incrimination. In one of the actions, the petition said, Scheiner was not telling the truth.

The case will be heard by Dade Circuit Judge Vincent Giblin.

Accused Issues Defi

Since this is not a criminal proceeding, according to legal experts, the usual rules of evidence will not apply. The prosecution, which will be conducted by the State Attorney of Dade County, does not have to call witnesses to substantiate the evidence, but can merely question the attorney-defendant about his alleged conduct.

"The case should not be and has not been prejudged," declared Giblin. "The accused attorney may have an adequate explanation and defense."

Scheiner thinks he has.

Declared the accused attorney: "I challenge those who have filed this petition to defend their position. I shall not accede to any effort by anyone to use the Florida Bar as a vehicle to destroy our American freedoms and liberties. I stand on my record as a lawyer and loyal American."

Before Scheiner was thrown out of the Senate subcommittee hearing, he declared: "I choose not to speak in a forum where falsehoods are taken for the truth and oppression substituted for liberty."

This action was especially condemned in Rubin's petition.

"An invariable effect of this sort of propaganda," the petition read, "is to breed disrespect for the Senate of the United States, and it brings the legal profession, through Mr. Scheiner as its spokesman, in disrepute with the public.

Petition's Contention

"An attorney should either affirm or deny allegations of disloyalty and subversion under oath or surrender his privilege of practicing under the law."

Scheiner's refusal to testify or deny the accusations constituted "unprofessional acts which unfit him for association with the fair and honorable members of the profession," continued the petition.

Rubin drew up his petition at the instigation of Col. J. R. Younger, president of the Crime Commission of Greater Miami.

No Statement.

The U.N. official, grandson of a Negro slave, said he had no statement to make.

"Any inquiries should be directed to the loyalty board," he said.

A friend of Dr. Bunche described the hearing as "rough and tough at times." At the U.N., a spokesman close to the trusteeship head said:

"Dr. Bunche is glad to get this chance to clear himself. Of course, like many other people, he has been associated with Communists in the past. He is confident he will be cleared quickly."

FBI Checks.

Mr. Gerety explained that the board's action was taken under Presidential directives. These hold that all American citizens employed by 40-odd international organizations must be investigated.

Such investigations and if evidence of disloyalty is turned up at the hearings it is transmitted to the U.N. through the Secretary of State. The U.N. is then asked to fire the employee.

Since the porbes began, 1760 persons have been cleared with 160 cases pending. Of the 1760, 32 have been called to appear before the board in person.

Last year, it was learned that Dr. Bunche had sponsored Jack S. Harris, one of 12 Americans dropped by the U.N. for refusing to answer loyalty investigators' questions. Dr. Bunche explained at the time that he had hired Mr. Harris because he was an expert on trusteeship matters.

Dr. Bunche, 49, won the Nobel Peace Prize in 1950 for effecting a Holy Land armistice between the Jews and Arabs. He was appointed to his present post by the late Secretary of State Edward Stettinius.

The prompt and full vindication won by Dr. Ralph J. Bunche in his two-day appearance before the International Organizations Employe Loyalty Board delighted Allied diplomats and observers at the UN.

But there were many who qualified their expressions of pleasure with statements of concern over the fact that a man with Bunche's record could be subjected to a proceeding in which his loyalty was questioned.

They hoped that the board, in view of its unanimous decision, would take a hard look at the testimony of the witnesses hostile to Bunche to determine whether perjury had been committed.

Deep Concern Voiced

The Bunche case illustrated anew the deep concern among our allies and the "uncommitted" bloc over what they regard as the excesses of U. S. "security" programs.

They cannot fathom America's willingness to subject a man of Bunche's stature to this kind of harassment and indignity — and they are not prepared to concede that the case of Alger Hiss justifies everything subsequently done to U. S. officials in the name of security.

The news that Bunche was being grilled had a stunning effect at the UN.

All Data Slanted

Thus, a few hours after the Bunche story leaked via the Hearst press last Tuesday, correspondents at the UN from Western Europe, Scandinavia and the Middle East received urgent messages to send everything they could get on the inquiry.

This intense interest, these correspondents told The Post, reflected as much a deep anxiety over what was happening to the U. S. as it did a concern for what was happening to Bunche.

Friends of Bunche still were unable Saturday to determine who was responsible for the leak—whether isolationists interested in smearing the UN or plain reactionaries who hoped to make it difficult for UN Secretary General Hammarskjold to promote Bunche to the position of undersecretary.

Hammarskjold commented pointedly after Bunche was cleared that Bunche "has always had my unreserved confidence as a man of outstanding integrity."

Bunche's ordeal stemmed from President Truman's order of January, 1953, that all U. S. nationals at the UN should be screened for loyalty.

It is Ambassador Lodge's boast that two days after he arrived to take over as head of the U. S. mission he deposited with Hammarskjold 2,000 forms "each six pages in length" to be filled out by U. S. nationals and that same afternoon Americans were "lined up" in the corridors for fingerprinting.

Lodge took the position that a quick and dramatic screening alone would re-establish U. S. public confidence in the UN.

"Of course there is no classified information in the UN, anyway," Lodge later conceded, "but my contention is that with so many good Americans to choose from there is no reason why one single American Communist should be employed there."

The U. S. screening program has caused much uneasiness among America's friends at the UN. The latter fear that even though the results of such screening are only to be "advisory" on Hammarskjold, they represent a dangerous enroachment on the spirit of Article 100 of the Charter. This obliges member nations "to respect the exclusively international character" of the responsibilities of the staff.

When he heard the board's decision Bunche said through his Counsel, Ernest A. Gross, that the Board members had been "fair and courteous in their diligent search for the truth . . . the hearings were thorough and the results just."

Nevertheless, there is some criticism of a procedure which keeps a man under investigation 16 months. The criticism is all the sharper in Bunche's instance in view of his great services to the U. S. and UN.

DR. BUNCHE RECEIVES A LOYALTY HEARING

Special to The New York Times.

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y., May 25—Dr. Ralph J. Bunche, one of the United Nations' top officials, today received a hearing before a United States board investigating the loyalty of all United States employes of the organization.

Under an order signed by President Eisenhower last year, machinery was set up to look into the loyalty of all Americans working for international organizations. Professionals, like Dr. Bunche, received a full Federal Bureau of Investigation inquiry and material gathered was turned over to a specially created International Organizations Employes Loyalty Board.

Dr. Bunche spent twelve hours, with time out for meals, at a meeting of the board at 641 Washington Street. He was accompanied by his personal counsel, Ernest A. Gross, who was Deputy United States Representative to the United Nations in the Truman Administration.

Dr. Bunche had no comment on the hearings, but Pierce J. Geraty, chairman of the board, said that the official had met with the group because of the Presidential order and that "no inference should be drawn from the fact."

Ex-Red Guarded After Attack at Quiz

Former U.S. Worker Lunges at Accuser Of Wife, Then Collapses From Bad Heart

ATL JNL-CONST 8-21-54

NEW ORLEANS, March 20 (AP)—A former federal official Saturday tried to attack an ex-Communist witness, then collapsed in the final stormy session of a three-day Senate subcommittee inquiry into possible Communist activity.

Clifford J. Durr of Montgomery, Ala., Federal Communications Commission member from 1941 to 1948, said:

Paul Crouch

"He can't talk about my wife that way, I'll kill the — — —!"

Friends grabbed Durr as he lunged at Paul Crouch of Honolulu, a former Communist espionage organizer.

A few minutes later, Durr became ill with what Touro Infirmary attendants said was a heart condition. He was wheeled from the room.

Crouch had testified that Mrs. Durr, sister-in-law of U.S. Supreme Court Justice Hugo Black, had known of a prewar Communist espionage ring.

After Durr's threatened attack Crouch asked for police protection. Two detectives were assigned to guard him until he left town Saturday night.

EARLIER Myles Horton of Monteagle, Tenn., was ejected from the courtroom after refusing to answer a question about a former instructor at the Highlander Folk School.

Horton attempted to read a statement and shouted:

"You've listened to all this talk from Communists and ex-Communists. Will you listen to a good American?"

Sen. James Eastland (D-Miss), conducting the investigation into the Southern Conference Educational Fund, ordered the U.S. marshals to remove Horton from the hearing.

Horton refused to answer a question about Dr. James A. Dombrowski, director of the SCEF, who had admitted teaching at the Highlander School.

AFTER THE DURR outburst, Eastland heard one more witness before adjourning the hearing.

The Mississippi senator said another hearing into alleged Communist and Communist front organizations would be held later this year—probably in June—in Birmingham and that he probably would preside over it.

Crouch had previously testified that Mrs. Durr had subscribed to Communist publications and contributed to the "Communist Press." He accused her yesterday of using her positon as Justice Hugo Black's sister-in-law to promote Communist aims.

CROUCH ALSO said he had seen Durr at a number of New York meetings of Communist Party leaders. But the former Communist said he couldn't name any one meeting, but that they occurred "from 1938 to 1941."

Before the outburst Saturday, Crouch told of a five-man group he said tried to obtain information from the White House for Soviet Russia.

He identified the five as Joseph S. Gelders, the Rev. Malcolm Cotton Dobbs, Howard Lee, Joseph Lash and Gilbert L. Parks.

Crouch said he had been "in closed Communist meetings with them all."

Crouch said this "intelligence apparatus" operated from the early 1930s until he left the Communist Party in 1942.

Atty. Gen'l Puts Lawyer Guild On Subversive List

PL World 11-5-54

WASHINGTON—(INS)—A Federal Judge refused to stop Attorney General Herbert Brownell Jr., from taking steps to place the National Lawyers Guild on his list of subversive organizations.

U. S. District Judge Charles S. McLaughlin turned down a Guild charge that Brownell had already "prejudged" the case and that the proposed listing was unconstitutional.

In speeches last year, the Attorney General declared that the Guild was the legal "mouthpiece" for the Communist party and that its leadership was composed of "card-carrying Communists" at least since 1946.

In his six page decision, McLaughlin declared that the Guild should first exhaust its chances of winning its battle in Justice Department proceedings before taking the case to court again.

McLaughlin declared: "This court should not assume that the prescribed administrative hearing will be conducted other than fairly."

The Judge also said he did not "believe that the public statements (By Brownell) would prevent him from rendering an impartial decision."

N.Y. Study Of Loyalty Checks Set

New York Times News Service
Special to The Atlanta Constitution

NEW YORK, Dec. 21—A widely representative committee to examine federal loyalty-security programs is being appointed by the New York City Bar Assn. The study will be made under a $100,000 grant by the Fund for the Republic, Inc., a Ford Foundation subsidiary.

Seven to nine men are being sought for the committee. Most are to be lawyers, but some may be former military leaders, scientists or others. While the study and recommendations will be as rapid as possible, the association estimates that 18 months may be needed from the time a chairman is named.

WIDE CRITICISM

Allen T. Klots, president of the 74-year-old bar association, observed today that the programs had come under criticism. They "now directly affect many millions of Americans in government service and in private employment in defense industries or industries which may in the future become defense contractors," he said.

W. H. Ferry, vice president of the Fund for the Republic, said its president, Dr. Robert M. Hutchins, and he considered the federal program "the No. 1 priority problem" in the fund's field. The fund was set up Dec. 12, 1952, to work for "elimination of restrictions on freedom of thought, inquiry and expression in the United States," and has a $15,000 endowment.

PRELIMINARY RESEARCH

Preliminary research already has been started by the fund, and will be available to the new committee. Since Aug. 1, Walter Millis, former editorial writer and columnist for the New York Herald Tribune, has been a full-time consultant at fund headquarters, and has prepared working papers on the scope of the problem and possible methods of study.

A 101-page description of federal statutes, executive orders and regulations has been prepared for the fund by Sandra Weinstein, a graduate law student, under direction of Prof. Ralph S. Brown Jr. of the Yale Law School.

'Subversive' Groups Listed

Ale World 12/31/54

BY ARTHUR KRANISH

WASHINGTON — (INS) — The chairman of the subversive activities control board ruled the Jefferson School of Social Science in New York should register with the government as an outright Communist front—run on orders from Moscow.

Chairman Thomas J. Herbert declared that the school is the Communist party's "principal training ground" and a "vital instrument" in promoting the Red doctrine of violent revolution.

Herbert, a former Ohio governor, issued a 221 page opinion condemning the school and blasting Communist claims that "academic freedom" was threatened by the government's action.

Meanwhile, at the Justice Department, Attorney General Herbert Brownell Jr., took steps to place an additional 27 alleged "front" groups on his roster of subversive organizations.

282 PRESENT TOTAL

Brownell's action raised to 282 the total of such groups which have been listed or designated for listing. The action is intended to guide government security officers and other interested parties.

Taking up the case of the New York school, Herbert asked the full subversive board to uphold his finding that it is a Communist front and declared:

"...The Jefferson school is operated primarily to serve as a training school for the Communist party. That is how the school regards itself and its functions; and this is how it is regarded and utilized by the party."

Brownell's action gives the 27 alleged Red fronts 10 days in which to request a hearing to show why they should not be designated disloyal.

The organizations include:

Benjamin Davis Freedom Committee, New York City; Californians for the Bill of Rights, San Francisco; Civil Liberties Sponsoring Committee of Pittsburgh, Crafton, Pa.

Committee to Abolish Discrimination in Maryland, Baltimore; Committee to Defend the Rights and Freedom of Pittsburgh's Political Prisoners, Pittsburgh, Pa.; Congress of the Unemployed, Pittsburgh.

East Bay Peace Committee, Oakland, Calif.; the Elsinore Progressive League, Elsinore, Calif; Everybody's Committee to Outlaw War, Los Angeles.

Guardian Club, San Antonio, Tex.; Idaho Pension Union, Coeur D'Alene, Idaho; Independent party, Seattle, Wash.; Johnson-Forest

'Subversive' Brand Aim for 27 Groups

Brownell, in Security Move, Seeks To Add to List of 254

WASHINGTON, Dec. 30 (UP)—The government moved today to brand 27 more organizations as subversive and to force a New York school to register with the Justice Department as a Communist front.

Attorney General Brownell gave the 27 organizations 10 days to show they should not be placed on his list of subversive groups. The organizations are scattered through the country.

At the same time, Chairman Thomas J. Herbert of the Subversive Activities Control Board recommended the board force the Jefferson School of Social Science to register with the Justice Department as a Communist-controlled organization.

HERBERT'S CHARGE

Herbert, who presided over six months of hearings on the New York school, said the evidence showed it to be "directed, dominated and controlled by the Communist party of the United States." He said it is "primarily operated for the purpose of giving aid and support" to the party.

The school can appeal Herbert's finding to the full five-member board. If Herbert's decision is upheld after oral arguments, the organization still can appeal to the courts.

Organizations designated by the board as Communist fronts must register with the Justice Department, submit annual lists of their officers and file a financial statement.

Brownell's list of subversive organizations, to which he would add the 27 organizations, is used primarily to help government security officials determine whether a government employe is a security risk.

There are 254 organizations on the subversive list, including the Communist party and the Ku Klux Klan. Brownell has said he intends to put the National Lawyers Guild on the list.

The 27 organizations cited by Brownell are:

The Benjamin Davis Freedom Committee, New York; Californians For The Bill of Rights, San Francisco; Civil Liberties Sponsoring Committee of Pittsburgh, Crafton, Pa.; Committee To Abolish Discrimination in Maryland, Baltimore; Committee To Defend The Rights and Freedom of Pittsburgh's Political Prisoners, Pittsburgh; Congress of The Unemployed, Pittsburgh.

PEACE COMMITTEE

East Bay Peace Committee, Oakland, Calif.; The Elsinore Progressive League, Elsinore, Calif.; Everybody's Committee To Outlaw War, Los Angeles; Guardian Club, San Antonio, Tex.; Idaho Pension Union, Couer d' Alene, Idaho; The Independent Party, Seattle, Wash.; Johnson-Forest Group, Detroit; League For Common Sense, Salt Lake City, Utah; Massachusetts Committee For The Bill of Rights, Boston; Michigan Council For Peace, Detroit.

National Committee To Win Amnesty For Smith Act Victims, New York; National Council of The Arts, Sciences And Professions, New York; People's Programs, Seattle, Wash.; People's Rights Party, New York; Pittsburgh Arts Club, Pittsburgh; Professional Committee on Latin American Affairs, New York; Puerto Rican Comite Pro Libertades Civiles, Fernandez Juncos Station, Santurce, Puerto Rico.

MARY CHURCH TERRELL TAKES STAND FOR LAWYERS' GUILD

Says This Organization Offered Her Support When She Launched Fight Against D. C. Jim Crow

ORGANIZATION STRONG FOR CIVIL RIGHTS PROGRAM

Black Dispatch 1-9-64

WASHINGTON — (ANP) — Atty. Gen. Herbert Brownell's proposal to designate the National Lawyers Guild as a "subversive" organization was protested last week by the Coordinating Committee for the Enforcement of the D. C. Anti-Discrimination Laws.

In a letter to Brownell, Mrs. Mary Church Terrell, chairman of the committee, reviewed the part the Guild played in ending discrimination in Washington eating places.

Mrs. Terrell was one of the persons whose complaints against a local Thompson restaurant launched a test case of the District's so-called "lost" anti-discrimination laws. The case ended when the Supreme court in June upheld the vadidity of the 1873 law and so compelled District eating places to serve all well-behaved persons regardless of race.

It was the District of Columbia chapter of the Guild which issued the first legal opinion on the validity of the old statutes, Mrs. Terrell pointed out. "This opinion was signed by the late Charles B. Houston, Judge James A. Cobb, Herbert Thatcher and Joseph A. Foror as well as by other lawyers of distinction, all of whom were members of the Guild," Mrs. Terrell said.

"The Guild was also the first organization to call upon the District Commissioners to enforce the anti-discrimination acts of 1872 and 1873," she continued.

"Since the Coordinating Committee was founded," Mrs. Terrell said, "representatives of the Guild have been among the Committee's most devoted members. The Committee, without charge, legal advice and services which have been of incalcuable benefit to the Committee.

"Our experience with the Guild has convinced us that so far as being 'subversive,' it is an organization which is dedicated to democratic principles and which acts on these principles."

She pointed out that the Guild has no racial restrictions upon membership and has "stalwartly" supported the cause of racial equality.

Brownell's proposal, Mrs. Terrell warned, may induce persons and organizations "not to oppose existing practices and mores no matter how unjust they may be. For they will understand that the cost of fighting for equality may well be to incur the label 'subversive'."

She urged the attorney general to revoke his proposal.

The Coordinating Committee also sent a letter to the Hotel Association of Washington asking that their representatives be given an appointment to discuss the possibility of making lodgings available on a non-discriminatory basis.

Pointing out that some hotels have recently inaugurated a non-discriminatory policy, the letter stated "that others are still hesitant and uncertain as to when to take the step."

Sutton Hits Directors Of Highlander School

Congress Testimony Cited as Saying Monteagle Unit 'Close to Party Line'

Rep. Pat Sutton of Tennessee today released a reply he has made to a letter from Myles Horton, director of Highlander Folk School, Monteagle, Tenn., in which a witness testifying under oath before the Un-American Activities Committee is quoted as having said, "The Highlander Folk School in Monteagle, Tenn., unquestionably keeps pretty close to the party line."

The witness, Walter S. Steele, testified on July 21, 1947, and further said, according to the representative, that the school's directors, "James Dombrowski and Myles Horton, are found in the company of Red fronters."

Horton had written Sutton:

"My sister in Murfreesboro tells me that you made an Armistice Day speech sponsored by the Veterans of Foreign Wars in the town square, in which you stated that the Highlander Folk School, James Dombrowski and someone else connected with Highlander whose name she did not get, were Communists. Since you made a public statement in reference to Highlander, I am sure you would be glad to put the statement in writing," Horton wrote the representative.

Sutton then released the above request from Horton and his reply for publication.

SPEECH QUOTED

The representative replied that he had stated in his speech "it was time we joined ranks in the fight against those that do not believe in America and our Constitution, or our form of government.

"Check the record of men like James Dombrowski, Myles Horton and even the Highlander Folk School at Monteagle, Tenn., and see if it's the type school or the type men you want to teach your boys and girls," Sutton wrote Horton.

The representative then added that he felt the "people of my native Volunteer State of Tennessee should know the background of all three."

Sutton then quotes the following information "On file with the House of Representatives, Washington, D. C.":

"The school, since its inception 7,000 Southerners in residence sessions and more than 12,000 others in field extension courses. Among those who have endorsed the work of the school in the past were listed as Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt, Frank Graham and Elbert Thomas.

They have been active in racial work in the South and a few days ago attended a secret convention in North Carolina, at which time plans were made for spreading the revolutionary theories throughout the South.

Lynchburg News 1/25/59

Offers Information

To the Editor of The News:

Sir: I'm very sorry to hear that a number of prominent Lynchburg citizens have associated their names with an organization of such dubious respectability as the Virginia Council on Human Relations.

After some research I have uncovered some information which may be of interest to your readers.

It is a well known fact that the Virginia Council on Human Relations admits to being affiliated with the Southern Regional Council. The Augusta Courier of Oct. 17, 1955 has this to say, "We have uncovered the startling fact that—a total of 24 high officials of the Southern Conference for Human Welfare are now on the Board of Directors of the Southern Regional Council." Senator James O. Eastland of Mississippi in his speech to the Senate on May 26, 1955, said, 'By the Special Committee the Conference for Human Welfare was cited as a Communist front organization."

The Richmond Times-Dispatch of Nov. 3, 1955, said, "The Council (Va. Council on Human Relations) is one of 12 existing in as many Southern states." Perhaps you may wonder where the Va. Council and the Southern Regional Council are getting their money? The Grass Roots League, Inc. Research Bulletin No. 2, Oct. 1, 1954 gives this information: "The Southern Regional Council of Atlanta is conducting racial integration propaganda among church and other groups, and recently has received a $240,000 grant from the 'Fund of the Republic.' "

An article in Facts Forum, Nov. 1955 by Russell Turner, staff assistant to Fulton Lewis Jr., sheds light on the activities of the Ford's Fund for the Republic. "The evidence, accumulated during the fund's 2½ years of actual operation, shows conclusively to gullibles that the domestic Communist menace is and always has been a myth, to stop any effective investigations of Red operations and influences, and to smother anti-communism wherever it may crop up."

Thus we have the Virginia Council on Human Relations, an affiliate of and receiving support from the Southern Regional Council which according to the Augusta Courier had at least 24 of its high officials formerly belonging to the Southern Council on Human Relations which was cited as Communist-front by the Un-American Activities Committee and which receives its money from the Fund of the Republic—now being investigated by the Senate.

Perhaps this information about these dubious interlocking organizations will make the good people of Lynchburg think twice before joining or giving support to the Virginia Council on Human Relations.

Dear Dr. Moreland:

Following a telephone conversation with Paul Rilling this afternoon, we are sending to you and to him the enclosed materials. I believe these will answer the recent charges made against SRC. If I understand correctly the nature of the attack, you will find especially helpful the material in the answer to the "Firing Line." In this answer note especially the Atlanta Constitution editorial on persons associated with the SCHW. Several past and present SRC board members were at one time board members of SCHW - as indeed were many other outstanding Southerners. It is not correct, however, that when the SCHW was dissolved twenty-four members of the SCHW came to SRC. At your convenience we would be grateful for copies of the attack, answers you prepare, and other pertinent material. We can copy and return to you any material which you might find difficult to reproduce.

It may also be helpful to identify persons against whom these charges are made. It is one thing to refer to numbers, another to list by name some of the South's most outstanding religious leaders, educators, editors, and the like.

If we can be of additional help, please call on us. If time and the situation require, feel perfectly free to place a collect call to us.

Sincerely,

Paul Anthony

The Editor
Lynchburg News
Lynchburg, Va.

Dear Sir:

In the January 25 edition of the Lynchburg News there appeared a letter from Ann Sydnor Hoskins of Richmond advising us in Lynchburg against the Virginia Council on Human Relations. She criticized the Virginia Council's connection with its parent organization, the Southern Regional Council (SRC), implying that the SRC was communistic. I want to assure Mrs. Hoskins that those of us who established the Lynchburg Chapter of the Virginia Council have looked very carefully into our affiliation and that we have found the reputation of the Virginia Council and the SRC to be above reproach.

The chief difficulty with the research Mrs. Hoskins undertook on the SRC was that most of her sources are highly biased. For example, the Augusta Courier that she quoted from is a personal publication of a politician, Roy Harris. It promotes his point of view and is not a community newspaper dedicated to an impartial presentation of the news. I refer her to more reliable sources. She should write to Washington to the House Un-American Activities Committee or to the Office of the Attorney General. They will write her that the loyalty of the SRC is beyond question.

She could utilize reliable sources closer at hand by telephoning Virginius Dabney, editor of the Richmond Times-Dispatch. On August 21, 1958, Mr. Dabney wrote an editorial in the Times-Dispatch entitled, "A Race Agency and the Facts," in which he completely vindicated the SRC of the kind of false charges implied in Mrs. Hoskins' quotation from the Augusta Courier.

Mrs. Hoskins implied that by receiving money from the Fund for the Republic the SRC had been put in a questionable position. Does she not know that the Fund for the Republic has also given money to committees and organizations within the Methodist Church, the Southern Baptist Convention, the Catholic Committee of the South, the Southern Presbyterians, the Disciples of Christ, the Americans Friends, the National Council of Churches, the YMCA and the YWCA? On the other hand, is she not aware that the SRC has received money from many different sources, including the Woman's Division of Christian Service of the Methodist Church, the National Council of the Protestant Episcopal Church, the Committee on Woman's Work of the Presbyterian Church in the US, and numerous business firms?

It is true that the Fund for the Republic was investigated by a Congressional committee a few years ago, as were a number of other philanthropic organizations, but no trace of disloyalty was found and the investigation was soon ended.

If Mrs. Hoskins wants to find out about the nature of the Virginia Council itself, she can do so by telephoning a number of prominent Richmond citizens who are members of the Board of Directors of the Virginia Council.

I suggest that she call these three: Mrs. Theodore F. Adams, whose husband is pastor of the First Baptist Church in Richmond and president of the World Baptist Alliance; the Very Reverend Monsignor J. L. Flaherty, Superintendent of Parochial Schools of the Catholic Diocese of Richmond; Dr. Rachel Henderlite of the Presbyterian Assembly's Training School. They could clarify her mistaken notions about the Council.

Mrs. Hoskins can be reassured by what the Virginia Council and its local affiliates stand for, since our program is the antithesis of totalitarian communism. (1) We believe, above all, in the worth of every individual. For most of us, this stems from belief in the fatherhood of God and the brotherhood of man. In contrast, the communists believe that the individual is the tool of the state, and they do not believe in God.

(2) We believe that all Americans should have equal opportunities for self-development. Communists set up a party elite which takes over all privileges for itself.

(3) We believe in free speech, free discussion, and free association. Communists smear and suppress all who disagree with them.

(4) We believe in government by law and in change that comes slowly and without violence. Communists utilize violence and any other means to attain their ends.

So, Mrs. Hoskins, and any other friends of hers in Richmond who are worried about us, may rest assured that we in the Lynchburg Chapter of the Virginia Council do know what we are doing and that we are devoted to the highest ideals of American democracy.

Sincerely yours,

Kenneth Morland

"Documented Facts"

To the Editor of The News,

Sir: In the polemic which has been in progress regarding the status of the Virginia Council on Human Relations, and specifically in an editorial which appeared in The News under date of Feb. 2, 1959, entitled, "The Situation In Richmond," you make the following statement: "Both the moderates and the extremists are speaking up more freely, even though some of it is by indirection, such as attacks on the Lynchburg Chapter of the Virginia Council on Human Relations, an organization fully cleared by investigations as set forth in a letter in Sunday's News by Mr. Kenneth Morland, and by others, though the attacks continue—continue but without documentation carrying any weight."

Tch! Tch! Tch! Mr. Editor, surely you cannot fatuously ignore and reject the documented facts as presented by Ann Sydnor Hoskins, which facts stand unrefuted! "Truth tells twice!" You have printed replies to her letter wherein oblique attacks have been made on persons mentioned (a Communist technique by the way) but any refutation of the facts, "no!" The fact still remains that the Southern Reginal Council, with whom the Virginia Council on Human Relations is affiliated appears on every Communist front list.

In "Masters of Deceit," authored by J. Edgar Hoover, a whole chapter is devoted to the high sounding titles of subversive fronts, and we are especially warned to 'beware of Greeks bringing gifts' as it were — organizations bearing titles such as Freedom, Peace, Fellowship, Conciliation, etc., etc., etc., spurious coinage all!

On June 12, 1957, Dr. Bella Dodd, formerly a professor at Hunter College, New York, who was for many years a member of the Committee of the Communist party, USA, was a sworn witness before the Internal Security Committee. Here the following soliloquy took place:

Senator Jenner: Dr. Dodd what is your honest opinion as to whether or not the Communist party is gaining, standing still, or losing ground in America. I know where it is in the world, but in America.

Dr. Dodd: I think that the Communist party is gaining at an alarming rate. I think that the Communist party is not gaining this under the lable of Communists, but by having its operators operate under many different lables, under many different titles. But the people who were known to me as either party members or associates of the party are moving to important positions in policy making, both on the industrial level, on the communications level, and on the governmental level.

In "Masters of Deceit," above mentioned, Mr. Hoover listed the various types of Communists: the Active, the Hidden, the Fellow-travelers, and the Dupes. I feel confident that the good people of Lynchburg will enlighten themselves as to the sinister intentions of the Virginia Council on Human Relations, and will at the same time take a leaf from Gilette Burgess' book, "The Goops and how not to be them."

Against Smear Tactics

To the Editor of The News,

Sir: A letter to the Lynchburg News on Feb. 15, 1959, signed by Beatrice C. Gair of Richmond, shows the extent to which some persons will go in trying to discredit an organization with whose policies they disagree. Instead of dealing with differences of opinion forthrightly in the American tradition of honesty and fair play, Mrs. Gair and others who have attacked the Virginia Council on Human Relations resort to innuendo, smear, and even to untruth. For example, without bothering to cite a shred of evidence, Mrs. Gair makes the reckless charge: ". . . the Southern Regional Council, with whom the Virginia Council is affiliated, appears on every Communist front list." That this is an outright falsehood can be readily checked by looking at the lists of Communist front organizations prepared by the United States government. The Southern Regional Council is not and never has been on the lists of the House Un-American Activities Committee or of the Attorney General. Before me is a photostat of a letter to the Executive Director of the SRC signed by Congressman Francis E. Walter, Chairman of the Committee on Un-American Activities during the 84th Congress. Mr. Walter says: "The Southern Regional Council has not been cited as subversive or un-American by this committee nor by the Attorney General." Thus, in attempting to defame the SRC, Mrs. Gair indirectly is impugning the integrity and competence of the Un-American Activities Committee, the Attorney General of the United States, and the FBI whose records are utilized by both. Furthermore, Mrs. Gair is in direct conflict with Mr. Virginius Dabney, editor of the Richmond Times-Dispatch. On Aug. 21, 1958, Mr. Dabney wrote an editorial entitled, "A Race Agency and the Facts," in which he emphasized the loyalty and high caliber of the leadership of the SRC.

And just who is Mrs. Gair calling "communistic"? Among the founders of the SRC are Bishop Arthur J. Moore of the Methodist Church, Archbishop Gerald P. O'Hara of the Catholic Church, Bishop John Moore Walker of the Protestant Episcopal Church, and a number of other outstanding Americans. The names of these founders, along with the highest praise for the SRC, are available for all Americans to read in the Congressional Record of the 85th Congress (July 26, 1957). The four presidents of the SRC since its founding in 1944 have been: Dr. Howard Odum, beloved professor at the University of North Carolina and nationally known scholar; Mr. Paul D. Williams, prominent Catholic layman of Richmond and a Knight of St. Gregory; Mr. Marion A. Wright, South Carolina attorney and past president of the University of South Carolina Alumni Association; Mr. James McBride Dabbs, South Carolina planter and author and an outstanding Presbyterian layman. Mrs. Gair's statement implying that such distinguished Americans are subversive is irresponsible indeed!

Perhaps Mrs. Gair's false accusation is made from ignorance, although she has ready access to public records. It is also possible to conclude that she is simply opposed to the democratic approach of the SRC to human relations and therefore wants to discredit it, by whatever means she can. But those of us who do believe in the principles of democracy can take great pride in the distinguished leadership of the SRC and in its splendid achievements in bettering human relations in the South.

Dear Ken:

Some time back our Administrative Assistant, Paul Anthony, sent you a raft of material defending the Council against spurious charges occasionally leveled against it and repeated in a Lynchburg paper following Mr. Dabbs' speech there.

Would you please send us a copy of the original attack on the Council, a copy of the answer you prepared, and a copy of how it appeared in the paper. We need this for our files. We seek to keep track of every attack on the Council for the die-hard segregationists have a habit of quoting articles or letters to the editor which they have sent in new attacks.

Dear Fred:

I sent copies of two attacks on the Virginia Council and my replies to Mr. Paul Anthony. The carbon of my reply is exactly the same as it appeared in print in the Lynchburg News.

Since writing Mr. Anthony, I have found a copy of a reply sent by one of our members, Miss Mildred Munday. Unfortunately, this is the only copy of her letter I have, so I would like to have it returned eventually.

Tomorrow is Sunday, the day for letters to appear, and we hope that no additional attacks will be printed. However, these letters have given us publicity and aroused the interest of a number of people. I shall keep you informed of any other developments.

It is unnecessary to tell you this, I am sure, but I did want to let you know what a splendid job Paul Rilling is doing for the Virginia Council. We could not have secured a better person, and we are grateful for the SRC's recommendation.

Sincerely,

Ken

Dear Mr. Anthony:

Inclosed are copies of the exchange about the Virginia Council and SRC in letters to the editor of the Lynchburg News. I had hoped to obtain another copy of my letter which appeared on February 1st, but have not done so. Paul Rilling has a copy of this as it appeared in the paper and could have it duplicated if you wish. The carbon copy is the only one that I have, and I would like for it to be returned.

Your material proved most timely and valuable, as you can see from my replies. I appreciate your sending it so promptly. Just when I was ready to mail you the first exchange of letters another appeared criticising the SRC and the Virginia Council on February 15. Last Sunday I wrote a reply to the Feb. 15 letter. Another member of the local council also replied to both the Hoskins and Gair letters, and I shall ask her to send you copies.

We realize that the answering of letters can be over-done. But in this community where so few people know about our local group, the Virginia Council, and the SRC, we thought it would be wise to clarify the purposes and policies of our organization. We have used these letters as means of making positive assertions about the Lynchburg Council as well as answering the charges. As a result, a number of persons telephoned that they wanted to become members of our group.

Again, I appreciate your help in this matter.

Sincerely yours,

Humon Relations, has never been the subject of any hearing before this committee." Mr. Richard Arens, Staff Director of this committee, confirmed this in a separate letter dated Feb. 10th. If the SRC was "cleared" it wasn't by this committee.

In answer to my letter to the FBI, Mr. J. Edgar Hoover wrote on Feb. 12th that the function of the FBI was only to collect information and not to evaluate it, and "for these reasons," he ended, "the information which you received that the organization mentioned in your letter had been cleared by the FBI is incorrect."

On Feb. 10th, I received the following communication from the chairman of the Internal Security Committee.

"Dear Mrs. Hoskins:

"The Southern Regional Council, Inc. has not been cited as subversive or Communist by the Attorney General.

"The Southern Regional Council, Inc. has been the subject of a comprehensive memorandum which has appeared in the Firing Line, published and distributed by the National Americanism Commission of the American Legion, P.O. Box 1055, Indianapolis, Ind., dated May 15, 1957. This memorandum shows that the Southern Regional Council, Inc. was founded in January 1944 as a successor to the Commission On Interracial Cooperation, Inc. The Southern Regional Council, Inc. was identified as a Southern Red front by Manning Johnson, former member of the Communist Party, in his testimony on March 8, 1957 before the State of Louisiana Legislative Committee On Segregation. The Firing Line report of April 15, 1957 also revealed testimony before the State of Louisiana Legislative Committee On Segregation which reflected that the Southern Regional Council, Inc. was formed by James E. Jackson, a southern organizer of the Communist Party.'

"Records of the American Legion reveal a definite trend of relationship between the Southern Regional Council, Inc. and the Southern Conference for Human Welfare, which has been cited as subversive by the House Committee on Un-American Activities. According to the files of the National Americanism Commission of the American Legion, 16 former directors of the Southern Regional Conference have been supporters of the Southern Conference for Human Welfare. These files also reflect that nine current Southern Regional Conference directors have been affiliated with the Southern Conference for Human Welfare.

"Sincerely yours,
"JAMES O. EASTLAND,
Chairman
"Internal Security Subcommittee"

It can be seen from the above that the SRC has not been "cleared" by official committees of the government, while other committees make grave charges against this organization. Further, it is an established fact that the long-time executive director of the SRC, Dr. George Mitchell, was also a high official of the Southern Conference for Human Welfare and the Highlander Folk School, both Communist-fronts according to the House Un-American Activities Committee and the Georgia Commission on Education respectively.

Again I plead with the citizens of Lynchburg to beware of wolves in sheep's clothing and to investigate carefully before allying themselves with the Southern Regional Council and its affiliate —the Virginia Council on Human Relations.

Council On Human Relations

The Editor of The News:

Sir: On Jan. 25th you published a letter of mine which gave documented facts about the Virginia Council on Human Relations. The News carried an editorial on Feb. 2nd stating that the council had been "fully cleared by investigations," and also a letter by a Dr. Kenneth Morland which suggested that I write to the House Unamerican Activties Committee and that they would tell me that the "loyalty of the Souhern Regional Council is beyond question."

I did as he directed and wrote Congressman Tuck of the Unamerican Activities Committee requesting information, and received a reply on Feb. 9th in which he said: "The Southern Regional Council and its state affiliate, the Virginia Council on

Human Relations

To the Editor of The News,

Sir: In the March 8th issue of The News Ann Sydnor Hoskins of Richmond renewed her attack on the Virginia Council on Human Relations (VCHR) by attempting to prove that its parent organization, the Southern Regional Council (SRC) is communistic. Her letter was long and involved, and it requires a lengthy answer.

To begin, Mrs. Hoskins makes the absurd claim that since the SRC has never been "cleared" by the House Un-American Activities Committee, the Attorney General, and the FBI, it must therefore be "subversive." Using her yardstick, we would have to declare almost every organization in America "subversive." For example, the Rotary Club, the Daughters of the American Revolution, and the Methodist Church have never been "cleared" by these governmental agencies. Would Mrs. Hoskins have us believe that they are consequently "subversive?"

Evidently, Mrs. Hoskins is not aware of the function of the House Un-American Activities Committee, the Attorney General, and the FBI in regard to such organizations. These governmental agencies do not go around "clearing" every organization in America. Rather, they warn us about those organizations that are subversive and un-American. The crux of the matter is, then, have these agencies ever said that the SRC was in any way subversive? The answer is they have not! I asked the House Un-American Activities Committee about the SRC, and I received the following reply, dated Feb. 27, 1959, from Richard Arens, Staff Director of the Committee:

"Dear Mr. Morland: In reply to your letter of Feb. 24 concerning the Southern Regional Council, it has never been cited as a subversive organization by this Committee or by any other Federal authority, nor has any reference been made to it in the Committee's publications."

Now this puts Mrs. Hoskins in a strange position. She considers the SRC subversive and communistic while none of our responsible governmental agencies do. Does this mean that she does not believe in the integrity and the competence of the House Un-American Activities Committee (of which Congressman William M. Tuck of Virginia is a member), the Attorney General, and the FBI? Those of us who have organized the Lynchburg Chapter of the VCHR do believe in their integrity and competence. We are sure that they have all the information that Mrs. Hoskins has and more. If they had any reason to question the loyalty of the SRC during its fifteen years of existence, they would certainly have done so. Since they have not, we can be sure that the SRC is loyal.

As long as one has faith in our official governmental agencies, none of the additional charges Mrs. Hoskins made against the SRC carry any weight. However, for the purpose of showing the way she "documents" her "facts," Let us look at them. She quoted a letter from Senator Eastland, who, in turn, quoted from the Firing Line, published by the National Americanism Commission of the American Legion in Indianapolis. This paper said that Manning Johnson, an ex-Communist, said that the SRC was communistic. Manning's testimony has been repudiated by the Department of Justice and the Subversive Activities Control Board. If his testimony had been found to be true, the Attorney General would have cited the SRC as subversive. But as Senator Eastland said (and I quote from Mrs. Hoskins' letter), "The Southern Regional Council, Inc., has not been cited as subversive or Communist by the Attorney General."

The Firing Line is also quoted as saying ". . . the Southern Regional Council, Inc., was formed by James E. Jackson, a southern organizer of the Communist party." That this is an outright falsehood can be seen from the many public records listing the names of the 16 persons involved in organizing the SRC. It was not formed by one person, nor was James E. Jackson among the 16. Virginius Dabney, Editor of the Richmond Times-Dispatch, in an editorial on Aug. 21, 1958, speaks forthrightly on this point. "James E. Jackson did not participate in the meetings of white and Negro leaders in 1943 and 1944 which led to the establishment of the Southern Regional Council, and he was not at any time an officer, director, or member of that agency." It is evident that the Firing Line was misinformed.

Among the many public records in which a description of the origins of the SRC can be found is the Congressional Record of the 85th Congress (July 26, 1957). Listed as founders of the SRC are such prominent Southerners as: Goodrich C. White, President of Emory University; Ralph McGill, Editor of the Atlanta Constitution; Bishop Arthur J. Moore of the Methodist Church; the Most Rev. Gerald P. O'Hara, Bishop of Savannah-Atlanta; Bishop John Moore Walker of the Protestant Episcopal Church; Dr. Rufus Clement, President of Atlanta University; Dr. Charles S. Johnson, President of Fisk University. And Mrs. Hoskins would have us believe that persons of this caliber formed a subversive organization!

Mrs. Hoskins again brings up the question of the relationship between the SRC and the Southern Conference for Human Welfare (SCHW). She employs the spurious "guilt-by-association" technique by saying that some supporters of the SCHW later became directors of the SRC. Virginius Dabney, in the editorial referred to above, deals with this point also: "We must remember that when the Southern Conference for Human Welfare was established in 1938, it was not suspected of having any Communist connections, and many well-intentioned and patriotic Southerners participated in its early meetings. A number of these later joined the Southern Regional Council when they discovered the true purposes of the Southern Conference for Human Welfare." In other words, those who left the SCHW to join the SRC did so because they did not approve of the direction the SCHW was taking! And they were among those who helped to expose the SCHW.

Who were these former SCHW members whose presence on the board of the SRC is supposed to have infected it with subversion? Typical among them were: Dr. George E. Clary, Executive Secretary of the Southeastern Jurisdiction of the Methodist Church; Mr. Herbert Davidson, Editor and Publisher of the Daytona Beach News and Journal; Dr. John M. Ellison, Chancellor of Virginia Union University; the late Howard W. Odum, nationally famous scholar and teacher at the University of North Carolina; Bishop Edwin A. Penick of the Episcopal diocese of Raleigh, N. C. Mrs. Hoskins would condemn the SRC because such distinguished persons have served on its board!

In concluding her letter, Mrs. Hoskins refers to the SRC and the VCHR as "wolves in sheep's clothing." It is especially unfortunate that she would stoop to this language to describe such prominent and loyal Southerners. We have already seen the caliber of persons founding and directing the SRC: bishops of the Catholic, Episcopal, and Methodist churches; editors of newspapers; college presidents and teachers. Who are some of the present members of the Board of Directors of the VCHR that Mrs. Hoskins would have us believe are "wolves"? They include such prominent Virginians as: Dr. David C. Wilson of the University of Virginia Medical School; the Most Rev. Joseph H. Hodges, Bishop of the Catholic Diocese of Richmond; Mrs. Grellet C. Simpson, wife of the Chancellor of Mary Washington College; Dr. Frank Daniel, Charlottesville physician; Dr. Alonzo G. Moron, President of Hampton Institute; Dr. Belle Boone Beard, teacher at Sweet Briar and trustee of Lynchburg College; the Rev. Dr. Walter Russell Bowie, Episcopal Theological Seminary, Alexandria; Mrs. Theodore F. Adams, wife of the president of the Baptist World Alliance; Mr. Thomas W. Young, President and General Manager of the Norfolk Journal and Guide.

It is hard to believe that Mrs. Hoskins would knowingly refer to such outstanding Virginians in such a derogatory manner, and it is hoped that these facts will enlighten her.

Mrs. Hoskins has asked the citizens of Lynchburg to believe that the VCHR and the SRC are subversive because of her "documented facts." Her "facts" are based on the discredited testimony of an ex-Communist and a misinformed article in the Firing Line. On the other side of the issue, attesting to the loyalty of the SRC and the VCHR, are Virginius Dabney, one of the foremost editors in Virginia; the integrity and competence of the FBI, the House Un-American Activities Committee, and the Attorney General; and the large number of highly prominent Southerners who direct the SRC and the VCHR. Those of us who live in Lynchburg will have no trouble in deciding what to believe regarding the loyalty of these organizations. We can distinguish fact from distortion, good reputation from attempted smear, democracy from totalitarianism. The VCHR, including its Lynchburg affiliate, will continue to grow as long as there are Virginians who believe in the worth and dignity of every individual, in the equality of opportunity for all, in free speech and fair play, and in making democracy work more effectively in human relations.

Sir: I reply to your editorial of Sunday, February 15, 1959 as well as to some of your thinking on The Council for Human Relations.

You never come right out and endorse integration in print but you endorse and commend organizations that do, such as "The Brotherhood of Catholic-Jews and Protestants," The Council for Human Relations and The Virginia Council of Churches. I know that the Brotherhood and the Virginia Council of Church Women have held inter-racial meetings here in our city. From information I have on the Council for Human Relations, they too are an inter-racial organization.

Letters To The Editor

The letter to the editor on this page today, from Kenneth Morland, is given unusual space because letters attacking the Lynchburg chapter of the Virginia Council on Human Relations and the Southern Regional Conference have been many, persistent, with no documentation of value, and the Morland letter should be sufficiently conclusive to end the argument. Therefore The News will carry no more letters on the subject after today, especially because of the easily discernible fact that most of the opposition is from outside of Lynchburg, is part of a propaganda-smear campaign not founded upon any information or support of value, and tends deliberately to be disruptive of the excellent human relations existing in and characteristic of Lynchburg.

In next year's census, citizens will fill out the questionnaires themselves, instead of being counted by a poll taker. It will be interesting to see just how many people the neighborhood big shot thinks he is.

Dear Fred:

Inclosed is a copy of my reply to the Hoskins' letter that I sent earlier. Thanks to our Editor, this debate has been brought to a close. His editorial put a stop to any further exchange, I dread to think what might have happendd if the editor had been sympathetic toward Mrs. Hoskins' attempted smear.

As you can see, I have relied heavily on the materials Paul Anthony sent. Without them I would have had a very hard time, indeed.

Dr. Kenneth Morland
Randolph-Macon Woman's College
Lynchburg, Virginia

Dear Dr. Morland:

In Fred's absence from the office, let me say a word of appreciation for your thorough and effective handling of the attacks on the SRC and the Virginia Council. I have never seen it better done. And I am conscious of the time and trouble this running controversy must be taking.

The latest eruption from Miss Hoskins is interesting, if unpleasant. Following are a few rebuttal points that might be worth considering:

(1) The fact that SRC and the VCHR "have never been the subject of any hearing" before the House Un-American Activities Committee is, in itself, pretty good evidence. The Committee within recent months held hearings in Atlanta to investigate Communism in the South; the SRC was not so much as mentioned. This, plus the fact that the SRC has never been cited by the Committee, surely indicates that there is no question about the organization's Americanism.

(2) Eastland is, of course, correct in saying that the SRC has never been cited by the Attorney General -- fairly reasonable evidence of "clearance." The charges Eastland quotes from "The Firing Line" are the same ones that have been so thoroughly discredited and refuted by the Times-Dispatch, among others. If Eastland believes these charges, he has been curiously derelict as chairman of his Senate committee. For he held hearings in Memphis several years ago on "Communism in the mid-South" and gave no attention whatever to the SRC or any of the state groups associated with it. These hearings were held after the "Firing Line" charges had been made and widely disseminated. Thus by his actions, if not his letter to Miss Hoskins, he has confirmed the assumption that the SRC is "cleared." This is an inference that should carry some weight, since Eastland has shown no inhibition about linking interracialists with Communism whenever he can find any pretext for doing so.

(3) It is true that the F.B.I. does not publicly clear anybody. But, again, strong inferences can be drawn. Mr. Marion A. Wright, past-president and current vice-president of SRC, was recently appointed to the North Carolina Advisory Committee to the Civil Rights Commission. Security clearance (handled by the F.B.I.) is required for such appointees. Obviously if the SRC had any pro-Communist taint, no such clearance would have been given to one of its most prominent officials. Other officers and board members of the SRC have also received government appointments requiring such clearance.

I don't know how worthwhile it would be to go into a detailed discussion of George Mitchell's past relationship with Highlander Folk School. Perhaps the most succinct defense is that Highlander's tax-exemption was restored by the Internal Revenue Service last year, after the Georgia Education Commission's sweeping allegations were made public. It is inconceivable that the Internal Revenue Service would reaffirm the tax-exempt status of an organization believed by Federal authorities to be subversive.

Again, our thanks for your effective leadership in Lynchburg and in Virginia generally.

Sincerely,

Harold C. Fleming

P. S. Since this was written, your latest letter to Fred and the enclosed letter from the Lynchburg News have arrived. This is a most satisfying conclusion to the whole affair.

Dear Ken:

Thanks for your two good letters with the enclosed clippings from the Lynchburg News. I believe the editorial is a happy termination of the whole issue.

You have done a splendid job of refuting the canards against the Virginia Council and SRC. Your explanations should lay to rest in the Lynchburg area any doubts about the integrity and loyalty of both.

I enjoyed seeing you in Indiana at the Panel of Americans Conference. I am happy to hear that your four-college intercollegiate group is interested in forming one or more panels.

I am aware that Harold has written thanking you for your leadership in Lynchburg and with the Virginia Council. May this letter serve as a second to that motion.

Best personal regards.

Dear Fred:

The inclosed letter was in the Lynchburg News when I returned from Purdue on March 8th. I have sent in a lengthy reply and will mail a copy to you after it appears in Sunday's paper.

I did not attempt to deal with the Highlander Folk School and the accusation against George Mitchell. No doubt I shall have a chance to do so, for it appears that we are in for a long battle. Can you have all available material on these matters sent to me, and can you suggest a way to handle this accusation?

I enjoyed seeing you in Indiana, and I hope it will not be too long before we can get together again.

With every good wish,

Sincerely,

The Council On Human Relations

Lynchburg News

By Mildred Munday Feb 23, 1959

The tender solicitude of the professional letter-writers from Richmond for "the good people of Lynchburg" (there's that phrase again!) is touching—but not very. The latest didactic emanation from the state capitol appears in The News for Sunday, February 15: a Mrs. Gair assures the editor that he "cannot fatuously ignore and reject the documented facts as presented by Ann Sydnor Hoskins, which facts stand unrefuted!" Mrs. Gair is effectively answered in an editorial comment of one sentence at the end of the letter.

For all her hysterical exclamation points and phonetic cluckings ("Tch! Tch! Tch!"), Mrs. Gair has added little except obfuscation to the issue of the integrity of the Virginia Council on Human Relations. The "goood people of Lynchburg" can cope with facts if facts are set forth, but there is little in the vituperations collected by Mrs. Hoskins that one can get one's teeth into; her "research" has unearthed quotations from a newspaper published and controlled by a racist politician from Georgia, and a dubious statement originating in the office of a commentator recently convicted of slander. Facts? Tch, tch, tch, Mrs. Gair.

But, says Mrs. Gair, "the fact still remains that the Southern Regional Council, with whom the Virginia Council on Human Relations is affiliated, appears on every Communist front list." What lists? published where? compiled by whom? with what authority? and what proof? Document, please ma'am.

Mrs. Gair cites J. Edgar Hoover on the subject of "high sounding titles of subversive fronts . . . organizations bearing titles such as Freedom, Peace, Fellowship, Conciliation, ets." Granted. But where does the Virginia Council on Human Relations fit in? As for high-sounding titles, how about the Defenders of State Sovereignty and Individual Liberties? Hear those swords rattling?

Finally, Mrs. Gair quotes at length, and with considerable irrelevance, a "soliloquy" taking place on the occasion of the examination of Dr. Bella Dodd by Senator Jenner. (The term, I believe, is "dialogue" or "colloquy"—in a soliloquy one talks to oneself. Documentation: any good dictionary.) Dr. Dodd, as quoted, states that the Communist party in the United States is growing, and that Communists frequently assume other "labels" of Communist infiltration is known to the resounding "fact" of Communist infiltration is known to most high school students and television watchers of average intelligence, but where does the Virginia Council on Human Relations fit in? If Mrs. Gair and Mrs. Hoskins can tell us without engaging in actionable libel, perhaps they will do so.

Mrs. Gair feels "confident that the good people of Lynchburg will enlighten themselves as to the sinister intentions of the Virginia Council on Human Relations." Heavens to Betsy, Mrs. Gair, the "good people of Lynchburg" are minding their own business—perhaps if we wait long enough the good people of Richmond will probe and document these "sinister intentions" for us.

Atlanta 3, Ga.

Dear Mr. Fleming:

I received a letter from Landon B. Lane, President of the Lane Cedar Chest manufacturers of Altavista, Virginia, and I need your advice on the best way to answer a part of it. Lane refers to the last letter I wrote the Lynchburg News in reply to the communist accusation made by Mrs. Hoskins. It is hard to believe that he could honestly raise the questions that he does, but I suppose it is worth while to deal with them. Lane is an ardent segregationist and a constant contributor to the News, writing a letter almost every week. (You might ask Paul Rilling about him.)

Let me quote you the pertinent part of his letter:

"This is, somewhat belatedly, with reference to a letter of yours which appeared on the editorial page of the March 15 issue of The News, dealing with certain questions or charges which had been raised in connection with the Southern Regional Council.

"Since the editor of The News used your letter as a justification for shutting off any further letters in this subject, it is no longer possible to explore questions in connection with this through the Lynchburg News. I assume, however, that you are not averse to supporting certain statements in your letter on which documentation would be appreciated.

"In your letter, you made the statement (referring to Manning Johnson, an ex-communist) that 'Manning's testimony has been repudiated by the Department of Justice and the Subversive Activities Control Board.' Would you be so good as to furnish me with the specific documentation to support your statement that Johnson's statement has been so repudiated by the sources named?

"Further along in your letter you also said, in part /this followed a quote from Dabney's editorial in the Richmond Times-Dispatch/ 'In other words, those who left the SCHW to join the SRC did so because they did not approve of the direction the SCHW was taking! And they were among those who helped to expose the SCHW.'

"Again, it would be very much appreciated if you could direct me to specific documentation to support this assertion. I have been under a contrary impression, but if my impression is incorrect, I am interested in getting the proper facts." (A carbon copy of this was sent to the editor of the News.)

Lane's letter was forwarded to me while I was visiting my parents in Birmingham. As I had only a day in Lynchburg for the involved preparations required to take my family to NYU Camp, I wrote him a brief note saying that I felt I could not deal adequately with his questions until I returned to my office in Septemper and had access to my file on the SRC. I did remind him of the Dabney editorial and of the fact that none of the responsible federal officers had ever cited the SRC as in any way subversive. However, the tone of his letter does invite a full reply.

You will recognize that the statement about Manning Johnson was paraphrased from your analysis of the attack by the Firing Line. How should I go about "documenting" this. In my letter from which Lane quotes I follow with "If his testimony had been found to be true, the Attorney General would have cited the SRC as subversive. But as Senator Eastland said (and I quote from Mrs. Hoskins' letter), 'The Southern Regional Council, Inc., has not been cited as subversive or Communist by the Attorney General'." I thought I might write directly to the Attorney General, the Subversive Activities Board, and the House unAmerican Activities Committee.

The SCHW charge has been dealt with by references to the Dabney editorial. Since he is well known in Virginia as a staunch segregationist, I thought this would be particularly effective. Perhaps I went beyond my data, and unnecessarily so, when I stated that those who left the SCHW were among those who helped to expose it. Ralph McGill, in his editorial about Dr. Clement, states that his newspaper did help in the exposure, and I assume that he was helped by some of those who knew the SCHW well.

Lane replied to my penned note from Birmingham that he would be glad to wait until I had returned to Lynchburg to hear from me in detail. He added that he had written The Firing Line and had been assured by the editor that all of their information had been double-checked and was "accurate." Such accuracy can be easily refuted with Dabney's editorial concerning James E. Jackson as "the" founder of the SRC.

I am sorry to have to bother with this and to bother you again. There are so many constructive things that need to be done. At the same time Lane should be answered fully. He appears to be sincere.

With best wishes,

Sincerely,

Ken

Dear Ken:

I am sorry you are still being plagued by the controversy over SRC, but I am more than glad to supply you with more "defense" material.

As to the repudiation of Manning Johnson, enclosed is yet another reproduction (regrettably poor) from the Times-Dispatch -- namely, a letter from a Mrs. Osth touching on the same point, and an editor's note describing the repudiation. Incidentally, the documentation we have on the Subversive Activities Control Board's action is from "Facts on File," which states: "On 8/11/56 the Subversive Activities Control Board reaffirmed its view that the U. S. Communist Party was Moscow controlled after reviewing its finding that the Communist Party must register with the Attorney General under the 1950 Internal Security Act. The SACB expunged from the record of hearings on the case what it called 'tainted' testimony given by Harvey Matusow, Manning Johnson and the late Paul Crouch."

Although I have never looked up the detailed news accounts of this action, I assume the "tainted" testimony concerned Johnson's charges against Ralph Bunche. In any case, if Mr. Lane wants to see the evidence with his own eyes, he could check "Facts on File" at any good library, look up the newspaper accounts of August 11 or 12, 1956, or write the SACB itself.

Certainly some of those who belonged to SCHW in the early years, and were later identified with SRC, were critical of the former. But I have no documentation readily available, except in the case of Ralph McGill. Since McGill was a founder and incorporator of SRC, however, this should carry considerable weight. Enclosed is a 1946 editorial from the Atlanta Constitution (actually written by McGill) which strongly criticizes the SCHW; many more such editorials, some signed by McGill, could be produced.

The main point, it seems to me, is that so many people of stature and unchallenged patriotism were associated with the SCHW, it is absurd to regard such association as implying Communist sympathies. Supplementing the examples given in our memo on the "Firing Line," I am enclosing reproductions from the proceedings of the SCHW in Birmingham, November 20-23, 1938. As you will see, the list of participants includes the then governor and lieutenant governor of Alabama, Governor-elect Maybank of South Carolina, and (save us) John Temple Graves. Mr. Lane must conclude either that the Communist conspiracy embraced much of the South's power structure in those years, or else that no prima facie guilt whatever attaches to participation in that organization. He can't have it both ways.

I don't see any necessity for further friendly inquiries of the Department of Justice, the House Un-American Activities Committee, and so on. It is an amply authenticated fact that SRC isn't and never has been cited as subversive by any of them. I enclose a letter from Rep. Francis E. Walter assuring us of this fact.

Also enclosed is another copy of our reply to the "Firing Line" charges, in case you should want to consider sending this to Mr. Lane. Of course, you can send any or all of the other documentation; more copies available if you should need them.

I am glad to know that you feel Mr. Lane is sincere, if misguided, in his continuing concern with these charges. Based on similar experiences, my feeling would be that this much evidence from the sources cited should either convince him or demonstrate that he is beyond convincing.

Paul Rilling is out of the office just now, but I know he would want me to express his appreciation and regards along with my own.

Sincerely,

Harold C. Fleming

A Council to attain, through research and action, the ideals and practices of equal opportunity for all peoples in the South

COPY

The Honorable W. M. Rainach
State Senate
Baton Rouge, Louisiana

My dear Senator Rainach:

I have just read an account of hearings conducted by the Joint Legislative Committee under your chairmanship, as reported by the Times-Picayune of March 9, 1957. According to this account, a witness named Manning Johnson made numerous allegations of communist influence in organizations active in the South, among them the Southern Regional Council. It is not my province here to evaluate Mr. Johnson's charges against other groups, but I can say unequivocally that the statements which he is quoted as making about the Southern Regional Council are utterly false. If this witness made the statements attributed to him under oath, he is guilty of the grossest kind of perjury.

Mr. Johnson is quoted as saying that the Southern Regional Council was "formed by the communists," and he is further quoted as naming specifically one James E. Jackson as "having founded the organization." These allegations are fantastic, as even a casual inquiry into the facts would establish at once. The Southern Regional Council was founded in 1944 by some of the South's most distinguished leaders, white and Negro. The details of its founding were public knowledge, having been reported fully in reputable newspapers throughout the nation. The incorporators were Bishop Arthur J. Moore of the Methodist Church, the late Dr. Charles S. Johnson of Fisk University, the late Dr. Howard W. Odum of the University of North Carolina, Dr. Rufus E. Clement of Atlanta University, and Mr. Ralph McGill of the Atlanta Constitution. Neither the James E. Jackson in question nor anyone else bearing that name was involved in this organization at its founding or at any other time. The Council has never been influenced by communists or had the slightest sympathy for communist doctrine. Any sober scrutiny of its record will confirm this fact.

The uninformed and generally irresponsible nature of Mr. Johnson's testimony is illustrated by his reference, in connection with the Southern Regional Council, to Bishop Arthur J. Moore. According to the Times-Picayune story, Mr. Johnson inaccurately identified Bishop Moore, one of the leading and most widely known bishops of the Methodist Church, as a Negro. This inaccuracy characterizes his testimony on the larger and more important matters mentioned above.

It is distressing to see a legislative body of the State of Louisiana used as a forum for false and abusive charges against responsible and patriotic citizens, made by an ex-communist who apparently puts little value on the truth.

If, as one might hope, you should wish to rectify this abuse of your Committee, I am sure that you will find the true facts readily ascertainable.

Sincerely yours,

RED CRY 'FANTASTIC,' SAYS DIXIE COUNCIL

Atlanta Constitution - March 20, 1957

New Orleans, March 19, (AP)-- M. A. Wright, president of the Southern Regional Council, said yesterday that a charge his organization was formed by Communists was "fantastic." Wright was referring to testimony by Manning Johnson of Washington before a Louisiana joint legislative committee investigating Communist influence behind racial disturbances. In a letter to State Sen. W. M. Rainach, chairman of the joint committee, Wright said:

"It is not my province here to evaluate Mr. Johnson's charges against other groups, but I can say unequiovcally that the statements which he is quoted as making about the Southern Regional Council are utterly false. If this witness made the statements attributed to him under oath, he is guilty of the grossest kind of perjury."

Wright, who said the Southern Regional Council was founded in 1944, listed the incorporators as Bishop Arthur J. Moore of the Methodist Church, the late Dr. Charles S. Johnson of Fisk University, the late Dr. Howard W. Odum of the University of North Carolina, Dr. Rufus E. Clement of Atlanta University, and Ralph McGill of the Atlanta Constitution.

"The Council has never been influenced by Communists or had the slightest sympathy for Communist doctrine. Any sober scrutiny of its record will confirm this fact," Wright wrote Rainach. In Atlanta Ralph McGill said Johnson obviously confused the Southern Regional Council with the old Southern Conference for Human Welfare. He said it was an error "commonly made by uninformed persons."

WRIGHT DEFENDS REGIONAL GROUP

Times-Picayune - March 19, 1957

Testimony of a witness who told the Louisiana joint legislative committee investigating Communist influence behind racial disturbances that an organization known as the Southern Regional Council was formed by Communists was termed "fantastic" Monday by M. A. Wright, President of the organization. The witness was Manning Johnson, Washington, D. C., who described himself as a former Communist. He testified at the joint committee hearing March 8 in Baton Rouge that the Southern Regional Council was formed by a Communist named James E. Jackson. In a letter to Sen. W. M. Rainach, chairman of the joint committee, Wright stated, "It is not my province here to evaluate Mr. Johnson's charges against other groups, but I can say unequivocally that the statements which he is quoted as making about the Southern Regional Council are utterly false. If this witness made the statements attributed to him under oath, he is guilty of the grossest kind of perjury.

Referring to the testimony concerning Jackson, the letter says, "These allegations are fantastic, as even a casual inquiry into the facts would establish at once, The Southern Regional Council was founded in 1944 by some of the South's most distinguished leaders, white and Negro. The details of its founding were public knowledge, having been reported fully in reputable newspapers throughout the nation. The incorporators were Bishop Arthur J. Moore of the Methodist Church, the late Dr. Charles Johnson of Fisk University, the late Dr. Howard W. Odum of the University of North Carolina, Dr. Rufus E. Clement of Atlanta University, and Mr. Ralph McGill of the Atlanta Constitution." Wright wrote that neither the James E. Jackson in question "nor anyone else bearing that name was involved in this organization at its founding or at any other time. The Council has never been influenced by Communists or had the slightest sympathy for Communist doctrine. Any sober scrutiny of its record will confirm this fact." The letter called Johnson's testimony "uninformed" and "irresponsible" in nature. In connection with the Witness' reference to Bishop Arthur J. Moore, Wright said, "According to the Times-Picayune story, Mr. Johnson inaccurately identified Bishop Arthur J. Moore, one of the leading and most widely known bishops of the Methodist Church, as a Negro. This inaccuracy characterizes his testimony on the larger and more important matters mentioned above.

"It is distressing to see a legislative body of the State of Louisiana used as a forum for false and abusive charges against responsible and patriotic citizens made by an ex-communist who apparently puts little value on the truth," Wright wrote to Rainach.

MANNING JOHNSON

The "Nation" of 4/10/54 contained a number of articles on "The Informer" featuring on page 305 an item on JOHNSON, a Dept. of Justice informer, who has testified in about 25 court cases and a number of congressional hearings.

"...In the second trial of Harry Bridges he testified that the West Coast waterfront leader had been present at a Communist convention in N.Y.C. on 6/27 or 6/28/36. But Bridges presented 6 witnesses, a number of newspaper reports, and other documentary evidence to prove his presence at a longshoremen's meeting in Stockton,Calif, at a time which made it physically impossible for him to be in N.Y. on the days mentioned. On the basis of this evidence counsel for Bridges demanded that JOHNSON be charged with perjury. The trial judge refused immediate action, but directed JOHNSON to hold himself in 'readiness for the processes of this court until the conclusion of the trial.' To date no action has been taken against him.

In 1951 JOHNSON testified before the Subversive Activities Control Board.On cross-examination the witness confirmed that he had given evidence in a Penn. sedition trial as follows:

'Q. In other words, you will tell a lie under oath in a court of law rather than run counter to your instructions from the FBI. Is that right?

A. If the interests of my gov't are at stake. In the face of enemies at home and abroad, if maintaining secrecy of the techniques of methods of operation of the FBI, who have responsibility of the protection of our people, I say I will do it a thousand times.'

In the Penn. sedition case he admitted that he had testified falsely in the deportation proceedings against one Nat Yanish in 1948.

'Q. The testimony was not correct,was it, MR.JOHNSON?

A. No, it wasn't precisely, because I could not at that time reveal the fact that I had supplied information to the FBI...I think the security of the gov't of the U.S. has priority over...any other connection.'"

In their 7/4/54 Herald-Tribune column headed "Brownell Investigates Brownell", by the Alsops, they state that 3 of the Justice Dept's paid informers,including JOHNSON, are now being investigated for possible perjury by the Justice Department itself. JOHNSON is being investigated because of his testimony in the loyalty case of Dr.Ralph Bunche. "In the last 2 years, the Justice Dept. has paid JOHNSON $9,096 or just under $400 a month. The dept. does not know of any other work JOHNSON was doing until two weeks ago, when he got a job as an insurance salesman....JOHNSON has testified under oath that he would lie under oath if directed to do so by his present employers. He said this to explain a false denial,also under oath,that he had become a Justice Dept. informer."

The "New Republic" of 7/5/54 carried an article on JOHNSON entitled "Professor Of Perjury" (page 22).

On 2/22/55, Harvey Matusow testified before the Senate Internal Security Subcommittee, and indicated that he considered Paul Crouch,Louis Budenz and JOHNSON false witnesses.

On 2/28/55, Matusow testified before the same committee and admitted he had no proof but insisted that ex-Communists Elizabeth Bentley, Paul Crouch, Louis Budenz & JOHNSON had lied at Red trials and probes.

On 8/11/56, the Subversive Activities Control Board reaffirmed its view that the U.S. Communist Party was Moscow controlled after reviewing its finding that the Communist Party must register with the Attorney General under the 1950 Internal Security Act. The SCAB expunged from the record of hearings on the case what it called "tainted" testimony given by Harvey Matusow, MANNING JOHNSON and the late Paul Crouch.

Dear Mr. Wright:

In reply to your letter of March 14, 1957, a sound and stenographic record was made of the testimony and documentary evidence submitted to our Committee during the recently concluded hearings on subversion in racial unrest.

Following is a verbatim excerpt from Manning Johnson's testimony relative to the Southern Regional Council, which is taken from the transcript of the entire testimony prepared and certified to by Mrs. Janet L. Parker, Court Reporter, Parish of East Baton Rouge, Baton Rouge, Louisiana:

> In the Daily Worker of Wednesday, December 1, 1954, in an article written by S. D. Rock, entitled "J. Jackson's Fortieth Birthday" he wrote some of the Negro people. The writer states, and I quote, "Jim Jackson was there as an officer of the Southern Negro Youth Congress, spearheading the movement, rallying his fellow Negro veterans to take advantage of their poll tax exemption and vote." Then, the article goes on to say--and this is very significant--to show who organized and who inspired these movements but here that are causing all of this chaos and confusion. It says up here that "For a period of 15 years he took part in every important general movement for advancement which involved Negro and white labor and progressive forces in the south. In addition to serving as a founder, vice-president and principal organizer of the Southern Negro Youth Congress, he participated in the formation and building of the Southern Conference for Human Welfare, The Southern Regional Council, and many other movements which in any important way challenged the status quo of Negro oppression and southern social backwardness." This is clear and convincing evidence. I am not saying it. This is the official organ of the Daily Workers, which tells you who was the architect and who was the founder of these organizations that are so-called--to help the Negro.

MR. SHAW: Mr. Chairman, I would like to offer this photostatic copy of the Daily Worker in evidence and ask that it be marked WJ-2 for identification.

SENATOR RAINACH: The Chair orders that the exhibit WJ-2 be made a part of the records of this committee.

The statements that I can find in the transcript concerning Bishop Arthur Moore do not contain any reference at all as to his race.

Very truly yours,

W. M. Rainach

Hon. Herbert Brownell, Attorney General
Department of Justice
Washington, D.C.

Dear Mr. Brownell:

In early March, a Joint Legislative Committee on Segregation of the State of Louisiana held hearings in Baton Rouge and heard invited witnesses, including three self-styled former Communists who testified on alleged connections between the Communists and the NAACP.

One witness, Manning Johnson, is quoted in the March 18 issue of the weekly news magazine, South, as saying that the NAACP "has become a vehicle of the Communist Party designed to overthrow the Government of the United States."

A dispatch from Baton Rouge, published in the Charleston, S.C., News and Courier, March 9, 1957, carried the same quotation of Manning Johnson's testimony.

The account in South magazine and the one in the Charleston News and Courier described Manning Johnson as "now employed as Director of Research for the Department of Justice in Washington." The news stories cited and similar ones sent out from Baton Rouge and widely published throughout the South give the distinct impression that an official of the Department of Justice has branded the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People as a "vehicle of the Communist Party designed to overthrow the Government of the United States."

In addition to the widespread publication of this completely false statement, we are informed that the Attorney General of a Southern state has ordered thousands of copies of the printed record of the Louisiana hearings for distribution in his state and elsewhere.

Also, the dispatch to the Charleston News and Courier containing the Manning Johnson statement and his identification as Director of Research for the Department of Justice in Washington has been inserted in the Congressional Record for March 12, 1957, as an extension of the remarks of Congressman John L. McMillan of South Carolina at Page A 1957. It may be assumed that this insertion is for the purpose of providing additional reproductions of the newspaper account for distribution bearing the imprint of the Congressional Record.

We do not need to emphasize the grave injustice that will be done the NAACP if the Department of Justice fails to clarify (a) Manning Johnson's official position in the Department of Justice, if any, and (b) the official or unofficial or other nature of Manning Johnson's testimony before the Louisiana Legislative Committee.

We wish to ask specifically: Is Manning Johnson employed as "Director of Research for the Department of Justice in Washington" and if not, what is his position in the Department of Justice, if any?

We would like to ask also: Was Manning Johnson in his testimony before the Louisiana Legislative Committee, in his references to the NAACP and the Communist Party, speaking for the Department of Justice or reflecting in any manner its official views or findings?

In the circumstances of the swift moves being made to fasten a Communist label upon this Association and in so doing to imply that this label comes from the Director of Research of the Department of Justice in Washington, we would appreciate a reply at your earliest convenience.

Very sincerely yours,

/S/

Roy Wilkins
Executive Secretary.

Dear Mr. Wilkins:

This acknowledges your letter of March 28, 1957 referring to testimony recently given by a witness, Manning Johnson, before a joint legislative committee of the State of Louisiana. According to your letter, Manning Johnson has been quoted in several news organs, including the Charleston, South Carolina NEWS AND COURIER, issue of March 9, 1957, as having testified that he is "now employed as Director of Research for the Department of Justice in Washington" and that the NAACP "has become a vehicle of the Communist Party designed to overthrow the Government of the United States." You request that we inform you whether Manning Johnson is employed by the Department as Director of Research or otherwise, and whether, in the testimony as quoted, he spoke for this Department or reflected its views.

Manning Johnson is not employed by the Department of Justice as Director of Research or in any other capacity. In fact there is not nor has there ever been any such position as Director of Research in this Department. Further, with respect to any testimony Manning Johnson may have given before the above mentioned committee, he had no authority to speak for or on behalf of the Department of Justice. You may be assured that his testimony concerning the alleged relationship between the NAACP and the Communist Party does not, in any manner, reflect the views of this Department or any findings it has made.

We have advised THE NEWS AND COURIER of Manning Johnson's non-employment with this Department. We understand that this newspaper published a corrective article in its issue of March 12, 1957.

FOR RELEASE: APRIL 11, 1957

MANNING JOHNSON'S SMEAR OF NAACP DISAVOWED BY JUSTICE DEPARTMENT

NEW YORK, April 11.--The U.S. Department of Justice has informed the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People that recent statements by Manning Johnson, attempting to link the NAACP with the Communist party, do not reflect the views nor the findings of the Justice Department. The governmental agency also stated that Mr. Johnson is not one of its employees, as was reported in certain newspapers.

Mr. Johnson testified before a Louisiana state legislative committee early in March, and was quoted in the press as having said the NAACP "has become a vehicle of the Communist Party designed to overthrow the government of the United States." Mr. Johnson, an admitted former Communist, was described in press reports as "Director of Research for the Department of Justice in Washington."

Following Mr. Johnson's statement about the NAACP, Roy Wilkins, the Association's executive secretary, wrote to U.S. Attorney General Herbert Brownell, Jr., for clarification of "(a) Manning Johnson's official position in the Department of Justice, if any, and (b) the official or unofficial or other nature of Manning Johnson's testimony before the Louisiana legislative committee."

Mr. Wilkins also inquired of the U.S. Attorney General whether Mr. Johnson's testimony was "reflecting in any manner" the "official views or findings" of the U.S. Justice Department.

In reply to Mr. Wilkins' inquiry Warren Olney III, Assistant Attorney General of the Criminal Division, and Arthur B. Caldwell, Chief of the Civil Rights Section, gave assurance on April 8 that the witness was in no way connected with the Department and did not speak for it.

Rejection of Johnson Testimony

The former Communist's testimony "concerning the alleged relationship between the NAACP and the Communist party does not, in any manner, reflect the views of this Department or any findings it has made," the Justice Department letter asserts.

The letter further points out: "Manning Johnson is not employed by the Department of Justice as Director of Research or in any other capacity. In fact there is not nor has there ever been any such position as Director of Research in this Department. Further, with respect to any testimony Manning Johnson may have given before the above mentioned committee, he had no authority to speak for or on behalf of the Department of Justice."

In his letter of inquiry to the Justice Department, Mr. Wilkins referred to "swift moves being made to fasten a Communist label upon this Association," and maintained that a "grave injustice" would be done the NAACP if the federal agency failed to clarify its connection, if any, with Manning Johnson.

"In early March, a Joint Legislative Committee on Segregation of the State of Louisiana held hearings in Baton Rouge and heard invited witnesses, including three self-styled former Communists who testified on alleged connections between the Communists and the NAACP," Mr. Wilkins told the Justice Department in his letter, which was dispatched on March 28.

"One witness, Manning Johnson, is quoted in the March 18 issue of the weekly newsmagazine, South, as saying that the NAACP 'has become a vehicle of the Communist party designed to overthrow the Government of the United States,'" the NAACP official's message continued.

"A dispatch from Baton Rouge, published in the Charleston, S.C., News and Courier, March 9, 1957, carried the same quotation of Manning Johnson's testimony.

"The account in South magazine and the one in the Charleston News and Courier described Manning Johnson as 'now employed as Director of Research for the Department of Justice in Washington.' The news stories cited and similar ones sent out from Baton Rouge and widely published throughout the South give the distinct impression that an official of the Department of Justice has branded the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People as a 'vehicle of the Communist party designed to overthrow the Government of the United States.'"

Dear Mr. Fleming:

We would be grateful for any information you can send us discrediting the testimony of Manning Johnson before the Louisiana legislature investigating committee.

We need this information to reply to a letter protesting our publishing "Segregation in Sumter, South Carolina" by H.B. Sissel. Our reader believes that the N.A.A.C.P. is dominated by Communists and cites Manning Johnson's testimony as evidence.

Thank you for any help you can give.

Dear Mrs. Drummond:

The best repudiation of Manning Johnson's testimony against the NAACP has been issued by the NAACP itself. In case you have not been in touch with them, I enclose a copy of their release on the matter, a copy of a Department of Justice letter to Roy Wilkins, and an NAACP leaflet which deals in some detail with the attacks on that organization's patriotism. In the latter, note the statement by J. Edgar Hoover on page 10.

The Southern Regional Council was also slurred by Mr. Johnson. I am enclosing a copy of a letter from our President, written to State Senator W. M. Rainach.

As you probably know, Johnson himself is a professional witness whose irresponsible testimony on past occasions has thoroughly discredited him. His accusations against Ralph Bunche sometime ago were exposed as fraudulent. When the Subversive Activities Control Board was holding hearings on the Communist Party, Johnson was one of those who testified. When the SACB later issued its findings on the Communist Party, it specifically threw out Johnson's testimony as "tainted."

The NAACP, like the SRC, has never been cited by the Attorney General or the House Un-American Activities Committee, or any other responsible body, as being less than patriotic. Of course, the problem of unprincipled use of "raw" material from the House Committee's files to build up a specious case of guilt by association against reputable individuals is a continuing problem. As you know, the classic exposure of this technique was made by Bishop Oxnam a few years ago.

If we can be of further help on this or other matters, let me know.

The Honorable W. M. Rainach

My dear Senator Rainach:

This is to acknowledge your letter of March 26th. I have delayed replying until now so that we might have an opportunity to check the quotation from the Daily Worker cited in your transcript of Manning Johnson's testimony.

We are glad to have identified the source of this baseless charge made by Mr. Johnson against the Southern Regional Council. As I wrote you on March 14, the allegation that Communists were in any way responsible for the founding of the Council is clearly refuted by contemporary newspaper accounts and other responsible documentation. It is strange, indeed, that a self-serving statement in the Daily Worker in 1954, ten years after the event, should be accepted as reliable evidence to the contrary.

We do not share the unquestioning faith which Mr. Johnson -- though we hope not your committee -- has in the accuracy and truthfulness of the Daily Worker. It is well established that the Communist Party and its press have no scruples about claiming credit for any achievement when it suits their purpose of the moment to do so. To slur the reputations of a thoroughly patriotic organization and reputable individuals on the basis of this kind of "evidence" -- particularly when there is an abundance of reliable evidence in refutation -- would hardly become a responsible official body.

We note in the newspaper account of Manning Johnson's testimony that he is quoted as saying the Southern Regional Council is a "transmission belt of Communist infiltration in the South." This statement does not appear in the portion of the transcript reproduced in your letter of March 26th.

This charge is as false and unfounded as the one concerning the origin of the Council. We would be interested to know whether it was, in fact, made by Mr. Johnson, and, if so, whether it was also based on the false reference to the Council in the Daily Worker of December 1, 1954.

Sincerely yours,

M. A. Wright

AN ANALYSIS OF THE ATTACK ON SRC
IN THE FIRING LINE OF MAY 15, 1957

The Firing Line is the publication of the American Legion's National Americanism Commission, P. O. Box 1055, Indianapolis, Indiana. The Americanism Commission appears to reflect the most extreme right-wing opinion to be found within the Legion's official family. In the past, the Firing Line has attacked many reputable organizations and individuals. It seems to accept without question the testimony and charges of professional accusers (e.g., Manning Johnson, the late Paul Crouch) even though they have long since been discredited and much of their specific testimony has been found by such official groups as the Subversive Activities Control Board to be false and unreliable.

In the issue of May 15th, the Firing Line contains an article on the Southern Regional Council. This article presents in the guise of facts allegations against SRC and various of its past and present board members that range from outright falsehoods to cunning distortions designed to support utterly unfounded conclusions. Following is a point by point analysis; the indented paragraphs are quoted verbatim from the Firing Line.

> Readers of the April 15, 1957 issue of the Firing Line will recall the Council was identified as a "Southern Red front by MANNING JOHNSON on March 8, 1957 before the State of Louisiana Legislative > Committee on Segregation." The Firing Line report also revealed testimony which reflected the Council was "formed by JAMES E. JACKSON, a Southern organizer of the Communist Party" and "is affiliated with the Mississippi Council on Human Relations."

The Louisiana State body referred to here was set up to combat desegregation and is headed by State Senator William M. Rainach, who is also the chief leader of the White Citizens Councils in that state. Manning Johnson is a self-styled ex-Communist whose testimony has been repudiated by the U. S. Department of Justice and the Subversive Activities Control Board. His testimony about SRC is demonstrably false. The founding of SRC by a group of outstanding Southerners is a matter of public record. The incorporators were Bishop Arthur J. Moore of The Methodist Church, Ralph McGill, editor of The Atlanta Constitution, Dr. Rufus E. Clement, president of Atlanta University, the late Dr. Charles S. Johnson, president of Fisk University, and the late Dr. Howard W. Odum, professor of sociology at the University of North Carolina. Any claim that these men would have permitted the James E. Jackson in question or any other person of Communistic persuasion to play any part in the founding of the organization is fantastic. The founding of SRC is a matter of extensive public record, as reported in the press and official documents, all clearly showing that this charge is an outright falsehood.

The statement that SRC "is affiliated with the Mississippi Council on Human Relations" is both inaccurate and irrelevant. The Mississippi Council is a thoroughly respectable body of citizens of that State, including among its officers the wife of a cotton broker and the Catholic Bishop of Mississippi. It was for a time affiliated with the Southern Regional Council (not vice versa) though it now functions as an independent group.

> Records of the American Legion reveal a definite trend of interrelationship between the SRC and the Southern Conference For Human Welfare, a defunct Communist front organization. According to the files of the National Americanism Commission, the following 16 former Directors of the SRC have been supporters of this aforementioned subversive organization: CHARLOTTE H. BROWN, LOUIS E. BURNHAM, GEORGE E. CLARY, HERBERT DAVIDSON, J. M. ELLISON, CLARK H. FOREMAN, GUY B. JOHNSON, DAVID D. JONES, GEORGE S. MITCHELL, HOWARD W. ODUM, F. D. PATTERSON, EDWIN A. PENICK, HOMER P. RAINEY, IRA DeA. REID, FORRESTER B. WASHINGTON and AUBREY WILLIAMS.

The charge that SRC was related to the Southern Conference for Human Welfare continues to be used by the detractors of this organization although it has long since and repeatedly been refuted. SRC was the official successor to the Commission on Interracial Cooperation, founded in 1919 by a group of outstanding Southern churchmen. SRC came into existence at a time when the Southern Conference had been operating for six years, and it was attacked by some persons on the grounds that it was a more conservative organization set up in competition with the Southern Conference. It was never in any way connected with the Southern Conference.

The spurious technique of connection-by-association used here was exposed for what it is by the Atlanta Constitution in 1953. At that time, Dr. Rufus E. Clement, the distinguished president of Atlanta University, had announced his candidacy for the Atlanta Board of Education. Pro-segregationists sought to have him disqualified, using as the Firing Line does the charge that he had once served on the board of the Southern Conference for Human Welfare. The Atlanta Constitution on May 12, 1953 editorialized as follows:

ATTACK ON CLEMENT IS DIRTY POLITICS

>  A member of the [City Executive Committee] board has charged that Dr. Clement is a Communist sympathizer because he once belonged to the now defunct Southern Conference for Human Welfare.
> This newspaper is proud of the fact that it contributed largely to the demise of that organization. We were > twice threatened with lawsuits because of our exposure of it; therefore, we believe we have some authority to speak.

>
> The Southern Conference for Human Welfare was organized by honest, loyal Americans, with a viewpoint to organizing all constructive forces in the South to improve the South's economic and social status. It later was infiltrated by Communists, but for a good many years it was composed of and led by persons of unquestioned loyalty, during which time its membership was about 99.95 per cent loyal. It offers the typical example of a few rotten Communists spoiling a good barrel of apples.
> Even so, it was not until a good many years had passed, and after most of the membership had withdrawn, including Dr. Clement, that persons of suspected communistic tendencies took over what remained of the organization. They did not long endure, largely because this newspaper exposed them and kept upon them the full light of publicity. Therefore, we feel free to say that this smear attack on Dr. Clement was false and unworthy, and those conducting it reflect no credit on themselves, our city, state and region.

Suffice it to say that Dr. Clement's qualifications were upheld by the City Executive Committee, he was overwhelmingly elected in the primary, and he has recently been re-elected to the Atlanta Board of Education.

In this incident and in the Atlanta Constitution's editorial reproduced above lies the full explanation of the dishonest technique used by the Firing Line and SRC's racist critics in their attempts to discredit this organization.

It might further be noted that among the 16 former directors whose past presence on the board of SRC is supposed to have infected it with subversive sympathies are the following:

Dr. George E. Clary, Executive Secretary of the Southeastern Jurisdiction of the Methodist Church.

Mr. Herbert Davidson, Editor and Publisher of the Daytona Beach News and Journal.

Dr. J. M. Ellison, Chancellor of Virginia Union University.

The late Dr. Howard W. Odum, nationally famous scholar of the University of North Carolina.

The Reverend Edwin Penick, the presiding Episcopal Bishop of Raleigh, North Carolina.

The distinguished positions held by these individuals and their impeccable reputations in the South and North alike are enough, in themselves, to refute the insinuations of the Firing Line.

> The files of The American Legion reflect the following 9 current SRC Directors have also been affiliated with the subversive Southern Conference For Human Welfare: RUFUS B. ATWOOD, PAUL R. CHRISTOPHER, RUFUS E. CLEMENT, A. W. DENT, BENJAMIN E. MAYS, H. COUNCILL TRENHOLM, E. C. PETERS, JOSEPHINE WILKINS and MARION A. WRIGHT.

The same answer as that given above also applies here. Consider the positions held by these nine current directors:

Dr. Rufus B. Atwood, president of the state-supported Kentucky State College.

Mr. Paul R. Christopher, regional director of the AFL-CIO who serves by appointment of Governor Clement on an official state commission of Tennessee.

Dr. R. E. Clement, identified above.

Dr. Albert W. Dent, president of Dillard University of New Orleans.

Dr. Benjamin E. Mays, president of Morehouse College and one of this nation's most prominent leaders in the World Council of Churches.

Dr. H. Councill Trenholm, president of the state-supported Alabama State College in Montgomery.

Dr. E. C. Peters, president emeritus of Methodist-supported Paine College in Augusta, Georgia.

Miss Josephine Wilkins, former administrator of the Fact-Finding Movement of Georgia and past president of the League of Women Voters of Georgia.

Mr. Marion A. Wright, respected attorney, former chairman of the South Carolina Library Board, past president of the University of South Carolina Alumni Association.

If the worst that can be charged against the Southern Regional Council is that these distinguished Southerners served on its board, the organization can be proud indeed.

> For the information of Firing Line readers, the following 8 current Directors of the Council have been affiliated with the aforementioned Southern Conference Educational Fund, Inc., which was fully exposed in the July 1, 1955 issue of this publication: F. WOODS BECKMAN, BLAILSFORD (sic) R. BRAZEAL, RUFUS E. CLEMENT, JAMES M. DABBS, CHARLES G. GOMILLION, DUNCAN HUNTER, BENJAMIN E. MAYS and JOSEPHINE WILKINS. It may be of interest to recall that former SRC Director AUBREY WILLIAMS has been President of the Southern Conference Educational Fund since 1948. He was named as a member of the Communist Party during the Senate Internal Security Subcommittee's 1954 hearings.

The Southern Conference Educational Fund is the successor to the Southern Conference for Human Welfare. Three of the individuals named in this paragraph were named in the preceding one. The others include the Dean of Morehouse College, an honorably retired Federal Government employee, a South Carolina planter who is a leading layman of the Southern Presbyterian Church, the Dean of Tuskegee Institute, and a Methodist clergyman of Alabama. A special case is made of Aubrey Williams, who once served on the SRC board and is now president of the Southern Conference Educational Fund. It is reported that charges of past Communist affiliation were made against Mr. Williams in 1954. Mr. Williams resigned from SRC's board more than ten years ago, long before these charges were made. However, it should be noted that he categorically and under oath denied the charges made against him in 1954 and his sworn denial still stands unchallenged in the official record. The charge was made by a professional witness, another self-styled ex-Communist whose testimony on other occasions was proved false.

Allen Rankin, columnist for the conservative Montgomery Advertiser, wrote of the hearing at which Mr. Williams was accused: "(Senator)

Eastland admitted to a newsman: 'I don't think either of the Durrs or Williams are Communists.' Yet these people... were accused and insulted and browbeaten."

It should be clear to any thoughtful person that the cynical technique of guilt by association used here in its most far-fetched form to indict the Southern Regional Council can be used at least as damagingly against any honest, patriotic body of citizens.

It is possible, for example, to extend the charges of the Firing Line to "prove" that the Catholic Church is under the influence of Communist sympathizers. Several Catholic clergymen took part at one time in the activities of the Southern Conference for Human Welfare. One of the founders of the SRC was then Bishop, now Archbishop Gerald P. O'Hara, one of the leading Catholic dignitaries in the United States. From the very beginning, the Executive Committee of the Southern Regional Council has included a Catholic clergyman. Among the contributors to SRC have been two Catholic bishops and two archbishops. The president of SRC from 1945 to 1951 was Mr. Paul D. Williams of Richmond, Virginia, a co-founder of the Catholic Committee of the South, a Knight of St. Gregory, and one of the leading laymen of his Church. In 1953, the Catholic Committee of the South conferred its annual award on Dr. George S. Mitchell in recognition of his work as executive director of the Southern Regional Council. It would be interesting to see what the Firing Line would make of this "definite trend of interrelationship."

The same artificial case could, of course, be made against the Methodists, the Presbyterians, and other religious and civic groups that have been heavily represented on the board and in the activities of SRC.

The use of past associations with the Southern Conference for Human Welfare can be carried to even greater lengths. On April 3, 1945, the Southern Conference for Human Welfare staged a dinner in Washington, D. C., honoring Justice Hugo Black. This affair is reported in detail in the Southern Conference publication, The Southern Patriot, special supplement May 1945, and in contemporary newspaper accounts. The toastmaster on this occasion was then Senator, later Vice-President Alben W. Barkley. At the speaker's table was none other than the Honorable James F. Byrnes, who has since crowned his distinguished career with a term as Governor of South Carolina and one of the leading champions of segregation. Among the sponsors of the dinner were Secretary of State Edward Stettinius, Secretary of Defense James Forrestal, President Harry S. Truman, and other distinguished Americans. Senator Barkley congratulated the Southern Conference on the "great work" it was doing.

This affair is mentioned only to demonstrate how the false standard of association applied by the Firing Line and other critics of SRC can be applied to discredit a host of reputable individuals and the organizations on whose board they serve. Clearly, past affiliation or association with the Southern Conference, cannot honestly be used to impeach the integrity of individuals whose careers testify to their character and patriotism. Still less can the presence of such individuals on the board of another organization be honestly used as evidence against the character of that organization.

Finally, it should be noted that nowhere in the charges against the SRC is there the slightest evidence of word or deed that would suggest Communist or subversive tendencies within the organization. The reason, of course, is that no such evidence exists. From the beginning, the SRC has been squarely opposed to the Communist doctrine and every other totalitarian philosophy. It has worked constructively and responsibly for full enjoyment of legal and human rights by all the people of the South. Those who seek to discredit the patriotism of the Southern Regional Council do so either out of inexcusable ignorance or because they are opposed to the democratic principles for which it stands.

PROCEEDINGS AND DEBATES OF THE 85th CONGRESS, FIRST SESSION

THE SOUTHERN REGIONAL COUNCIL

Origins and Aims—Report on Negro Voters

SPEECH

OF

HON. PAUL H. DOUGLAS

OF ILLINOIS

IN THE SENATE OF THE UNITED STATES

Friday, July 26, 1957

Mr. DOUGLAS. Mr. President, at various times in the past I have quoted the publications of the Southern Regional Council. The Southern Regional Council is composed entirely of southerners, men and women of good will of both races in the South. It is in no sense a lobbying organization. I have been able to obtain material it provides through the Library of Congress, at my request.

I think the statement which has been prepared on the origins and aims of the Southern Regional Council should be printed in the RECORD at this point so as to indicate the high qualifications of the council and its emotional attachment to the South. So I ask unanimous consent, Mr. President, that the statement be printed in the RECORD at this point.

There being no objection, the statement was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

THE SOUTHERN REGIONAL COUNCIL: A BRIEF ACCOUNT OF ITS ORIGINS AND AIMS, APRIL 1956

"The South of the future toward which our efforts are directed, is a South freed of stultifying inheritances from the past. It is a South where the measure of a man will be his ability, not his race; where a common citizenship will work in democratic understanding for the common good; where all who labor will be rewarded in proportion to their skill and achievement; where all can feel confident of personal safety and equality before the law; where there will exist no double standard in housing, health, education, or other public services; where segregation will be recognized as a cruel and needless penalty on the human spirit, and will no longer be imposed; where, above all, every individual will enjoy a full share of dignity and self-respect, in recognition of his creation in the image of God." (From a Statement of Policy and Aims of the Southern Regional Council (1951).)

SRC AND THE COMMISSION ON INTERRACIAL COOPERATION

The Southern Regional Council and its predecessor, the Commission on Interracial Cooperation, have a history of 35 years of constructive activity.

In the troubled days following World War I, race conflict and the lawlessness of terror organizations reached such proportions that the need for new techniques of restoring harmony could not be ignored. To meet this need, interracial committees were formed in cities and towns throughout the South. It was found that by bringing together influential members of both races grievances could be aired, mutual problems discussed, and a meeting of minds effected. This method had such beneficial results that interracial committees became an established part of the life of the South in the early twenties. Their influence became southwide through the formation of the Commission on Interracial Cooperation, a central organization with headquarters in Atlanta.

The commission was founded in 1919 by a group of the South's leading church men and women. Among them were Dr. M. Ashby Jones, prominent Baptist minister, Dr. John Hope, president of Atlanta University, Mr. John J. Eagan, businessman and philanthropist, Dr. Plato Durham, dean of the Emory University Theology School, Dr. Robert Moton, president of Tuskegee Institute, and Dr. Will W. Alexander, the commission's director. Its work in behalf of sound race relations was acclaimed by the South's leading newspapers, religious leaders, and by many public officials.

The commission helped organize, extend, and guide the work of State and local interracial committees. It assisted them in making their influence felt by newspapers, civil authorities, churches, school officials, police administrators, and health officers. It gave much attention to factual analysis of the problem of lynching and other forms of interracial violence. Its auxiliary, the Association of Southern Women for the Prevention of Lynching, under the direction of Mrs. Jessie Daniel Ames, did much to educate public opinion in the causes and possible remedies for such violence.

From these early activities, the commission built up a body of acquaintance and confidence that has been an increasing asset through the years. The traditional barrier between the races was broken down to allow an interchange of ideas and mutual trust. The notion of cooperative action by people of good will, both white and Negro, took root and has continued to grow. In its 25 years of operation, the commission made the meeting of white and Negro citizens for the discussion of common problems an accepted practice almost everywhere in the South. It marshalled thousands of southern church people in opposition to lynching and other injustices, brought new light to bear on race relations, issued 2 million copies of pamphlets and leaflets, and symbolized the faith of the southern white people and Negro people in the processes of mutual agreement and cooperation.

Transition to SRC

In 1939 the leaders of the commission began to explore the possibility of expanding the activities of the organization to permit a broader approach to the problems of the South. In October, 1940, the commission instructed its executive committee to "take whatever steps are necessary to carry out the plans for the formation of a council on southern regional development," which would include in its program "the work of the commission and other activities connected with the economic, educational, and social development of the South."

Meanwhile the efforts of other progressive southerners were leading them to a similar purpose. The first movement in that direction took place when a group of southern Negro leaders met in Durham, N. C., on October 20, 1942, to set forth just what the Negro wants and is expecting of the postwar South and Nation, and to enlist the aid of interested white southerners. The result of this historic conference was a comprehensive statement covering the following areas: Political and civil rights, industry and labor, service occupations, education, agriculture, military service, and social welfare and health. Many social thinkers regarded the Durham statement as the most hopeful pronouncement on race relations that had come out of the South in the last 75 years.

In April 1943 a group of southern white leaders met in Atlanta to consider the statement of the Durham conference. These white leaders found the statement so frank and courageous, so free from any suggestion of threat and ultimatum, and so demonstrative of good will, that they gladly pledged their cooperation. "The need," they concluded, "is for a positive program arrived at in an atmosphere of understanding, cooperation, and mutual respect."

SRC organized

Representatives of both the Durham and Atlanta conferences met in Richmond in June 1943, to work out further details. The Durham statement was adopted as a general guide to action, and a continuing committee was appointed to devise practical means of approach. The organizing meeting of the council was held in response to a call issued by some of the South's finest leadership, including C. H. Gillman, Georgia director, CIO; George L. Googe, southern director, AFL; M. Ashby Jones, Baptist minister; Ryland Knight, Baptist minister; Rabbi David Marx, The Temple, Atlanta; Bishop Arthur J. Moore, the Methodist Church; Ralph McGill, editor, the Atlanta Constitution; Stuart R. Oglesby, Presbyterian minister; Most Rev. Gerald P. O'Hara, bishop of Savannah-Atlanta; Dean S. Paden, president, King Hardware Co.; J. McDowell Richards, president, Columbia Theological Seminary; Bishop John Moore Walker, the Protestant Episcopal Church; Goodrich C. White, president, Emory University.

Following the deliberations of this group and a subsequent conference with southern Negro leaders, the SRC was chartered early in 1944. The incorporators were Bishop Arthur J. Moore; Ralph McGill; Dr. Rufus E. Clement, president of Atlanta University; Dr. Charles S. Johnson, president of Fisk University; and Dr. Howard W. Odum, professor of sociology at the University of North Carolina. At the charter meeting, the Commission on Interracial Cooperation met and formally merged its program and assets with those of the council. A strong and democratic council had been established to attain through research and action the ideals and practices of equal opportunity for all peoples in the region.

Since this auspicious beginning, the council's membership has included distinguished southerners, white and Negro, in all walks of life. Dr. Odum was the first president of the organization. He was succeeded by Paul D. Williams, of Richmond, Va., a prominent Catholic layman and cofounder of the Catholic Committee of the South. Mr. Williams served as president for 6 years—from 1945 until 1951. He was succeeded by Mr. Marion A. Wright, widely known as a South Carolina attorney active in civic and educational affairs, now living in Linville Falls, N. C.

How SRC works

The Southern Regional Council consists of a board of some 30 southerners representing the major religious faiths, both races, and the 13 States of the region. These people are the Southern Regional Council. They make the policies and review all activities at an annual meeting. They elect an executive committee which meets at least every 3 months to give closer direction to the organization. And full reports of all activities are sent to the members quarterly. The council is nonprofit, nonpolitical, and nondenominational.

Financial support for the council has come from many different individuals and organizations. Some of the organizations are: the Julius Rosenwald Fund, General Education Board, the Fund for the Republic, Division of Home Missions and Church Extension of the Methodist Church, Woman's Division of Christian Service of the Methodist Church, Phelps-Stokes Fund, Catholic Committee of the South, Board of Education of the Methodist Church, Ashby Jones Memorial Fund, Committee on Woman's Work of the Presbyterian Church of the United States, the National Council of the Protestant Episcopal Church, the Marshall Field Foundation, the Doris Duke Foundation, various trade unions, and some business firms. Individuals support the council through contributions, legacies, and payment of membership dues.

What SRC does

The council's present functions may be summarized as follows: (1) Clearinghouse and coordinating work with numerous agencies working on southern problems; (2) research and survey to determine the facts and the state of public opinion as a basis for sound social action; (3) educational activities through a monthly bulletin, the New South, and through pamphlets, press, radio, television, conferences, and personal contacts; (4) consultative services to private and official agencies; (5) promotion of specific programs of action through the council staff and affiliated State organizations.

Following are some of the areas with which the SRC's educational program has been concerned:

Employment of Negro policemen in southern communities.

Newspaper handling of racial news.

Community self-surveys, in which local people of both races study their problems as a basis for achieving local solutions.

Conferences of leading white and Negro southerners with common concerns and a common desire to further democratic practices in their areas of interest—religion, health, housing, education, etc.

Voluntary decisions to open professional associations, private colleges, public libraries, and the like to all qualified persons without respect to race.

The right to vote without racial discrimination or intimidation.

Impartial enforcement of the law and administration of justice in the South.

Orderly compliance at the community level with the recent decisions of the Supreme Court holding public school segregation unconstitutional.

Church support

Church people have always been the moving force in the southern interracial movement. This is as true today as it was 35 years ago. All of the major religious groups represented in the South have taken their stand in favor of the principle embodied in the Supreme Court's segregation ruling. The Court ruling was endorsed by the Southern Baptist Convention, many of the southern conferences of the Methodist Church, the General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church (southern), the Province of Sewanee (southeastern) of the Protestant Episcopal Church, the Catholic Bishops of the South, the various Jewish religious and fraternal groups, and virtually all of the other denominations found in the South. It is only natural that many religious southerners should seek to put the principles of their faith into everyday practice.

The Southern Regional Council and the affiliated State groups have enjoyed both financial and moral support from religious bodies representing the three major faiths.

Dr. George S. Mitchell, executive director of the council, received the 1953 annual award of the Catholic committee of the South "for his significant contribution to the welfare of the South."

Affiliated State organizations

With the aid of a grant from the Fund for the Republic, the Southern Regional Council is assisting interracial organizations in 12 Southern States—Alabama, Arkansas, Florida, Georgia, Kentucky, Louisiana, Mississippi, North Carolina, South Carolina, Tennessee, Texas, and Virginia. Each of these organizations has its own membership, officers, and staff. In each case, people of the State involved make their own decisions as to policy and program. Affiliation with the Southern Regional Council is voluntary, and the purpose of the short-term financial aid from SRC is to help the State groups become strong, self-sustaining human relations agencies.

Toward the South of the future

The Southern Regional Council's main asset is and has always been those southerners who believe deeply in democratic practices, and who know firsthand the problems of the region. On such people rest the hopes of the South. They have wanted a regional organization, not out of any provincial desire to separate the South's problems from the Nation's, but out of the conviction that such an organization has unique advantages. It can express the best and often neglected elements of Southern thought and conscience; it can serve as a convincing demonstration of southerners working together as fellow citizens without regard to race; and it can tap local resources and initiative often inaccessible to national groups.

The Southern Regional Council and its affiliates seek to be practical organizations, aiming at working solutions rather than spectacular pronouncements. They hold the belief that every community must ultimately find its own answers within the framework of law and conscience. They offer no master blueprint, no sovereign remedy for the South's human problems. But they do offer a method—that of representative citizens, white and Negro, coming together in equal dignity to find the best ways to move ahead.

Mr. DOUGLAS. Mr. President, following the statement with respect to the Southern Regional Council, I ask unanimous consent to have printed in the body of the RECORD a most extraordinarily able survey the Southern Regional Council has made, which is just off the press, under date of July 18, 1957. Again I wish to emphasize I have obtained the material at my request from the Library of Congress to show that it was in no sense forced upon me, so to speak.

The survey deals State by State with the various ways in which Negroes are prevented from voting in the South. I highly commend this factual account to the Members of the Senate, as we debate part IV of the bill.

There being no objection, the survey was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

THE NEGRO VOTER IN THE SOUTH—PART OF A REPORT OF A SURVEY BY THE SOUTHERN REGIONAL COUNCIL

(Furnished on his request to Senator DOUGLAS by the Library of Congress, Legislative Reference Service)

DISCRIMINATION AND INTIMIDATION

Just as the main segregationist movement has switched from the white sheet of the Ku Klux Klan to the white collar of the citizens council, so has the pattern of discrimination against the Negro southerner changed in recent years.

In no field is this gradual shift to subtler methods seen more clearly than in a study of Negro registration and voting. Killings, beatings, the dragging of Negroes from their homes in the middle of the night—these are now rare occurrences, compared to previous decades.

Overt violence is, in brief, the exception rather than the rule for racist dealing with assertive Negro citizens. The threat of violent tactics, however, is kept alive in some areas by anonymous telephone calls to Negro leaders. Crosses still are burned, jobs threatened. Occasionally, homes are shot into or bombed.

But, today, with less obvious means employed generally, Negroes interested in voting are far more likely to be barred by a question on the Constitution than by a rope or whip.

Alabama

The Alabama consultant directed a field survey in each of the counties in his State. According to these reports:

Negroes might be treated courteously, as in Bullock County, Ala., where the board of registrars has received Negro applicants pleasantly, let them fill out forms, then told them they didn't pass—with no reasons given. In this county, with 5,423 Negroes of voting age, only 6 were registered in the summer of 1956. In 1953, more than 100 attempted to register; in 1955, only 20 even tried, and of these 19 were refused. One of the six registered succeeded only on his seventh trip to the board.

In other counties of central Alabama, like Bullock, Negroes encounter greater difficulty. This is the black-belt section of the State, so-called because of the dark rich soil, an area where 15 counties have populations over 50 percent Negro.

Among these is Dallas, where only 275 of the 18,132 Negroes of voting age are registered.[1] In 1956 alone, at least 350 were turned down. Some reported that they filled out questionnaires 3 or 4 times but still were not sent registration certificates. Many reported they were given no help in filling out forms although white applicants were. One Negro teacher who registered was fired allegedly for being "too smart;" this frightened many other teachers.

Marengo, another county in the Alabama black belt, simply seems to have stopped registering Negroes. Of 10,223 eligible, 170 were registered before the Supreme Court decision calling for an end to segregated schools. This, plus formation of a local citizens council, is reported to have hardened the lines of white resistance to Negro equality and to have put the brakes on Negro registration.

In Monroe County, Ala., where 140 of the 5,914 Negroes of voting age are registered, other hopeful applicants said more often than not they found the board of registrars had "misplaced the application forms" or told them to return later. Registrars in Hale County, where 130 of 7,036 eligible Negroes are on the voting roll, have turned down 300 in the past 2 years for "failure to fill out forms correctly."

One Negro teacher in Alabama said she was refused because she didn't know the address of her estranged husband. Many Alabama boards require two voters to vouch for all Negro applicants and some require Negroes to produce white character witnesses. Registrars in one county where about 2 percent of nearly 7,000 Negroes over 21 have registered announced that a "good white man" must accompany Negro applicants.

In a black-belt county which is somewhat less than 50 percent Negro, registrars closed their office when a group of Negroes appeared. Other Negro applicants said they were told when the board would meet but then found no one present on arrival. A Negro leader who encouraged other Negroes to vote reported he was threatened anonymously by telephone and told to stop his activities or he would be run out of town. Only about 200 of over 5,000 Negroes have registered.

A Negro leader in Coosa County, Ala., also said he was threatened. Crosses were burned in front of the homes of two leaders of a Negro voters' drive in Choctow County. In the latter, 112 of 4,819 Negroes of voting age are registered; 28 said they were turned down on their first try, but accepted the second time. Most of those initially refused are teachers; maids and yardmen have found it somewhat easier to enroll.

Birmingham and surrounding Jefferson County present one of the gloomiest pictures for Negroes in the South. In no other major city of the region has it been so difficult for them to vote. Only about 7,000 of 121,510 Negroes over 21 are registered; at least that many more have been turned down. Instead of the standard form and the character witnesses, Jefferson County registrars have employed another method unique in the State: Added questions about government. They might ask on what date the 10th amendment to the Constitution became effective, what was the 14th State to be admitted to the Union, on what date did Oklahoma change from a territory to a State? They have recognized no limits to their power to interrogate. While Negroes have been the board's main target, white union members, particularly if they wear overalls or work clothes, have reported that they sometimes find registration difficult or impossible. Negroes appearing before the board often have been questioned for from 35 to 40 minutes; they have had to line up separately, and the longer the line the longer the questioning.

Strong, in his study of Jefferson County, described the method used by registrars to avoid suits with the following hypothetical case: a person who failed to satisfy the board was told orally he did not qualify; the applicant then secured an attorney and filed a suit, which was a signal for the board to register the plaintiff. His suit collapsed and no court has an opportunity to pass on section 33 of the Alabama Code and the "qualified to register" phrase.[2]

In Macon County, Ala., home of famed Tuskegee Institute, many college trained Negroes have found the barriers impregnable. Negroes outnumber white persons about 5 to 1; of the 14,526 of voting age, 1,100 have registered. By contrast, the Associated Press reported in April 1956, that 2,700 out of a total Macon County white population of 5,000 had registered, or that fewer than 100 white persons over 21 had failed to do so. An Alabama observer said that the board of registrars would sit until all white citizens interested had registered and then resign. In any event, for the major part of 1956, there was no board in the county, for 2 of the 3 members resigned and it takes at least 2 to transact business. This was at least the third time in a decade this had happened.

North Carolina

In North Carolina, as in other States with literacy laws, the registrar has considerable latitude. He can have the applicant copy indicated sections of the State constitution or he can dictate. Some Negroes have protested the use of dictation, since a registrar often reads too fast or uses a particularly difficult section. However, the State board of elections has upheld a registrar's right to use this means of testing.

A Negro attorney in a rural eastern county of North Carolina said that in certain precincts of this and adjoining counties, "It takes a white man only a few minutes to get registered, but it may take an hour for a Negro. Actually, the latter is given an academic rather than a literacy test. In this county, the tests are tough and the literacy rate low, which doubly handicaps the Negro. The tests given here actually require an interpretation of law."

A Negro college graduate in North Carolina who attempted to register for the May 1956, primary said he was turned down because he could not write a section of the State constitution from memory. Some registrars who want to disqualify Negroes have asked for a definition of such words as "ordained," "sovereignty," "posterity," etc. The replies often do not satisfy the registrar.

But there are counties throughout the State, including the rural piedmont and eastern sections, where literacy requirements are ignored for anyone, white or Negro, who wants to register. In others, only Negroes are required to do some reading. In some rural North Carolina counties, Negroes can register with a minimum of trouble only if sponsored by white persons.

Louisiana

Louisiana applicants for registration have been given a rather complicated form and the law has barred any help in filling it out. In most instances, completion is regarded as evidence of literacy although the registrar may, if he wishes, examine an applicant. There has been wide variation in the practice of helping applicants and in the strictness with which forms are scrutinized for mistakes. In some parishes, Negroes have found it almost impossible to satisfy the high standards demanded of them. In others, both Negroes and whites have been permitted to copy from previously completed forms and mistakes have been overlooked.

If a person is unable to complete the form satisfactorily, he still may qualify in some parts of Louisiana. In a number of parishes many white and Negro illiterates have registered under the physical disability provision of the State constitution. This makes it possible in some instances to control their ballot, because such registrants are entitled to ask for assistance in voting. Practice varies widely with respect to registration of illiterates but, as a rule, where literate Negroes have found it easy to qualify, illiterate Negroes also have met few obstacles.

Under one Louisiana statute which adds to the difficulties of Negro voting, two bona fide registered voters can challenge by affidavit the right of a person to be registered. The person challenged has to respond within 10 days by appearing before the registrar to prove his right to remain on the voting list. If a person fails to appear, his name is removed automatically. Citizens council groups have purged several hundred Negroes from voting lists through this device in more than a dozen parishes, including Natchitoches, Webster, and La Salle. They are able to learn which Negroes have registered under another Louisiana law which permits any 25 registered voters, by application, to copy or photostat registration records.

The Colfax Chronicle, county weekly of Grant Parish, reported (October 12, 1956) that members of the citizens council worked in the registrar's office that week in a frank effort to disfranchise the county's 864 Negro voters. The Chronicle also reported:

Their action followed a White Citizens Council meeting in Dry Prong attended by State Senator William Rainach and other Louisiana segregation advocates. W. J. B. Jones of Colfax County, WCC president, said the group voted unanimously to try to purge Negro voters. Louis Earl Stevens, council secretary, subsequently estimated that at least 90 percent of the Negro registrants were challenged in Grant Parish.

Where, instead of writing out colored on registration blanks the applicant simply put "C," the applications were challenged as being incorrect. Each Negro's age in years, days, and months was refigured and often found off by a day or so. The Chronicle checked the first 100 white registrations in one ward and found only one card which would meet the standards set by the WCC for Negroes. Four, including the superintendent of schools, figured their ages incorrectly. In a further check, the Chronicle discovered that not a single member of a citizens council committee had filled in correctly all the blanks. Needless to say, only the Negroes were challenged. Of the more than 700 Negroes purged 2 weeks before the November general election, 399 had cleared the challenges a week before the deadline.

The Chronicle commended Registrar Maxine Mosley for her fairness in dealing with the Negroes challenged.

Not all members of the white community supported the purge effort. District Attorney Sam L. Wells said he would be a witness and sign affidavits for those challenged registrants whose place of residence he knew of his own personal knowledge. J. M. Straughan of route 8, Colfax, wrote the Chronicle:

"I'm a southerner born and raised right here in central Louisiana and I am opposed to integration as strongly as any southerner could be. But what has integration got to do with the removal of Negroes from the registration rolls. I for one, will be glad to sign an affidavit for those colored voters I know to help keep them from being imposed on."

On February 25, 1957, the Justice Department made public some FBI findings on registration of Negroes in Louisiana. Assistant Attorney General Warren Olney III, said the FBI material indicated that testimony by Louisiana Attorney General Jack P. Gremillion to a House Judiciary Subcommittee "might have left a misleading impression in a number of respects." Olney's statement was in a letter to Chairman EMANUEL CELLER, Democrat, of New York, who presided at hearings in which Gremillion testified against the Eisenhower administration's civil-rights proposals.[3]

Olney said that Gremillion had mentioned "some difficulty with respect to voting" in Ouachita Parish, but contended this was "more or less an exception."

In fact, Olney asserted, the FBI investigated the handling of registrations in 10 Louisiana parishes and found that 8,552 Negroes were challenged when they tried to register in 1956.

Olney said that in Ouachita Parish there were some 4,000 registered Negro voters in the early fall of 1956 but that after a purge in October "there were in excess of 3,000 Negro voters deprived of the right to vote in the general election of November 6."

The Justice Department official challenged a number of Gremillion's statements, including his claim that registrants had a free choice in selecting the section of the United States Constitution they wished to interpret as part of their test.

"In none of the 10 parishes is there any evidence that the registrar permitted the applicant to choose which clause of the Constitution he wished to interpret," Olney said.

"Specifically, in the case arising from Ouachita Parish, the investigation by the FBI disclosed that the registrar of voters in examining applicants used a card on which was written an excerpt from the Constitution, which card was given to the registrar by the Citizens Council of Ouachita Parish."

Gremillion had told the committee that when a registered voter was challenged, the registrar sent a record of the challenge to the registrant, including a reply form, giving him 10 days to appear and establish his right to remain on the rolls by presenting statements from three voters registered in the same parish.

Olney said this did not appear to be the general practice in the parishes investigated. In six, he added, registrars "did everything to discourage the filing of reply affidavits in the statutory form and generally refused them when offered." He told Chairman CELLER that the FBI found instances of registrars refusing to accept white persons as supporting witnesses for Negroes on grounds they were of a different race.

There appeared to be a concerted effort in October 1956 by white citizens councils in Louisiana and other Southern States to get Negro registrants off the rolls or to prevent their registration, Olney added.

"With respect only to cases which have been investigated by the FBI," he continued, "the following numbers of Negro voters were challenged in each of the following parishes:

"Bienville, 560; Caldwell, 330; De Soto, 383; Grant, 758; Jackson, 953; La Salle, 345; Lincoln, 326; Ouachita, 3,240; Rapides, 1,058; and Union, 600."

However, there still are areas in Louisiana where there are no Negro registrants to challenge. For example, in one parish, which is over 50 percent Negro, none of the 4,500 Negroes of voting age had registered at the time of the 1956 general election. Only one had tried in recent years. A local priest recounted the Negro's experience: when he appeared, the registrar immediately took him to the sheriff, who asked, "Aren't you happy here? Is something wrong with the way things operate around here? If you aren't happy perhaps we could arrange for you to leave." The hapless Negro promptly assured the sheriff of his happiness and allowed that his attempt to register had been a tragic mistake. He remained in the community but his wife lost her job.

There are no Negroes registered in Tensas, East Carroll, Madison, and West Feliciana Parishes, all counties with populations over 50 percent Negro. "In these parishes," the Louisiana consultant said, "subterfuge is unnecessary to discourage Negro registration. Negroes know they should not and cannot register and therefore rarely attempt to do so."

In the general election in November 1956 Louisiana voters defeated a proposed constitutional amendment designed to help the Citizens Council cut Negro voting even more. The measure was drafted by the legislative watchdog committee on segregation which previously had won approval easily for its proposals. The amendment, which was turned down by an unofficial total of 190,410 to 178,833, required certain administrative steps before a voter losing his registration could take the matter into court. Thus, said the Associated Press in a dispatch from Baton Rouge, it would have set up "administrative barriers to a Federal court action."

South Carolina

In South Carolina the prevalence of discriminatory tactics in some counties where Negroes are in the majority is quite evident. Registration books are moved from place to place to keep Negroes from getting a certificate; they are given literacy tests that have little to do with reading and writing the State constitution, as required by South Carolina law; Negroes complain that if a number go together to register in some counties, clerks will pass only one or two and tell the rest the books are closed for the day. In a few counties, Negroes who had been certified have complied with demands of employers and other white persons that they remove their names from registration books. Some have said they were threatened with harm for attempting to vote, and many landlords reportedly have warned their Negro tenants that if they registered they would be fired.

Calhoun County, S. C., with more than twice as many Negroes as whites—10,449 to 4,304—has no Negroes registered, although 4,437 of them are of voting age. "Any Negro who tries to get a registration certificate is called a smart Negro and sooner or later leaves the community," a field consultant said.

McCormick County, S. C., where the population split is 5,998 Negroes, 3,589 whites, also has no Negroes registered out of the 2,625 over 21. All Negroes who had registration certificates in 1948 had their names purged from the voting list. The majority of Negroes in the county are sharecroppers; reportedly, they could not sell their produce until their names were removed.

In another South Carolina county, Abbeville, where only 15 of the 3,687 Negroes of voting age are registered (as compared to 6,000 of the 8,951 whites), an atmosphere of fear was found. Three years ago a Negro cottonwood worker was said to have been beaten at night for voting. Since then, Negroes have not taken part in elections and almost all of those who had registration certificates have lost them.

Texas

Intimidation as a means of limiting Negro voting in Texas was found to be relatively rare. Recent violence in the State usually has been aimed at school integration, notably in Mansfield. There have been occasional reports of local discrimination against potential Negro voters, generally in the form of a segment of the white population playing on the ignorance of the poorly educated among the Negroes—to imply, for example, that property taxes must have been paid to vote. But, by and large, the poll tax remains the only obvious deterrent.

Virginia

While discrimination in applying provisions of the Virginia poll tax and registration law is not found generally in that State, nevertheless it has been reported in certain counties and a few cities. Some Negro leaders feel that poorer white citizens often experience the same difficulties as do Negroes.

The poll tax can be an effective barrier for the politically uninformed, the educationally handicapped, and the socially disadvantaged. Just the use of words confuses many of the poorly educated who often do not know that in paying their Virginia capitation tax they have paid their poll taxes. Some tax collectors reportedly have discouraged voting by telling Negroes they do not have to pay poll taxes. Many Negroes have reported they did not receive poll-tax bills along with their property-tax notices, as did their fellow white citizens. These and similar methods have been employed to discourage Negroes from paying their poll taxes in some counties and it often seems that only those who know the legal requirements and insist on paying can win their right to register.

As for registration itself, Negroes sometimes encounter further barriers in Virginia. The same discriminatory methods of administering literacy tests found in other States turn up here and there in the State, where in some counties Negroes have to meet all the technical requirements of grammar, punctuation, and handwriting in filling out their application forms; they alone are given reading or education tests, or have to complete printed forms containing legal phraseology. Some white registrars will see white applicants at any time but are busy or ill or do not have their books when Negroes appear. When registrars operate in their homes, this presents a particular problem because of the long-standing southern custom of Negroes appearing in white homes only in a servant capacity.

Florida

In 1940, Florida had 51 counties with no Negroes registered, by 1946, only 4, and 10 years later only 2. However, the number of counties in which Negroes are registered gives an exaggerated picture of the extent of Negro registration. In some counties Negro electors constitute a small proportion of those on the voting lists. This is seen, for example, in the following counties:

County	Negro population over 21	Negro percentage of total population	Number of Negroes registered, 1956
Flagler	872	45.6	13
Gadsden	10,930	56.1	3
Liberty	333	18.1	1
Taylor	1,945	30.5	77

In the counties where Negro suffrage is limited most sharply, fear is a major deterring factor. In parts of the State, indirect methods are used to discourage Negro voters and the open threat has been reported, too. In one county, the first Negro registrants in history were subjected to several forms of intimidation—cross burnings, bomb-throwings and shots fired into their homes. All but one of the registrants in this county withdrew their names from the rolls.

In another Florida county, in the plantation section, it was reported that Negroes, most of whom live in rural areas, are not permitted in the business district on election day. In still another county one supervisor of registration has told Negro applicants, "Come on in and register," while sitting with his legs stretched across the door. Other Negroes complained that loungers around a courthouse told them, "Go ahead and register if you can take what comes afterward."

Georgia

Field studies were made in a number of Georgia counties representative of the various subregional areas of the State. One of these is Early, located in the extreme southwest portion of Georgia on the Alabama line. It is in a cluster of counties considered the hard core of the State in terms of resistance to integration. In such counties as Early, Miller, Seminole, and Decatur, the Negro population is from 30 to 50 percent of the total. In other southwest counties such as Clay, Calhoun, Baker, Dougherty, Quitman, Randolph, Terrell, Lee, Sumter, Webster, and Stewart, the Negro percentage of the total population is over 50 percent. The means of excluding Negroes as registrants in these counties is similar to that reported in other areas of the South. In some, there is the ever present threat of racial violence, which erupts on occasions. Often, police brutality against Negroes indicates to them they cannot depend upon law enforcement authorities to offer them protection if they try to vote. In recent years, economic pressures have been directed against Negroes militant enough to demand educational and political equality.

In some instances, Georgia sheriffs, instead of the boards of registrars, question prospective Negro registrants about the Constitution. Sheriffs, being white and also the "law," Negro applicants thus receive two warnings at one time.

In Early County, only 226 Negroes of the 4,790 over 18 (the legal voting age in Georgia) are registered. Many others who went to the courthouse to register said they later were summoned to appear there before the board of registrars to answer questions. The majority of those who showed up were disqualified and those who did not were removed from the list automatically. This is an effective method of disqualifying Negroes there who often think of going to the courthouse for any reason with misgiving. They know they are not expected to drive their cars up to the courthouse square to park.

Separate ballot boxes for white and Negro votes continue in use in many Georgia counties. This practice of separating ballots on a racial basis is an indirect technique of disfranchising some of the Negro voters who are unwilling to take a chance on having white persons discover how they voted.

Often, racial incidents have an effect both in the community involved and in adjacent counties. There is disagreement on the extent to which they deter registration, but fear of violence is bound to condition the thoughts and actions of some. In Walton County, Ga., many Negroes interviewed said there is more fear of lynching outside the county than inside. This county was the scene of an unsolved daylight lynching in 1946 of 4 Negroes—2 men and 2 women, 1 of whom was pregnant. One Negro in Walton said he did not think that Negroes generally are afraid to register there. He added that the so-called leading Negroes are afraid but the Negro working by the day isn't. Negro teachers and ministers seem to be afraid because of what they may lose; but what it is, I don't know."

Arkansas

In Arkansas, on rare occasions, clerks in the sheriff's office may tend to discourage poll-tax payments through various means of discourtesy. For the most part, however, the poll tax is more important in Arkansas as a source of revenue than as a device for the disfranchisement of the Negro. In 1956, voters rejected an amendment to repeal it. Some important Negro leaders opposed its abolition. They believed that if the State dropped the poll tax it might adopt registration procedures requiring the filling out of forms or answering of questions and that Negroes then would experience far more difficulty than at present.

Mississippi

Finally, Mississippi. All forms of violence, intimidation and discrimination reported from other States were found here. Where other sections usually rely on 1 or 2 means of limiting Negro registration, Mississippi, home of the White Citizens Council, apparently uses them all. As a result, the State which has the highest percentage of Negroes in the country has the lowest percentage registered. Only 4 percent were on the list of qualified voters in 1955, although Negroes make up 41 percent of the total population of voting age.

In the 13 Mississippi counties listed as having a population of more than 50-percent Negro, a total of 14 votes was cast in the 3 elections on which information was available for 1954. Five of the counties had no Negroes qualified and 3 had 1 registered who never voted. In the 7 counties having more than 60-percent Negro population, 2 votes were cast by Negroes in 1954.

Violence, threats, and economic reprisals discouraged Negroes interested in voting in Mississippi. Some instances were publicized but it may reasonably be supposed that others went unreported. In 1955 alone, a string of reports of brutality and illegal tactics came out of the State.

In the early spring of that year, Gus Courts, a Negro grocer at Belzoni, Miss., was told to move from his home and withdraw his name as president of the local NAACP chapter. He was forced to move his grocery store and advised to remove his name from the voting rolls. He refused; and, in November 1955, he was shot and seriously wounded by a group of men in a car who fired into his store.

Recovering from his wounds, Courts told a reporter: "I've known for a long time it was coming, and I'd tried to get prepared in my mind for it. But that's a hard thing to do when you know they're going to try to slip up and steal your life in the night and not in the bright. It's bad when you know you might get shot just walking around in your store. That's a hard kind of life to lead."

Courts was puzzled as to why anyone would want to shoot him for, "I've never been a troublemaker and I've never had on handcuffs. I'm 65 years old and I've never had the vote. That's all I wanted."

Courts' predecessor as NAACP president in Belzoni, the Rev. George Washington Lee, was killed May 7, 1954. The United Press, in a story from Belzoni on the Courts shooting, gave this background on the Lee death:

"The Reverend Lee was shot, allegedly on the day he refused a request from a white citizen that he remove his name from the voters' registration list. In that death, first of three race killings in Mississippi this year, Lee reportedly was driving down a Belzoni street when a car in which two white men and a Negro were riding suddenly came from behind and a shotgun blast shattered the Negro's car."

A coroner's inquest returned a verdict of accidental death and made no reference to the wounds in the dead man's face.

Other incidents in Mississippi in 1955, as reported by wire services and newspapers: T. V. Johnson, Belzoni Negro undertaker, was told to remove his name from the voting rolls if he desired continued credit; the Rev. James Hargroves fled the State after he was threatened with the fate of the Reverend Lee if he continued to work for the NAACP. In August, Lamar Smith, a Lincoln County Negro, was shot fatally; no indictment was returned, although reports indicated there were several witnesses to the shooting. Elsewhere, the home of a Negro leader was fired upon, and crosses were burned in front of the homes of two others. There were additional instances of violence against Negroes for activities other than voting.

If, despite the harassment and brutality, Negroes still try to vote in Mississippi, there is the State's registration law to act as a deterrent. The rigid education test, the essay on citizenship, all the requirements of the tighter registration law passed in 1954, present innumerable opportunities for the white registrar opposed to Negro registration.

LEGAL, SOCIAL, AND ECONOMIC FACTORS

The legal weapon most widely used in the South to discourage Negro registration is some form of literacy or constitutional interpretation test.

This weapon is the successor to the white primary—long the most effective method of restricting voting. Another weapon effective in the past, the poll tax, also has lost much of its sting with increased economic opportunity. Today only five States retain the poll tax—Alabama, Arkansas, Mississippi, Texas, and Virginia.

Some of the requirements in Southern States based on literacy or constitutional interpretation tests include:

Alabama

In addition to the usual basic qualification, the Voters Qualification Amendment of 1951 provides: "The following persons * * * shall be qualified to register * * * those who can read and write any article of the Constitution of the United States in the English language which may be submitted to them by the board of registrars, provided, however, that no person shall be entitled to register as electors except those who are of good character and who embrace the duties and obligations of citizenship under the Constitution of the United States and under the constitution of the State of Alabama, and provided, further that * * * each applicant shall be furnished * * * a written questionnaire * * *. Such questionnaire shall be answered in writing by the applicant, in the presence of the board without assistance."

Georgia

A registrant must be able to read correctly in English any paragraph of the State or United States Constitution and correctly write the same when read to him. Only those unable to read or write because of physical inability may qualify if they can understand and give a reasonable interpretation of constitutional sections read to them. There is a property alternative: 40 acres of land in the State on which an elector resides or property in the State assessed for taxation at $500 or more.

Mississippi

In 1954, Mississippi voters approved a constitutional amendment tightening the State's registration law. It makes ability to read and write a prerequisite; before that, an applicant could register if able to read or understand the Constitution when read to him. In addition to literacy, the amendment requires a new applicant to satisfy the county registrar as to his knowledge of citizenship under a constitutional form of government and to state why he feels he should be given the right to vote and what it means to him. Applicants are to write their own statements without aid.

Virginia

Unless physically unable, the prospective voter must apply to the registrar in his own handwriting, without aid, in the presence of the registrar, stating therein his name, age, date and place of birth, residence and occupation at the time and for the 1 year next preceding and whether he has voted previously and, if so, the State, county, and precinct in which he voted last. Also, he must answer on oath any questions affecting his qualifications as an elector, submitted to him by the registrar; questions and his answers must be reduced to writing, certified by the said officer and preserved as part of his official records.

South Carolina

A registrant must be able to "read and write" any section of the State constitution. An alternative is ownership and payment of taxes for the previous year on property in the State assessed at $300 or more.

Arkansas

Except for the usual requirements of age and residence, the one dollar, noncumulative poll tax is the only requirement for voting. Members of the Armed Forces are exempt. Certain adults are required by law to possess a poll tax receipt: those receiving wages, salaries, or other compensation paid from public funds (this includes white and Negro teachers) and those who apply for a license or permit from the State.

Louisiana

A prospective voter must be able to read and write and understand the duties and obligations of citizenship "under a republican form of government." Also, he must be able to read any clause in the State or United States Constitution and give interpretation satisfactory to the registrar. If he is unable to read or write, the applicant is entitled to register if he is a person of good character and reputation, attached to the principles of the Louisiana and United States Constitutions and if he is able to interpret any section of either. If an applicant is unable to read or write due to a physical disability, then the foregoing requirements may be waived. However, such an applicant must be accompanied by two witnesses who are registered voters from the applicant's precinct. No person may be a witness for more than two applicants.

North Carolina

Prospective voters must be able to read and write any section of the Constitution to the satisfaction of the registrar, who may have the applicant copy indicated sections of the State constitution or may dictate any section he chooses.

With such broad discretion left to registrars it is easy to see why Negroes may find it almost impossible to qualify in one county and comparatively easy in the next. In the last analysis, a Negro's ability to vote in a State with a literacy law still often depends on an individual registrar's sense of justice—or prejudice.

Socioeconomic factors also operate in determining the number of Negroes who vote. Racial, economic, and social patterns of any southern community exert a powerful influence on Negro registration.

Statistics on education, urbanization, farm tenancy, income, and racial composition help paint a fairly accurate picture of why Negro registration is above or below average.

Relatively few Negroes are likely to be registered in counties where they make up a large proportion of the population, in counties where education and income medians are low, and in counties that are predominantly agricultural and have a high rate of farm tenancy.

At the same time, in counties where Negroes comprise a large part of the population, white registration tends to be above normal.

Negroes are more likely to be registered in counties where they represent a small percentage of the total population, where they are better educated, are less dependent on the whims of white landlords and employers and are in a sounder economic position generally.

There are exceptions to these generalizations, of course; but Georgia presents a fairly typical picture.

In Georgia's 157 counties with Negro population of voting age, the median percentage of eligible Negroes registered is 25. However, the range of the registration figures is wide.

In only five Georgia counties does the number of Negro registrants exceed the number of white registrants, although there are more Negroes than whites of voting age in 27 counties.

The population ratio and its effect on voting is strikingly shown in Georgia figures. In counties where the percentage of Negroes in the population is below the State average, 69 percent show Negro registration above the State median; 68 percent of the counties above the State average in Negro population are below the median in Negro registration. The association is even more marked in counties with a population over half Negro—80 percent of these fall below the median in Negro registration.

The relationship between education and political participation also turned up in the Georgia survey. In counties where Negroes rank above the State median in the number of school years completed, 89 percent also are high in Negro registration. By contrast, only 37 percent of the counties below the median in Negro educational attainment have high registration figures.

As to the significance of economic factors, it is found that of the Georgia counties having median family income above the State figure of $1,130, 61 percent have high Negro registration. In counties below the median income level, only 35 percent are high in the number of Negroes qualified to vote. In short, Negro registration tends to increase along with overall income.

Also, there is a tendency in Georgia for predominantly industrial counties to rank higher in Negro registration than those primarily agricultural. Among counties in which farm income exceeds manufacturing income, 37 percent are high in Negro registration, as contrasted with 58 percent in counties where manufacturing exceeds agricultural income.

The agricultural counties in Georgia deriving more farm income from livestock, dairying, and poultry are somewhat higher in the percentage of Negroes registered than those in which the income stems largely from row crops. Also, there is a definite relationship between tenancy and registration. Among the Georgia agricultural counties which exceed the State average in the number of farms operated by tenants, only 34 percent have high registration figures, but among the counties below the State average in tenancy, 63 percent rank high in Negro registration.

Social and economic factors which influence Negro registration in Georgia apply in large measure over much of the South.

Mr. Bennett And His Hired Witnesses

Ark. Gazette

It has not yet been determined how much the taxpayers of Arkansas paid for the Legislative Council Communist investigation, which has now concluded after serving no higher purpose than providing Attorney General Bruce Bennett a platform for a race for governor.

The fees going to J. B. Matthews, one of the discredited professional witnesses upon which Mr. Bennett relied, now total $960 and we assume that other members of the road company will be compensated on a similar basis.

Predictably, the testimony purchased at that price is already falling apart—as it would have done instantly had Mr. Bennett and the Committee permitted those who were smeared there an opportunity to reply to their accusers.

For example, Mr. Matthews identified a Horace Evans (or Adams) as being currently or formerly on the faculty of Arkansas AM&N College and being at the same time associated with the suspect Southern Conference Educational Fund. President Lawrence Davis of the College says that a check of the records of the College for several years back reveals no Horace Evans (or Adams).

Similarly Mr. Matthews named four persons he said were on the faculty of the College of the Ozarks as being associated with the Educational Fund. President Winslow S. Drummond of the College said that none of these has been on the faculty at Ozarks since he assumed the presidency in 1953, and added the simple truth that the church-related College is "militantly opposed to everything that Communism represents."

Another of the hired witnesses who has traveled with Mr. Matthews to similar hearings in Louisiana and other Southern states is Manning Johnson, a Negro who says he is a reformed Communist and whose function is to allege that the NAACP is Communist-dominated. In addition to his fee the state had to provide several state policemen as bodyguards after he allegedly received an anonymous threatening phone call — a mission that would require a vast expansion of the force if similar service were provided for all the citizens of the state who receive such messages these days.

The validity of Johnson's testimony is indicated by the record of his appearance in March, 1957, before a Louisiana investigating committee. At that session he testified that he was "now employed as director of research for the Department of Justice in Washington, D. C." After this statement was reported in the press, the Department of Justice, in reply to a query from the NAACP, released a letter over the signature of Arthur B. Caldwell, the native Arkansan who was then head of the Civil Rights Section. This official document said in part:

> Manning Johnson is not employed by the Department of Justice as director of research or in any other capacity. In fact there is not nor has there ever been any such position as director of research in this Department. Further with respect to any testimony Manning Johnson may have given before the above mentioned committee, he had no authority to speak for or on behalf of the Department of Justice. You may be assured that his testimony concerning the alleged relationship between the NAACP and the Communist Party does not, in any manner, reflect the views of this Department or any findings it has made.

The records of these professional witnesses were, of course, available to Mr. Bennett and the Committee before they were ever hired. But their road show appears to have been politically useful in Louisiana and elsewhere, so Mr. Bennett decided to try it out here. Our own regard for the intelligence of the people of Arkansas being somewhat higher than the attorney general's, we doubt that the investigation did Mr. Bennett any good even in those primitive terms—but it certainly did harm numerous citizens and institutions who have a right to expect more responsible behavior from their elected officials.

Paul --

Late yesterday afternoon Jim got a phone call from a MR. ROBERT C. SHUMAN, APT. #7, 120 LEWIS DRIVE, MARIETTA, GA., 30060. Mr. Shuman apparently heard you on WRNG Radio and has requested documentation showing the MANNING JOHNSON'S testimonies were repudiated.

I have gone through our Defense Materials files and have come up with what I think you might want to send Mr. Shuman. As is indicated in some of the materials, Manning Johnson's testimony was found to be "tainted" by the Subversive Activities Control Board in its report of August 11, 1956. There are other items here that substantiate this fact. I looked everywhere around here, including our Research Department, trying to come up with a copy of the Subversive Activities Control Board Report. There is not one here. However, if Mr. Shuman would like to see a copy in print, he could be referred to the Subversive Activities Control Board with offices in the Lafayette Building, 811 Vermont Avenue, Washington, D. C. 20445. If you wish to send the attached I'll be glad to xerox it all for you.

Dear Mr. Shuman:

Enclosed are excerpts from our files on Manning Johnson -- a newspaper column about him, and a brief chronology of other false testimonies he is known to have given. All of this information is on file with the Subversive Activities Control Board. Should you wish to check with that Board it is located at 811 Vermont Avenue, Washington, D. C. 20445.

MANNING JOHNSON

The "Nation" of 4/10/54 contained a number of articles on "The Informer" featuring on page 305 an item on JOHNSON, a Dept. of Justice informer, who has testified in about 25 court cases and a number of congressional hearings.

"...In the second trial of Harry Bridges he testified that the West Coast waterfront leader had been present at a Communist convention in N.Y.C. on 6/27 or 6/28/36. But Bridges presented 6 witnesses, a number of newspaper reports, and other documentary evidence to prove his presence at a longshoremen's meeting in Stockton,Calif, at a time which made it physically impossible for him to be in N.Y. on the days mentioned. On the basis of this evidence counsel for Bridges demanded that JOHNSON be charged with perjury. The trial judge refused immediate action, but directed JOHNSON to hold himself in 'readiness for the processes of this court until the conclusion of the trial.' To date no action has been taken against him.

In 1951 JOHNSON testified before the Subversive Activities Control Board.On cross-examination the witness confirmed that he had given evidence in a Penn. sedition trial as follows

'Q. In other words, you will tell a lie under oath in a court of law rather than run counter to your instructions from the FBI. Is that right?

A. If the interests of my gov't are at stake. In the face of enemies at home and abroad, if maintaining secrecy of the techniques of methods of operation of the FBI, who have responsibility of the protection of our people, I say I will do it a thousand times.'

In the Penn. sedition case he admitted that he had testified falsely in the deportation proceedings against one Nat Yanish in 1948.

'Q. The testimony was not correct,was it, MR.JOHNSON?

A. No, it wasn't precisely, because I could not at that time reveal the fact that I had supplied information to the FBI...I think the security of the gov't of the U.S. has priority over...any other connection.'"

In their 7/4/54 Herald-Tribune column headed "Brownell Investigates Brownell", by the Alsops, they state that 3 of the Justice Dept's paid informers,including JOHNSON, are now being investigated for possible perjury by the Justice Department itself. JOHNSON is being investigated because of his testimony in the loyalty case of Dr.Ralph Bunche. "In the last 2 years the Justice Dept. has paid JOHNSON $9,096 or just under $400 a month. The dept. does not know of any other work JOHNSON was doing until two weeks ago, when he got a job as an insurance salesman....JOHNSON has testified under oath that he would lie under oath if directed to do so by his present employers. He said this to explain a false denial,also under oath,that he had become a Justice Dept. informer."

The "New Republic" of 7/5/54 carried an article on JOHNSON entitled "Professor Of Perjury" (page 22).

On 2/22/55, Harvey Matusow testified before the Senate Internal Security Subcommittee, and indicated that he considered Paul Crouch,Louis Budenz and JOHNSON false witnesses.

On 2/28/55, Matusow testified before the same committee and admitted he had no proof but insisted that ex-Communists Elizabeth Bentley, Paul Crouch, Louis Budenz & JOHNSON had lied at Red trials and probes.

On 8/11/56, the Subversive Activities Control Board reaffirmed its view that the U.S. Communist Party was Moscow controlled after reviewing its finding that the Communist Party must register with the Attorney General under the 1950 Internal Security Act. The SCAB expunged from the record of hearings on the case what it called "tainted" testimony given by Harvey Matusow, MANNING JOHNSON and the late Paul Crouch.
